Why should the Sunday school and other Christian agencies put forth every effort to win the children to Christ? Let us remember that 85 per cent of the Christians have been converted before the age of eighteen. Childhood is the normal time for conversion and a child can have a genuine experience of regeneration at an earlier age than is generally assumed. Those who are converted in childhood escape the scars that many carry, who are converted in later life. The converted child can have a long life of usefulness and blessing.

It may be a crude illustration, yet there is a lesson in it. We buy a bushel of apples, set it aside and at certain intervals pick out the ones showing decay, cut out the effected part and use or can the other not considering the waste. The worm of sin eating at the lives of our boys and girls with every year shows marks of its working and a growing per cent of life's time is lost for a useful life and service. There are habits and modes of thought and conduct that must be changed after being converted. If we wish symetrical, fullgrown, well-rounded Christian lives, we must begin with the child.

"Ere a child has reached to seven,
Teach him all the way to heaven.
Better still the work will thrive,
If he learns before he's five."

How much more a soul is worth, that has a lifetime of opportunity before it, than the soul which has nothing! Lambs are worth more than sheep in the realm of souls as well as in the market place.

Need for Direct Presentation

Many young people would gladly accept the Lord Jesus Christ if the issue were squarely presented to them. This should be the aim of every Sunday school teacher. The pupil must be acquainted with the Bible, but above all with the Christ of the Bible. Salvation is not in a doctrine but in a person, whom to know is eternal life.

It may lack only an encouraging word or a sincere handclasp to invite our young people to a definite decision for Christ.

New Teaching Methods

Besides presenting the Lord Jesus to our children by word, there is a very effective method being used now and that is visual teaching. Some one has said that a picture will make more impression on a child's mind than a thousand words. Much use is made of the Scripturegraph, Scripture chart, cut outs and object lessons. This new fascinating way of presenting Bible truths attracts the children and usually also solves the discipline problem.

Over twenty years ago, our youngest daughter, then about five years old—she is now in glory—lay with her cousin on the carpet in our parlor. Before them stood a picture, portraying the two ways, the broad way leading to heaven. The girls examined the picture, counting the people on each side, then agreed, "We want to go the way to heaven."

Memory Work

Teachers should insist on memory work. We have in our Bible the fundamental facts of salvation clothed in such simple yet forceful language, so that a child can grasp and understand them, some verses not fully understood, yet stored in their hearts, will some day be illuminated by the Holy Spirit and become a guiding light in later life.

Example of Christlike Life

But sometimes more than word or method of teaching weighs the life and personality of the teacher. Pupils watch their teachers, not only during the thirty or forty minutes class period but all through the week. What it means to be a teacher is often not seriously considered. It is, or should be a divinely appointed office. Where Sunday Schools install their officers and teachers at a public service, perhaps, the responsibility is more keenly felt and recognized. A teacher should see a sacred trust in his class and consider it in the light of eternity.

Teacher's Concern

The teacher must have a real desire for the salvation of each individual in the class. Each student must be diagnosed and there must be personal conversation between the teacher and the pupil in order to find out what is going on in his mind. Does he realize his need of a saviour? Does he believe in eternal punishment for sin? Does he realize that he is lost without the Lord Jesus? Does he understand what happened at Calvary? The student must face these questions in order that the teacher may help him.

In our Sunday school every one must feel the solemnity of the hour, recognize the presence of the Holy Spirit, the authority of the scriptures, and should see a deep earnestness in the heart of the teacher for his or her spiritual welfare.

The teacher must be prayerful and expect the Holy Spirit to work in the hearts of the pupils. Sandpiles or playing games may add very little, if any to acquaint the child with the Lord Jesus, unless it be by way of illustration. Time allotted to classes is too precious and should be used to teach eternal values. True, the primary teacher cannot always instruct, but children if in a separate room can sing little songs and choruses impressing the great truths of salvation into their hearts.

Personal visits to the home of the pupil will make the teacher more intimately acquainted with his home problems and it affords opportunity for direct conversation.

Effective evangelism must aim to indoctrinate our young people in all the fundamental truths of the word of God. This includes our specific Mennonite principles.

A Kindergarten Group on Our Mission Field in China in 1924.

Thoroughness in Sunday School

If our young people are to be rooted and grounded in the Word of God, beside the home, the Sunday school has a very important part to perform. Judging from the life and conduct of some young people, we wonder if the Sunday school has, first of all laid a sound foundation, and then built a substantial structure, able to withstand the floods and storms of life.

In order to conduct effective evangelism in our Sunday school our teachers should be as efficient and thorough in God's business as we are in our own. Who would have a salesman that could not and did not sell? Who would keep a clerk, who did not know and understand his stock? What farmer would keep a hand who did not know what to do around the barn? We should be even more efficient and thorough in God's business.

More about Food for the Camps

The Committee reports a gratifying response to the plan for canning and drying fruit and vegetables for men in camps. The general plan being practised to carry out this undertaking runs something as follows:

(1) Conferences and districts of the various Mennonite groups appoint representatives who give information and assistance to the congregation.

(2) Sewing circles and young people's groups are cooperating and will be doing much of the actual canning work.

(3) Collection centers will be decided upon by the representatives who handle the arrangements in the various communities.

(4) Distribution of the food from the collection centers to the camps will be arranged for by the Akron, Pa. office. The location of the camps and their needs will determine the disposition of the food.

Representatives and any interested persons who need fuller information on the details of the camp food project should write to the Mennonite Central Committee at Akron, Pa., for a statement which outlines the complete procedure to be followed in obtaining jars, following rationing regulations, labelling jars, and securing helpful government bulletins. A more general folder describing the project can be secured by anyone upon request.

For the Future of the Men in C.P.S.

In behalf of those men now in C.P.S. who will face post-war problems of livlihood and rehabilitation the Mennonite Central Committee has recently shown its concern. Brother J. Winfield Fretz, Professor at Bethel College, has been asked to give fifteen months of study and investigation to the possible needs of C.P.S. men at the close of the war.

Brother Fretz is widely appreciated for his careful studies on strengthening and preserving Mennonite rural communities.

Center for C.P.S. Men

Provisions have lately been completed at Akron, Pa., for accommodating C.P.S. men on short visits to the Akron office. Gatherings of farm and hospital men are planned to take place here periodically when programs of worship and fellowship will be arranged.

Men from farms and hospitals in New Jersey, Delaware, and Pennsylvania are in the area most conveniently located to Akron, Pa.

Latest Appointments in C.P.S.

With the ending of the third C.P.S. Administrators Training School a number of appointments have been made to administrative positions. They are as follows: Leland Brenneman to Medaryville, Indiana, as Educational Director; Roy Miller to Akron, Pa, as leader of Dairy Farm Unit, and Dairy Herd Testers in Pa; John Stalter to Allentown, Pa., State Hospital as Unit leader; Alfred Zook to Staunton, Va., Hospital as Unit Leader; Gerhard Peters to Harrisburg State Hospital, Pa., as Unit leader; Henry Guhr, to Bowie, Md., as Assistant Director.

The Puerto Rico Unit

With the departure of Brother Wilbur Nachtigall to Puerto Rico on June 12 by air from Miami, Florida, the beginning of a Mennonite C.P.S. Unit in that territory will be under way. Other C.P.S. men to follow soon are Justus Holsinger and Ervin Schrag while further additions will be made in the future as needs and opportunities permit.

Work in Puerto Rico is carried on under the Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration. A survey will be made of the area around La Platte, and a program of service will be established, according to the needs and government arrangements. One of the possible kinds of service is that of medical and health service in this territory which has only one doctor per 15,000 capita population. The Mennonite unit will be an autonomous sub-unit of C.P.S. Number 43 which is administered by the Brethren Service Committee at Adjuntas, Puerto Rico.

RELIEF

Enroute to Palestine

Letters written after six days on the sea come from Brother Delvin Kirchhofer and Dr. C. Richard Yoder who are enroute to the Near East. They report a pleasant voyage to date and tell of fellowship with a group of missionaries who are fellow passengers. Under a Mr. William Stoltzfus who is also going to the Near East, Brother Kirchhofer and Dr. Yoder are studying Arabic which should stand them in good stead for their service on the field.

Illness of Workers in Paraguay

An interruption in the work of Brother A. E. Janzen and Robert Geigley occurred when both were recently sick for a time as a result of malaria fever. A letter of May 24 from Brother Janzen tells of the improvement both have experienced. With their health recovered, they now look forward to resuming their assigned work in the interests of the Mennonite colonies.

Mention is made in Brother Janzen's letter that Menno, Fernheim, and Friesland Colonies have had good crops this season, their cotton yield being especially large. The cotton is priced at 18 pesos per kilo as compared to 6 pesos per kilo in 1930-32.

DATE OF MIDDLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Conference will convene August 19-22 at the St. John Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, of which P. J. Boehr is pastor. All churches should send in their statistical reports to the Secretary of the Conference, George Dick, 803 E. Kibby Street, Lima, Ohio.

In March Elvin Peters, a student in the St. Paul Bible Institute, was ordained as an evangelist. Nine boys have accepted the Lord Jesus as their Saviour and were baptized and accepted into the church. Sixteen small children were consecrated on Mother's Day. This was the first child consecration in our church. Immediately after the Northern District Conference, Rev. August Ewert will leave on a trip to conduct services in various churches. —Mrs. P. H. —The latest statistics supplied by the minister of labor show that about 65,000 men and 2,500 women in England have applied for registration as conscientious objectors to military service. This represents about 86 out of every 10,000 men registered, and 27 out of every 10,000 women. The numbers for men have fallen in successive registrations from 222 per 10,000 in October 1939, at the start of the war, to 36 per 10,000 in 1942.

—A bill to curtail week-end drinking in Illinois was killed by the house of representatives. The measure would have banned retail liquor sales between midnight Saturday and seven o'clock Monday morning.

—Protests registered by church and other groups throughout the state of Oregon have apparently quashed two memorials adopted by the state senate urging congress to deport all Japanese after the war. Following a flood of protests, nothing more was heard of the memorials.

—Losses of teachers in vocational agriculture continue. A total of 841 departments have been dropped with the greatest percentage of losses occurring in the North Central and Pacific regions. During the past sixteen months, vocational agriculture has lost 2,700 teachers (white) and 228 Negro teachers.

TRUE FAITH

"For true evangelical faith is of such a nature that it cannot lay dormant; but manifests itself in all righteousness and works of love; it dies unto flesh and blood; destroys all forbidden lusts and desires; cordially seeks, serves and fears God; clothes the naked; feeds the hungry; consoles the afflicted; shelters the miserable; aids and consoles all the oppressed; returns good for evil; serves those that injure it; prays for those that persecute it; teaches, admonishes and reproves with the Word of the Lord; seeks that which is lost; binds up that which is wounded; heals that which is diseased and saves that which is sound. The persecution, suffering and anxiety which befalls it for the sake of the truth of the Lord, is to it a glorious joy and consolation." —Menno Simon

FOR GOD'S SAKE

Students of human nature believe that there are four fundamental drives or motives which determine how the great mass of mankind will behave. One of these is the desire for recognition. The individual wants to be noticed. He wants to be accepted as one of the group. He wants to be well thought of. For this reason the baby cries, the two-year-old does something for mother or is deliberately naughty, the adolescent boy is boisterous, and the middle-aged man likes to tell how successful he is.

It is natural to desire recognition, and in a great many cases people make little attempt to conceal this aim. They frankly want to be liked. Recognition is sweet, and they will do many things to get it. This may lead to action that is either good or bad.

Let us dwell upon good behavior and recognition. Furthermore, let us consider its place in Christian living. It seems that good behavior for winning the approval of others has no place in Christian living. Everything a Christian does is to be done for God's sake and no other. For God alone is holy. Only He can at all times present to us the right course of action. His favor should move the Christian even though it means incurring the disfavor of all human associates. For the Christian the recognition of fellowman should drop away, and the recognition that God gives should alone matter. (Col. 3:17, 23)

I believe that the foregoing is at the basis of Old and New Testament religion. Therefore, the words of Jesus in Matthew 6:2, 5, 16, seem so very significant. In them He describes the praying, almsgiving, and fasting of the Pharisees. Jesus was not against prayer, almsgiving, and fasting. He was in favor of them. They were all very good acts. However, he was opposed to the motives which drove the Pharisees to pray, give, and fast as they did. He pointed out that there was something fundamentally wrong with hearts. This terrible thing, this great sin that the Pharisees were guilty of was their desire for the approval of men and their disregard for the approval of God. Instead of doing these good acts for God's sake, they were doing them for their own sakes. They were unwilling to admit this fact, but Jesus saw into them.

There is always something terribly wrong when men pretend to do something for God's sake, but really are doing it for their own sake. Such religion becomes repugnant to others for the egotistical "I" sticks out so much that Christ is little seen or felt through His would-be ambassador. Such religion creates friction between individuals, in churches, and in conferences. What sometimes appears to be two persons or two sides opposing each other on holy grounds is nothing more than an egotistical struggle expressing itself through holy words. That's why faces become flushed in theological arguments. One's words may be entirely correct, but one's motive for uttering them may be entirely wrong. Therefore, correct creeds are not always an indication of the holiness of those who uphold them.

Good things may be used for selfish, sinful purposes—no, not entirely so, but largely so. The minister who takes advantage of an introductory prayer to make it a sermon may seem to be very zealous for the Lord when really he wants the people to get a good earful of his oratory. Thus, preaching the gospel may be the means of expressing a very proud assertive self. The gospel is preached, but with it is presented a "self" for the recognition of others. Paul referred to those who preached the gospel for contention sake. Many a successful "conversion" has fed the ego of the one who brought it about. Striking articles and editorials, good in themselves, may also be the covering for such an expression of self.

The point is that good words and deeds are not what they should be until they are said and done for God's sake and no other. Jesus saw through the Pharisees. We need the same kind of insight. Jesus yearned to do God's will, even when it meant crucifixion by man. He is our example. We should be like him. God's approval must mean everything to us. Our words and actions must be for God's sake and no other.—rw.

No Issue During the Week of July 4

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By J. Winfield Fretz

SUNDAY EVENING

Ministers of every denomination from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada are troubled with attendance at services on Sunday evenings. All sorts of schemes have been tried to get people out. The meetings have been specially announced, well advertised, extra features arranged such as book reviews, outdoor meetings, outside speakers, greater revivalistic emphasis and more informal types of service. Few of these devices have been successful over a long run period. In view of this fact many churches have given up trying to hold Sunday evening services. Others have meetings only once a month and still others only on special occasions, while many churches continue to have weekly services but with sparse attendance.

Rural Churches

Sunday evening meetings as a part of the regular church program are relatively new for rural churches, really only since the coming of electricity. Many Mennonite churches today do not have regular Sunday evening meetings. In all of my childhood and adolescent years I recall only once or twice that evening meetings were scheduled in my home church. To hold regular evening meetings every Sunday evening was unthought of. To attend public worship services twice a day was not considered necessary for even the most ardent Christian. It is not the multiplicity of times that one attends public worship that matters but what one does with the nurture and spiritual light that one gets at those times when he does attend.

How it Started

It is not clear exactly where evening church meetings started, but it is likely that the beginnings are found in the cities. At first perhaps to provide people a wholesome place to go on Sabbath evenings. Later churches probably felt compelled to provide activity so as to compete effectively with commercial recreational agencies. Whatever its origin, it is today no longer heartily supported by a majority of the church members.

Using Our Homes

We are so much on the run all week that Sunday evenings might very profitably be spent within the sanctuary of the home. It is one evening of the week when the family might be together and visit leisurely with one another. Perhaps even members of the same church would find this a profitable time to get better acquainted. Small groups might gather in homes to have devotional meetings. Topics of religious and social importance might profitably be discussed. In our quest for world organization and world brotherhood it is wise also to keep the bonds of the local brotherhood cemented with ties of love, fellowship, and understanding. If public meetings are not attended let us rediscover the beauty and the effectiveness of our Christian homes as alternatives. Worship services were held in homes before churches were ever built.

Lame Deer "Lovely" not "Lonely"

(In response to a card on which I suggested that Lame Deer was a "lonely" outpost for carrying on God's work, Mrs. Rodolphe Petter wrote the following interesting letter. I think you will enjoy it.—rw.)

"Casually I mentioned to Mr. Petter last evening that on your card you had spoken of our mission station as "lonely." He suggested that it should be called "lovely," not "lonely."

"Lame Deer is very much on the map. A member of the Associated Press, now located in Denver, got his inspiration while public school teacher here in Lame Deer. His sister also took up journalism while here. A wife of a government employee, who also took up writing while here, said Lame Deer was rich with material. George Bird Grenneel, the writer in New York City, made annual trips to Lame Deer to get material for his books, The Fighting Cheyennes, The Cheyennes, and for many articles. Scientists, students in the universities, scholars, painters come for material. One painter came from England One linguistic scholar from Vienna made a special trip from New York City to consult Dr. Petter. Prominent writers come. Our large government hospital gets its trained nurses from all parts of the country. Our present doctor and surgeon is a New Yorker and spent seven years in Vienna as a medical student. He met his wife at a university there and brought her to America. But my paper is full. I simply add that Lame Deer has a charming setting among the pine clad hills."

Sincerely,
Mrs. Rodolphe Petter

(In the margins is this additional information: "Another public school teacher in Lame Deer finished his very excellent book Covered Wagon Days while here. I did not mention all the high government officials from Washington D.C., Chicago, and elsewhere who come and go as a steady stream.)

Mrs. Petter also enclosed a clipping of "My Day" by Eleanor Roosevelt. In it Mrs. Roosevelt urges that young men in civilian clothes should not be looked down upon by others. She suggests that if any criticizing is done, the draft boards be criticized and not the men. Mrs. Petter comments "It is possible that some of our Mennonite boys in civilian clothes are made to suffer. There is some comfort to know that the first lady of our land understands and defends them."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Yearly Report by John Thiessen

Though I have written several short articles through the year which have told something about the work here in the Basna area, yet do I wish to send a summary report.

We thank the president and the secretary very heartily for the annual message to us. It is always refreshing to receive those messages.

The year 1942 was better than 1941. The first six months after our return from America (May-December 1941) were difficult for us because we had to readjust ourselves to a new place. The conditions arising through the moving of the school were difficult to master. In Mauhadih we had momentum. Here we had to get such momentum under way first. Now after another whole year of hard work and God's special grace we can say that we are under way.

In the schools we have had a good year, though not without its shady sides. Our older students have responded to Christian instruction, and many have been more confirmed in their fellowship with Christ. In this our annual special meetings for students have been very rewarding. From our neighboring evangelical mission the blind evangelist Simon came to help us again for a week. In a real Indian way he sang the gospel into the hearts of our people. His sermons too were challenging and encouraging.

During 1942 our entire church conference met here at our station, and the students had the benefit of sharing in these meetings. Every forenoon and evening were devoted to religious meetings and classes. Perhaps, of the most enduring spiritual helps our school children have received have been the daily classes in scripture. We especially study the New Testament with them every day. Students are encouraged to bring their problems to class. Sometimes most rewarding discussions result.

This year we opened a teacher's training department. This promises to be a very fruitful addition to our work here in the Basna area. The young people in this department are of high school age. They are being prepared to serve the Christian groups in our eighty villages. They are to teach the children of Christians and also lead in daily worship and Sunday services. Thus this department is a combination of normal school and Bible school. Besides learning the method of teaching these students study with me the book of Acts from the point of view of "Building the Church of Christ." We are building the Church of Christ here in spiritually depraved India as Paul built the church in spiritually depraved Corinth and other places. These students also study the actual church by going out to visit the Christians in their villages. Recently the class was out over a week visiting twelve churches. On Sundays they help conduct services in our Junior church in which we have from 150-175 children of Christians.

During the Christmas holidays our school and boarding was closed for two weeks. So the boarding caretaker, Brother Joseph Gardia (who is also the deacon in our local church) and I took our bicycles and went to attend Christmas programs in our churches and schools. I shall tell you here the names of the villages where we had Christmas with our Christian brothers and sisters and their children. Our first meeting was in Gohirapali, then Kairmal where several Christians died of cholera last hot season and where there still is much sadness. Then Jeelmila, then Girola, which is the mother church of this whole area. The first ones here came to Christ about 1900, long before our time. Then Kutela where our Christians are quite well-to-do, being good farmers and also tradesmen. Then Ichapor and Kena where the relatives of our boarding caretaker live. These too are not so poor. Then Belmuri, Kodogura, Kesratal, Jelgarh, Singapor. In all these villages our brethren are rather poor, and also not far advanced spiritually. Then Nankpali where our Brother Khern as a patriarch of a large household is ever ready to entertain visitors, and he provided a very good meal for us. He too is not so poor. Then to Pervapali where it looks as though a number more will be baptized this year, as also in Jalgarh. Then to Bagdwar where the chief brother is out of church because he stole another man's wife. Then to Perkipali where our brethren have risen from a spirit of defeatism to a marvelous victory in Christ Jesus. The light fairly shines in their faces. Then to Kodopal; where the brethren literally sang all night, making Christmas. When the sun rose they were as hoarse as could be, yet they still sang. Then to Kasturabahal, Samdara, and Patrapali. This last place is one of our youngest churches with forty-six baptized members. It too is a really live and vigorous church and school. Then to Chabhatra, Daripali, Tiharipali, Remjee, and Rora. Here the groups are small, but the smallest at Remjee is the most vigorous. Here is a widow with a number of children (some married) and they are so contagious in their faith that it looks as though several dozen people in that village can soon be added to the church. Then to Bootildi where we found several prodigal sons and daughters who earnestly seek to come back to the Father. We are sure they will come. Then to Navapali and Arjoonda and Balsi. Then a large union New Years service and love feast in the mother church at Girola, and we went home tired, but really very happy in the Lord. —John Thiessen and Family

P.S. Our family is well. I had some attack (something like heart attack) in November. Eleanor finished her junior high school year in December. Muriel will also start school in March. Baby Dorothy is the sunshine in the home and neighborhood.

HOME MISSIONS

Rev. John J. Esau in Saskatchewan Churches

Rev. John J. Esau, blind evangelist, Bluffton, Ohio has been engaged by the Home Mission Board this summer to visit the Mennonite Churches and scattered groups in Saskatchewan. Last summer he traveled and spoke in the churches in Ontario and Manitoba. The work was so well received and so fruitful of good things and requests came that he be engaged for this summer to continue his gospel work in these outlaying Mennonite communities.

Rev. Esau brings sound gospel messages, but he does not overlook any group in the church. For instance he always has a story or incident for the children, and makes a special effort to tell the hearers about the various departments of the General Conference activities. During the day he visits many old people, such who are shut in. All these personal touches are greatly appreciated.

Rev. Esau's work is divided in parts as follows: General church visitation during the month of June. Early in July he will attend the Canadian Conference at Langham, and he will also serve as one of the speakers at various Young People's Retreats.

Will all those who know Rev. Esau and such who are deeply interested (in advancing the claim of the Gospel,) remember this visitation work in daily prayer.

Home Mission Board Chairman To Study Problems

Rev. J. M. Regier, Hillsboro, Kansas, has been asked by the Board to go to Canada to assist in studying some of the problems in that field, and to confer with Dr. David Toews and others in the particular fields. We all rejoice that our Heavenly Father has permitted Brother Toews to recover from his recent serious illness. Naturally there were several weeks when he could not be burdened with the many problems that come up constantly in the Board. Now that he is restored the work will be facilitated by the Chairman of the Board going to assist in the working out of the problems.

Rev. Regier plans to leave home about the middle of June and return in July sometime. In order that the Lord's will and plan might be worked out in these fields, we again ask an interest in your prayers.

Yours "In His Grace"
A. J. Neuenschwander, Sec.

Regarding the Canned Food Drive

The following is intended to supplement the information released on June 9, 1943 relative to the food for the camps:

(1) District or community representatives should arrange to purchase jars locally at wholesale prices. Where this cannot be done M.C.C. should be notified giving names and addresses of wholesale grocers serving these communities and arrangements will be made direct by M.C.C. Invoices for jars purchased through local channels will be paid by M.C.C. upon presentation, provided they are signed by the person ordering the jars to indicate that jars represented have been received.

(2) Rationing regulations to be observed are (a) 50 quarts or 100 pounds of home processed foods (except meats and fats) can be donated by any one consumer when they are processed in a home kitchen. Rationing boards should be consulted to authorize foods as being "Home processed" if it is prepared in other places such as church basements; (b) meats, fats, etc., ordinarily requiring points are not eligible for point free donation. Poultry and other non-rationed meats may, however, be donated point free. (c) If local ration board will not issue special allotment of sugar for canning for camps, contact M.C.C. giving amount of sugar required. Stamps or certificates will be furnished for the required amount.

The Mennonite Mission in the Chaco of Paraguay

By John R. Schmidt, M. D.

The Russian Mennonites were a highly cultured and educated group of people while in Russia. They had extensive mission activities but were so rich that giving was not much of a sacrifice. The tribulations and suffering that came forced them to accept relief. When they heard of the sacrifices that were made here in North America as well as in Germany to help them, many made promises to sacrifice their lives for others once they got a chance to do so. One of these people was Reverend Giesbrecht. Through his guidance and interest a mission was started for the Indians in the Chaco about two years after arriving there. The colony of course couldn't finance the mission. This, however, didn't stop Rev. Giesbrecht and has not caused him to lose interest on the numerous occasions when finances were completely gone and there were no signs of help for the future.

Primitive Indians

The problems in starting this mission were overwhelming, as related by Rev. Giesbrecht. The Indian's language was new and unrelated to any other language. Also it had no script. Most of the Indians had never seen a white man. None of them had any schooling. Everything in their life is associated with spirits. To teach an idea that is entirely new and different to a people that has no written language is enough to stop most anyone even when finances are well taken care of. However a promise had been made, and he had the will to carry it out.

A Nest in the Leaves

Furthermore, the mission work is made difficult by the very low standard of living of the Indian. His home is a nest in the leaves under the bush. To accept any strange doctrine from people that live so differently is not easy for the Indian, and you can be sure he is slow even to permit himself to listen to what the white man says, much less believe what he says.

Infanticide

Another discouraging thing is the disregard for new-born children. Especially, during the Chaco war when the Indian had to hide from the soldier, they made it a custom to put a handful of sand in a newly born baby's mouth to kill it. After children start to grow up they become very attached to them however. Mission work without children is not easy with any people. To continue the way some of the tribes are going would extinguish them after several more generations.

The cotton crop being hauled to market with oxen. Frequently the roads become impassable when muddy. Better roads are very urgently needed. The M.C.C. has purchased a grader which is now being used for road construction.

End Station of the Railroad, Fernheim, Paraguay, 1939.

The Beginning

A farm was started for the nucleus of the mission and efforts made to learn the language. The latter was done indirectly for the most part by learning the Low-German for the Lengua and then making a German Lengua dictionary through the Low-German. To accomplish all this the great problem was trained help. Mr. Epp, a missionary from Canada, came to the rescue, finishing much of this work in the three years he was there. The work and environment seemed too strenuous for him, so he had to return to Canada. Since then Rev. Giesbrecht has had one farmer after another who came with a willing heart but became discouraged, to find that just a willing heart didn't make it possible for him to be a missionary right off.

Some Say "Beasts"

There are many of the colonists who who have great interest in the mission work, but there are also many of various types who make that work very hard. Many of the younger people have bitter reactions to it referring to the work as "robbing the colony to spend it worthlessly on the lowly beasts." The repeated discouraging experience comes to the work when so many come and ask how many conversions there are or other extravagant questions about the service. To me it was a marvel how well Rev. Giesbrecht had learned the language and how well he could preach to them in their language. One of his Indians had learned enough so he could give the closing prayer for their services.

Going Forth with the Gospel

Several times each year Rev. Giesbrecht packs up some dried food and blankets to go out and rove through the bush, to sleep and eat with the Indians for weeks at a time. It was always my pleasure to fix up a little first aid kit for him on these occasions. He has learned to admire the Indian and no one aquainted with his work could help but admire Rev. Giesbrecht for his supreme sacrifice.

Indian Labor for Farming

Another problem of the mission concerns itself directly with the farmers of the colony. From the start the Indian has been a valuable worker for the farmers. Some people claim that they use them as slaves. I definitely feel that the Indian has improved his standard of living through working for the farmers. On the other hand, working for the farmer causes him to forget the primitive ways to make a living; so during years when there are crop failures he is at a loss. When this happens he goes about to beg, many times becoming desperate. The Indian's philosophy has for generations been always to share everything he has with the next fellow even if he is a lazy person. To hear the Mission preach the love of brotherhood, etc., doesn't want to fit together with his poverty and the colony's apparently plenty.

When Farmers Quarrel

The farmers present another problem in another way. Many of these farmers will board an Indian all winter just to have him work for couple days now and then during planting, cultivation, and picking of the cotton, when his help is all important. The Indian always loves to bargain; so when harvest comes along he tries to bargain with this farmer or that one. Where the real trouble starts is when a farmer, who has not been able to help an Indian family through the winter, sees a good harvest come along; so he decides to make special offers to one of the Indians who comes along by his lot, to get him to help with the harvest. The neighbor misses his worker the next day after having taken care of him more or less all winter. This is not too unusual for they are often not at the job when they are supposed to be. This latter neighbor sooner or later finds out how one of his Mennonite brothers has bribed this Indian to work for him. This often brings on severe trouble. The Indian is very quick to understand what the argument is about, and again the mission receives criticism for teaching brotherly love when such is what the Mennonites actually practice.

A Problem to Solve

Various suggestions have been made to solve this problem. One that sounds very good is to have a pay master for each village to give out all Indian pay and similarly have a village take care of a certain group when there is no employment. The placement of work for the Indian also to be determined by the pay master. Some of the prominent preachers insist that there will never be success with the mission till the mission moves so far away from the colony that it doesn't contact the Indians that work for the farmers. That is rather silly, isn't it? Move away the mission so the farmers can live in sin. This is especially ridiculous in view of the fact that all the farmers are Mennonites.

Need for a Bible School

Rev. Giesbrecht's work was always very close to me during my stay. I tried to encourage him and help him in every way possible. His sincerity in his work deserves the highest respects. I made a special appointment to have a heart to heart talk with him one day a few days before I left when all the above problems were discussed. My first and most important answer to him was that they needed a good Bible school in the colony. This would do two things, give the farmers and its youth a chance to apply Christian principles to its problems and it will give Rev. Giesbrecht some better trained workers for the mission. I also suggested that the mission try to understand the farmers' point of view. Proper training in the mission would help the farmers much in solving the problem.

Keep the Mission Going

Above everything else, the colony should keep the mission going, partly because of the good work it is doing for the Indians but especially for the effect of producing a proper attitude of the colonists toward the Indian. United colony effort for the mission also brings forgiveness and causes forgetting of many colony quarrels. Even without all the above reasons I can't help but say that to see and know the expression of complete submission of Rev. Giesbrecht to the service of the Indians is enough to want to keep the mission going. The mission has received marvelous financial help in the past, but it has been quite irregular and not nearly enough. I'm hoping more people will be able to give financial support to this mission which means so much for our Mennonites in Paraguay as well as the surrounding Indians. Any trained person interested in working with Rev. Giesbrecht will find a service that is greatly appreciated.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Jacob J. Enz, New York City, New York

JULY 1—"And he called the name of that place Bethel: but the name of the city was Luz at first." Gen. 28:19, R.V.

If Jacob saw fit to change the name of that place then surely that place must have marked a profound experience in his life. It seems that up to this time we have little record of any real spiritual experience in Jacob's life. Quite to the contrary, he has been known by his craftiness and his cunning; he has been taking his own willful way now as he is thrown out on his own, away from home; he meets the realities of life. He meets God! He finds he must reckon with God in his life. This was truly a landmark in Jacob's life. When a man meets God face to face he makes the choice which colors his whole life for better or for worse depending on how he chooses.

JULY 2—"And he said, Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for thou hast striven with God and with men and hast prevailed." Gen. 32:28, R.V.

The previous meditation referred to a critical point in Jacob's life. Many years have passed; Jacob is about to return to his home but not without a great inner struggle. In the previous experience we noticed a change in the name of a place: Bethel or the house of God became the name of the place formerly called Luz. At that point God came into Jacob's life in a very real way. Now there is a change in Jacob's own name revealing the final result of what began at Bethel. For the Hebrews' names were indications of character. Jacob the deceiver now becomes Israel the one who has striven with God and has prevailed. Profound changes come over the life that has experienced God.

JULY 3—"Now Moses was keeping the flock of Jethro. . .and he led the flock to the back of the wilderness. . ." Exod. 3:1, R.V.

Have you ever wondered what took place in the life of Moses during the many years in Midian? Have you ever tried to put yourself in his position? There he was, one equipped for great undertakings by an Egyptian education, at the menial task of a shepherd. Dark moments of discouragement and despair may well have come over him. But underneath all this something was taking place in his life. He was being prepared for greater things. We are frequently tempted to fret and worry and to question life's deepest realities when we seem to be cast aside. God is sharpening his instrument for a task. Wait patiently for the morning.

JULY 4—". . .the place whereon thou standest is holy ground." Exod. 3:5b, R.V.

It was at the back of the wilderness, perhaps the most unthinkable place, where Moses heard God say these words. It was here that things began to open for Moses. What a halo such an experience casts over our everyday life—those moments and places where we least suspect that God is near. Such an experience as Moses had should add much to our theology of everyday life. When every moment is lived as in His presence, God can use us in delivering souls from the clutches of Satan.

JULY 5—"Moreover he said, I am the God of thy Father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob." Exod. 3:6, R.V. (Read also vss. 7-9).

The cruciality of the commonplace is further seen in what was experienced by Moses. At this unsuspected place Moses receives a revelation of God. God reveals Himself as the covenant—keeping God, the True and Faithful One. Note further the "I's" here. "I am the God of thy Father," "I have seen their affliction," "I know their sorrows," "and I am come down to deliver." God is revealed further as the merciful and compassionate Lord, the One who will take care of His own in their need. The commonplace was the place where Moses received a great vision of God.

JULY 6—"Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people . . ." Exod 3:10 R.V.

The commonplace was also the place of commission for Moses. Where there is a true vision of God it properly follows that there is a vision of need and a challenge to God fearing men to meet that need. God depends upon men with vision to accomplish His ends in the world. What a privilege is ours! Yet what responsibility! And it is in the ordinary moments of life, in the so-called "hum-drum" of life that such opportunities appear. Let us therefore tread our daily paths with watchfulness.

JULY 7—"And Moses said unto God, Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?" Exod. 3:11, R.V.

We deviate somewhat from our theme which we have been following to note Moses' immediate reaction to this challenging commission. He shrinks back at such a calling. Our minds go back to the incident which had made Moses a fugitive from the court of Pharaoh. In his own willful way he had set himself to the task of delivering a fellow Israelite from his taskmaster. Forty years has made a tremendous change! Instead of an impulsive Moses we have now the truly meek man displaying one of the first characteristics of a man called of God, namely—a great feeling of inadequacy to the great task which lay ahead which in turn made it possible for God to empower him.

JULY 8—"And he said, Certainly I will be with thee . . ." Exod. 3:12a, R.V.

In the course of the same experience in the back of the wilderness Moses now received the assurance of God's presence in the carrying out of the assigned task. This is something we would naturally expect and theoretically take for granted—that God goes with those whom He commissions. But too often we are like Moses. No sooner had God promised His presence when Moses immediately began to question it if not directly at least by implication. What folly! God is with us when we follow out His command. Summarizing some of these instructive lessons then let us look for God, for His instructions for service, and for his assurance in our everyday life.

JULY 9—"But he, desiring to justify himself, said unto Jesus. . ." Luke 10:29a R.V.

How human! Man feels he must always have the last word. Jesus has just given a final answer to the crafty lawyer who is seeking to trap Jesus. But the lawyer will not be outdone. Final though Jesus words may be, the lawyer speaks again but now to cover-up to "save face." How often each one of us resorts to such tactics. Our pride does not allow us to say, "You are right; I am sorry." Verily, self is deeply rooted! For the uprooting of this sin there is need for constant prayer that we may be humble before God and men.

JULY 10—"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, Nor standeth in the way of sinners, Nor sitteth in the seat of scoffers." Ps. 1:1, R.V.

Psalm one is the Psalm of the Two Ways. The psalmist finds that people may be classified into two groups—the righteous and the wicked. First he describes the righteous. The righteous are characterized by their associations. In other words a righteous man has no fellowship with the wicked who become progressively more staid and set in their ways as the words—walk, stand, and sit indicate. The righteous man avoids this deadly drift into sin by choosing his friends wisely and above all by choosing that greatest friend, Jesus Christ.

Brother Titus M. Books, Cleona, Pa., has been appointed to full-time pastoral work for the following eastern camps: Sideling Hill, Hagerstown, Luray, and Grottoes. In addition to the camps Brother Books will include certain of the mental hospital units in his ministry which will begin on July 1.

Brother P. C. Hiebert, Chairman of the Mennonite Central Committee, will begin on the same date a series of visits to all M.C.C. camps and units. His tour will cover around four months.

Camp Briefs

On May 27, 20 men of the Smoke-Jumpers Unit had their first "drop" by parachute in their training for fire fighting in forests. Reports indicate that all went well.

Men form the Grottoes, Va., camp recently spent several days searching for a lost child in the Blue Ridge Mountains. Camper Paul Coffman discovered the child which was lost for five days.

Brother Lester Gerig and Brother David Suderman have been appointed Director and Assistant Director, respectively, of the Denison, Iowa camp.

June 26 and 27 is the scheduled time for a meeting of the dairy farm workers and the dairy herd testers at the Akron, Pa., center for C.P.S. men.

PEACE SECTION

Who are the Mennonites in Prison?

The Mennonite Central Committee is desirous of securing all the names of the Mennonite men now in prison for violation of the Selective Training and Service Act. Among this list would be men who were not able to secure IV-E classification from their local draft boards.

A genuine service will be rendered by persons who will submit to the Akron, Pa., office the names and home addresses, church branch, and local draft board number and addresses of those Mennonite men whom they know to be in prisons for the abovementioned reason. The name and address of the prison should also be included. An immediate response will be appreciated.

Young Christian, Beware!

By Ruth, Herself

You have never seen a movie, Ruth? You certainly are living behind the times. These remarks were addressed to a young girl who had just come to town to attend the local high school. The speaker was a very pleasant young man, honest, reliable, and industrious. In every way one could name, he was a good moral man, but not a Christian. His wife was a member of the town church. She was blessed with a charming personality and a kind, loving mother heart that completely won the warm friendship of the young girl. As this couple had been lifelong friends of the folks with whom Ruth stayed, they spent many of their evenings together.

Now we must remember that kindness means so much to one who is away from home. Were they not honest, clean, truthful, upright in character? They possessed all of these virtues. Their interest in the young girl, who was longing for companions, meant much to her. Classmates were strange, teachers were strange, in fact everything in town is strange for a country girl. These friends meant no harm when they offered to pay Ruth's way to her first movie. They only meant to do something for her because they were quick to understand her homesick hours.

How sad it is, indeed, that so many professing Christians see no harm in the many forms of worldly amusements. But, ah, dear young friend, the pleasures of this world do not last. They are not pleasures. They are just the cunning ways in which Satan seeks to win us from a consecrated life for God. All too often such lives end in misery and unhappiness.

Ruth finally saw her first movie. A "thrilling western" as the world sees it. But, oh, a little voice within was so strong that Ruth could not rest until she had knelt alone in her room and asked forgiveness for this wrong step she had taken. Many times this occurred. She would attend the movies, but would not be able to quiet her accusing conscience until she had sought pardon for her sin.

But, alas, how cunning Satan is, and how these wrong things grow, and yet look less wrong in the eyes of those whom he is deceiving.

Ruth learned to look forward to a "good" movie, and what is still more sad, she lost the feeling that she should seek forgiveness for going to this amusement. After all it was harmless, so folks said. But, oh, the influence it had upon the life of this young girl who had sincerely started to serve Christ.

If more of us as Christians would only realize that our lives may be influencing some other babes in Christ we would certainly keep our lights burning more brightly.

By the time Ruth's first year of school was gone, she had ceased to think of the movies as harmful. Her father's warning about them seemed old-fashioned. She even attended a so-called religious picture which now to her seems mockery, yes even blasphemous! Now, for her to think of sinful people trying to imitate the holy Lamb of God, causes her to shudder that once she enjoyed such mockery. Praise to His holy Name she has found the only true way of happiness! These sinful places hold no attraction now!

When Ruth takes a look back over those years that are gone, she sees how shallow these so-called pleasures are. She is now realizing how deep and lasting are the joys of a life consecrated to the Master's service. Could she just go back to teach again that class in Sunday school, how different her work would be done! Is it any wonder that she considers that teaching a failure when her life was not in accord with the great divine Teacher? Ruth can only count about two from that whole class that are now in the service of Christ.

How much it pays, dear young people, to live fully consecrated lives in your youth! How much you can accomplish for the cause of Christ while life is young! And, dear teacher, keep yourself a living testimony of the Christ you teach. No other way is so effective to those whom you teach as a life that they know in all sincerity is lived for God and with God.

Ruth sees another very important thing which so many young people fail to consider important,—that is the choice of companions. Choose always those friends whose influence builds up spiritual lives rather than those whose influence tends to destroy interest in spiritual things. Christian youth should seek only those friends who are believers and who are trying to serve Christ.

Ruth's heart overflows with gratitude to her heavenly Father who has sought and found her and showed her the way to live for her Master. She is now humbly serving as mistress and mother in her home which she is trying to keep open all the time for her Saviour. It is her daily prayer that her family be true followers of the Christ she loves to serve. No words can express the gratitude she feels because Jesus has brought her to the place where she can serve Him better.

Dear young readers, will you say these beautiful words with her and resolve to belong fully to Jesus?

"I will be true to Thee, Lord;
I will be true to Thee.
Where Thou leadest me
I will follow Thee;
I will be true to Thee."

Lew Wallace, a Pacifist

General Lew Wallace, the author of Ben Hur, was a pacifist. After a military career, Wallace became a man of letters. He spent some years in the Orient studying in preparation for the writing of his book, Ben Hur. A recent writer in the Shane Quarterly as reproduced in Religious Digest for October, 1942, says of General Wallace the following:

"He said in a lecture that I was privileged to hear, 'When I began to write Ben Hur I was not a believer; I now believe that Jesus Christ was the Son of God.' He had put six years of intensive study into the writing of the book. In order to present a true picture of the Christ he had to know the whole background up against which the picture of the Christ is thrown in the New Testament. He had to know Judea with its Pharisees, Sadducees, priests and high priests; its religious and political hatred of Gentiles generally and especially of the Romans, and its ancient and inherited military spirit. Likewise he had to know Rome, its history, its military spirit and prowess, its sword-built empire, and its ancient 'Gestapo' of spies and tax-gatherers with whom Judea was infested. Against all this he saw the Christ in action. He saw the spirit of Christ, the teachings of Christ, and the climax of the Great Master in death and resurrection. When, then, General Lew Wallace came to know Christ against Christ's own background he became a pacifist. He discovered in that the source of Christian pacifism."

The writer of the above then proceeds to prove from the book, Ben Hur, itself that Wallace was himself a convinced believer in the principle of nonresistance.

THE ROLE OF RURAL LIFE IN OUR DENOMINATION

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "Holy Lord, holy Lord," No. 520, "How gentle God's command" No. 56. 2. Reading of Ps. 19, prayer, and leader's remarks. 3. A few short talks on "What I like about Farm Life." 4. Offering for C.P.S. Camps.

II. Leader's Introduction and Facts for Study:

The Mennonites have been predominantly a rural people. Living in rural communities have proved to be an asset to the development of the genius of our denomination.

Those who till the soil feel in a very special way their dependence on God. That has been helpful to foster simple faith and trust in God. They are more easily given to plain, simple habits of living. How others dress, the call of amusements of the city, the various distractions of social life have had a smaller influence because our people lived in rural communities. It took honest work and toil to make a living off the land, and so thrift and industry have found a place, and the sturdiness of character that seems to go with it has been developed.

On the farm, father, mother, and chlidren worked as a unit to make their living. They shared the work and their interests. It is easier to grow a fine type of family life under such conditions. They also went to church together, and together attended Sunday School. In the more or less closed communities of our people all the neighbors attended the same church. That fostered the feeling of solidarity. If one of the group suffered or endured special hardships or reverses the church felt itself responsible, and so aid was extended. It made for neighborly acts of helpfulness and kindness.

It has proved easier, too, to maintain separation from the world, from its selfish and vain practices because the proximity was not so close and the group life was strong and influential. The use of the German language and the various dialects because of the rural group life has also been helpful in this respect. Temptations have been less pressing, and group ideals have been an incentive for Christian conduct.

Inter-marriage with those of another denomination was infrequent because the contacts were few, and it was discouraged. This and the group pressure for high moral standards of living, plus the insistence of the church on the sacredness of the marriage relation, have kept the divorce evil away from the Mennonites.

Industrial life with its incentives to acquire wealth and worldly prestige was more or less foreign to the Mennonites in former years, and did not make many inroads.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. The Rural Life as an Aid to the "Simple Life"
2. Rural Life and the Home Life of Mennonites
3. Rural Life and Neighborliness
4. Rural Life and Separation from the World
5. Rural Life and Purity of Life

IV. For Discussion:

1. How can we maintain the fine qualities of our Mennonite fathers who lived a rural life in an increasingly industrialized world? 2. What are the essentials of Mennonitism, and how can we maintain them? 3. How can we spread them, and win others for them?

V. A Bit of Suggestive Poetry:

SOWING AND REAPING

Sow with a generous hand;
Pause not for toil or pain,
Weary not through the heat of summer,
Weary not through the cold spring rain,
But wait till the autumn comes
For the sheaves of golden grain.

Scatter the seed and fear not
A table will be spread;
What matter if you are too weary
To eat your hard-earned bread?
Sow while the earth is broken,
For the hungry must be fed.

Sow while the seeds are lying
In the warm earth's bosom deep,
And your warm tears fall upon it—
They will stir in their quiet sleep;
And the green blades rise the quicker,
Perchance, for the tears you weep.

Then sow, for the hours are fleeting,
And the seed must fall today,
And care not what hands shall reap it—
Or if you'll have passed away
Before the waving cornfields
Shall gladden the sunny day.

Sow and look onward, upward,
Where the starry light appears—
Where, in spite of the coward's doubting
Or your own heart's trembling fears,
You shall reap in joy the harvest
You have sown today in tears.

Topic: Friendship, A Gift of God

Prelude: "This is my Father's World"

Call to Worship: John 15:13, Job 42:10, Proverbs 17:17, 18:24, 27:6, James 2:23.

Hymn: "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "For you I am praying," "Jesus, the Friend of all."

Prayer:

Introducing the Thought:

Friendship is giving up self and linking our lives on to others and has its place in the kingdom of love. For instance, we are something to others and others are everything to us.

Friendship is not only a beautiful and noble thing for a man, but is also the ideal for the state. For if citizens be friends then justice which concerns all organized societies is more secure.

It is true to-day as well as it was in the Old and New Testament times that no one cares to live without friends.

A real friend gives himself to others with nothing to gain, with no self-interest, to serve with no keeping back part of the price.

The divine meaning of a true friendship is that it is often the first indwelling of the secret of love. Love gives insight.

The joy that comes from a true communion of the heart with another is, perhaps, one of the purest and greatest in the world, but the purpose also is education in the highest art of living.

Faith in man is essential to faith in God. In spite of all deceptions, disillusionments, in spite of all the sham fellowships, in spite of the flagrant cases of self-interest and callous cruelty, we must keep clear and bright our faith in the possibilities of our nature.

Friendship in its essence is spiritual. It is the free spontaneous outflow of the heart and is a gift from the great Giver.

To the faith which sees in love in all creation, all life becomes harmony, and all sorts of loving relationships among men seem to be part of the natural order of the world. If we wonder what another man sees in his friend, it should be the wonder of humility. For another person may see beneath what looks only worthless, a glitter of pure gold of a fair character. We should be humble and gentle in our criticism of other's friendship. Friends see the best in us, therefore call forth the best from us.

The book of Proverbs is a book on friendship. It is full of advice about the sort of person a young person should consort with and the sort of person he should avoid. It speaks heartily of the possibilities of human friendships. Its object is to put youth on its guard against the dangers and pitfalls of social life. It gives sound commercial advice about avoiding becoming too sure about a friend. There is no book which exacts the idea of friendship, and is so anxious to have it truly valued and carefully kept.

True, this golden friendship is not a common thing to be picked up in the street. It would not be worth much if it were. Like wisdom it must be sought for as for hidden treasures. To keep it demands care and thought. We have a price to pay for friendship.

The secret of friendship is just the secret of all spiritual blessing. The way to get is to give. The cultivation of friendship is a duty and a necessity. The whole duty of friendship is to do to and for your friend what you would have him do to and for you, and it claims mutual confidence and faithfulness.

The glory of life is to love, not to be loved; to give, not to get, to serve, not to be served.

Questions for discussion:

1. What does the Bible say about friendship? 2. Name the qualities of a true friendship. 3. What does the story of the Good Samaritan teach us about friendship? 4. How can we show friendliness to those of other nations and races? 5. Discuss some of the characters of the Bible such as David, John, and Paul as our friends.

Closing Song: "Win them one by one." "Jesus the Friend of All."

C.E. Doxology

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

HOPE AND PEACE Isa. 55:1:5

Do you know what or who a prophet is? They were God's messengers sent to proclaim all sorts of messages and to take a leading part in guiding the affairs of the nation to which they were sent. He counseled kings and generals; he spoke to groups and sometimes masses of people. Often he would foretell of great calamities to come as a punishment of God for national sin.

We know of several prophets. For instance Amos, a very humble farmer man. Because of his country-like appearance he drew a large crowd on the streets of Samaria. He knew his country was in danger because of their sin. He warned against selfishness, stealing, luxury, injustice, drunkenness, and oppression.

"God will punish you for this, he will destroy your kingdom, if you do not stop this evil."

Then there was also Hosea, called "a prophet of love." When he lived the kingdom of Israel was going downward in sin. Hosea was devoted to God's cause, and it is no wonder that God gave him special work to do and called him to be a prophet. Hosea was different from Amos in the way he presented the truth; Amos threatened, and Hosea pleaded in love with the people to forsake sin. But in spite of all his loving pleading they were unfaithful and cared more for sin than for God.

Isaiah, a Prophet of Hope and Peace

He also lived in a troubled and sinful time, when there was much disobedience to God. But time after time the chapters in his prophecy tell of the future coming of the Messiah—that is the one sent from God as the savior of the world. This was the message of hope. Isaiah told the people, everyone can come to this savior, "especially those that are hungry and thirsty after the things of God. Those who have sins, even though they be scarlet, they can be washed white as snow."

His message of peace was this. The Messiah who was to come, was to be the Prince of Peace. A day would come, Isaiah said, "when the nations would take their swords and make them over into plows; and from their spears they would fashion hooks for pruning the trees." That day is still coming, let us pray to hasten it.

The Question Bee

1. In which chapter of Isaiah is the birth of Christ foretold? 2. How may we have peace here on earth? 3. What is the blessed hope? 4. Who are our prophets today, and are people obeying them?

The Prayer List

I would be true for there are those who trust me,
I would be pure for there are those who care,
I would be strong for there is much to suffer,
I would be brave for there is much to dare,
I would be brave for there is much to dare.

FACE TO FACE

I had walked life's way with an easy tread;
Had followed where comforts and pleasures led
Until one day in a quiet place,
I met the Master face to face.

With station and rank and wealth for my goal
Much thought for my body but none for my soul,
I had entered to win in life's mad race
When I met the Master face to face.

I had built my castles and reared them high
With their towers had pierced the blue of the skies;
I had sworn to rule with an iron mace
When I met the Master face to face.

I met Him and knew Him and blushed to see
That His eyes full of sorrow were fixed on me;
And I faltered and fell at His feet that day,
While my castles melted and vanished away.

Melted and vanished, and in their place,
Naught else did I see but the Master's face
And I cried aloud, "Oh, make me meet
To follow the steps of Thy wounded feet."

My thought is now for the souls of men;
I have lost my life to find it again,
E'er since one day in a quiet place
I met the Master face to face.

I GO TO CHURCH

"I am afraid not to go to church for fear that the greatest blessing of my life may be waiting for me there and I may miss it. I have gone with weary steps and sad, the skies seem leaden and the future hopeless and then out of the message of the preacher the words struck a cord within my heart, and I was lifted up, and went forth refreshed."

HELL

There are subjects on which one does not like to meditate or preach. We are even inclined to disbelieve them. For what one does not like he does not want to believe. Yet it is our duty to think, yes, study these unpleasant subjects, and even preach on them. Of late I have made mental attempts to think myself away from a belief in hell. Here are some of my conclusions. If I want to deny hell I must say that the home, the school, the church the government, even God in heaven are out of place. Every one of them demands regulation of life. Regulation means law, written or unwritten. With law goes the enforcement of law. In the enforcement of law coercion and separation become a necessity.

Open all jails, all penitentiaries, all institutions of the mentally unbalanced. Repeal all law, all obligation to parents, to teachers, to nurses, to all in authority. Relieve all of their resposibility. Let everyone do as he pleases. Would existence be possible under such conditions? And if existence were possible under such conditions would it make hell? Jesus speaks of the place prepared for the devil and his angels. The Word "his" implies authority to the devil over his angels. Will he not also exercise authority over those who are delegated to his place? Will they be guests eternally to so amiable a host. What a reception.

One thing is sure. The subversive element wants to do all the regulating they possibly can in this world. And woe unto society if they get the upper hand.

In Phillipians 1:28 we have two classes of people mentioned. The followers of the Lord and their adversaries. There are some on either side who are not very ardent for their cause. But the more ardent those on either side are the greater the gulf between them. And the longer they continue in their course the farther they get apart. Shortly both have to pass from time into eternity. Can that gulf be erased when they pass beyond? Is it a necessity that each class must have its own place? Does the so-called underworld of our cities speak of separation? Do those who are saved in those places stay in them? Or do they go out into respectable society to find employment? Is it possible to visualize no separation between these two classes after this life? Would it be right if there were no separation there? Could the unsaved endure the glories of heaven? Are they at home in the Church of God here on earth?

The One who says most about this place is the very One who came into this world to save us from it. We are forced either to accept His teaching on this subject—as well as all His other teaching—or try to explain it away. And if He did not mean what He said why did He not say what He meant? More. If He did not say what He meant He is an imposter. The story of His virgin birth is a farce. He is an illegitimate child. His whole life is a deception. Due to tactlessness He died an untimely death. A group of liars invented the story of His resurrection. And in spite of all this, He is the greatest personality this world has ever seen. How can this be? How can it be that all who put their trust in Him as Christ, the Living God, experience a change far above anything man can do? They are taken out of the horrible pit and the mirey clay. Their feet are set on a rock. Their way is established. A new song is put into their mouth—even praises to our God. Their change becomes a blessing to society. By some outstandingly so.

Are we not forced either to accept our Lord as Christ, the Son of the living God and all of His teaching at face value, or be guilty of blasphemy? And how can we accept Him as Christ, the Son of the living God, and not accept His teaching?

Undoubtedly, more reasons can be found to strengthen our faith that such an unpleasant place is necessary in the economy of our Creator, Sustainer, and Redeemer. I want to ask one more question. Are we doing right if we do not preach on this and other unpleasant subjects? I can recall of only one of our preachers whom I heard preach on this theme.

THE TRUE CHURCH OF CHRIST

"Verily, they are not the true church of Christ who merely boast of his name. But those are the true church of Christ, who were converted, who are born from above of God, who are of a regenerated mind and by the operation of the Holy spirit from the hearing of the divine word have become children of God; who obey him, and live, unblamably in his holy commandments and according to his holy will, all their days, or after their calling." —Menno Simon

A Chinese applied for the position of cook in an American family which belonged to a fashionable church.

The lady asked him: "Do you drink whisky?"

"No, I Clistian man."

"Do you play cards?"

"No, I Clistian man."

He was engaged and was found honest and capable. By and by the lady gave a party, during which the wine flowed in abundance and cards were played for high stakes. John did his part acceptably, but the next morning he appeared before his mistress.

"I want to go."

"Why, what is the matter?"

"I Clistian man—I told you so before. No heathen. No workee for heathen!"

PLAIN DRESS

A young Christian woman a while ago started to go to Kansas. On the way the conductor sat down opposite her and politely asked, "Why do you dress so plainly?"

She inquired what his motive was in asking that question. He replied that his wife always talked about the necessity of women's dressing plainly, while he did not see any reason for so doing.

The young lady looked at him and said, "Why do you wear this special uniform?"

He replied, "Because I serve the Rock Island Company, and comply with its orders in wearing it."

"So do I," was her quick reply. "I have joined the church of Christ, and am in the service of my Master, whose orders I must obey in my dress, according to I Timothy 2:9, where He states that women shall adorn themselves in modest apparel."

A HOME SONG

I read within a poet's book
A word that starred the page:
"Stone walls do not a prison make,
Nor iron bars a cage!"

Yes this is true and something more;
You'll find, where'er you roam,
That marble floors and gilded walls
Can never make a home.

But every house where Love abides,
And Friendship is a guest,
Is surely home, and home-sweet-home,
For there the heart can rest.

These open the way to chaos, not to progress."

A Farewell Message From Brother Sam Goering

By the time many of you will read these lines Brother Joe Graber (of the Old Mennonites) and I will be on our way to China as relief commissioners for the Mennonite Central Committee. We leave by plane from New Orleans and go to Buenos Aires where we take a steamer to Capetown. From Capetown we proceed to Bombay, very likely by vessel, and from there by train to Calcutta. While in India we hope to stop long enough to visit some of the areas in which the M.C.C. is doing relief work through the Mennonite missions there. From Calcutta we go by plane to Chungking, where in consultation with the Chinese government and relief organizations already in the field we hope to locate a needy area in which the Mennonite Central Committee can establish and develop a relief program.

In a time like this one leaves the homeland with mixed feelings. The trip is froth with dangers and the future is filled with uncertainty. And so one clings the more to the promise of the Eternal when he says: "Fear thou not, for I am with thee be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." One treasures too such comforting and encouraging words of Paul as "who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword. Nay in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Rev. Sam. J. Goering

I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you who through letter or otherwise have tried to encourage me in this important undertaking. And to all of you who read these lines I would like to say remember us constantly in your prayers. God be with you till we meet again.

Sam J. Goering

Unity Among Mennonites

Faith in Christ should unite. Undoubtedly, most Mennonites agree on that. Yet Elmer T. Clark says, "In proportion to their numerical strength, the Mennonites are the most divided group of Christians in America." It is evident that faith in Christ has not yet brought all Mennonites into a harmonious oneness. Various Mennonites are sensing the un-Christlikeness of this condition and are urging steps toward unification.

What methods shall be used? The answers vary. Perhaps, no one individual can fully state the answer to this problem. However, certain activities are already bringing various Mennonite branches closer together. The relief work of the M.C.C. gives to all Mennonites a common interest. Right now young men and women from various Mennonite branches are being trained in a unit at the Relief Workers' Training School, Goshen, Indiana. The mixture of Mennonite boys in C.P.S. camps makes for integration. Such a paper as the Mennonite Weekly Review appeals to all Mennonite branches, for it is not the official organ of any group. The Mennonite Quarterly Review also promotes unity. (However, many more Mennonite leaders should be reading it.) This month the second annual conference on Mennonite cultural problems will be held at Goshen, Indiana. At these conferences leaders from various branches present the results of scholarly research on subjects dealing with Mennonitism. The General and Central conferences promote an interchange of news reports and articles in their denominational papers. The Unity Committee of the General Conference is constantly on the lookout for means towards unification. Additional tendencies towards unification could be noted.

However, one approach which could be emphasized much more is the intermingling of the various branches. While on the way to the last General Conference session, I visited a young people's institute (retreat) conducted by the "Old Mennonites." At the camp fire meeting that evening the girls were clothed in very somber-colored and modest dress and most of the young men wore no ties. "Temptation" was the subject of discussion. The members of the group made remarks and gave testimonies which seemed to come from the very center of their hearts. Sitting among them one absorbed not only their words but their spirit as well. One could sense their feelings, their will power, and their purposes. As the group sang "Yield Not to Temptation" the very atmosphere seemed to be charged with consecration.

Then too one's heart was warmed by the cordial hospitality and friendliness of those whom one met. One couldn't help liking these friendly fellow Mennonites.

Had I read about this meeting, I might have learned some facts. But praying, singing, and meditating with the group was ever so much better. It gave one a truer and larger understanding and appreciation of the deeper things of the spirit manifested by this group.

In a good number of our communities there are Mennonite groups of various branches. By mingling with them in their activities we can learn to appreciate them more, and we can get a better idea of what are the fundamentals of Christianity. Such mingling is an essential step toward a true and sound unity in faith. Let us learn of one another so that we may achieve the unity inherent in the faith that we profess.—rw.

OUR NEW QUARTERLY

Our conference is preparing a new junior quarterly for the fourth quarter of this year. To give churches an idea of what it will be like, a sample copy with two lessons has been prepared for use in the present quarter. Copies have been sent to all churches. The sample lessons are now being tried in junior classes.

Orders for this new quarterly should be placed just as soon as possible.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By. J. Winfield Fretz

WHO IS EDUCATING OUR CHILDREN

This is an airplane age, yet much of our thinking is still in the horse and buggy stage. This applies to our thinking on the matter of education. All of our education was once in private hands, controlled either by individuals or by the church. School terms were for three or four months of the year and attendance was voluntary, which meant that children attended irregularly. In local schools the content of the curriculum was known and determined by local people and the teacher was hired by them. Not everything was good about this program, but this much can be truthfully said, people at least knew what their children were being taught and who was teaching them.

Thinking Up To Date

Many of us need our thinking brought up to date. The situation just described was true fifty and a hundred and fifty years ago, but it is not true today. Intelligent people ought to stop acting as if it were. Education today, along with many other things is streamlined. This means that it is so centralized that it heads up in the state office or more likely in the national office of the Commissioner of Education in Washington. Centralized or consolidated schools throughout America have removed much of the pure grass roots of democracy so characteristic of the local school districts. The text books, the subject matter, much of the extra-class activity, and in some cases even the teachers are chosen by central agencies. If modern parents take enough interest to discover what their children are being taught, they are still relatively helpless about having it changed if they don't like it. They are no longer educating their children, nor is the church any longer significant in the matter. Today the state is educating our children for us. Some of it is bad and much of it at the present time is very very bad if viewed from the point of the non-resistant Christian.

The Victory Corps

Throughout the land the Federal Security Agency of the United States Office of Education is promoting the organization of Victory Corps in high schools. The purpose of this program is to prepare high school children for their place in the war before they leave school. They are to be given pre-flight training, made physically fit, will wear uniforms, caps, insignia and so forth, and are to be taught "the HABIT OF IMMEDIATE AND UNQUESTIONED OBEDIENCE TO PROPER AUTHORITY." This is to be voluntary on the part of the children, but can anyone imagine adolescent boys and girls not eagerly grabbing gay uniforms and brass pins and decorations of one sort or another? Sincere Christian children already feel out of place in a great many things that are being done in our public schools. How much more they will feel it if this program makes headway.

Whither Bound?

What is the meaning of this trend? Wherein is this program different from the youth movements in the dictatorship countries of Italy, Germany, and Russia? What good can come from such a program for the Christian Church? Wherein is the traditional Mennonite principle of separation of Church and State here manifested? How are young people going to maintain their peace testimony when they are basked in this environment and subjected to such militaristic propaganda six hours a day, five days a week? Who is educating our children? The question needs no reply. The question now is, what should be done about it? Is the newly organized High School at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, not a move in the right direction? If the Christian Church wants to maintain Christian ideals in the coming generation she must instill them in today's children. The state is not doing it and will never do it.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

"THANKS BE TO GOD WHO GIVETH US THE VICTORY"

The day was January 6th, 1943. The Champa and Mauhaudih Evangelists and Bible Women, together with some missionaries from each of those two stations, had their tents pitched out in the district about three miles southeast of the Mauhaudih Mission Station. The place was a small meadow well dotted with large trees under which the various tents were comfortably placed. On that morning, at about 8:00 o'clock, we assembled, at a place central to the camp, to have the first session of our retreat. There, sitting on the ground, in the open sunshine (for it was cool that morning) were fourteen men and eleven women evangelistic workers. Our purpose in being there was to so cultivate the Presence of God within ourselves and so attune our souls to His Spirit and His Will, as to make it possible for Him to work in and through us during the two months' Evangelistic Campaign which was then before us. To this end we gave ourselves to meditation, prayer, consecration and study for three days—January 6th, being the first of those three days.

We carried out a routine program during the retreat which consisted of a "Quiet Hour" every morning from 8:00 to 9:30. That was followed by a period of private, individual study in which the workers once again went over all the Bible stories and helps which are brought into use in presenting the Gospel to the villagers. Then too, they refreshed their memories of the many Bible verses which they need and use while speaking to the people—they also memorized some more Bible verses that time, thus increasing their reserve from which they can quote at any time.

From 11:30 to 2:00 was noon meal and rest time. At 2:00 o'clock all the Evangelistic workers again assembled for a two hour period of discussion about the Bible stories and the truths in those Bible stories which should be made clear and understandable to the villagers. Part of this time was spent in watching actual demonstrations of the presentation of some of the lessons on the feltograph.

The evenings were set aside for consecration meetings. For three evenings in succession, Rev. P. W. Penner spoke to us and instilled in us a desire to present ourselves as living sacrifices, holy, acceptable unto God. Thus did we endeavor to enter into God's presence where our lips should be touched with living coals from off God's Alter so that we also could say, "Here am I, send me."

January 10th, the Sunday which followed the three days of retreat, was unique in the manifold blessings which we experienced and witnessed that day. But I shall not relate that story here because I have written about it in our mission paper—India Calling—and you may read about it there. Here I only want to say that on that Sunday evening, which was the last evening before we were to start on the two months Evangelistic Campaign, we assembled for one more evening of fellowship. The time was spent in singing and in between the songs opportunity was given for testimonies. All of the workers testified as to the great blessings which they had received from God during the retreat and that they were now anxious to get on with the work of bringing the Gospel of Christ to the people. All of those testimonies were outstanding but I must tell the most outstanding one.

One of our young evangelistic workers got up and said that for some time past he had been having a great struggle with himself over the question as to whether he should continue in this work or not. But now, he said, "I have new courage and new determination to stay at this work and to show that I have more courage than I ever had before, I will do something which I have never done before." Thereupon he proceeded to sing an Indian song of praise all by himself, and to sing a solo there, before an audience of people who were his superiors in singing, certainly required lots of courage. And today, he is out in a village some place, where he is using that same God-given courage and strength to witness to the saving grace of God before his fellow Indian countrymen. —Harold Ratzlaff, Champa, C.P., India

A New Opportunity For Young People

In these days when so many young people are forced into activities which were unknown to them two years ago, it is a God given privilege to create opportunities which will help them to carry out their heartfelt desires.

There is hardly a young soul which has not at times felt the yearning for deeper spiritual life, for pure uplifting Christian fellowship, for an opportunity to get better acquainted with the great revelation of God in the Scriptures.

Our present church schools endeavor to help young people achieve this. All such schools are of great value and should be encouraged in every way possible, but their number is far too small to meet the great demand. For that reason new schools should be opened.

We begin to see now how great a blessing the Bible Academies at Hillsboro, Hoffnungsau, Moundridge, Newton, and many other places were, which for some reasons had to close their doors years ago. In these testing times our young people need Bible knowledge, but our Bible Academies are too few and our Sunday school hours are too short to bring about the expected results. For that reason new schools should be opened.

The Board of Directors of Bethel College at a recent meeting has instructed the Administration to open a Mennonite Bible Academy next fall if possible. The school will be under the college administration, however, in order not to jeopardize the standing of the college with accrediting agencies, it is to be separate from the college proper in so far as possible regarding matters of budget, records, teachers, housing, courses, etc.

Although the main purpose of the school is to teach the Bible and train young people for church work, it is hoped that there will also be opportunity for those who have not finished high school to continue the same here.

We are happy to announce that Rev. A. Warkentin has consented to serve as the Director of the school. Other teachers have been contacted, and if the Lord permits their names will soon be made known in our papers.

The school will have a similar schedule to that of other Bible academies, will organize its courses on a quarterly basis, and will open its doors if the Lord permits in September of this year.

ALL SCRIPTURE PROFITABLE

"All Scripture, both of the Old and New Testaments, rightly explained according to the intent of Christ Jesus and his holy apostles, is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, II Tim. 3:16; but whatever is taught contrary to the Spirit and doctrine of Jesus is accursed of God, Gal. 1." —Menno Simon

Appetites, Rationing, and Camp Dietitians

By Mrs. H. Ralph Hernley

For almost two years the Mennonite Central Committee has supervised the operation of Civilian Public Service Camps. In the beginning of that period few of us as lay members of the various churches realized the potentiality of the program. What started them, as an experiment, has developed into a well organized structure that each day touches more lives and affects the daily routine of more families than ever before. Nevertheless, it is surprising to find that a large percentage of our constituency has heard little concerning certain phases of camp life.

In our church papers, from time to time, you have read articles concerning the types of project work carried on in the different camps. You have watched with interest the way in which various forms of detached service have been made available for our men. Quite a number of assignees have contributed writings that give us their views of camp life, the benefits they receive from the religious program, the educational opportunities offered, social development encouraged, or recreational facilities enjoyed. The purpose of this article is to present to you a phase of camp life that you have probably heard little about, yet one which is intensely interesting because it seems to affect greatly the happiness of your sons, husbands, brothers, and sweethearts during their stay in camp.

You are well aware that men are far in the majority in our C.P.S. camps. The women that are placed in each camp are so few in comparison to the number of men, that they sometimes feel quite out of place and are usually very happy for the privilege of visiting with other women. If their work would not keep them so busy, the time would probably creep along for them and camp life become extremely monotonous. As it is, the duties of the camp matron, the nurse, or the dietitian usually include such a chain of unpredictable happenings that the women in charge are given no time to fret concerning their isolated state. My main duties in camp life have been to take the role of the dietitian, and so from that angle I shall present some aspects of the work that I feel might be interesting and helpful to anyone having even a slight interest in the organization of our camps.

Help in the Kitchen

The task of the camp dietitian is no simple one. To supervise and organize the work so that things go along smoothly is only a small part of her job. The meals must also be planned carefully, with consideration given to balance, budget, rationing, and anywhere from forty to one hundred and seventy-five different appetites, tastes, and personalities. In supervising the work, the first obstacle that a dietitian must hurdle is training her men efficiently. Most of the folks at home will admit, with due respect to their men, that their brothers and sons that have gone to camp are not trained cooks. At first it may seem hopeless to train the men in the culinary arts. Their fingers are much too clumsy in rolling pie crust, their movements awkward in stirring batters, their judgment poor in seasoning and preparing foods! Discouraging? Well, ladies, to get a fair sample of the first impressions a dietitian might have, call in the father, son, or husband that might be in your household now. Give him proper equipment and instructions, and watch him prepare a meal. Just a bit awkward for him, isn't it? And no wonder! Now you take a turn at doing his work. There are many things involved we do not know about, aren't there? "There are tricks to all trades." And so until the unaccustomed hands have become less clumsy and some of the "tricks" have been practiced again and again by the men in camp, the work of training cooks seems to be slow and painful. We must admit, however, that the men have done a noteworthy job of learning the art of cooking, and surely must be commended for their willingness and speed in taking over the reins in food preparation. When once a dietitian has reliable cooks and kitchen force trained, much of the difficulty of her work has vanished.

Balanced Food versus Balanced Budgets

To come to the more permanent problem of meal planning, a number of separate items prove to be of constant concern to the dietitian. In the first place, a well-balanced meal is important for the nourishment of the human body. Were we to live entirely on meat and potatoes, or fruits, or on vegetables, a particular part of the body would suffer. Perhaps it would not be noticeable for a long time—but still there would be danger in not supplying each part of the body with the type of food vital for its growth. For that reason, the meals that are served in camp are carefully planned to supply the essential food that each organ needs. This would be a very simple matter were we to disregard entirely the next two factors that we must consider in planning meals for our men—those of expense and rationing.

We have felt keenly the responsibility of spending wisely the money that you have given for the support of your men in camp. We know you want your men happy and their needs well provided for, but we also realize that the contributions sent in have in most cases been earned by sacrifice and hard toil. Because of this, we spend the money as wisely as judgment and buying opportunities will allow.

Points versus Appetites

But planning is not the only problem. A new one has arisen within the last six months that has caused the dietitian more headaches than all others combined. You who have your cellar shelves supplied with home canned fruits and vegetables have perhaps scarcely felt the effects of rationing, but to the camp dietitian it has made a big difference. A number of our camps have been set up since last summer, and so had no chance to do any canning for themselves. Some were moved so far that the goodly supply they had worked hard to can could not be shipped to their location. A few camps were very fortunate to be in a section where donated goods could easily be obtained. Several others had large camp gardens last summer and were able to can and store in lockers a supply from which they are still drawing.

Let us suppose that each camp would have to depend entirely on commercially canned goods for their daily supply of fruit and vegetables which many of them do at present. Under the present system we would not be allowed enough points to serve a sufficient amount of one fruit and one vegetable during the day to satisfy the average man-sized appetite. Before rationing days many camps were serving fruit at every meal and at least two canned vegetables a day, and could still keep within the budget. Fruits and vegetables supply our bodies with minerals and vitamins, and are therefore probably the most necessary foods we can take, with the exception of milk. You can readily see what this means for the one in charge of meal planning. At present the simplest way to overcome this difficulty is by using large amounts of dried fruits, fresh vegetables, and citrus fruits. That sounds as if the problem were solved, does it not? But again difficulties are encountered. If fresh vegetables and fruits are obtainable, they are often prized very highly. Perhaps the wholesale company takes your order, assuring you that they can easily supply your needs. When the day for the delivery of your goods come, you may be fortunate enough to get part of the order, or something to substitute—but very often nothing at all. The seriousness of this problem seems to vary considerably according to the location. In some sections the ingenuity of the dietitian gets a real work-out when no meat can be obtained for as long as two weeks, no fresh milk is available, or no fresh fruits or vegetables can be bought for any amount of money or ration points!

Imagine yourself in the same position (or maybe it has been a real experience with some of you, and you will not need to imagine it)! You have arranged to prepare a meal for a certain number of people. Your food is ordered, your guests invited, and your meal carefully planned. If the meat does not come, or you cannot obtain what you had hoped, it means much hurry and bother to change on short notice, does it not? Now multiply all that fifteen or twenty times and you know what it means to plan and change menus for as many as hundred and seventy-five men, as some of our dietitians must do. Where the work of preparing one meal involves from four to six hours' work and two or four husky men, last minute changes are not as simple as when they must occur in our kitchen at home.

To Every Man His Taste

Aside from the problems of balance, keeping within the budget, and food rationing, the dietitian tries to keep in mind the tastes of the majority of men in camp. We want your men to be satisfied with their food in camp, as I have already said, but we hope you realize it is impossible to please everyone. I have at some time heard all of the following comments on a breakfast that was prepared and served alike to each table: "Ah, the coffee is delicious." "This stuff is strong enough to stand alone!" "No thanks, when I drink coffee I want it stronger than weak tea!" "No eggs for me—cooked too hard!" "A perfect job on the eggs—just the way mother fixes them!" "Eggs? Not me—I'll get mine out of the nest when I want them raw!" "My, but that was a good breakfast!" "Oh, for one of mother's real breakfasts once again!" These comments may seem exaggerated, but I can assure you they are not. It only shows that every man is not used to the same type of living—and cooking.

Do you see what we are up against, mothers? These men have each been brought up in different environments. What one especially likes may be quite distasteful to another man. Since we realize it is utterly impossible to satisfy each man, we try to plan meals that will satisfy most of them. The dietitians, on the whole, are doing a splendid job of that. In the majority of camps I have visited, the food has been above average in tastiness, quality, and quantity, in comparison to the many places where food is prepared in large amounts. Most of the technical men working with our boys have testified to that, and on a number of my visits some have made it a point to let me know that they especially appreciate the good food they get at our camps—so mother, father, and all of you home folks, when John or Henry or Bob or Carl write home complaining a bit about "camp grub" and wishing for some of "mother's good old home cooking," do not be too critical of the dietitian. Remember that your boy may be just a wee bit homesick and lonely, and that his sentiments are not necessarily the sentiments of the whole camp. Remember too, that the dietitian is doing her best at a job that is becoming increasingly difficult. She is not doing that work because it is the most pleasant task she's ever had, nor because it is paying huge dividends. She is staying on the job—despite criticism—because she feels it is an important work of the church, and because she has been asked by an agency of the church to help out in the present crisis. Could she then be given a tiny bit more of your appreciation rather than blame? More of your prayers and less criticism?

The Dietitian Sees It Through

Now I hear your questions. Are good standards of food being maintained in the camps, and can the food budget be handled in an economical fashion in these present problems? Yes, I think we can answer in the affirmative to both of these questions.

Our people have always been known for their thrifty, simple manner of living. We have been taught to get along comfortably with little, and be happy with little. That is perfectly right and proper, and in keeping with our religious beliefs. Would it be consistent that we, as followers of Christ—the lowly Nazarene—the humblest man that ever lived—should demand a different pattern of living? This pattern of living should be evident in everything we do. It should influence our characters, our work, our living standards, and even our daily habits.

And so, in relation to the question of good standards of food, we have been accustomed to good food, well prepared and well seasoned, but by no means the most expensive or exclusive brands that could be obtained. The dietitians have ordered and planned accordingly. They have taught the men to prepare carefully and season well the food that is served. By Careful planning and substituting they have kept the meals nourishing and tasty, and supplied a balanced diet that has provided the proper nutrients for the men. Your donations of canned and dried fruits and vegetables have helped much in adding variety and valuable minerals and vitamins to the meals. The business managers have tirelessly "shopped around" to obtain seasonable foods and economical buys. Purchasing in large quantities from wholesale grocers has helped maintain good standards of food. It has been a very important factor also in enabling us to keep within the budget. This means that the dietitian must plan meals and order necessary supplies far enough in advance to guarantee that the goods delivered will be an adequate amount to feed the men during the two or four week interval that may elapse before the wholesaler makes another delivery. This year the camp gardens will play a very important role in supplying our men with good food and reducing food costs. The major objective in having camp gardens is to supply current needs. In most camps, however, plans have been made that the garden will adequately meet those needs and also furnish some food for canning.

The work presents some definite problems, and many far too large for us to solve in the way we would like, but the women that are placed in our C.P.S. camps are determined to do their part in making this program a success. We trust that we have your confidence, your backing, and your prayers.

Theodore Roosevelt expressed it well when he said: "A people without children would face a hopeless future; a country without trees is almost as helpless; forests which are so used that they cannot renew themselves will soon vanish, and with them all their benefits. When you help to preserve our forest or plant new ones you are acting the part of good citizens."

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Jacob J. Enz

JULY 11—"But his delight is in the law of Jehovah; And on his law doth he meditate day and night." Ps. 1:2, R.V.

This is the psalmists second observation about the godly man. He portrays the one who walks life's narrow way first in terms of his associations and now in terms of his desires. The pilgrim on heaven's road is one whose heart's desire is in knowing the will of God as it is revealed to him in God's Word. The will of God as he permits it to be done in his life gives him abiding joy. The will of God is his constant source of strength and guidance not only in the daytime of prosperity but also in the night of adversity. The pilgrim who is walking this way has no lack. "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled."

JULY 12—"And he shall be like a tree planted by the streams of water, That bringeth forth its fruit in its season, Whose leaf also doth not wither And whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. Ps. 1:3 R.V.

A tree planted with endless resources and bearing fruit—that is the picture which the psalmist now paints of the righteous man. It is said one must be a native of Palestine to appreciate this psalm. In the hot rainless seasons only the vegetation near streams thrives. The righteous man is revealed as one whose life does not become endangered by changing circumstances; he has constant resources. This manifests itself in fruitfulness; he is a spiritual evergreen. His ever thought, word, and deed counts for God. That is God's will for our lives even as Jesus said "Herein is my father glorified, that ye bear much fruit: so shall ye be my disciples."

JULY 13—"The wicked are not so, But are like the chaff which the wind driveth away." Ps. 1:4, R.V.

It is a dark picture which the writer sketches of the wicked. A literal translation of the Hebrew would be: "Not so the wicked." A very strong negative form is used here. In essence it amounts to this: all that has been affirmed about the godly is emphatically denied in the case of the ungodly. The ungodly is characterized therefore by the negation of all that is good. Consequently he is likened to the useless chaff which is separated from the wheat. That is the conclusion that an inspired man reached as he observed the life of the wicked. His words are a warning, a danger sign, which he through the Holy Spirit has given to mankind that man may heed.

JULY 14—"Therefore the wicked shall not stand in the judgment, Nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous. For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous; But the way of the wicked shall perish." Ps. 1:5,6. R.V.

The end of the righteous and the wicked are here thrown into sharp contrast. As this short meditation is drawn to a close by the psalmist, he draws several conclusions as to the results of the two ways of living. The end of course is always at the terminal point of the road taken. One does not travel on one road and find himself at the end of the other. Like a great gulf, a separation is seen between the fate of the two classes of pilgrims. One group will suffer eternal separation from God. The others will enjoy perfect communion with the redeemed and the Redeemer. ". . .if we walk in the light, as he is in the light we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus his son cleanseth us from all sin."

JULY 15—"Blessed are the poor in spirit . . ." Matt. 5:3, R.V.

What a striking way Jesus uses to begin the Sermon on the Mount. The first word from His lips as He preaches what we may well regard as the ordination sermon for His disciples is the word blessed. In some of our Bibles there is an alternative reading suggesting the word happy. Yet how inadequate is this word to describe the true situation of the Kingdom members whom Jesus describes in the Beatitudes. The word, blessed, applies to those who have found their deepest needs and truest desires fulfilled. How adequately this describes the Christian who has found all he could desire in Christ. Such an one is truly a Kingdom member.

JULY 16—"Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 5:3, R.V.

This Beatitude has been called the gateway to the Kingdom. "Blessed are they who feel their spiritual need." This is surely the first requirement of a God-possessed life. For how can Christ dwell in a life where pride, self-sufficiency, and smug complacence exists? The incident of the Pharisee who prayed thanking God he was not like others is a perfect example of a heart closed to God and full of self. The publican went away satisfied. Confessing his deep need he thus opened his heart so that all the resources of heaven could flow into his life. Of course it is evident that his is the kingdom then not by reward or recompense, but by direct consequence. "Blessed are they who feel their spiritual need for in the very nature of the case they possess the kingdom.

JULY 17—"Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted." Matt. 5:4, R.V.

Christians are not exempt from adversity. The Bible does not insure against trouble; but this is not to say that it has nothing to offer in times of distress. This verse pronounces blessing upon those who mourn—upon those whose mourning regarding

WHAT THE 1942 RETREAT MEANT TO ME

"I certainly enjoyed the 1942 Retreat. Getting acquainted with young people from other churches, the interesting Bible study classes, the well planned recreation program all go to make Retreat a worthwhile event."

* * * *

"It meant to me that I would get to meet people from different churches of the same denomination and learn more about the Mennonites and also get acquainted with the Bible."

* * * *

"Last summer retreat at Camp Wood and three other retreats which I attended there have truly been the high lights of my life as a Christian youth. Many blessed friendships which are still growing are those which were planted at Camp Wood where we worshiped, studied, worked and played together."

* * * *

"In reality it is difficult to say what the 1942 Retreat meant to me because it includes such a multitude of things. In essence, however, I can say that emphasis on higher things as expressed in our Retreat, has brought about more clearly the right goal in life. Nor must I neglect to mention the good times I've had and new friends I have met at camp."

* * * *

"Since I have attended the retreat for 3 summers I can say that I have received many blessings. But we have to come with the right spirit to receive a blessing. If we go just to have a good time we will benefit just that much. The retreat has showed me the need of being a Sunday School teacher and as the result I am teaching now. It has brought me closer to God. I have always enjoyed it and wish I could be there again this year."

* * * *

"The retreat was a place where I could forget about things and enjoy the religious instruction."

* * * *

"The retreat was a place where one could draw nigh to God, think about higher things, and really get a new hold on Christian life. It was to me a sort of filling station, where one could fill up with Christian ideals."

* * * *

"The retreat is a wonderful place to spend your vacation. I received spiritual as well as physical refreshment and blessings by the subjects and scriptures that we studied."

* * * *

"I received your card and I must say it made my mind go back once more to the precious time spent at Camp Wood. I have been there several years, and I have enjoyed it immensely each time. I think it's not only a wonderful place to spend your vacation, but it's also a place where you can forget all your worries and simply draw near to the heart of God. I have found that after the Retreat is over and we come down from the 'mountain top,' I have been spiritually strengthened and ready to meet new trials. My wish and prayer is that many young people may be able to attend the 1943 Retreat."

WANTED: SNAPPY ONES

Retreats are thrilling experiences. This year let's have a report from every retreat held by one of our conference groups. The inspiration received should be transmitted.

However, an enumeration of such details as rising time, names of songs used in devotional periods, and summaries of each talk are unnecessary. Evaluate the retreat. Report in such a way that others will want to attend next year. Make them colorful and tasty. Remember to use typing paper and to doublespace. —rw.

Forget yourself for others and you will never be forgotten by others.

a troublesome situation does not conflict with faith in God. For the sorrow of the world worketh death. Kingdom members are here described as those who in their mourning find the comfort of God. This verse enunciates the certainty of the comfort which we may have in Christ our burden-bearer. "Casting all your cares upon him, for he careth for you."

JULY 18—"Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth." Matt. 5:5, R.V.

Meekness does not mean weakness. If it did it could never apply to Jesus or Moses, men of the utmost strength and character. In earlier Greek times this word, meek, was used in describing animals that were broken and harnessed for use; tame is another translation. The unbroken horse wastes all his strength in aimless action; the horse that is broken still has all that power, but it is directed toward a given end. In all this we have another quality of the Kingdom member. Whereas previously his life was confused and aimless and without purpose, when Christ is become Lord of his life he comes to say with Paul, "This one thing I do." And it is just such people who truly inherit the earth.

JULY 19—"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled." Matt. 5:6, R.V.

Righteousness is a keyword in the Sermon on the Mount. But what is righteousness? It is doing the will of God; it is Christ-likeness. Blessing is pronounced upon those who crave and yearn for Christ-likeness. Note the figure Jesus uses: hunger and thirst —two of man's greatest inner drives. They are inner drives which cause extensive outward behaviour. Our desire to do the will of God should arise out of our innermost being, out of an inner life which is yearning for Godliness and righteousness just as our inner man craves food physically. The inner and the outer must be of one quality. This is a thrust against hypocrisy. If the desire is one thing and the expression another what confusion! But this is also a precious promise. It is a balm for the souls of men who are bravely fighting life's great struggles.

JULY 20—"Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy." Matt. 5:7, R.V.

This verse is a basic law of life. Love begats love; hate, on the contrary, begats hate. Peter asked how many times he should forgive; Jesus answered, "Till seventy times seven." Mercy is not a mathematical matter. The merciful man is blessed because in showing mercy he not only receives mercy from God but also he is becoming God-like. If a man shows mercy to others even as God has shown him mercy, he thereby becomes identified with the unchanging purposes of God. If a man deliberately refuses to show mercy he thereby severs himself from that eternal purpose cutting himself off from the mercy of God.

JULY 21—"Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God," Matt. 5:8, R.V.

"Man looketh upon the outward appearance but God looketh upon the heart." The Jews were concerned about ceremonial purity; they were not so much concerned about justice and honesty. Jesus gets to the heart of the matter. Unless our religion is a matter of the heart rather than a mere conformity to existing religious usages such as church membership, baptism, etc., there is no true vision of God. Unless the source or fountain of life is pure, nothing good can come. The pure heart is the only kind which can abide in God's presence; as has been said, we need purity to understand purity. This is the holiness without which no man shall see God.

RELIEF

April Diary

The following is Vernon Schmidt's summary of his activities among the Chaco Mennonites during April, 1943:

April 1- 5 Finished making a few purchases for Menno Colony.

6-12 Visiting an American missionary family about 40 miles northeast of Asuncion-had an excellent visit, seeing a little more of native life.

14 Mr. Janzen and Mr. Geigley arrived.

13-17 Got cedulas and police papers fixed up for G. and J. Talked to Kor. Walde about his Social Center work, to Kor. Nerfeld about his medical studies and with Mr. Garay about his problems with Corporauion Paraguay. Also visited U. S. Embassy, and Mr. Camp of the Agricultural Department.

18 Church in P. E. at Heinrichs— Mr. Janzen preached.

21 Changed my bank account to include Robert Geigley's name, so we could both use it.

19-24 Continuing talks started last week; seeing the sights of the town; introducing Mr. J. and G. to all other people and places I've contacted here that should be useful later.

25 Mennonites, old and young, went to Botanical Gardens for outing, singing, etc., for afternnoon.

27 Bought Motorcycle; left in afternoon for Rosario.

28 Arrived in Rosario, and thence by wagon to Friesland. Staying at Kroekers.

29-30 Made just a flying visit to all the villages in Friesland, with Mr. Kroeker, Mr. Janzen and Mr. Geigley.

Dairy Testing in C.P.S. Detached Service

Cletus Gerber

One of the four types of detached service recently approved by the United States Department of Agriculture for men from C.P.S. camps is Dairy Herd Testing. Although this work has been carried on for a long time I find that many people do not know just what this work is all about.

Dairy testing is testing dairy cows for production and keeping D.H.I.A. (Dairy Herd Improvement Association) records of the feed and production of each individual dairy cow in the herd.

In Dairy Herd Improvement work a tester has a certain number of herds that he tests every month. The tester goes from place to place each day arriving late in the afternoon, staying there for the night and leaving the following afternoon. During the stay at the farm he weighs the feed given each cow and weighs and tests the milk for percentage of butterfat from each cow. To do this in the evening the milk is weighed and a sample of milk from each cow is taken, keeping the samples from the different cows separate. The same procedure is followed in the morning and then the composite samples consisting of the evenings and mornings samples are tested by the Babcock method for the content.

This gives a very accurate check on production, within two per cent of actual production, according to U.S.D.A. figures. The record of this production is kept on the farm for the dairymen and it is also reported to the state office and to Washington, D. C. where these data are recorded and summarized.

The reason for doing this work is to help the dairy man find out the production and the cost of producing the milk from each cow so that the dairymen will know which cows are profitable and unprofitable. And he will also be able to compare his cost of producing milk that of other dairy herds and in that way know if he is producing his milk as cheaply as he might be.

Operating a dairy herd involves a lot of hard work and a certain risk in investment. Therefore unprofitable cows are certainly very undesirable in a herd and especially at the present time with an acute shortage of help and feed.

In the state of Pennsylvania the average production of the dairy herds is about 200 pounds of butterfat per cow while in this same state the average production of the dairy herds under D.H.I.A. supervision is about 345 pounds of butterfat. This shows a difference of 145 pounds per head. If by continuing this work we can show only one-fourth of that much difference I still feel that we in this C.P.S. detached service are doing a service to our country and fellowmen.

As we go about from farm to farm and associate and eat with these many families whom we contact, it daily gives us opportunities to make an impression upon these people by our actions and ways of living that we as conscientious objectors are not taking the stand which we are because we are afraid to fight but because we have religious standards to live up to which most people of the world do not seem able to understand. And by our willingness to do this service away from home in a strange community without any pay except for transportation and maintenance expenses we can lead people to think of Another Way and of the One who showed this way to mankind.

The pain that I ease in others
Shall take away my pain.
The load that I lift from others
Makes my load disappear.
The good that I see in others
My greatest good shall be.
The love that I feel for others
Comes back my life to cheer.
The path that I walk with others
Is the path God walks with me.

BETHEL COLLEGE MENNONITE CHURCH

North Newton, Kansas

Every Sunday in June marked an event in our church which should mean much to the congregation. On June 6 Children's Day was observed with an appropriate program followed later on by a fellowship dinner. The children and young people in a church should be an inspiration and a challenge to every member. In our church the number of young people is exceptionally large, because during the school year the college students worship with us.

On Pentecost Day a group of twelve young people received the rite of baptism. May these and the many others baptized in other churches grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. On the Sunday following Pentecost communion services were held.

Then on the last Sunday in June the congregation in an informal way celebrated the silver wedding anniversary of their pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Lester Hostetler. The program consisted of congregational singing and several informal talks. Our minister and his wife both responded with appropriate remarks. Dr. C. E. Krehbiel presided. The social committee afterwards served tea.

The every-member visitation on a given Sunday has now become an annual event. The visitation is done by teams of two, and enough teams are chosen to make possible the visiting of every home in the church. One purpose is to solicit suggestions for improving the services of the church.

The events of greatest significance to the church are undoubtedly the call extended to our present pastor and his acceptance and subsequent installation in a very impressive service. Various bodies resort to various means for determining the choice of their minister, such as the lot or a vote between several candidates or a vote whether to extend a call to some particular man. Since God has been blessings servants chosen in either of these ways or in some other ways, it is evident that the particular method of determining the choice is not the most important thing. Two other things are, I believe, of far greater importance. The first is fervent prayer on the part of the church that the Holy Spirit may have absolute control so that the choice will be God's choice. If this is done and the choice thus made and the call extended, the second point then follows, namely, the acceptance of the new minister by every member as God's choice, though the personal preference might have been different. Only then can the minister serve with the fullest measure of blessing. Our fervent hope and prayer is that our pastor may be enabled thus to serve the Bethel College Church.

GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH

Pandora, Ohio

A consecration service for little children was held on Mothers Day. The church also had an informal reception for the new members received during the Easter season. In the spring the Grace Senior Fellowship, an organization of the young people of the church, gathered and distributed flowers for the "shut-ins."

Recently the four Mennonite churches of this area exchanged pulpits, at which time Rev. A. C. Schultz of the Ebenezer Mennonite Church conducted the services at our church.

The children of the church put on their annual childrens' day service June 20.

While Rev. and Mrs. Musser and their two daughters were on vacation in June, Rev. G. T. Soldner and Rev. P. E. Whitner of Bluffton supplied the pulpit. Other visitors in the pulpit in recent weeks have been J. P. Klassen, professor of art at Bluffton College, who presented a lantern lecture on the subject, Jesus, the Son of the Living God. Miss Irma Schneck, of Pandora, recently returned missionary from Nigeria, Africa; Rev. Schutz, missionary to Africa, who showed pictures on "Children of Africa," Miss Beatrice Green, director of work among migrants in the Scioto Marsh in Hardin County, Rev. Andrew Shelly of the Sterling Mennonite church of Kitchener, Ontario, Arthur and Harold Thiessen of India, now students at Bluffton College, and the Boys and Girls gospel teams of Bluffton College who took charge of a service.

SUMMERFIELD MENNONITE CHURCH

Summerfield, Illinois

On Thursday afternoon of May 27, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Clara Heer, occurred the wedding of Raymond H. Baer, son of Otto J. and Della Baer. They are making their home in Bay City, Michigan where Mr. Baer is stationed with the coast guard.

On Sunday, June 13, our Sunday School observed Children's Day with a program at the church. Miss Clara Kuehney, a missionary from India, spoke about our work in India and the encouraging results achieved there. A picnic dinner was held at the Summerfield school ground. A fine social time was had by all. The children were served with ice cream and soft drinks.

We are still having rain nearly every day (June 17) and the gardens and fields can not be worked. Much of the corn still remains unplanted, and it is hard to say when the farmers will be able to get into the fields. Much of the hay was also spoiled by the heavy rains. Feed seems to be getting very scarce. —The pastor

THE BURRTON MENNONITE CHURCH

Burrton, Kansas

The annual vacation Bible school was held successfully May 24 to June 4 by Mrs. John Goering. Nineteen students attended. The closing day program was combined with Children's Day and refreshments were served.

Two marriages have taken place: Linda Enns to Orlando Schmidt of Hutchinson and Hilda Regier to Oswald Klassen now in North Fork, California.

Visits paid by Miss Kuyf and the O.B.A. quartet with Rev. Kuhlman proved great blessings. Our member, Donald Penner, was in the quartet.

May 23 was an eventful day. Twelve young people were baptized upon their confession of faith after which the Holy Communion was observed. In the evening we had a farewell program with the presentation of a gift and refreshments for our pastor and his wife.

The Senior Christian Endeavor has feasted on visiting groups. The Alexanderwohl men's quartet brought a strengthening message in song. The Garden Township Christian Endeavor favored us with an encouraging, uplifting program.

The church, as yet, hasn't elected a pastor from the several candidates. —Corr.

EMMAUS MENNONITE CHURCH

Whitewater, Kansas

Dr. A. H. Unruh, of Winkler, Manitoba, was here for a week of much-appreciated services from May 9 to May 16. He opened to us the Epistle to the Galatians in a new way and stressed especially, "Die Grosse Gnade Gottes."

On May 30 Brother J. J. Regier, now of South Dakota, brought us the message. We were happy to have the Regiers in our midst once more before leaving Kansas.

On June 11 the wedding of Elizabeth Claassen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Claassen, and Victor Goering, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Goering, of Moundridge, was held in our church. They will be in South Dakota for the summer where Mr. Goering is in camp. Mrs. Goering will return in fall to teach in a Kansas school.

On June 13 there were added to the membership of our church, through baptism two young women and seven young men. On June 20, our pastor, Brother J. C. Kaufman, gave a sincere preparatory sermon preceding the observance of Holy Communion on June 27.

The Women's Missionary Society has closed another year of work and has elected officers for the coming term. They are Mrs. B. H. Wiebe, Pres.; Mrs. J. C. Kaufman, Vice-Pres; Helen Dyck, Sec.; and Olga Klaassen, Treas. In the past year sewing was done for the Red Cross and for the Arizona and Montana missions. Two shipments of new and used clothing have been sent to Akron, Pa.

The annual Sunday School picnic was held on July 4.

CLOSING OF THE MENNONITE MISSION IN WICHITA

In November, 1937, we were led into one of the neediest areas in Wichita. After seeing the need and the deplorable conditions under which people were living in the slums of this city, we did what we could to help these people to a more abundant life, physically, mentally and spiritually.

Various organizations, such as the schools, churches, and clubs have become interested and have assisted us in carrying on this work. This work rapidly grew until we felt the need of the Conference taking it over and carrying it on. This matter was placed into the hands of the Home Mission Conference and they have faithfully carried on this work. Various Mennonite churches and individual friends have assisted. Because of your help we have been able to serve hundreds and hundreds of people with clothing and food and other necessities of life, and with spiritual food. Weekly community meetings were held with very good attendance.

In 1938, a Sunday School was organized at the request of the people, and the attendance was very good until the last year. Shortly after our Sunday School was organized, we found it necessary to organize a Sewing Club and a Rug Weaving Class. The Sewing Club, with the scraps of materials which were sent in, made about one hundred comforts, and the Rug Weaving Class has made about one hundred rugs.

The attendance at all of these meetings gradually declined. Upon investigation, the cause of this decline was found to be that most of the people whom we had been helping had accepted jobs in the defense plants or had gotten some other well paying job and dropped out of our mission activities. One family which we helped for several years has not been coming to the Mission for over a year. The mother informed me that both she and her husband are working at the defense plant, working in different shifts. She said that they made from $300 to $400 a month and were getting along fine. Thus runs the story of many of the families we have helped. They got a job, have money for better clothes, for shows, for automobiles, and other luxuries of life, and as a result, they have dropped away from the Mission. They may not need us for physical assistance, but certainly they do need spiritual assistance. Those people who regularly came to our Sunday School were people who commenced to go to other Sunday Schools and churches but still continued to come to our Mission for the afternoon Sunday School.

A few months ago I approached the Home Mission Committee in regard to the advisability of discontinuing this mission work. They felt that possibly the best thing we could do under the circumstances was to close the Mission and use the twenty-five dollars that they contributed monthly to this work in some other needy field. We wish to recognize the students who have so wonderfully helped us with the work in the past. May God bless them and lead them even into greater fields of service is our prayer. We wish also to thank the many friends who have made this work possible. May God grant that your Missionary zeal may continue and that your gifts may flow into other needy fields.

Last Sunday afternoon, June 20, we had our closing session of the Sunday School. Fifty were present. A great deal of appreciation for the work done has been expressed. The following Tuesday evening we had our final community meeting. A splendid spirit prevailed, and a suggestion was made that once or twice a year we have a reunion of all of the people who have at any time participated in the work. Mr. and Mrs. John B. Muller, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Warfield, and we assured the people that if we can be of help to them at any time they shall feel free to call upon us.

Thus ends the mission work in one of the neediest slum areas of Wichita. This war has given people employment, but after the war what? As has been continually expressed by the people, that after the war is over, we will be needing you worse than ever before. When such need arises, we shall pray the Lord to direct so that these needs may be taken care of and His cause advanced.

Yours in His service,
Edward D. Schmidt and Ella Schmidt

NORTHERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE HELD FIFTY-FIRST SESSION

The fifty-first session of the Northern District Conference was held at the Bethel Church at Mountain Lake, Minnesota, from June 5-9. The conference motto was "Upon this Rock Will I Build My Church." The conference theme was "The Church." The combined church membership of 5,226 was represented by 118 delegates, from five states, to the conference session.

The pastor's conference preceding the regular session dealt with the subject "The Pastor" and was viewed from the standpoint of the pastor in his study, private life, in the pulpit, and what he should do for men in the camps.

The evening session dealt with the topic "The Pastor's Task of Leading his Laymen to Witness for Christ." Suggestions given were: Preach Christ! Fill the people with the Word of God, and make it so real to them that they will be glad to so live and to bear witness. It is then for the pastor to lead and direct the laymen into the different channels and avenues of work open for the laymen. The pastor was referred to as the "Repairman" who was to keep his congregation in repair like the repairman, his machine.

The home mission sermon, "Sharing," on Sunday morning was delivered by the conference guest minister, Rev. Homer Leisy, of Dallas, Oregon. The Ewert (a former missionary to China).

The conference address by the President, Rev. Erland Waltner, was based on Matt. 16:18, "Upon this Rock will I Build My Church." Jesus was pointed out as the Rock, and it was suggested that the Northern District is trying to help build the church under the direction of Jesus. Five areas of service were singled out; namely, foreign and home missions, relief work, C.P.S. and help to those in the army camps, rendering help to the Mennonites gone into different outlying localities, and to Mennonite education.

The Sunday School program in the evening was foreign mission sermon was given by Rev. August centered on the theme "The Church in Action in the Teaching Ministry." Prof. Congdon spoke on "The Teacher." Besides winning souls to Christ, he pointed out that the teacher is to carry out the Great Commission, "Teach them to observe all things." The teacher should be prepared at heart, have knowledge at heart, have knowledge at hand, (know his commentaries and have his own experience at hand), continue self-learning, and grow in the work, his keynote should be evangelism, teaching Bible-centered, and finally the teacher should be dependable.

"The Pupil" was discussed by Mrs. F. S. Harder, Broadland, South Dakota. She pointed out the great responsibility toward the pupil. The pupil was reminded of his great responsibility to self, to teacher, and to God.

"The Text Book" was the topic discussed by Rev. Elmer Dick, Frazer, Montana. He emphasized that the Bible be the only text book employed, because: 1,The effect of God's Word in the scholar is the real test; 2, Bible teaching is different from human teaching because of its different source; 3, If the lesson is taken directly from the Bible, the scholar gets it from its proper setting, and so he learns to know his Bible better.

On Monday morning the communion service was conducted. Our guest pastor, Rev. Homer Leisy, directed us in his sermon retrospectively to Christ who died for us and reminded us of Christ who is presently interceding for us before the throne of God, and prospectively, what he will do for us in the future according to I John 3: 1-2.

During the business session various committee reports were presented and acted upon. The newly elected conference officers are: President Erland Waltner, Mountain Lake, Minnesota; Secretary John P. Kleinsasser, Marion, South Dakota; Treasurer A. A. Penner, Mountain Lake, Minnesota. The various committee vacancies were also filled. The next conference is to be held in the Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska.

During the consecration service nineteen young people gave their testimony and dedicated their life to God for full-time service.

The woman's mission society program was given Tuesday afternoon and the C.E. program in the evening.

Wednesday all day and evening was taken up by the young people.

Various musical numbers and readings were presented throughout the conference.

The various sermons by Rev. Homer Leisy were a wonderful treat to the conference. In his pleasing manner and winning personality he won the attention of all; and out of his great storehouse of Bible knowledge and his Spirit-filled soul the Word of God was given in abundance. May the Lord richly bless

Rev. Leisy for his work at the conference.

Rev. Wm. Stauffer from Ohio, who addressed the conference several times, spoke on the C.P.S. camps and about the rehabilitation program of C.P.S. and soldier boys when they come home from serving their country.

May God bless all those who had a part in making the conference a success. "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord." I Cor. 15:58.

H. M. Harder, Conference Secretary

RELIEF

C.P.S. Men Leave for China

On June 19 a unit of 8 C.P.S. men left Brooklyn, N. Y., bound for Chungking, China, the final destination. This marks the first departure of C.P.S. men for foreign service. The Mennonite representative in the group was Brother Robert Kreider who has served in the educational program of the camps since his induction in August, 1941.

As previously mentioned, other Mennonite C.P.S. men in training and in prospect of training are to be included in the Mennonite section of the China unit, and will be sent to the Orient in the months ahead. At this writing Brethren J. D. Graber and Samuel J. Goering are making final preparations at the Akron office for their departure in July for China.

CIVILIAN PUBLIC SERVICE

Brother Fast Reports on Camp Tour

On June 22, Brother H. A. Fast returned to the Akron Office after completing a three week's tour of C.P.S. camps. His visits were in behalf of the general well-being of the camps in their religious, social, and educational needs. As much as possible he dealt with the various interests and problems that come to the fore in the ever-changing programs of C.P.S.

Among other observations he points to the valuable work being done by the camps in such projects as the construction of a huge dam for the irrigation of large sections of erstwhile unproductive land.

Summer Speakers to Visit Camps

Throughout the summer months one of the "extra" features of camp life will be the visits of guest speakers. Numerous ministers, teachers from Mennonite schools, M.C.C. members, and others, it is planned, will visit the camps according to arranged schedules and will present messages on spiritual and educational subjects. Christian life themes, relief service, World War I experiences, etc., will be among the topics of discussion.

How to Obtain Sugar for Camp Canning

In some cases those interested in canning fruit for the camps will not be planning to use all their twenty-five pounds per person allotment for their home canning and will have some surplus which can be used for camp canning. Where additional sugar is required, it can be obtained as follows:

The person appointed to arrange for needed sugar for a sewing circle or other groups should write to the Mennonite Central Committee, giving the following information:

1. Number of quarts of fruit to be canned. (Estimated)
2. Name of person or firm from whom the sugar is to be purchased.
3. Name and adderss of person who will be responsible to report back to the Akron office what was actually canned with the sugar obtained.

The Mennonite Central Committee will issue a ration check for the required amount of sugar at the rate of one pound for every four quarts of fruit, payable to the person or firm which is to supply the sugar. These ration checks are not transferrable, and it is important that the name of the supplier be given fully and correctly. At the end of the canning season it will be necessary to report back to the Akron office how many quarts of fruit are actually canned with the sugar for which the ration check was issued, so that proper accounting may be made to the local board here for the sugar allotments issued. Any sugar left over after canning is finished should be held subject to instruction from Akron as to its disposal.

Camp Briefs

"Twenty-four of our men are now full-fledged smoke-jumpers ready to pounce on any fire that shows its smoke" writes Brother Roy Wenger, Director of the Smoke-Jumper's Unit. All of this number have been stationed at posts of duty in Oregon, Idaho, and Montana. Most of them were flown by plane to their stations where they will await calls. . . .

Recent staff appointments are Brother Clayton Diener as business manager of Downey, Idaho, camp and Brother Charles Suter as Educational Director of Sideling Hill, Wells Tannery, Pa., camp.

New York, N.Y., June 15—Every minister of a local church and every lay officer now has a special responsibility for informing and educating the public with respect to the exemptions available to income tax payers for contributions to religious, educational and charitable purposes, Dr. Roswell P. Barnes, Associate General Secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, said today. The new withholding tax provisions, Dr. Barnes stated, make it especially necessary for those who wish to safeguard the traditional American interest in free churches in a free society.

The new tax law, Dr. Barnes stated, permits no specific advance deduction for religious, educational or charitable contributions. Likewise, he said, the short form of the income tax return now used by many millions of tax papers makes no mention at all of the fact that a deduction of 15 per cent is permitted by the basic Internal Revenue laws for contributions to voluntary agencies.

This may create a difficult situation for some of these churches and agencies. Dr. Barnes observed, but it need not necessarily be so if the churches and the social and educational agencies are aware of their responsibility for educating the public with respect to the continuing provisions of the 15 per cent deduction in the basic law. With the inauguration of the procedure of withholding tax money at the source of wages and salaries, our people will have substantially reduced current cash incomes. They must be reminded that they can claim deduction credit for contributions when they file their annual income tax returns.

Throughout our entire history, according to Dr. Barnes, governments have encouraged free churches and voluntary educational and social enterprise. It is important, he said, that in the current critical financial situation of the nation religious leaders, both lay people and clergymen, now become centers of information and education on tax questions.

"And God Saw that It Was Good"

In the beginning God created the soil. It produced grass, herbs, and fruit trees. God viewed the soil, "and God saw that it was good." In fact, He judged it and all His creation to be very good.

Good soil! In it God gave a most wonderful gift to mankind. Up through the centuries and throughout the wide world multiplying man took possession of God's good soil and become dominant over it. In time masses of people spread over the virgin territory that is now the United States. The settlers found soil covered by dense forests and prairie stretches with grass which not infrequently rose waist high. The soil of America was very good. God had made it so.

The plow pushed through the soil. Dark and naked it lay exposed to the rain that fell upon it. On slopes of 5 to 15 percent the rushing rain water began the process of soil erosion that today is carrying away an estimated 3,000,000,000 tons of top-soil every year.

A soil survey made by the United States government revealed in 1935 that America had lost one-third of its top-soil since the Revolutionary War. By 1935 fifty million acres of cropland had been so ruined by erosion that they could no longer be cultivated. "That is as much cultivated land as there was in France before the present war—more than there was in Italy, or Germany, or Spain." In 1935 it was estimated that good land was washing or blowing away at the rate of 500,000 acres every year, with a vastly larger area being continually impoverished. "American farmers every year suffer direct losses as a result of soil erosion that are valued at $400,000,000."

Much of what was once very good soil is today minus most of the top-soil, gashed by gullies, or in some earlier stage of erosion. Streams no longer run clear, and in some years the dust creeps up to the middle fencewire. Some of our soil is still fairly good, but most of it is losing its fertility very fast.

God created good soil. Certainly it was His intention that man should save the soil as much as possible. In our economic scramble we have ruthlessly wasted much of what God so carefully created. Much of this we have done unwittingly or unwillingly. Now we are more aware of how great a loss the erosion of good soil is, how necessary it is for all existence, and how well-nigh impossible it is to replace soil that has been lost. Now there are available to us effective means for keeping the soil.

Dare we refuse to be good stewards of it? Ought we not welcome such helpful means for keeping the soil as the soil conservation districts which can be organized in any community by a majority of the land-occupiers or owners? "And God saw that it was good." May we so use the soil that it can be said, "And God saw that it was kept good."—rw.

Somewhere At Sea

A communication has reached the United States from Robert Krieder, a member of the China-bound unit of C. P. S. men. It tells of a profitable voyage thus far with time spent in studying Chinese life and language. Among the routine affairs of their life at sea are safety drills which are precautionary measures in the event of fire or submarine attack. The exact location of the vessel could not, for censorship reasons, be made known. All in all, Bro. Krieder's letter was most cheerful and reflected a spirit of high anticipation.

Also "somewhere at sea" are Bro. Delvin Kirchhofer and Dr. Richard Yoder. Latest word from them on their journey to Palestine was a brief cable sent from Rio De Janerio, Brazil. The cable reached Akron, Pa. on June 26 and read: EVERYTHING FINE SAILING SOON.

Though literally not at sea, our former relief workers in France still remain "stranded" at a hotel in Baden-Baden, Germany. A May 6 letter from Sister Lois Gunden to her family tells that a party of 13 members are interned with the embassy. Of this number two are the Mennonite relief workers, Bro. Henry Buller and Sister Gunden. The group has organized a "school" and engages in recreational pursuits to pass the time. Writes Sister Gunden: "We are certainly fortunate to have such a congenial group of people with whom we pass day after day in the same place doing ever and ever more or less the same things." On each Sunday the group, duly accompanied, may attend church services. Mail from the U. S. reaches the group at intervals some weeks apart. Negotiations with foreign offices are still in process to enable a return from Germany to America.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By. J. Winfield Fretz

CITY MENNONITE CHURCHES

The question has been frequently raised by readers of this column as to what city Mennonite churches should do in view of the repeated emphasis on rural life. It is a legitimate question and deserves a sympathetic answer. Of the very large number of Mennonites who have gone to cities all over the country only a very few have ever attempted to organize a Mennonite brotherhood in these cities; only a few more have identified themselves with existing Mennonite missions or churches. The largest number by far have shown little or no interest in maintaining any Mennonite Church loyalty. Those few who have, are therefore, to be commended when they ask: "What shall we do to be loyal Mennonites in the city?"

The Situation As I See It

The Apostle Paul says to his readers that he hopes they will not be angry with him for telling the truth. It seems to me there is a good deal of wisdom in that caution. My emphasis on rural life and criticism of cities has been constantly focused with the future of the Mennonite Church in mind. It is not a criticism of Mennonite churches in the city but a criticism of the cities and what modern urban conditions do to Christian ideals. City soils are not the kind that cause Mennonite ideals and religious principles to flourish. Urban communities have never been conducive to the building and maintaining of the purest religious life. This is evidenced in part by the fact that the Old Testament prophets for centuries leveled their powerful and penetrating prophecies against the wickedness of cities. It was in Jerusalem that Jesus cleansed the Temple, where he met his bitterest opposition, and where his human life was taken from him. It is not, therefore, that Mennonite churches in cities are corrupt, but that so large a share of the environment in which they are located is harmful. The problem is so big and the process of disintegration of religious ideals so subtle that one finds it difficult to point to one specific place and say: "here it is," or "there it is."

The Evidence

Convincing evidence on what urban environment does to Mennonite people and Mennonite principles is the low percentage of Mennonites going to cities who remain Mennonites and still more the loss of the children of Mennonite parents to the mother church. To people who say they are as strong in their faith as they ever were even though they have lived in a city for thirty or more years, my answer is: "yes, that may be correct but where are your children?" And nine times out of ten one is greeted with silence or with some vague explanation that the children started in a Sunday school of another denomination, they married out of the church, or their job took them away. All of which is further proof that urban soil is not the kind in which the Mennonite Church flourishes. Even if one can point to a strong organization and a large membership such as the church in Amsterdam, Holland, one must still ask what has happened to the distinctive Christian ideals which Mennonites have traditionally adhered to?

Mennonites in cities should continue their noble efforts to remain true to the ideals of Christ as taught by God and the church. But looking to the future we should help young people find opportunity for useful service in less heavily populated areas so that it would be unnecessary for them to flee from farms to cities.

J. M. REGIER ATTENDS CANADIAN CONFERENCE

Rev. J. M. Regier, Hillsboro, Kansas, is spending several weeks in Canada in the interest of Home Mission work. In connection with the problems that are to be considered, he attended the Retreat held at Rosthern, July 1-3 at Rosthern. July 5-6 he is attending the Canadian Conference, Langham, Saskatchewan.

Rev. John J. Esau, Evangelist who has been working among the Mennonites in Saskatchewan for more than a month, holding meetings in the various churches is also there as well as Rev. Walter J. Dyck, Beatrice, Nebraska. Brother Dyck was invited by the Retreat Committee to assist in the Retreat as was Rev. Esau also.

We are happy to note the growing spirit of fellowship which promises greater strength and more cooperation in the future. May the Lord abundantly add His blessing to all these efforts.

Very sincerely for the Board,
—A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

There's a word that you should say,
Say it now.
It may turn some night to day,
Say it now.
It may cheer a fainting heart,
Give him strength to do his part;
Help him make another start,
Say it now.

There's a deed that you should do—
Do it now.
It may help some fellow through,
Do it now.
Don't neglect that kindly deed;
Help that neighbor in his need,
Make this the starting of a creed,
Do it now.

WHEN "HEAVEN" ASKS FOR BAPTISM

Our Christian brother Joseph and I came to Jelgarh village, about twenty miles from the mission station. Our Christian brother Satbadi with his family lives here. Our brother was not at home and the wife had gone out. The wife's parents were at home, but acted very cold. They are not Christians. After some conversation we asked them whether they wished us to pray with them. Reluctantly they said "yes." I looked around and noticed that several men seemed to loaf around in a seemingly cold and uninterested way. I did not feel like praying, so I asked brother Joseph whether he wished to pray. He prayed, pleading to God to manifest Himself to this group of seemingly cold people. After the prayer two men came near and said, "We want to be Christians, won't you baptize us?" We questioned them and they really had an intelligent grasp of salvation in Christ. The name of one of these two is Baikunt, meaning heaven. So heaven asked for baptism. —John Thiessen

FOURTH QUARTER REPORT

Champa, C. P. Jan. 16, 1943

Dear Brethren in Christ:

Greetings with Ps. 107. At the beginning of another year I truly am very grateful for the Lord's blessings and mercy shown towards me during the past year. I thank Him for all the spiritual, physical, and material blessings. I also thank you for your continued support and for your prayers. May the Lord make me more grateful for all that you are doing for me.

We do not thank the Lord enough for the blessing and privilege that we have that we are still able to preach and teach the Gospel unhindered. Am happy and thankful for the many Christians and missionaries who are out in the villages at the present time. Those of us who are unable to be out thank the Lord and pray for them as they witness for Him. The Lord is blessing the work.

After three months of rest and recuperation I again took up my duties at the Leper Home on November 20. Am happy to be at work again. After Christmas I have again started class work with the nurses. This year eight more men and women have been added to the class in order to get some of them ready to start work in the hospital. Most of them are unable to read, therefore it is uphill work. But I enjoy it very much. Have been having some nice showers of rain this week.

May the Lord bless you and reward you for all that you are doing for Him.

Gratefully yours,
Eva Pauls.

FIRST QUARTERLY REPORT, 1943

Champa, C. P.
April 19, 1943

Mission Board,
Newton, Kansas.

Dear Brethren in Christ:

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow." Yes, we do have many reasons to praise Him. He has done and is doing so much for us. He is supplying our every need. I also want to express my sincere gratitude and thanks for your prayers and continued support. I also thank you for the increase in salary and the bonus. May the Lord bless each giver who has made this possible.

We praise the Lord for the blessed and encouraging touring season of this year. Quite a number have accepted Christ and been baptized. Some of them suffered severe persecutions from relatives when they expressed their desire to follow Christ. But God's grace is sufficient for those who trust Him.

Last week I had the privilege to attend the Women's Institute of this area. Over hundred women of the different Missions gathered for four days of inspirational meetings. This week there will be pre-Easter meetings in the church every evening at 6 p.m. In the Leper home church the meetings will be in the morning.

The nurses at the Leper hospital are taking their regular vacation so the work is a little heavier for the rest. We are having considerable fever and flu at present.

Next week I intend to leave for the hills for a physical and spiritual refreshing.

Thanking you again for all that you are doing for me.

Gratefully yours,
Eva Pauls

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

The letters from the Mennonite Central Committee printed below are of special interest to the sisters of the churches. The representatives to give information and assistance to the congregations will be appointed in each community by the district officers of Women's Missionary Societies in the near future where this has not already been done. As soon as appointed, the congregations will be informed who their representatives are.

Arrangements for purchasing jars at wholesale prices should be made through these representatives. Labels for labelling all jars canned will also be procured and distributed by these representatives.

We would suggest that the various groups who plan to do any canning of fruit for C.P.S. camps make application for their sugar checks, referred to in the M.C.C. letter, well in time. It is important that the application be properly made out and information carefully supplied. Mr. Snyder writes that "request for sugar can be made separately by each local group."

Those who have half-gallon jars which they care to use may do so and mark them later with identification tags which the representative will also be able to obtain from M.C.C.

Then with reference to the collecting of the food it is the plan of the M.C.C. that our General Conference representative in each community together with representatives of the other constituent groups work together in setting up the collection center and receiving the contributions. When this is done congregations will be notified, as to place and time for receiving the contributions.

MORE ABOUT FOOD FOR OUR BOYS IN CAMP

By John M. Snyder

Organizational Set-up

It is suggested that the administration of the project be handled as much as possible by district conferences or local congregational units, or a combination of both. The Mennonite Central Committee is contacting official representatives of the various constituent groups for their endorsement of the plan and its operation within their groups. Further contacts are being made, either in person or through literature and correspondence, with ministers of the several groups, and with organizations within the groups, such as Sewing Circle, Ladies' Aid, or Women's Missionary Society organizations, under the guidance of these official representatives.

The plan is that each conference or suitable subdivision thereof appoint a representative to work with representatives of other M.C.C. constituent groups in the same areas in arranging for and setting up the collection centers at focal points for receiving the contributions which will be coming in from time to time. Each collection center will be expected to serve all the M.C.C. constituency within the surrounding territory. Thus there would be, in an area, or community in which there might be six different groups supporting the M.C.C. camp program, a committee of six who would work together in arranging the details of setting up the collection center, finding a suitable person to have charge and keep the records, etc., and any other business arrangements connected with the operation of the center. Representatives appointed should be reported to the Akron office so that all concerned may be notified as to whom they will be working with in their various communities.

The Mennonite Central Committee will have direct contact with the collection centers and will provide the necessary records and report forms, etc., for the furnishing to the Akron office of information as to what is being contributed. Final distribution of contributions will be arranged from Akron.

Collection-Centers

In general it is felt that an area which would probably contribute a carload or truck load of canned and dried foods, or more, would warrant setting up a separate collection center. A minimum carload would be 10,000 pounds, or approximately 5,000 quarts. Each collection center should serve as large an area as is practicable. Small isolated communities will either need to hold their contributions until they are all in and then ship them to the nearest collection center or in case there is a camp located closer than the nearest collection center, send them directly to the camp. In such cases where is is felt that is is most practical to send contributions directly to the camp, a report of contributions on hand should first be made to the Akron office, with suggestion that they be directed to the nearby camp. If there is no reason this should not be done, the Akron office will approve this procedure, and, if desired, make arrangements to pay shipping charges. It is necessary that report be first made to the Akron office in order that such shipments may be taken into account in making disposition of other contributions which would be available to the same camp from collection centers.

Collection center locations will be decided upon by the Committees of representatives handling arrangements in the various districts or communities. If there is a suitable building available located on a railroad siding that would be desirable. In many communities there are Mennonite business men who would have sufficient storage space available and who would be glad to have it used for such a purpose. Perhaps in some cases they might be able to help with the receiving of contributions and taking care of records, reports, etc. In other cases a part-time worker will be needed to receive contributions, keep records, and make the necessary reports to the Mennonite Central Committee.

How to Obtain Jars.

The representatives appointed by the respective groups to look after business arrangements in setting up the collection centers are authorized to act as agents in obtaining the necessary jars for their groups. Where it is possible to arrange for the required number of jars through local business men this should be done. The firm through which the jars are obtained will then send the invoice, O.K.'ed by the representatives ordering the jars, direct to the Mennonite Central Committee. Remittance will be made promptly upon receipt of the invoice. In case there is no local business house through which jars can be obtained as suggested above, the name and address of one or more wholesale grocery houses serving the area where the jars are to be used should be forwarded to the Mennonite Central Committee. Arrangements will then be made for authorized individuals to order jars from the wholesale houses in the name of the Mennonite Central Committee. The wholesaler will bill the M.C.C. direct, and remittance will be forwarded upon receipt of the invoice. All invoices should be o.k.'d by the person authorized to order the jars.

Rationing Regulations

If food is to be processed in other places than a home kitchen, such as a church basement, or other places not regularly used for preparation of food, it is necessary to go to the local ration board and obtain authorization to consider foods processed in such places as home processed. A person is considered to be a producer of home processed foods if he contributes the food to be processed, helps with the processing, or supplies facilities used in the processing, such as a pressure cooker, stove, etc. Thus where a group comes together, those who help with the work are entitled to be considered as producers of home processed foods and may give away such foods, subject to the maximum of 50 quarts per person per year, except meats, etc., covered by Ration Order No. 16.

Last year local ration boards issued special canning sugar allotments of one pound for four quarts of fruit upon application to the board and explanation of the purpose for which the canning was to be done. In cases where such allotments cannot be obtained without presentation of sugar books ...an estimate should be made of the amount of sugar which will be required and request made to the Mennonite Central Committee for assistance in getting that amount. Arrangements will then be made to furnish the necessary authorization to purchase this amount of sugar.

When Shall Contributions Be Brought In

Each collection center will want to notify the people in the area it serves of the dates on which it will be open to receive contributions. This will prevent overloading the person in charge of the center, and will make it possible to keep records and reports up to date.

It is requested that so far as possible contributions be packed so that each carton will contain only one kind of food. Each carton or container should be marked on the outside to show what it contains.

REPRESENTATIVES APPOINTED

Representatives for the different communities of the Western District Conference who are to give information and assistance with the canning of fruit and vegetables for C.P.S. camps have been appointed by the Executive Committee of the Western District Women's Missionary Association and are listed below: Miss Katie Wedel—Goessel, Tabor, and Alexanderwohl; Mrs. Jacob Bartel—Lehigh, Hillsboro, Johannestal, Brudertal, and Friedenstal; Mrs. Edward Esau—Zion (Elbing), Grace Hill, Swiss, and Emmaus; Mrs. C. H. Goering—Eden, West Zion, Emmanuel, First Christian, Hopefield, and First Garden; Mrs. F. F. Matthies—Hopeview, Hebron, Buhler, and Inman; Mrs. P. E. Frantz—Lorraine Ave., Wichita; Mrs. Paul Baumgartner—Bethel College and First Newton; Mrs. C. H. Dirks—First Hutchinson; Miss Martha Hirschler—Halstead and Burrton; Mrs. P. P. Tschetter—Pretty Prairie; Mrs. Viola Albrecht—Zion (Kingman), and Bethany; Rev. Walter H. Dyck—First Beatrice and Second Beatrice.

Congregations not listed above are not located near other Mennonite churches so are asked to make arrangements with their own group and keep the food until collection centers have been set up to receive contributions.

JOTTINGS

—Fred Johnson, missionary at Tuba City, Arizona, wrote on June 10, "Here in Arizona we are having our daily vacation Bible school....Our farmers are busy planting their farms. We had terrible sand storms the past weeks; the plants dried up, and the farmers have to replant. Here we are reading that the harvest has started in Kansas and Oklahoma."

—The Wayland Mennonite Church, Wayland, Iowa, is very happy to have Rev. and Mrs. E. S. Mullet and daughter with them. Two members of the church, Mrs. Emma Boshart and Mrs. X. Richenberger died recently. On June 25 Rev. Mullet was in charge of installing Rev. Leonard Metzker as pastor of the Eicher Mennonite Church.

—Brother Ward W. Shelly writes, "We are still carrying on at Perkasie. I preach there every second Sunday morning. I am at Springfield on the other Sunday. Thus far we have been able to find substitutes to take care of the odd Sunday at Perkasie although this fall we expect to have a regular assistant. At Springfield we, of course, have service only every other Sunday because the Old Mennonites worship in the same building and have service the Sunday we do not have service."

REV. P. H. UNRUH GONE HOME

Just as the Mennonite is going to press word has been received that Rev. P. H. Unruh, pastor of the Alexanderwohl Church, has this morning at five o'clock gone home. Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved family and church.

THE FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH OF COLFAX, WASHINGTON

Historical Background

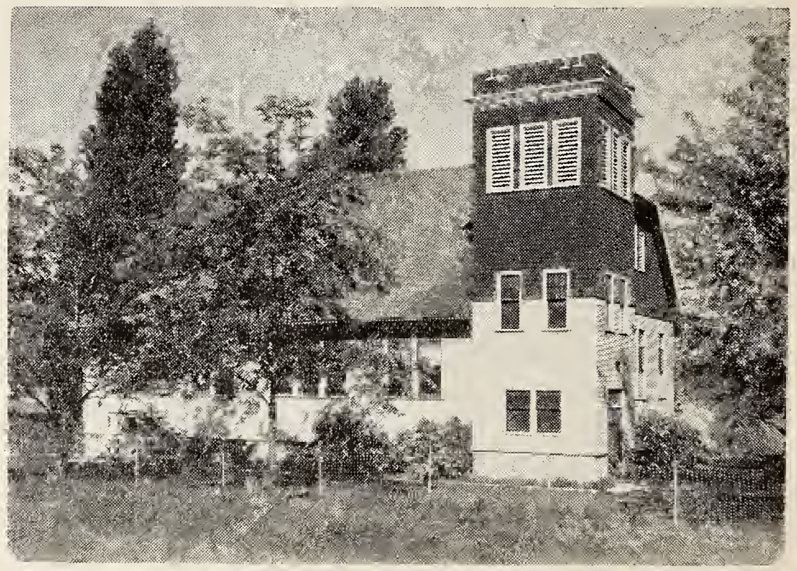
In south central Whitman County of the state of Washington, amid the rolling hills, there is a community known for many years as "Onecho" (O-neek-o). It was named after the little pioneer post office of the early days; however, this has long since ceased to exist. It is located about seven miles north of Almota and twelve miles south of Colfax. This area which once was but a series of bunch-grass hills and valleys was destined to become the home of a group of Swiss folk, who saw in these hills and the rich soil the possibility of a living for them and their families; hence our interest in the early history of this community.

With the coming of the white settlers from the western plains, this area also was selected by some of the hardy pioneers. They built a log school house at the foot of a hill, the top of the hill being chosen as a cemetery plot. When the first Methodist preacher north of the Snake River was looking over his new territory, he found in this community possibilities, and thus organized a Methodist class in 1876 with four charter members as a nucleus for religious work in the community. The little log school house at the foot of the hill was the first meeting place for religious gatherings such as Sunday school, also preaching services on such Sundays when the first Methodist preacher, Rev. M. S. Anderson could be present. Later another pioneer school house was built on the site where the present Onecho school building now stands—a short distance from the location of the Onecho Post Office. It is often spoken of now as the little old brown school house.

First Mennonite Settlers

It was in November, 1886, when the first representatives of the thrifty and hardworking Swiss Mennonites came from southeastern Iowa to look over the community in what was then Washington territory. Some of these first Mennonite settlers were S. R. and P. R. Aeschliman and William Rubin. In the years of 1887-88 several more families followed, among them Mr. and Mrs. Fred Aescheliman and family.

Not only were these new settlers industrous farmers and tradesmen by nature and practice, but highly religious in character as well. The pioneer Sunday School and religious organization, which had breathed out a bare existence for fourteen years, greatly appreciated their presence since musically inclined leaders were badly needed, and the encouragement in the Christian way of life was an inspiration. Then came the Schlunegers, the Stevicks, and Kaufmans. Thus was launched a substantial colony of Mennonites such as enriches any country both industrially and religiously. The pioneer situation and potent needs and values being grasped, Paul R. Aeschliman went east to spend two years at Halstead, Kansas, in preparation for the Christian ministry. S. R. Aeschliman took the lead in music and singing most efficiently at the Sunday School and preaching service when a preacher was present to bring the message from God's Word. He also taught singing classes at Almota and at the little brown school house.



Meetinghouse, First Mennonite Churcn, Colfax, Washington

Organization of a Mennonite Church

In the spring of 1893 P. R. Aeschliman, accompanied by a newly acquired bride, returned to this community with several new families, who also established their homes here. On July 1 of the same year, Rev. J. B. Baer, Field Secretary and Traveling Minister of the General Conference of the Mennonites of N. A., visited the community. The Mennonites met at a private home where an organization was formed, Rev. Baer serving as chairman of the assembly. It was decided to term the new organization, "The First Mennonite Church of Colfax, Washington."

The organization was formed around five resolutions as a basis, and twenty-four individuals became the charter members as follows: Jacob Kaufman and wife, Joseph Stevick and wife, Jacob Stevick and wife, John Unziger and wife, Magdalena Miller, Magdalena Rubin, Chris. Nafziger and wife, Joseph Nafziger, S. R. Aeschliman, P. R. Aeschliman and wife, Will Rubin and wife, Frederica Nauert, Ed. Reinhard,

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Jacob J. Enz

JULY 22—"Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called sons of God." Matt. 5:9, R.V.

One of the characteristics of a Kingdom member as this beatitude indicates is that he actively works for peace and harmony. The beatitude does not specify peace in any particular phase of life but it does emphasize action for peace. In our emphasis upon peace between nations it is easy to overlook the fact that peace between individuals and between individuals and their God must be included here. The very Son of God came to earth to reconcile a lost race to God. How much more should His followers be seeking that which he sought—reconciliation. As peace churches we are often embarrased by much disharmony in our midst. Let us be true peace makers and consequently sons of God.

JULY 23—"Blessed are they that have been persecuted for righteousness sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 5:10, R.V.

To be true to Christ and not meet opposition and possible persecution is the exception rather than the rule. This final beatitude comes as a direct consequence of all the others. If one lives in the way described by the foregoing beatitudes he is bound to meet the attacks of the world. Christ has presented a spiritual way of life; in His teaching man is to live for eternity. The world is materialistic; its interest is in the here and now and in things. These two ways are in sharp antagonism; they resulted in a cross for Christ. They resulted in a cross for the apostles who realistically learned the meaning of this passage; for they counted it a joy that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for His name. Surely to them belonged the kingdom of heaven.

If this prayer could tell its biography what a fascinating story it would be! The Rickenbacker experience would be one of the recent chapters. Here were a group of men in dire need on a vast empty ocean. In this simple, short, yet profound prayer they spoke out their hearts daily to God. The experience proves again that the "Model Prayer" sounds the depths of man's needs—spiritual, social, and physical—in a few brief sentences. That is one of the great lessons Jesus wanted to teach us in this prayer—that one needs not words to pray. Someone has said that it is better to have a prayer in our hearts without words than a lip prayer without a prayer in the heart.

JULY 25—"Our Father who art in heaven. . ." Matt. 6:9b, R.V.

Repetition is an aid to learning, but it often becomes a hindrance in religion. How often have we said these opening words of the Lord's Prayer without realizing their full significance. In these six words we have an expression of both the imminence and the transcendance of God. He dwells in heaven drawing from all heavenly resources to help His own, yet He is so near to us that we may address Him as a father. Despite this we do not trust him as a father; we worry and fret as though we had to fight all our battles alone. Next time we begin this prayer let us remember that we are addressing one who dwells in the heavenlies with power but who is as near to each of us as a father.

JULY 36—"Now the Egyptians are men, and not God; and their horses flesh and not spirit: and when Jehovah shall stretch out his hand, both he that helpeth shall stumble, and he that is helped shall fall, and they all shall be consumed together." Isa. 31:3, R.V.

Isaiah speaks pointedly to Jerusalem and Judah who place their trust in Egypt rather than the living God. What a message for our day! Any resorting to physical force can end only in the destruction, in one way or another, of the one applying it. Here is the age-old conflict between the flesh and the spirit. According to Isaiah armies and horses would settle nothing. It is in the realms of the spiritual that the ultimate reckoning will always come. For God has his hand on world affairs; He is sovereign. No wicked and fleshly work will abide his fiery judgement.

JULY 27—". . . but they that wait for Jehovah shall renew their strength. . ." Isa 40:31a, R.V.

Waiting for God is a lost art in our day. This is the alternative to willfully taking things into our own hands. Activism is so much a part of us. True, we must be up and doing; but too often we have never been down on our knees to wait on God for orders as to what to do. Consequently there is nothing but much vain activity and rapid spiritual fatigue. We have need of a greater spiritual reserve if we are to be an active force for God in a corrupt world.

JULY 28—"How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation, that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth!"

That is music to the ear of the waiting soul—Thy God reigneth! There is one who controls the nations, who metes out judgment in righteousness. What cause then have the righteous to fear? Nations may crumble, cities may be laid waste, and cathedrals may fall into ruins; but the eternal God is our refuge. He is on the throne; and while He is on the throne no earthly force can triumph. Let this be a word of comfort and strength to those of us who by our pessimistic outlook of the future of God's work would doubt His eternal sovereignty.

"Jesus shall reign where'er the sun Does his successive journeys run. . ."

JULY 29—"Lay not up for yourselves treasures on earth where moth and rust consume, and where thieves break through and steal. . ." Matt. 6:30, R.V.

How easy it is to become overmuch concerned about worldly goods and physical well-being. In his teaching Jesus makes it clear that if one belongs to the heavenly realm he has no reason to be laying up treasures on earth. For if things are man's ultimate goal then character goes 'out the window.' The Christian is warned against acquiring or even against being anxious about these physical needs, for it inevitably leads to confusion and compromise; and no one can serve God and Mammon!

JULY 30—"But if God doth so clothe the grass of the field. . ., shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" Matt 6:30 R.V.

In this passage Jesus goes to the very heart of the problem of worry about physical needs. It is unbelief and nothing less. When a man takes his eyes off God and begins to look at circumstances alone the result is worry. If worry results from unbelief then we are guilty of great unbelief. What is worse, many of us have worried so much and so long that we almost come to feel that there is some virtue about it. Consequently, it becomes part of us, and the world gets a distorted picture of the Christ whose ambassadors we are. Let us confess this as sin yielding ourselves to God that we may present to the world a truer picture of Christ.

JULY 31—"But seek ye first his kingdom and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Matt. 6:33, R.V.

Here is the remedy for all worry—a supreme devotion and loyalty to Christ and His kingdom. It is the life with one supreme aim that sees all worries dropping away. Such was the case with Paul who said "This one thing I do, forgetting the things which are behind. . . I press toward the mark. . ." With such a focused life what room can there be for worry?

A Call for Nurses -- An Opportunity for Service

The Bethany Hospital, owned and operated by the Church of the Brethren, recently had to close one of their floors because of a shortage of nurses.

We of the Mennonite Church who have so much in common with the Church of the Brethren, greatly deplore the fact that this reduction in Christian Hospital service had to be made. Those of us who are so often called upon to visit the sick in in hospitals especially feel the need of Christian care for the sick. Since we do not have a Mennonite Hospital in or near Chicago, we feel that here is an opportunity to help in this field without any outlay of funds on our part.

As Pastor of the Mennonite Bible Mission I have had frequent contacts with the Church of the Brethren here in the city. When I heard of their great need for nurses I thought that perhaps here was opportunity to work together for a common cause. I consulted with Mr. Studebaker, the superintendent of the Hospital, in regard to the possibility of getting Mennonite nurses to work at their hospital. Mr. Studebaker heartily endorsed this plan, also Miss Snell who is in charge of nurses. We felt that it would be another step to bring these churches closer together. We have been driven to work together in a war emergency and there is no reason why we should not continue in other activities for the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God and to fulfill our responsibility to the needy of this world.

The Mennonite Bible Mission is about five miles from the Bethany Hospital and we here at the Mission would be happy to provide Spiritual care for any and all Mennonite girls who would answer this call to work in the hospital. The hours at the hospital can be so arranged that a girl could attend at least one church service on Sunday; either the morning or the evening service.

The girls work 8 hours a day and six days a week, as their regular work. The shifts are as follows:

7 a.m. to 3 p.m. or 3:30—3 p.m. to 11 p.m.—11 p.m. to 7 a.m. A choice of shifts is not always possible. It is often necessary to rotate the nurses on night duty unless there are those who prefer night duty.

The pay for graduate nurses general duty is $90.00 a month and free board and laundry. Nurses have to pay their own room rent. There is no nurses' home; however in the event that several of our Mennonite girls could come to work at the hospital, then a home could be rented where they could live together.

The hospital gives a week vacation with pay after one year of service and two weeks vacation after two years of service. They are allowed as much as two days a month sick leave without discount from their regular pay. If they are sick enough to be in the hospital they are allowed a week without discount. Hospital care is at the rate of 10 percent of the regular cost; however they may join a hospitalization plan at 80 cents a month that gives them free hospital care when needed.

Nurses registered in other states will be allowed to begin their work and given ample time to arrange for their registration in the state of Illinois.

WHAT THE 1942 RETREAT MEANT TO ME

"I am happy to have this privilege of saying that the 1942 Retreat meant much to me. The spiritual inspirations received there are much needed today and the social contacts are also valuable. My sincere hope is that these retreats may be continued."

* * * *

"I think every boy and girl should attend the Retreat as often as possible because it is a fine place for fellowship for the Mennonite youth."

* * * *

"I from the bottom of my heart can say that I received a spiritual blessing during the season. I found that God is nearer out in the open where you feel his presence through nature. I was also especially inspired by Rev. Esau's messages. After I came back I felt a stronger desire to serve Christ and my church. Last but not least, I was pleased to make the acquaintance of some fine young people. I certainly enjoyed being there and truthfully am a satisfied customer. I advise all others who are interested to attend."

* * * *

"The 1942 retreat encouraged me to think that other young Mennonites worship and enjoyed the same God so that we could fellowship together one week. Hope to go again this year."

* * * *

"Dear Rev. Dyck, I shall answer your question 'What the 1942 Retreat meant to me?' Well it meant very much. First it was a wonderful way to spend a vacation away from home. And I'll never forget the Bible Classes in the morning. They have helped me to study my Bible more. And the inspiring evening services were always too short for me. I also learned to know new friends which I cherish much. To me the 1942 Retreat was a rich blessing and I would advise other young Christians to go, for one week of closer fellowship with our Lord will surely give them new encouragement to go on, for it did me. A Retreater of 1942"

"The Retreat meant a few days of learning more of Christ and the Bible and receiving help and inspiration. I sincerely wish we could have Communion this year down by the lake."

The Story of an Old Bible

In a certain New England home, among the treasures that have been handed down from generation to generation from the Mayflower days, is a leather-bound Bible which was in use long before the historic Mayflower period.

This is the story of that Bible.

In the year 1555, Queen Mary sat upon the English throne with her Spanish husband by her side. She won the title of Bloody Mary because of her cruel persecution of certain groups of Christians.

There lived, during the reign of Bloody Mary, a blacksmith in the village of Harrant, whose small house adjoined his shop, with a fine garden in the rear. The blacksmith's most precious possession was a leather-bound copy of the Bible, even though Queen Mary had forbidden anyone to read that Book anywhere in her kingdom on penalty of death.

The blacksmith's wife was dead, and his little blue-eyed daughter spent many hours that would otherwise have been very lonely, playing about her father's shop, watching the bright sparks fly upward from the great forge, and making believe they were jewels. The little girl's name was Elsie.

One morning when she went into the shop after her tasks were done, she found her father standing behind the door with his precious Bible in his hands, reading the sacred page, with bent head. So intent was he in this that he did not hear her as she entered. So Elsie, not wishing to disturb him, kept very quiet.

She was greatly surprised to see that when her father had finished reading, he picked up a stick that stood behind the door, and touched the heavy beam above the door with it. As he did this, a block of wood fitted on hinges fell forward, disclosing an opening in the beam just large enough to hold the Bible.

The blacksmith thrust the Book into the space, leaving no sign of the opening. Then he turned and saw Elsie staring at him with wide eyes of surprise.

"Little daughter," he said sternly, "how dare you spy on me!"

Elsie's blue eyes filled with tears, and she said with sobs in her voice, "I was not spying, father; you did not hear me come in, and I could not help seeing you hide the holy Book. That is such a good place that I am sure that all the Queen's soldiers could never find it."

"See that you tell no one where it is," said the blacksmith, still sternly.

"Have no fear, father," returned the child. "I love the good Book as you do, and I would guard it, if necessary, even with my life."

"At the same time," responded the father, "I'd feel safer if you knew not its place of concealment. These are dark days for us. The Queen has orderd that all Bibles be gathered up and burned, and it would mean certain death to be found with one in my possession. Yet I cannot find it in my heart to part with my Bible. It is the only copy left between Harrant and the sea. Let me warn you again; tell no one of its whereabouts."

There followed dark days for the blacksmith of Harrant and all those who believed as he did. Agents of the Queen were sure that there was a Bible hidden somewhere in Harrant, and the town was searched again and again. The people of the village stoutly refused to accept the Queen's religion, and since the blacksmith was the only one among them who could read, he was thrown into prison.

Elsie's heart was very sad, and she spent lonely days, in spite of kindness of her neighbors. Her rosy cheeks grew paler and paler. She thought often of the hidden Bible, and what her knowledge of it and her promise to her father might mean.

One day the soldiers came again to Harrant and searched every house. "We'll burn the house and shop of the blacksmith," Elsie heard them say. "In case a Bible is hidden there, it will surely be destroyed."

As the soldiers approached the house, the girl fled swiftly down the garden path and out upon the moor, where she lay flat on her face, trembling amid the furze bushes.

She was terrified lest the soldiers might find her, and by torturing her make her reveal the hiding place of her father's treasure, which she knew was of far more value than the crown jewels.

She began to breathe more freely as she heard the soldiers marching away. Then the smell of burning wood struck fresh terror to her heart. She looked up to see that the thatched roofs of the cottage and shop were already in a blaze.

Then Elsie forgot all about herself. She remembered only that her father had said that his Bible was the only one between Harrant and the sea, and that is must be protected even at the risk of her life; and she was ready to obey.

Swift and sure as an eagle in its flight, she sped homeward past the departing soldiers, who in the approaching dark did not see the little figure that darted past them and entered the burning shop. The angry flames scorched her clothing and blistered her face and hands before she reached the beam above the door where the Bible was hidden. She seized it in a firm clasp and staggered out the door. When she reached the garden again, she sank to her knees, suffering with pain, and choking with the smoke that filled her lungs, but with a prayer of thanksgiving on her lips.

Then, to make sure that the Book would be safe, she slipped off her woolen skirt and wrapped the Bible in it. Digging in the garden soil, with her blistered hands, she buried it from sight. She crawled to the garden, and tried to bathe her face and hands in cool water.

There, an hour later, the villagers found her, unconscious. They began at once to help her, and soon she was able to speak to them. They comforted and praised her; and they went with her to the place where she had buried the Bible. Each man promised to guard it with his life. You may be sure also that as long as they lived, they told Elsie's story to their children and continued to praise her bravery.

Times grew better in England, and the people gradually came to have more religious freedom. Many years afterward, when Elsie's great-granddaughter followed her Puritan husband across the ocean to make her home on the lonely New England shores, she carried the Bible of the blacksmith of Harrant with her to her new home.—Selected

THE PRACTICE OF MUTUAL AID IN OUR COMMUNITIES

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "O scatter seeds of loving deeds," No. 498; "Are you weary," No. 476. 2. Reading of I John 3:13-24, prayer, and leader's remarks. 3. Special music. 4. Offering for C.E. project.

II. Leader's Introduction:

Mennonites have generally emphasized the brotherhood features of the Christian faith. One way of giving expression to these ideals has been through the practice of mutual aid. Whether this has been by way of a neighbor sitting up through the night in a neighbor's house by the bedside of a sick one, the plowing or harvesting of the fields of one who needed help, the friendly basket of potatoes or apples, the extension of a gift through the channels of the church, or the organization of a society for mutual aid with small dues from its members, or through the work of deaconesses and the erection of good hospitals, the Mennonites have always had a keen sense of obligation for providing for the needs of those of their group who needed help.

This has been a practical application of the feeling of brotherliness and of responsibility for the welfare of one brother for another. It is the application of genuine Christian love in concrete life-situations. Mennonites, in general, have taken care of their own poor and needy, and have not let them go to public institutions or the state for help.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. The Example of the Early Church, Acts 2:43-47; 6:1-6
2. The Work of Dorcas, Acts 9:36-43
3. Brotherliness Recommended, Jas. 2:14-18
4. Pure Religion, Jas. 1:27
5. Mennonite Ways of Practicing Mutual Aid

IV. Discussion:

1. What ways of mutual aid should we as Mennonites foster? 2. Are the hospitalization plans a true expression of mutual aid? Can they be improved? 3. Are the mutual aid societies and fire insurance companies expressions of brotherliness? 4. Should Mennonites accept help from the state for their poor, or should they provide for their poor themselves? What is at stake? 5. What other mutual aid societies do Mennonites need? Possibly a society for funeral arrangements?

V. Facts for Study:

The early church cared for its own poor. It elected deacons to see that all were adequately cared for. When the Jerusalem church was in need Paul solicited support for it in other churches. James thinks highly of befriending orphans and widows, and think that it is an expression of faith to lend a helping hand to a needy brother.

Mennonites in former times have generally taken care of their needy themselves in one way or another. Today there is a tendency to let them go to the state for relief. We all pay taxes, so why not? Is there a danger that the witness of the church will suffer because of this? Will it be a poor reflection upon the adequateness of Christian love and brotherliness to cope with the needs of those within its ranks? Will aid given by the state go home to the heart, and mean as much for the uplifting of the spiritual life of those in need as the brotherly help given with a sympathetic, understanding heart?

VI. Food for Thought:

" 'Tis the touch of the human hand that counts,
The touch of your hand on mine,
Which means far more to the fainting heart
Than shelter, or bread, or wine;
For shelter is gone when the night is o'er,
And bread lasts only a day,
But the touch of your hand, and the tone of your voice
Sing on in my soul alway."

LEARNING TO KNOW GOD BETTER

Leader's Introduction for Discussion:

The biggest thing a man can tell another man is how to know God; it is how to get into living relation with the spiritual power of the universe.

The practical experiences of God as "a very present help in trouble" is the need of every soul.

We of today have the same opportunity to establish an unshakeable foundation of living through the same absolute faith that saved Enoch from the pangs of death, Isaac from the altar of sacrifice, and opened the sepulchre for the Jesus. God's law is as operative today as it was when the great Way-shower said to his disciples, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest."

To know God is power that lifts us from the night of despair into the light of faith. The lifting power of God is still in the world.

Only as we seek to deepen our spiritual life in honesty and loyalty, can we grow in our power to know and experience God.

We learn to know God better by searching the scriptures. The scriptures tell us that God is the Holy one, the First and the Last, the Creator, Love and Light. God also is our shepherd, friend, judge, and God of all Gods.

We also may learn to know God better through nature. The hundreds of variety of flowers, shrubbery and vegetation of all kinds teach us that God is the Supreme one. The beautiful birds with their own cheerful songs tell of God's love and beauty. So it is our opportunity to learn to know God better in every phase of life.

WHY DO WE NEED LEADERS OF COURAGE?

Duet. 31:6

Memory Verse; "They helped everyone his neighbor, and everyone said to his brother, Be of good courage," Isaiah 41:6.

Even a child can bring cheer and encouragement to others in time of testing and trouble. There was a certain business man who lost almost every cent he owned. He sat at his desk with his head on his arms, thinking of a possible way to end it all, when his little girl came up to him and asked "What does it mean to be ruined, papa?" Then he realized he had been thinking out loud and his little daughter heard him. Again she said, "What does it mean to be ruined?"

He said, "It means I haven't any money, child; your father is a poor man." Her little feet pattered away, only to return soon with a bright copper cent, which she handed her father. Afterward the father said, "Whatever I have gotten since that time, came from that copper cent which my little girl gave me, for it gave me courage." For years he wore this penny on his watch chain, but it remained a secret with him and his little girl. To the father and child, it spoke words of cheer and encouragement.

Could This Be you?

"It's not hard to be president of our society," said Fred.

Helen, who was then the president, replied, "Well, I'm glad you think so, because I find that it takes a lot of courage to keep things going. See how hard it is to get the members to attend a committee meeting! You have to call them again and again, and run the risk of having some of them dislike you, because you try to do the work well."

"And I've heard Mr. Wells tell how hard it is to be a minister today," Helen continued, "There are so many people who know all about how to run a church, and so many who do things they know are not right, but who will get angry when the preacher speaks against them. Our minister thinks he ought to care about how many taverns we have in our town, and he goes right down to the licensing board and protests every time a new application is made. He helped to put some slot machines out of a cigar store because some of the young people of our church were going there to learn to gamble."

By that time Fred had no more to say.

Decision Corner

"There they stand on the busy street,
Squaring off like foes at bay:
The old white church with its organ sweet
And the tavern noisy across the way!

"Under the canopy of dark,
Purest white is the old clock tower
Whose flood-lit hands so clearly mark
For upturned eyes the fleeting hour.
"Down on the level of rum and rye,
Neon red is the tavern's door,
Redder than many a bloodshot eye
Of hapless fool who calls for more!

"The Church says: 'Come, I will lift you up,'
The tavern: 'Hi! Let's drink 'er down.'
The peace of the Lord's communion cup—
Or the din of Babel where sorrows drown.

"There they stand on the busy street,
Calling, luring you and me:
The high, the low, the white, the red;
Life, or death? Which shall it be?"

Fred Aeschliman and wife, Ernest Aeschliman, and L. S. Roulet. Of this number the following are still among the living and active in the work of the church: Mrs. P. R. Aeschliman, Mrs. Rosa Rubin, Ernest Aeschliman, Ed. Reinhard, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Aeschliman, and L. S. Roulet, now a resident of Nampa, Idaho. On the same day, P. R. Aeschliman was selected as the shepherd of the new flock, and on the following day was ordained as a Christian minister of the gospel. This service was held at the primitive school house, and was also conducted by Rev. J. B. Baer.

Since the little Methodist class still held services in the school house (there being no church building as yet) the spirit of Christian cooperation was begun, which has continued now for fifty years. The two denominations, each with a little flock, decided to worship together. Beginning at this point and continuing down to the very present time, the arrangement of the Mennonite pastor occupying the pulpit three Sunday mornings a month, while the Methodist pastor occupys it one Sunday morning, or two on some occasions.

Rev. Paul Aeschliman, or Uncle Paul as we all called him, preached to us on the Sundays allotted to him, most of the time he preached his sermon in German followed by its repetition in English. On Sundays when the Methodist pastor preached, Rev. Aeschliman was often serving in distant communities or at some school house where Christian worshipers met to hear the Word. Let us remember that during the week he worked every day as a hired laborer or on his own farm for over thirty years.

For two years following Rev. Aeschliman's entrance into the ministry no services were held in the little old brown school house. In 1895 plans were formulated for the erection of a little meeting house. Even though times were hard and money scarce, these obstacles were overcome by a wonderful energy of the entire membership and interested folk from the community all working together. A number were handy with tools, these taking the lead in construction, causing enthusiasm in others who donated labor in hauling materials. Thus with many hands a nice little meeting-house was soon a reality. Both groups were present at the dedication of this little pioneer church and the pastor of each group took part. Rev. Aeschliman and the entire membership of both flocks from the very first made it plain that, "we are all of one fold and one Shepherd: Jesus Christ Himself being the chief corner stone." Please, remember when I refer to Rev. Aeschliman as Uncle Paul, the many years of undaunted and intimate service of love for his flock as Onecho makes this appellation most appropriate. Both he and his equally loving companion, Aunt Phebe, were and remain more like Uncle and Aunt to most of us than just occupants of the pastoral household.

Uncle Paul served as President of the Pacific District Conference for six years, following this he served as a member of the Evangelization Committee until his death. In the General Conference he served one term on the Home Mission Board and on various committees. As pastor of the church he served for nearly forty-four years, a period rarely equalled. In 1926 it was his privilege to see a new and modern meeting-house built and dedicated at a cost of over $15,000.00 free of debt. His was not only a long pastorate but one of considerable hardships and self denial. His chief joy was to abide at the foot of "The Old Rugged Cross" and serve his dear Redeemer as best he could. He passed to his reward March 19, 1938, even though he is not with us in the flesh, the remembrance of his presence with us is an inspiration to us when opposition and self denial confront us.

In the fall of 1936, Rev. W. Harley King was called to the pastorate of the church, Uncle Paul feeling the need for retirement from full active service. After much prayer he accepted the call, and with his wife and daughter moved here assuming charge November 1. Uncle Paul, who well deserved the rest and quiet from hard study the rest of his life, was thereupon made Pastor Emeritus.

A look at the various organizations: The Sunday School, which has had a long period of holding forth the light of life, continues as a union society. Various individuals have served as superintendent, some for many terms, S. R. Aeschliman perhaps serving for the longest period.

At the present time the school is divided into twelve classes and three departments, with an enrollment of about two-hundred. In 1938 graded Bible studies were introduced for the primary, junior and intermediate departments. For many years the school has supported a Bible Woman in India as a missionary project.

A daily vacation Bible school was conducted in June, 1941, with an attendance of nearly sixty children. Both pupils and parents seemed to favor its continuance if at all possible.

The Women's Missionary Society was organized January, 1921, as the Dorcas Band and was later changed to the Onecho Missionary Society. It meets monthly and finds many opportunities to further the interest in missions both by hand work as well as by study and prayer. In recent years it has realized an opportunity in keeping in touch with those in the service and is sending them tokens of love and cheer. Much has been done throughout the years, and not the least is that wrought through prayer.

Christian Endeavor Societies: The young people's society was organized about 1921. The society is organized on the "Four Committee Plan" so as to find work for everyone within the society. This is also a union organization made up of young people from both groups. The work of this society has been a training school for a large part of our young people who later assume places of responsibility in the church and community not only here, but wherever they go to establish their homes. The society is now financing the training of two native Bible students in Africa, as well as other local missionary enterprizes of the Pacific coast states.

The Junior society was organized in 1938 and is sending some wide-awake endeavors into the young people's society every year. The Junior Missionary Society also stimulates interest in missions among the juniors.

A few general facts: During the past fifty years of the Mennonite church under the leadership of the two pastors who have served us, the Methodist group of our co-fellowship has been served by pastors affiliated with the Methodist Conference in connection with one of the near by circuits as follows: Under the Colfax circuit, seven pastors. While in the Endicott circuit about twelve pastors. While in the Albion circuit, fifteen pastors have served. Since 1929 it has been served as an independent point by Rev. Earl Shoup of Pullman, whose pleasant personality has won for him many friends.

During the fifty years 204 individuals have been identified with the First Mennonite Church. A total of 115 have been received upon confession of faith in Christ in baptism, sixty-five persons were received by letter or reaffirmation of faith. Add to this the original charter members twenty-four in number. Through the years, eighty-eight persons have either moved away or removed in death. The membership January 1, 1943, was 116.

Missions and benevolent purposes have always been dear to the hearts of our church though the records are complete only since 1902. In these forty years the records reveal that over $24,000.00 was collected for benevolent purposes, averaging from $210.00 to over $900.00 per year. Perhaps the sacrifice was even greater in the early years when the group was small.

Realizing the value in firm convictions and a working knowledge of the Bible, instruction in the fundamentals of the Christian faith is offered to all who desire to avail themselves of it. Especially do we urge it for such who consider making a public profession of faith in Christ that they may do so intelligently recognizing its significance. Or upon such who have entered the Christian life and are seeking further guidance.

The church also owns the beautiful parsonage building built in 1937 at a cost of something over $4,000.00, and stands on a donated three-fourth acre plot about ninety rods from the meeting-house.

May we ever keep humble and faithfully follow the Holy Spirit's guidance in the propagation of the Gospel of Christ. Then we shall prosper under God. May we be challenged by the faithful efforts of our fore-fathers to go on and upward in His name, making Him known to others. —The Historical Committee

POEM WRITTEN BY MRS. P. R. AESCHLIMAN FOR THE ANNIVERSARY

The First Mennonite Church of Colfax Washington:
This name was given for her own.
We are celebrating here today the fiftieth anniversary.
T'was organized in eighteen ninety-three
In perfect peace and harmony.

T'was in July, a sunny day,
When dust was flying on our way
With horse and wagon then we traveled,
There were no cars, no road was graveled;
But that could not interfere, Rev. J. B. Baer was here.

In a private home we met; J. B. Baer the service led,
There was a unanimous thought
That was before the meeting brought
To organize and give a call,
One we trusted, that was Paul.

There were charter members twenty-four,
A small beginning there you see;
Unanimously they all agreed, the church was lifted on its feet.
The next day then Paul was ordained,
An elder of the church proclaimed.

He had been preaching for some time,
He then was thirty, in his prime.
All day he worked, was farming there, at night his sermons would prepare.
We had the meetings for two years
In a school house that was near.

The people all were plain, but true,
Not one of them was well-to-do.
A church was built then neat and plain;
And that first church was not in vain.
For thirty years it stood erect,
The young folks from the world protect.

Revival meetings there were held;
The membership in numbers swelled.
The Methodists too, helped along; United always makes it strong.
We lived together as one flock,
To them the doors were never locked.

For years before they labored there—
Thus for their creator had a share.
The Church and Sunday School went on,
Tho often times then Paul was gone.
His calling was home mission work;
Was often called, would never shirk.

Helped struggling churches on their feet.
Conditions that were incomplete.
The church at home was doing well,
Attendance did in numbers swell.
The little church became too small;
There was not room enough for all.

The question came, what can be done?
A plan was made, the work begun;
A new and modern church was built,
Our hopes and wishes were fulfilled.
We all had sacrifices made,
The funds were raised, expenses paid.

T'was forty-three years, almost four,
Still Paul was preaching as before;
But then a problem had to face,
A younger man must fill the place.

We gave the call to Rev. Harley King,
He must instead the message bring.
He preaches now with zeal and love—
May blessings shower from above.

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP IN THE UNITED STATES

According to tabulations made from the last census of the United States, 62,000,000 people are associated with some church. 34,000,000 were found to be Protestants and 22,000,000 Roman Catholics, 4,000,000 were reported to be Jews, and 2,000,000 all other religions.

Authorities seem to agree that only about one half of this number, or 31,000,000 attend church at all and only one fourth, or about 15,500,000 attend with any regularity. This number could probably be divided again in determining the number that attend Sunday evening services.

This leaves a total of well over 100,000,000 that need to be evangelized in our United States.

Harvest time is again here and soon will be a thing of the past. The wheat crop was not so good this year because of the severe drought. Altho the yield was poor the price is better this year and people are very thankful for all received. Our pastor and his wife Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Bechtel went to Summerfield, Illinois the fore part of June for a visit with their daughter and family. Rev. Bechtel returned in two weeks while Mrs. Bechtel remained for a longer visit. The weather is extremly hot at at this writing and we are hoping for rain to break the drought and heat.

—Jake Goering writes from the C.P.S. camp at Lapine, Oregon, that they had snow flurries the first few days in June, and that a few miles from camp there is one foot of fresh snow. Would it not be refreshing for some wheat farmers to spend the week-end at such a place!

Legislation Prevents Further Foreign Relief Work by C. P. S. Men

A recent Appropriations Bill which passed the House of Representatives and the Senate contained a provision that prevents C. P. S. men from engaging in foreign relief work. The Bill which became law on June 30, 1943 does not permit the use of federal funds for the compensation of government personnel performing any services in connection with the sending of conscientious objectors outside of the United States. The Bill also does not permit federal funds to be spent directly or indirectly with the training of C.P.S. men in colleges for foreign service.

While direct expenses for relief training and relief service could be borne by a non-government agency such as the Church, any such program would necessarily entail a relationship with the government involving expense of such a nature as is prohibited in the Bill.

One of the immediate results of the bill is the liquidation of C. P. S. Unit 99 (China Unit) and C.P.S. Unit 101 (Relief Training Unit) as soon as arrangements can be effected.

In a letter to the men in the camps, Bro. H. A. Fast referred to the closing of this door(foreign service) as similar to St. Paul's attempt to enter Bithynia where "the Spirit suffered him not." The Committee, he pointed out, is completely confident that the program will yet find in its "Troas" a vision of "Macedonia" or some other worthy and challenging field of service.

Death of a Camper

On July 3 at the Terry Montana camp occurred the death of Harold Kauffman of Manheim, Pa. Bro. Kauffman met with sudden death when struck by a trans-continental train that passed close by the Terry camp on the Northern Pacific Railway. The body was found near the outskirts of Terry and was taken to the local undertaken where the coroner pronounced the death as accidental. The body is being shipped to Manheim for the funeral ceremonies and buriel.

Members of the C. P. S. family extend their condolence to the parents, D. Baker Kauffman and wife of Manheim, R. 1, Pa.

Hospital Units Receive Honorable Mention

Due to the country-wide labor shortage many mental hospitals have experienced extreme difficulty in obtainig necessary manpower for the functioning of their institutions. C. P. S. units have been welcome additions to the staffs of many mental hospitals.

Occasionally hospital superintendents pass on commendations for the work done by the men of the C. P. S. units. One superintendent of a hospital with a 50-men unit reports that the sincerity and integrity of the men has gained the respect not only of the fellow attendants but has created interest in other hospitals to secure a similar group of men. In an unsolicited letter he writes: "These men are a credit to their Church and are giving good service to a worthy cause."

MEETING OF C.P.S. DAIRY MEN

On June 26 and 27 over twenty men from C.P.S. dairy units in Pennsylvania gathered at the Headquarters of the M.C.C. office at Akron, Pa. In the course of the gathering there were discussions of the problems that face men on dairy farms and on dairy testing circuits. Brethren H. A. Fast and John H. Mosemann gave their assistance to the problems of the men.

An afternoon worship service on Sunday marked the close of the two days fellowship. Similar meetings will be held in the future at Akron, Pa., as well as in Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

Peace Section Notes

Saving Stamps for Civilian Bond Investments

The Civilian Bond Saving Stamps have been designed for use in the purchase of Civilian Bonds. As such they correspond to the War Saving Stamps which are used for investment in War Bonds. The Civilian Bond Saving Stamps were prepared by the Mennonite Central Committee's Peace Section in response to requests for such stamps.

The Plan

(1) Interested congregations should appoint a Treasurer who could well be the regular person handling the Bond or C.P.S. matters.

(2) The congregational Treasurer can secure the Stamps (in denominations of $1.00, $ .50, $ .25, and $ .10) from the Treasurer of his respective Church group.

(3) Those desiring to purchase Stamps will do so through their local Treasurer who will hold the money received from the sale of Stamps until the purchaser submits at least $19.50 worth of Stamps. This amount will purchase an $18.50 Bond and will cover the $1.00 service fee. Bonds can be registered in the name of the purchaser of a beneficiary and subscribed for through the local Treasurer.

(It should be kept in mind that Civilan Bond Saving Stamps are not issued by the government and hence their official recognition may vary with localities.)

—Farmers to vote on conservation district: Mennonite farmers around Newton, Moundridge, Walton, and other communities will be given the chance to express their desires relative to a soil conservation district in the month of August, according to information received by the editor some time ago. These districts are run by the farmers themselves. No farmer has to join. However, by working together farmers can get help from state and federal agencies that they could not get singly. Millions of acres throughout the United States are already included in such districts established by farmers. It is estimated that one-third of our top-soil has been lost since the American Revolution.

—Paul R. Shelly, who is serving the Fairfield Mennonite Church, Fairfield, Pennsylvania, this summer asks for some sample copies of the new Junior Quarterly. Referring to the article "The Junior's World," which appeared in a recent issue of The Mennonite, he says, "I feel more and more that we must emphasize this approach more among our Mennonites. We need a certain kind of evangelism, but I feel that our Mennonite approach has been more that of Christian nurture interpreted in the best sense." Brother Shelly is particularly interested in this line, for he is preparing his doctor's thesis in this field. He plans to resume his studies in the fall.

—The First Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, has begun to issue a church bulletin. Rev. I. J. Dyck is the pastor. On the morning of June 27 Brother John Bartel of Delft brought the mission sermon. This was followed by the ordination of Walter J. Dick to the ministry. Communion was observed on the previous Sunday by a filled house. Katherine Derksen reports, "I believe every member that was able was present." An interesting notice on the back of the bulletin reads, "Dressed poultry for the C.P.S. camp at Denison, Iowa, will be accepted at the local locker plant Monday and Tuesday till noon.... Eggs, butter, and potatoes will also be accepted. The poultry freezing will be free. Money will be needed, however, for packing and transportation."

—The First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, in conjunction with other protestant churches of the community conducted a daily vacation Bible school for a period of three weeks.

On June 13 a class of six young people were baptized and received into the church, and on the same date five other people joined the church by the right hand of fellowship.

Our pastor, Rev. Phil A. Wedel, and five other members of our church attended the Pacific District Conference which convened June 17-20 at Reedley, California.

Miss Elizabeth Foth, serving in the Red Hook District of Brooklyn, New York, and Rev. and Mrs. Erwin Wedel, doing pioneer mission work at Jasper, Alabama, were visitors of Aberdeen, Idaho, for several days, and at several occasions related some thrilling experiences and showed pictures of their work. —H. C. Wiebe

—Vernon and Lilly Sprunger wrote a letter to the pastor on Feb. 14, 1943, from the Congo Inland Mission, Idiofa-Mukedi, Congo Belge, Africa. After asking many questions about the Wadsworth church and telling many interesting and inspiring facts about their life and work, this strikingly familiar paragraph appeared: "Here the work is often trying too. It seems so many are lax, indifferent, and really living in sin because they prefer the easy-going way contrasted to Jesus' method of true discipleship. The few who are seemingly the stand-bys are not sufficient to change the hearts of those who are serving two masters, and we covet your prayers in behalf of the native church who are asleep. Yes, and we need Him so much for how often we walk in our own way instead of seeking His guidance. Do pray for us that we may ever walk with Him."

The letter goes on to say that they will probably have to take their furlough in South America instead of America. The children are well and happy: Charles in the fifth grade, Wilmer in the third grade while little Jeanette is not yet ready for formal instruction. Charles will soon leave for a Presbyterian school at Lubondi, 280 miles from Mukedi. Last but not least, Mrs. Sprunger reports that their garden is doing very well! Let us pray for these good servants of the good Lord. —Bulletin, First Mennonite Church, Wadsworth, Ohio.

VOLUME LVIII NORTH NEWTON, KANSAS, JULY 27, 1943 NO. 29

Entered at the post office at North Newton, Kansas, as second-class matter. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103. Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized January 22, 1919.

Building Given to Conference for Headquarters

Mrs. Elva Krehbiel Leisy, Dallas, Texas, daughter of the late Rev. H. P. and Matilda E. Krehbiel of Newton, Kansas, has offered to the Executive Committee of the General Conference, as a memorial to her parents, to donate to the Conference for its headquarters the business building at 722 Main Street in Newton opposite to the Post Office. The deed to the property is to be issued to the Conference when the estate has been turned over to Mrs. Leisy by the executors. Meanwhile the use of the front part of this building, including the vault, and the adjoining committee room, is offered rent free to the Conference.

The Conference Executive Committee has accepted this liberal offer with thanks and is equipping the place for occupancy as head office of the Conference.

Missionary P. A. Penner, who, according to the rules of our Board of Foreign Missions, has been retired after forty years of faithful service in India, has consented, with the approval of the Mission Board, to be Office Manager. Brother Penner is, however, not to be tied constantly to an office desk, but is to be free to serve the cause of missions in our Church as conditions may warrant.

The Executive Committee has named the brethren H. E. Suderman, H. J. Andres, and C. E. Krehbiel as a local committee, in consultation with Brother Penner and others, to prepare these conference headquarters for occupancy.

Mrs. Leisy's liberality has made it possible to begin to realize a long-standing wish both of her father and of the Conference, as documented in Resolution 7 of the conference session of 1938, namely: "Resolved, that it is the sentiment of the Conference that definite efforts be made to have a Conference Headquarters, and where a Central Treasury may be established to which money for all conference purposes may be sent and be booked and used for causes specified by donors."

As regards the Central Treasury, it is the intention first to take over the treasury of the Foreign Mission Board, and when this is done and announced, then all contributions for this branch of conference activity are to be sent to the "Mennonite General Conference, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas." Other treasuries of the General Conference may be taken over as will be announced later.

The Mennonite Publication Office, which handles our conference publications, is also to have a place assigned to it in this building, and the work on the Mennonite Archives, begun years ago, will be continued by the committee appointed by the Conference Executive Committee, namely: P. A. Penner, A. J. Dyck, and A. Warkentin.

For the interior decoration of the room and for office equipment, a good brother, who is a staunch supporter of the work which our Lord has entrusted to our Conference, has made a liberal donation. There doubtless are others who will find joy in sharing in supplying further necessary equipment. If the Lord lays it upon your heart to do so, kindly send your gifts for this purpose to our Conference Treasurer, Karl A. Richert, Newton, Kansas, or to the undersigned President of the Conference.

Who wants a share in this? It will require from $500 to $1000 more. The unique opportunity is yours, and we do not want to beg or even urge, but simply to lay it before you and to thank you for any support.

May Christ richly bless the united efforts of our hearts and hands in His vineyard!

Publication Board Meets

The Publication Board of the General Conference met in Newton on July 19 and 20. The board met in the newly-acquired headquarters building of the Conference. This was the first of many meetings which will undoubtedly be held there by various conference boards.

Members of the board that were present were: H. J. Andres, Newton, Chairman; J. M. Suderman, Newton, Secretary; E. W. Baumgartner, Berne, Indiana, Treasurer; C. Henry Smith, Bluffton, Ohio; and A. A. Penner, Mountain Lake, Minnesota. Brother A. J. Richert, another member from Los Angeles, could not be present.

Of general interest are the following decisions by the board: (1) That another edition of 5,000 copies of the Mennonite Hymnary be printed. Fifteen thousand copies have already been sold. (2) That a new edition of Words To Young Christians by C. H. Wedel also be printed. (3) That a new Forms of Service book with the prepared supplement and, perhaps, additional material be printed. The Board also studied the newly-prepared Mennonite Junior Quarterly and favors its wide use in our Conference. A goodly number of other matters were acted upon. The weather was hot, but at the close the board felt that the session had been a very good one.

Good Stewardship Brings Rewards

In last week's editorial it was pointed out how God created good soil for the benefit of man and how God, undoubtedly, expected mankind to keep it as good as possible. We have a spiritual obligation to keep God's soil in good condition. But does soil conservation pay in dollars and cents?

Farmers who practice it say that it does. They find that it pays in higher crop yields that result from fertility and moisture retained in the soil. Where there are no gullies there is very much less damage to machinery. In contour farming the tractor pulls on the level, and considerable fuel is saved. Contour farming and strip-cropping keeps much seed from washing out or under. Drained land produces higher yields. Dams support livestock where none could run before because of water shortage. Gullies and waterways put to grass afford additional fodder. Practically every acre can be utilized through conservation farming. Furthermore, such farming is a good insurance policy for one's descendants who will live on that same soil.

Are dollars unimportant? Relative to God's great purpose for each life they are comparatively so. However, when used in consecrated stewardship for God's kingdom they assume great significance. Every dollar taken in through the safe-guarding of God's good soil means that extra money can be given to work of the kingdom. Mission, C.P.S., relief, publication, and education enterprises can be better supported. This statement can be confirmed by some of our ministers whose people live on land that was formerly good but now is badly depleted and eroded.

Extra income for church purposes and for family use are rewards in addition to the spiritual reward that comes from keeping the soil that God created as good as possible. Received in a Christian spirit they too are spiritual rewards. It pays to be a good steward of the soil. —rw.

Mennonite Publication Office Moved

The Mennonite Publication Office has been moved away from its place close to the Herald Book Store. Its new headquarters are opposite the postoffice on Main Street, in the new General Conference headquarters building at 722 Main.

A Means to Proper Stewardship of the Soil

The soil conservation districts which may be formed in practically every state enable a group of farmers to do together that which it would be very difficult and expensive for them to do individually. Such districts are of, for, and by the people who organize them. They are extremely democratic. Already farmers have organized hundreds of them throughout the United States. The federal government and the state governments welcome this very much. Our soil can and should be safe-guarded through such conservation districts. They are a manifestation of true patriotism. Mennonite farmers might well go the second mile in something that the government desires and which is to their own great benefit. Ask your county agricultural agent for more information about them. —rw.

Lord make me an instrument of Thy peace!
Where there is hatred let me sow love;
Where there is injury, pardon;
Where there is doubt, faith;
Where there is despair, hope;
Where there is sadness, joy.
O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek
To be consoled as to console;
To be understood as to understand;
To be loved as to love, for
It is in giving that we receive;
It is in pardon that we are pardoned;
It is in dying that we are born to Eternal Life.

Albert Jantzen Family Safe

Someone in southern California recently heard over short wave a radiogram sent by Missionary Albert Jantzen. It said, "We are all well." No date or address was given. Rev. F. F. Jantzen, Paso Robles, California, father of Albert Jantzen was informed of the radiogram and then sent the news to Rev. and Mrs. John Lichti of Deer Creek, Okla., who are the parents of Mrs. Albert Jantzen. The Lichti's in reporting the news to The Mennonite write, "We are thankful for that much Rejoice with us, hoping to hear more soon. Continue to pray for them."

Our other interned missionaries in the Philippines are Brother and Sister Lester Wuthrich and Brother and Sister Marvin J. Dirks who have been heard from through the Red Cross.

The Inside of Civilian Public Service

(Note: Rev. William H. Stauffer, Sugarcreek, Ohio, Field Worker of the Home Mission Board to visit C.P.S. camps and look after the rehabilitation of our young men after the war is over writes the following interesting article in which he gives us a glimpse at our camps and the boys in the camps. —A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary.)

As my train slowly winds its way through the deep, beautiful canyons of the Rocky Mountains my eyes wander from the rushing streams below to the splendor of the mountains above. As I meditate on the indescribable beauty and peace of these quiet valleys and mountains my minds turns over the wonderful things which I have been privileged to see and hear in our Civilian Public Service camps, the mental hospitals and the dairy farm units which I have visited during the past three months. Truly, this program is a cause which God himself has laid upon us.

If You Could See for Yourself

If only our people as a whole could see this significant program firsthand as I have. If only our people could see our boys work and play, study and worship together as is becoming of followers of our Lord and Master. These three months of traveling and visiting and counselling with our boys has convinced me beyond any shadow of a doubt that if our people as a whole could share this privilege they would rise to an enthusiastic support that knows no bounds. I feel certain that most of our indifference and opposition comes from a lack of knowledge and understanding.

If our people were to visit these camps, hospitals and farm units, they would find our own and our neighbor's sons—men who deeply impress one with a courage of tested convictions which they received in our own homes and churches. Parents, Sunday School teachers, and ministers laid upon their hearts during day of peace the great cause which God planted in the hearts and lives of our forefathers four centuries ago. Ours is a large part of the responsibility for the conscience which these boys now have in time of crisis.

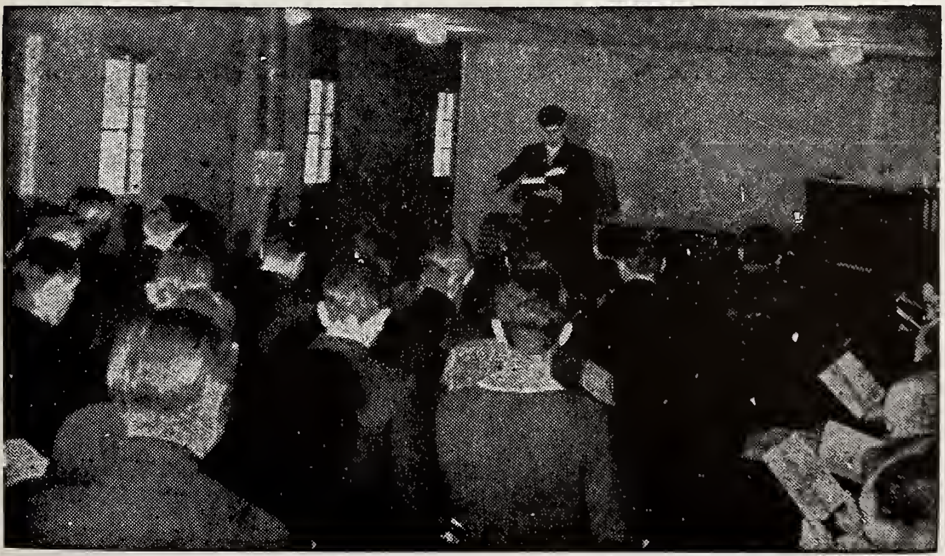
Men who work hard need good, wholesome food in sufficient amounts. Cost of feeding per man-day is about forty-one cents.



A Worship Service in a C.P.S. Camp

The crisis of our age has forced the young men of our country to make a great decision. Our boys in Civilian Public Service have made the choice which we ought to have expected them to make because of what we taught them in days gone by. The tragedy is that these boys are paying the price of their convictions which we shared in giving them, so many of us are conveniently straddling the fence, leaning on one side or the other, depending upon the pressure in our local communities. It is easy to see why this is very disheartening to our men in our camps.

If you would visit these camps as I am doing you too would be deeply impressed with the fine spirit among these men. It certainly humbles one as one sees the genuine way in which they have accepted the stern fact that, for God knows how long, they are working day in and day out, except Sunday, without pay. They are really discovering that there is a vast difference between the cost of a standard of living and the true quality of a standard of living. Adjustment after the war won't be nearly as difficult for them as it will be for some of us.

The Religious Life in the Camps

The religious life of the camp is very noticable. These men are really growing spiritually as well as physically and mentally and socially. Their day begins with an early morning arising. After a hearty breakfast they have a period of devotions preparing them to meet the activities of the day in a Christian spirit. These devotions are conducted mostly by the men. The men go out on the project for the day's work. At noon they gather around a kettle of warm soup with their lunches and a tremendous appetite. But before satisfying their physical needs they pause to thank God for his marvelous care and keeping. With hats and caps removed these men call upon God with a genuineness of spirit that is really touching. When evening comes they return to camp laughing and singing, a day's work well done.

Wherever they go, our boys give a good account of themselves. Everywhere the technical staff and project superintendents speak very highly of their work. It has been only amidst ignorance or misinformation where there have been unfortunate criticisms.

Faithful—All Day

Just one illustration among a great many will suffice to show how the public reacts to our boys where there is first hand contact. In one of the dairy counties where we have a unit we have three men working along with seven who are not C.O.'s. After our three men were in this dairy for two weeks the owner came to the camp director and wondered if he would fire his seven men, if he could get seven from the camp. Said he, "Those three men are the kind I have been looking for for a long time."

As one looks at Civilian Public Service as a whole one sees a most interesting segment of young men which I believe God Himself has called apart "out of darkness into His marvelous light." Just how He will use this group we do not yet know. If we had enough faith and courage to walk day by day, step by step as He leads, somewhere doors will open where we can be of even greater service to Him.

May we remember these men and their work in our prayers as they remember us in their prayers. Let us support this work with our gifts. This is God's Work, and we dare not neglect it.

Note: Some other articles giving further views and experiences in the C.P.S. camps are to follow from Brother Stauffer's pen.

We Have A Responsibility

It is quite obvious that the General Conference churches are failing to meet the obligations of the quota requirements for the C.P.S program. At the rate of fifty cents per member our churches need to contribute approximately $13,000 per month. Yet I am happy that we have done so well, and I pray that as it becomes understood throughout the entire Conference, in every church, by every church member, that we have a responsibility to the C.P.S. just like the responsibility of paying our bills on the first of each month, there will be a response in keeping with Mennonite tradition and reputation of meeting every obligation promptly and on time. The Lord has blessed us not only financially but in a particular way in providing the opportunity of alternate service in "work of national importance." I believe it is axiomatic that every blessing is an opportunity and every opportunity a challenge.

Sincerely yours,
L. J. Horsch

OUR SISTER HILLEGONDA

Sister Hillegonda had lived an active and useful life, rich in varied experiences, and was comfortably settled in her own home in Summerfield, Illinois. She expected to spend the evening of her life in close association with her brother who was pastor of the Mennonite church in Summerfield. A Sunday school class and the women's missionary society offered her opportunities for Christian service. She had a large circle of relatives, friends, and acquantances, and the love and companionship of her nephews and nieces delighted her heart. Thus we found her.

Since we have learned to know our sister well in the thirty-four years which she has spent with us, we know what her reactions were when she received a call from a newly founded Bethel Deaconess institution to take charge of the kitchen and dining room service, to assist with the teaching of the young sisters in training and the spiritual ministry to the sick. She considered the call in the light of God's word, sought the guidance of the Holy Spirit, took stock of her physical strength, measured her mental capabilities with the task which she was to assume, turned her heart away from her pleasant and comfortable surroundings, and prayerfully decided to try it. With youthful zest and vigor, she entered upon the work assigned to her, and with a willing and sacrificing spirit, she made it her own and found joy in it.

Sister Hillegonda was past sixty-one years of age when she was ordained as a deaconess and became the fourth member of the family of the Bethel Deaconess Sisters, being just again as old as was the combined average age of the original group of the three sisters whom she joined. Contributing mature experience and many fine qualities of heart and mind, her coming was a definite help to the new organization.

SISTER HILLEGONDA

There was her stability and steadfastness. Her attitudes and convictions, shaped by her parents whom she loved and honored, were not subject to change. This fact presented elements of strength and weakness, but Sister Hillegonda had to be accepted as she was. Experienced in the faith of the Son of God, a women of prayer and possessing a wealth of knowledge in the Holy Scriptures, an able Bible teacher, she soon became the spiritual leader and example of the sisters in many respects.

Another outstanding characteristic of our sister was her purposeful living. She had dedicated her life to God's service, and she never faltered or wavered in her consecration to her task. Because of her age, she figured that she might only be able to contribute ten years of full, active service to the deaconess cause, so she refused to accept the small monthly allowance allotted to each sister for personal use. She had been taught to live an "ordered life," every moment was made to count for work or rest, and she seldom let anything interrupt this program. Always an early and punctual riser, she usually managed to take a short rest in the afternoon, but even now she will not allow herself an extra hour in bed unless she is ill. Always busy, an apparently tireless worker in her younger years, she has never been subject to nervous flurry and excitement no matter how busy she was. Her work was done on time, usually ahead of time. Punctuality was not her second nature—it came first. If she has ever been late for Sunday school or church services, it was surely the fault of some one upon whom she had to depend—never her own! Every day of the week, including her Sundays, were arranged according to a schedule and carried out in just the same order if at all possible. No wonder that she has lived to be ninety-five years old!

And then her zest for life! Whatever she undertook, she carried out faithfully to the best of her ability; she never appeared to be bored or weary of her task. At any moment of the day, if opportunity presented itself, she was ready to tell a story which she had read or heard; she could write verses while overseeing and assisting with the preparation of an institution size meal; she displayed a delightful sense of humor and could out-run most of the probationers when out on a picnic.

But her greatest gifts were not her physical and mental attainments; they are spiritual. God alone searches the heart and tries the spirit and knows all the thoughts and intents of the mind. Yet we who have been associated with her for thirty-four years can testify to the fact that Sister Hillegonda does not only know the Scriptures and can teach them, but through God's enabling power, her path has been "as the shining light, that shineth more more unto the perfect day." (Prov. 4:18)

As a personal tribute of love, may I weave a garland of the three outstanding manifestations of the fruits of the Holy Spirit in the life of Sister Hillegonda and lay them at the feet of Him who appeared unto her, saying, "Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore in loving kindness have I drawn thee." (Jer. 31:3) (The blessing from God's word spoken by her father as he baptized her. This same verse was her consecration verse as deaconess.)

God has given our sister a rare ability to forgive any wrong done her. As far as we know, she has never continued to harbor unkindly feelings in her heart. No human being has forgiven me more throughout my life and has done it more graciously and kindly.

"Love suffereth long and is kind." We can not recall that she has ever spoken in anger or said an unkind word to any sister nor to any other person. And that can not be said of the sisters in relation to her. If some one caused her pain, she could be found on her knees in her room later on, but she never carried the expression and attitude of a martyr. Since love is the crowning Christian virtue, she has been thoroughly tested and tried and not found wanting. "Love never faileth."

And last, but not least, we weave into this spiritual garland her unfailing gratitude to God and man. The little daily service and assistance of which she is now in need does not appear to her as something due her age and years of service; it seems to remain a happy surprise and is always rewarded with repeated expressions of thanks. Such gratitude is a gift of God; it is not an attribute of the natural proud and sinful heart of man.

Now Sister Hillegonda is a bit weary from her long journey, and she is climbing the last ascent with tottering steps and failing strength. But the gates of the heavenly city, her goal, are already being pushed ajar to welcome her home, for we can catch an occasional gleam of the golden splendor of eternity in her life. And she is not alone. Her aged brother surrounds her daily with his love, assistance, and devotion; she enjoys the fellowship and love of the sisters, her relatives, and many friends. But best of all, the One whom she has loved and served throughout her long life has not forsaken her in the days of her old age, but according to His promise, "Lo, I am with you always;" His presence and peace is her daily happy portion.

Seek to Place "Mennonite" in Every Home

The young people of the First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, are sponsoring a subscription drive to place The Mennonite into every home. In a letter telling the above news Delmar Wedel suggests that a list of all subscriber's to The Mennonite whose address is Aberdeen would be very helpful to them. The Mennonite Publication Office is very happy to supply this list. Other churches may obtain the same kind of list for their community.

TRAVELLING IMPRESSIONS

Near "The Lake of the Woods" in northern Minnesota.

This was my first stopping place of my "Fifth Missionary Journey." It is beautiful country up there with its luxuriant, lucious grass, beautiful woods, bush as they call it, made more impressive by its stately spruce and firs, interspersed with lakes.

Stepping off the train at my destination I was met by the marshal of the town and the preacher of the community. Quite a combination to meet a missionary, but it was most cordial.

But what interested me greatly was the little gray stucco church "in the wildwood" set within a variety of trees, calling to the foreground from the hidden recesses of the mind the song "O come, come come, come to the church in the wildwood, O come to the church in the vale."

During the Sunday school hour I had another pleasant surprise, I found one of the most wide awake adult Sunday school classes I have ever attended. Most intelligent questions for discussion were asked by various members of the young Women's class (varying in age, I suppose from 22-40 or thereabouts) These questions came so spontaneously, and most of the members had children in their arms. They were asked without any direct challenge from the Sunday school teacher. In the average Sunday school class, after much coaxing we find one or two asking a question, but here they popped up like mushrooms in the woods, and over the curtain I heard the men's class in like manner discussing questions. Then, the goodly group of young people, who also sang in the choir. The nice group of children made this group in the wildwoods a promising church.

A missionary collection at the close of the service revealed that the average family that Sunday had put in over $1.60 for missions. I love these little pioneer churches with their simplicity of faith and their open unaffected hospitality, generosity of spirit and unspoiled heart. There is something wholesome about them. The first love is still there.

Shall I Tell It?

"That's what I heard! It must be so!" It is said that "seeing is believing." But what about hearing? How can one know whether to repeat what one has heard?

Three questions, we are told, decide in most cases. (1) Is it true? (2) Is it necessary? (3) Is it kind? One who violates any of these three is a gossiper, or as the Apostle Paul calls them, "busybodies, speaking things which they ought not."

Our government is insisting that five rules be followed in regard to dealing with rumors. "(1) Never repeat a rumor. (2) Do not repeat a rumor even to deny it. (3) If you know the facts which will spike a rumor, cite the facts promptly. (4) If you do not know the facts which can stop a rumor, ask the rumor teller where he got his facts. (5) Don't give the rumor the benefit of the doubt." Commenting on these rules the editor of a College bulletin says. "Rumors are equally ruinous to a community, a church, a school, or an individual. False rumors have killed the work of more than one teacher and preacher. While no one should wish to be shielded from the truth, it is only right that we shield each other from falsehoods."

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By. J. Winfield Fretz

RURAL EVANGELISM

It can be said without much fear of contradiction that an unevangelical church is a dying church. There are exceptions. The Amish brethren can be cited as an example—but in the main the above generalization is true. Unfortunately, many rural churches are sleeping churches when it comes to the matter of evangelization in rural areas. There seems to be the general feeling that either all people living in the rural community are members of some church, or if they are not, it is useless to approach them with the gospel.

Membership versus Attendance

It is well to remember that there is a difference between church membership and church attendance. There are millions of people who claim church membership but who may not have been active in church for ten or twenty years. It has been found in many cases that people who claim membership in a certain church are not so considered by the church itself. Because of inactivity and lack of support their names have long been removed from the roll. An evangelical church will not be satisfied with anything short of active participation in church life.

A Successful Strategy

The Old Mennonite Church today has about one hundred rural mission stations. It is constantly opening new ones. Where churches of other denominations have vacated buildings and given up serving a community for lack of hope, our brethren have taken over buildings and opened flourishing missions. They have a passion for lost souls, and they have a strategy for seeking to save them. A group of consecrated workers are found and sent to the needy area. It usually consists of a man and his wife and one or two single people.

Not Professional Workers

These workers enter into the life of the people whom they seek to serve. They may earn a large share of their living by farming or by some other form of employment. They do not get full support from the Mission Board. This identifies them very closely with the real every day problems of their people. Christ may be brought to the spiritually undernourished while helping a man put a roof on his house, or build a barn, and to women while helping them can or sew. This kind of evangelism is permanent and lasting. It is not the emotional, oratorical, pulpit evangelism that is often practiced but is frequently ineffective.

There is need for rural evangelism in every rural community. It is not up to the minister to do this work alone—four or five lay evangelists in each congregation would do wonders to reawaken our rural areas.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Carl O. Basinger, Chicago, Illinois

AUGUST 1—Thou, therefore, endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." II Tim. 2:3.

Christians must give up their love of convenience. A subtle and pernicious vice has crept into the Church. Existence has become too easy a problem. We have become "soft," unable to bear under the exigencies of life, and the threat of death. Fine homes, automobiles, household gadgets, stocks, bonds, and oil wells have given us a sense of security never before experienced in the history of our denomination. We have come to shun difficulty because we dislike all forms of suffering—which is neither heroic nor Christian. May we be saved from self-pity and cowardly evasion of duty. If we are to preserve our identity, we must shake from us some of the lethargy of convenience.

AUGUST 2—"But he answered and said unto them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God by your tradition?" Matt. 15:3.

Christians must be freed of conventionality. Too much emphasis has been given to "our splendid Christian heritage." Tradition is never a justification for the contemporary. Although we may glory in the achievements of the past, we must ultimately and realistically face the present. We have been too dependent upon the sanction of custom and usage. We have all too often lacked spontaneity, and have been slaves to tradition. The Christian ethic is dynamic—not static—and requires a constant re-examination and re-formulation in terms of the present, with its constant goal an uncompromising and absolute obedience to the will of God.

AUGUST 3—". . .Be not wise in your own conceits." Rom. 12:16.

Christians cannot tolerate conceit. Humility is the centrality of the religious teaching of all time. Augustine ranked pride as the most deadly of the seven primary sins. In all Oriental cultures the principal aim was to teach the child modesty. Babylonian morality consisted in modesty. Homer, the Greek poet, declared, "Though modesty sometimes hurts, yet it greatly adorns man." The Christian recognizes God's greatness, and his utter dependence upon Him. His demands are infinite, and no one can ever claim to have completely satisfied them. No matter how perfect an artist's work may be, he is nevertheless dissatisfied. When he ceases to have improvement as his ideal, he ceases to be an artist. This is the essence of humility—a constant aspiration toward the higher.

AUGUST 4—". . .Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me." Matt. 25:45.

Christians must rid themselves of callousness. We are prone to be hardened and insensible toward human values in our business relations, in our treatment to members of other races, in a recognition of the problems of the under-privileged, to the suffering victims of war, and to our sick and aged. May God free us from callousness!

AUGUST 5—". . .One thing thou lackest: go thy way, . . .and come, take up the cross and follow me. And he was sad at that saying, and went away grieved: for he had great possessions." Mark 10:21, 22.

Christians must shake off their complacency. Inward self-satisfaction is one of the most destructive agents at work in the Christian life. The Barthian reaction toward a self-satisfaction induced by a moralistic concept of sin has been long overdue. It is time that we once more recognize sin in its real conotation—a basic estrangement of the universe from God. One cannot escape to a vaunted position of salvation because of specific activity. Any claim to salvation on the basis of adherence to theological dogma is sheer illusion. Rich and poor—wise and ignorant—young and old—all of us—stand under God's judgment and are in need of his grace.

AUGUST 6—"Whosoever shall seek to save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life shall preserve it." Luke 17:33.

Christians challenge a faith in cynicism. A cynic is one who believes that human beings are motivated wholly through self-interest. He declares that all altruism is merely "enlightened self-interest." His argument runs something like this: One helps others because he desires help from them. One desires cooperation in society because he realizes that a cooperative world is a more secure and comfortable place in which to live. One lives morally in this life in order that all may be well in the after life. "Altruism?" shrugs the cynic. "Why not call it enlightened self-interest?" Paradoxical though it seems, pure, objective love is what Christ demands. Loyalty to the principle of unselfish service to others is the basic maxim of the Kingdom of God. Society is in chaos today because we have had too much "enlightened self-interest."

AUGUST 7—"So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another." Rom. 12:5.

Christianity must heal its cleavages. It is generally conceded by religious scholars that much of the ineffectiveness of the church of today is caused by the inefficency and loss of energy due to competitive denominationalism. There are still approximately 257 denominations in the United States and 17 different Mennonite sects. The likenesses of the latter far outweigh their differences. The survival of the broad doctrines of our denomination are dependent upon rapid steps toward unity.

IOWA Y. P. RETREAT, JULY 31-AUGUST 1

The Iowa Mennonite Young People's Retreat will convene at the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite Church, Wayland, Iowa, July 31 to August 1. The retreat program will be centered around the theme "Toward a Better World." Retreat leaders will be H. E. Nunemaker, E. S. Mullett, E. A. Sommer, and H. A. Fast. The banquet speaker for Saturday evening is Lester Bill, Pastor of the Methodist Church of Columbus Junction, Iowa. On Sunday the retreaters will take in the services of the Eicher Emmanuel Church. Brother H. A. Fast will bring the message on the subject "A New World." A basket dinner will follow the service. Features of the afternoon and evening are, a play, "The Lost Church," by the local young people in the afternoon and a worship service by boys from C.P.S. Camp No. 86 in the evening.

WESTERN DISTRICT RETREAT NOW BEING HELD

The Western District Young People's Retreat began July 25. It will end July 30. The camp site is again Camp Wood, the state Hi-Y camp, at Elmdale, Kansas. This year's theme is "Victory Through Christ." Leaders are Clyde H. Dirks, Pastor, First Mennonite Church, Hutchinson, Kansas; Albert Gaeddert, Assistant Director of Mennonite C.P.S. Camps; Helen Krehbiel, Elyria, Kansas; Paul Kuhlmann, Superintendent of Meno Bible Academy; Wilhelmina Kuyf, returned missionary from China; Mrs. A. M. Lohrentz, President, General Conference Ladies Mission Societies; Helen Hiebert Mueller, Secretary-Treasurer of the Western District C.E. Convention; Sister Hilda Mueller of the Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital, and Otto Unruh, Coach at Bethel College. Courses that are being offered are: "Victory with faith in God's Word," "Victory through Sacrifice and Service," "Victory on the Mission Field," "I Accept My Responsibility to the Church," "Church Publicity and Journalism," "In His Steps as a Farmer, Teacher, Deaconess and Homemaker," and "Victory through Christ." The purpose of the retreat is stated as "The aim of the retreat is to bring young people to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ, to offer opportunities for a deepening of their spiritual lives, to present to them Christ's call for service, and to encourage wholesome and uplifting social and recreational life."

EASTERN DISTRICT SPONSORS THREE RETREATS

The Eastern District is providing retreats for juniors, high school young people, and senior young people. The high school group had its retreat from July 22 to 25. Leaders were: Delbert Welty, Paul Wenger, Joseph Byler, Russell Mast, and Ernest Bohn. The juniors met from July 25 to 29. Leaders were: Mrs. Paul Wenger, Mrs. George Greger, and Catherine Niswander. The senior young people are meeting from July 30 to August 1. Their leaders are Delbert Welty, Paul Wenger, Joseph Byler, Sylvan Lehman, and Ernest Bohn. The retreats are again being held at Men-O-Lan, the retreat place owned by the Eastern District. Already a road has been built, a well provided for, and five cabins, a dining hall, and a worker's cabin have been built. In 1938 J. Walter Landes donated twenty-three acres of ground to the conference for the creation of a retreat grounds.

AN EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

The Rosthern Young People's Retreat had just come to an appropriate close. Autographs had been signed between closing class sessions. But deeper memories still linger on. Hearts had been encouraged to heed the call of the Savior.

Evangelist J. J. Esau and Walter H. Dyck had just presented closing messages. Then came a brief but impressive consecration service in which the young people standing hand in hand in a large circle, were led by Missionary P. A. Penner in a prayer of consecration and rededication. It was a sacred moment.

A car had been provided to take the leaders from the retreat grounds. Two lines of young people had already formed. As the car was passing from the Experimental Farm, between these two lines, the strains of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" broke forth. We noticed that words did not seem to be able to express the appreciation of thankful hearts. We could notice voices failing and tears sparkling. Such is the greatest earthly reward that can come to servants of the Master.

Many new friendships have been made. We hope many new and far-reaching decisions made during these days may be honored by the Lord.

As one of the leaders of the Rosthern Retreat, and for all of them, I wish to express a heartfelt appreciation to one and all of the Saskatchewan young people for the hearty reception and opportunity afforded us to proclaim the gospel of Jesus Christ and mingle with you. May the Lord give you much joy in your unlimited field for Christian Service.

In Appreciation,
Walter H. Dyck

PROGRESS OF THE WORK AT BASNA

We want to thank the home churches for their continued interest and support. Even though we do not know what the future holds for us, still we can trust Him who has guided us thus far.

In spite of many problems and difficulties our work can be carried on, and for this we are thankful. There has been much sickness the last few weeks, mainly fever; quite a few of our boarding boys were ill. We are glad that all of them are better now.

The school farm has developed very much during the past year, and we are glad to see that we can raise so many things. Our most valuable crop is probably the potato crop. About one-eighth of an acre has been planted, and they seem to be doing very well. These seed potatoes were obtained from Sarguja State, north of Korba.

The well that Dr. Dester built before we came did not supply enough water. So last hot season John built another well for the school farm, and now there is plenty of water.

The Indian conference is being held now in Mauhadih. Most of our teachers wanted to go as well as our housefather of the boy's boarding, and so we stayed here to look after the work. Dr. Desters and the Duerksens also went. So we are quite alone.

The poor we have always with us here in Basna. It seems almost every day some beggars come to the door. The price of rice is very high and it is hard to get; for this reason the people who do not have

First Quarterly Conference

The First Quarterly Conference of the Eastern District will be held in the remodeled meetinghouse of the Eden Mennonite Church Schwenksville, Pa., on August 2. Rev. Delbert E. Welty will present a paper on "Visitation Evangelism," and Ernest J. Bohn will give a message on "The Foundation Stones of Our Faith" in the evening. The conference begins at 2:30 p. m.

their own fields are in a sad plight. So many beg to make a living.

The cool weather which is a treat for us, is really very hard on the Indian people. They do not, as a rule, have enough bedding and clothing to keep themselves warm. Often the warm things are sold for food during the hot weather months of the year. Then when the cold weather comes there is no supply to keep them warm.

Our oldest daughter, Eleanor, is on her way home from school, and we are anxious to see her. She will be a senior in high school next year. She will come home when the conference is over.

Our baby has grown very much during the past year, and on the whole she has had good health. She has always been husky and now at one year she weighs twenty-four pounds. She is a great joy in the home and a good playmate for Muriel.

Please continue to remember us in prayer.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Elizabeth Thiessen

RELIEF

Commissioners Leave by Plane for China

On July 17 Brethren J. D. Graber and Sam J. Goering left New Orleans by plane on the first part of their journey to China. They plan to make a stop at Buenos Aires from where they will proceed by vessel to South Africa and thence to India. The last stage of the journey into China will also be by airplane.

Brother Graber has given two terms of service as a missionary in India and Brother Goering has spent a similar period in China as a missionary. The departure of these two commissioners marks the long-anticipated beginning of relief work in China. Plans of the commissioners call for proceeding to Chungking where contacts will be established with the Chinese government and other agencies before setting up a program of relief.

A late cable from Panama indicates that they will be delayed for about ten days in that country.

JUNE DAYS IN THE CHACO

Communications from Brother Robert Geigley reflect a spirit of enthusiasm as he undertakes his duties in behalf of the Mennonite colonies. Below is the report of his activities during the month of June:

June 1—Leave Casado for 145 on the choo-choo. Janzen in Casado with fever. Arrive at 145 same day and start same eve into the Chaco.

June 2—Arrive Hoffnungsfeld and meet Schmidt preparing to go to 145 for road grader. Decide to stay with Schmidt and start back toward 145 same evening—in an ox cart.

June 4—Arrive back at 145 eve of third. Start back toward the Chaco with the road grader—raining-mud-and tired.

June 6—Sunday spent at Old Foz Azul (nowhere). Shot at a fox in the evening and also wounded a puma or tiger near our shack.

June 7-10 Spent at Hoffnungsfeld.

June 11-20—Spent time in Philadelphia with Schmidt and Janzen—visiting and starting the work of the debt adjustment, etc.

June 22-24—Visited in Menno Colony with Peter Fehr and visited camp. Thursday—Corporation Paraguay Property N. of Lindenau.

June 27—Left Philadelphia for the R. R. at 145; in the evening headed for Asuncion.

PEACE SECTION NOTES

When is a Man Inducted into the Armed Forces?

Some men who have not been able to secure a IV-E classification have assumed that their I-A or I-A-O classification would not induct them into the army if they refused to take the army oath. It is wrong to assume that. Induction into the armed forces occurs when a man appears at an induction center on the specific date with an army classification.

If all appeals fail and the notice to appear for induction into the armed forces is received what is the wisest course to take? The following answer to this question is taken from the Peace Section Handbook and Draft Manuel, obtainable from the Mennonite Central Committee office, Akron, Pa.

"Each one must decide for himself. If you are inducted into the army you will find it most difficult to get released. If you refuse induction you will be tried and probably sentenced by the U. S. District Court. It is not an easy choice. But it is probably easier to get consideration in a civil court than in a military court, if you should refuse army regulations and be court martialed. And it is easier to deal with Federal Bureau of Prison authorities than with the officials of military prisons. The lesser of two evils seems to be to refuse induction. If you elect to refuse induction, write a letter to your local board, as soon as you receive notice to report for induction, courteously telling them that you cannot serve in the armed forces and that you intend to refuse to report for induction."

Status of Pre-Professional Men in the Draft

In the interests of the national health and welfare the War Manpower Commission has issued a policy of student deferment in scientific and specialized fields. Students in good standing in recognized undergraduate schools can be considered for deferment if they will graduate from their course of study on or before July 1, 1945. This provision covers not only the scientific fields such as engineering, radio, and transportation, but also includes pre-medical, pre-dental, pre-veterinary, pre-osteopathic, and pre-theological fields.

It should be brought to the attention of men in the above fields that while the II-A classification can be granted on the above basis such a classification is not mandatory, and local and appeal boards may still exercise discretion that could result in an induction into service.

Civilian Public Service

Latest C.P.S. Statistics

The population of Mennonite Civilian Public Service has now reached a more or less stable figure with only a gradual increase from month to month. The June 30, 1943, figures show that the number of men under Mennonite administration is now 2,835. Of this figure 909 are on maintenance projects such as hospitals and dairy farms.

The total of men in Civilian Public Service has now reached 6,413. Of this figure 1,767 are under Quaker administration, 1,547 are under the Brethren, 177 are under cooperative administration, 44 under the Association of Catholic Conscientious Objectors, 30 are administered by the Methodist World Peace Commission, and 13 are in the government camp at Mancos, Colorado.

Regarding Donations of Rationed Foods

A word of information and caution is in order regarding contributions of commercially processed foods, meats, fats, cheese, etc., to camps. Such contributions may not be accepted according to the regulations without giving up points for them at the regular point value. Consequently the camp should be consulted before such contributions are brought in, because it may be that they will need their available points more for other things than the particular foods it is proposed to contribute.

In general, unless the persons making the donations of commercially processed foods and/or rationed meats, fats, etc., are in business and have arrangements for handling loose stamps or points through the normal channels provided in O.P.A. regulations, they should contact their local O.P.A. Ration Board before making the donation, to arrange for turning in the stamps to be received. This, of course, does not apply to home processed fruit and vegetables. Loose stamps may not be used for purchase of rationed foods by consumers. Surplus stamps, whether loose or in the books may not be given to another consumer than the person in whose name they were issued. Neither may they be used to obtain rationed food for such other consumer, unless the person in whose name the stamps were issued eats at the table where such food is being served.

Camps Enjoy Visiting Speakers

Educational Directors report that one of the worthwhile features of the summer educational program is the presence of visiting speakers at the camps. In some camps the visitors spend time with the men working on the project for a day or two.

Among the interests of the men in camp are postwar relief and the role of the Mennonite Church in future service. Some of the speakers to visit the camps are the following: P. C. Hiebert, William Stauffer, John C. Wenger, Eli J. Bontreger, Ira Nissley, H. S. Bender, and Bernhard Bargen.

CAMP BRIEFS

Nearly one-third of the men which are the concern of the Mennonite Central Committee are in maintenance projects such as hospital units and dairy farm labor. Transfers to special projects such as these, however, will be less frequent in the future and will not take place faster than the rate at which men are inducted into the regular camps.

CORRESPONDENCE

EICHER EMMANUEL MENNONITE CHURCH

Noble, Iowa

Rev. Jeambey of Mount Pleasant, Iowa was present at our Workers Conference to give us a message on canes. He has in his possession about three-hundred canes from all over the world. Most of us had never had a talk presented to us in this way.

On June 28, we had an Installation service for Rev. Metzker. Rev. Mullet, of the Wayland Mennonite Church; Rev. Nunemaker, of Donnellson; Rev. Hobson of Olds all participated in the service.

We were also pleased to have with us a quartet from C.P.S. Camp Number 86. May the Lord richly bless Rev. and Mrs. Metzker as they labor with us.

The new officers of the Christian Endeavor Society were installed at a candlelight service. Each partook of the one bright candle—representing Christ. Both Junior and Senior officers were installed.

We are looking forward to the South Eastern Iowa Young Peoples Retreat which is to be held July 31 and August 1. Rev. H. H. Fast is to be with us to give the main address. And Rev. Lester Bill of Columbus Junction, Iowa, also.

—P. P. Graber, Corr.

WOODLAND MENNONITE CHURCH

Warroad, Minnesota

The past month has been made richer for us spiritually through the visits and services of several messengers of God. Mr. Plett from South Dakota, conducted services one evening. Missionary Aganetha Fast conducted services Sunday forenoon, June 20 and in the evening showed pictures and answered questions on China.

During Rev. Arthur Ortman's absence, Rev. C. G. Anderson held services for three successive Sundays, and also on June 27.

Rev. Arthur Ortman gave a report of the conference during services held June 14.

Daily vacation Bible school was held for two weeks beginning June 14. The teachers were Miss Marie Thiessen for the Primary group and Miss Sarah Fast for the Juniors. Both teachers came from Munich, North Dakota. The closing program was held June 25.

Jake G. Quiring, Corr.

EDEN MENNONITE CHURCH

Moundridge, Kansas

Baptismal services were held Sunday morning, June 6. Thirty-one young people presented themselves for baptism, and upon their confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as their Savior they were baptized and received into the fellowship of the congregation.

The following Sunday we all worshiped together in a communion service.

Rev. Walter Gering, our pastor, has been attending an interdenominational school for rural leaders the last five weeks. During his absence Edwin Stucky, Peter W. Goering, and Rev. Sam J. Goering brought Sunday morning messages.

We felt privileged to have Rev. Sam J. Goering spend his last Sunday in the homeland prior to his leaving for his mission to China with us. Let's remember him, and others in His service, in our prayers.

—Harold H. Goering, Corr.

LIMA MISSION CONDUCTS BIBLE SCHOOL

The Lima Mission has just concluded another summer Bible school for the children of the neighborhood. Boys and girls who go to no other church, or who attend other services on Sunday were welcome to attend with us. Ever since the beginning of the Mission the leaders have conducted such a school.

The Pastor was in charge again this year. Miss Pauline Sprunger, Mrs. Dick, Mrs. Ethel Day, Mrs. Ruel Bixel, Miss Devona Walker, and Mr. Dick taught the classes. They were assisted by Mary Allen Baehr and Betty Pepple. All but one of them were from the local group.

Each session began at 9:00 with the pupils marching into the church. After the worship service they divided into classes where they were taught Bible stories, memory work, and notebook work or other expressional activity. Then came fifteen minutes of outdoor play, followed by one half hour of General Assembly. During this period a teacher gave an object lesson or sermonette. Then more music and closing memorized prayer, by all.

More than one hundred children were enrolled with an average attendance of 70. Each morning an offering was taken for China relief. Together with the offering taken at the closing program, this amounted to $52.00. The expenses for the school were about $20.00.

During the General Assembly of one of the last days of school, the teacher in charge gave an object lesson centered upon the Cross. Then an invitation wa given for those to raise their hands who wished to love and follow the Lord Jesus Christ all their lives. The invitation was addressed to those who had not taken the step before. Over one dozen hands went up, mostly from the older ones. No urging was needed. They knew what they were doing, and we believe they meant it. We desire God's blessing and your prayers for these young lives. May His Word bear fruit abundantly.

SMITH CORNER MENNONITE CHURCH

East Freedom, Pennsylvania

Due to the war situation we did not hold any special meetings this spring previous to our spring communion which was observed on Easter Sunday. On Sunday evening June 27 our children and young people gave their Children's Day program. It consisted of poems, recitations, and dialogues by the children and a short playlet by three of our young people entitled "Summer Resolutions."

During June our pastor changed pulpits with Rev. Wenger of the Roaring Springs Mennonite Church, and Rev. Welty of the Altoona Mennonite Church. Both of these meetings were well attended. Later he will change with Rev. Gregor of the Napier Church. We do appreciate these visits from the different pastors, enjoying their fellowship and service.

Two of our boys who are in the service of our country, Mr. Jay Fornwalt of the Grottoes, Virginia C.P.S. Camp, and Bernard Stiffler from Camp Ed-wards, Massachusetts spent furloughs in their home communities. Both are members of our church and were regularly in church service while on furlough. So many boys forget their church while at home on furloughs, but not so with these two.

Life Story of Peter H. Unruh

Peter H. Unruh

Rev. Peter H. Unruh, eldest son of Peter P. and Anna Klassen Unruh, was born January 23, 1881, in McPherson County, Kansas. His early schooling he received in the public schools of that community, as well as in a private school under Elder Peter Balzer. Later he continued his education at Bethel College where he graduated. He especially valued his religious instruction under Prof. C. H. Wedel. This work laid the foundation for his unwavering faith in the Bible as the inspired word of God, which was always characteristic of his pastoral duties.

May 26, 1901, he was baptized by Elder Peter Balzer and so became a member of the Alexanderwohl Church and remained a faithful member until death ended this membership. August 13, 1905, he was united in holy matrimony with Susie Warkentin. Rev. H. Banman united them in marriage. This union was blessed with two children. For a number of years he taught in public schools. In October, 1906, he received a call through the church to be an evangelist. Two years later on Dec. 26, 1910, he was ordained as minister and in April, 1915, as Elder of the Alexanderwohl Church by the then officiating Elder H. Banman. During the period of great suffering and starvation in Russia in the year 1922 he was sent there by the General Conference as one of the representatives in that great work of relief. God's protecting hand keeping him, he returned in June, 1923, to the joy of his family circle and relatives and again resumed his strenuous duties as Elder of the church he loved so dearly.

He with his family highly appreciated the celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary by the church.

He has served the church as minister for seven years and twenty-eight years as Elder, a total of thirty-five years. These years were years of deep experience for him, deepening his faith in a loving heavenly Father whose work it was and a people in whom he had faith.

For him it was a rose but not without its thorns. His work reached far beyond his local church duties, and the joy of working called him far and near. During the first world war he was a member of the Conference Peace Committee. In this he contacted government officials, and it led him further into a deeper study of Mennonite history and Mennonite principles. At the time of his death he was vice president of the Mennonite Central Committee and treasurer of the Emergency Relief Committee. He also gladly and faithfully served on many committees of the various conferences. His cheerful and willing way of serving when asked—which he accepted as his duty—will long be remembered.

In May, 1942, he as well as his family noticed his failing health. Medical aid was solicited and he had to retire from his activities for a short period. However, as he expressed it, through the grace of God he soon entered into his full work again, preaching his last sermon on June 27 last. He expected to preach a sermon based on the text of Matt. 10: 18, 19, 20 on July 18. The sermon was intended for the young people and was entitled "What shall we do when we come into a tight place." However, a heavy rain made it impossible to have service that Sunday.

During the last year he had breathing difficulties, especially during the night. This caused him much suffering. However, he displayed a marvelous courage facing his condition, which he realized was serious. And so he remained cheerful and active to the very end. He often expressed his desire to be relieved from the hour of distress and suffering. This his Heavenly Father granted him on July 20, 5:30 in the morning. He reached the age of sixty-two years, six months, and twenty days.

Thirty-seven years were spent in happy married home life. Although his life was characterized by Christian cheer and joy, he was deeply moved by the loss of his first and only grandson through a tragic accident. He accepted it as God's good will and perfect way.

He is mourned by his bereaved wife; one daughter, Velma at home; one son, Elmer W., and daughter-in-law Esther; one granddaughter, Janis Ileen; three sisters, Mrs. Carl Schmidt and husband, Newton; Augusta and Loise of Newton; two brothers and wives, Rev. and Mrs. H. T. Unruh, Hillsboro, and John W. Unruh and wife of Newton; two uncles, P. P. Klassen, Newton, and Rev. Peter Buller, Goessel; three aunts, Mrs. John K. Regier, Buhler, Mrs. D. J. Regier, Newton, and Mrs. D. P. Unruh, Goessel, and an unlimited circle of friends and acquaintances who remember his friendly face. The sorrowing family expresses its gratitude for all remembrances in gifts, words, and otherwise.

There's an open gate at the end of the road
Through which each must go alone,
And there in a light we cannot see
Our Father claims His own;
Beyond the gate our loved one
Finds happiness and rest
And there is comfort in the thought
That a loving God knows best.

You Can Travel Thousands of Miles For Three Cents

Every time you read The Mennonite you travel—in a certain sense—thousands of miles for the cost of three cents. Through this paper you can visit with conference workers and leaders scattered over the United States and throughout the world. You can visit with men and women who are best informed about what our conference is doing, with men and women of a deep spirituality. These men and women are willing to share with you some of their most worthwhile thinking. It is as though in the twinkling of an eye you were swished to many places to have a short refreshing chat with each one of them. That is what reading The Mennonite really amounts to. For three cents a week you can have a series of very interesting visits.

Consider this issue. Through the daily devotional messages you have a chance to become acquainted with a young ministerial student whose home is in Summerfield, Illinois. The column on "Mennonites and Rural Life" gives you the opportunity to absorb the thoughts of a man who has made a scholarly study of Mennonitism and thought a great deal about it. Every week you can visit with him on some vital issue that concerns our people. In this issue you can have a short visit with the president of our conference as you read his statment relative to the Grace Bible Institute. A. J. Neuenschwander tells you about Arnold Fast, a new home mission worker. Three people give you excellent suggestions for some C. E. programs. One who is in the Relief Worker's Training School at Goshen tells you what it is like. Brother Howard Nyce gives you news about the churches of the Eastern District. On the first page you are told about one of our ministers who held many responsible positions and who died just recently. On another page you find out what it is like to be a relief worker on a ship out upon dangerous waters. In another section you are told about one of the old ministers of the Moundridge community. The jottings give you a variety of news from all over, collected into one compact presentation. Dr. John Schmidt, in his frank, clear way, tells you about our brethren in Paraguay. He has been very close to these people. He has talked low German with them, and can tell you many things about them. What is a retreat in Canada like? Sister Klassen is glad to tell you. You have a chance to visit with some of those who report news from the various churches. You can visit with the editor and agree and disagree.

If you who read this are not a subscriber, won't you consider travelling thousands of miles for two cents? (Price to new subscribers is one dollar a year.) Enjoyable visits are yours for a very small cost. Join the thousands who visit by means of this Weekly paper. Mail your dollar to the Mennonite Publication Office, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas.—rw.

Free-Will Offerings

It is the practice of some of our churches to hold free-will offerings for visiting speakers and groups. Quite often these offerings amount to a substantial sum, especially if a series of such offerings are held and given to one person or if the church is a large one. It happens that men and groups which are not working for our conference are frequently given offerings which much more than pay for expenses and a fair remuneration. Whether the speaker is a member of our conference or not, it does not seem right that he should be given an amount which is many times larger than what our minister's are customarily paid and our conference workers get for their services.

The Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas, has adopted the practice of paying a determined amount to visiting speakers instead of giving them the whole amount of a large free-will offering. This large church realizes that many small gifts amount to a large sum in the aggregate and that such a sum may be much more than what the individual members of the church might want any visiting speaker to receive. Churches which have no desire to be rich picking for individuals and groups might well follow the example of the Eden Church.—rw.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By. J. Winfield Fretz

CHURCH AND COMMUNITY

A community is a geographical area where a group of people have a number of interests, ideals, and activities in common. In some cases they have some or all of their possessions in common but generally they do not. It may be that language is the particular thing that some people have in common to bind them into a community. It may be occupations such as mining, farming, or lumbering that bind people into a community, or again, it may be religion. In the case of Mennonites it is their interpretation of the Bible and the Christian religion that has been the chief factor binding them into communities. They hold generally similar views regarding that which is fundamental in Christianity. The ideals, interests, traditions, and activities revolving around them first of all result in the organization of a church and that in turn in the formation of a community.

Centrality of the Church

Because the imitation of Christ as revealed in the scriptures was always considered a basic ideal and desire of the true Christian, Mennonites who believed this wanted to be closely associated with each other where they could help each other and give mutual encouragement and inspiration. This resulted traditionally in the formation of close-knit communities. Mennonites sought to settle close to each other on farms and in small communities, and always in the center of their lives was their little meeting house. If not always the geographical center, it certainly was always the spiritual center. This made for spiritual strength and social solidarity.

What is Happening

There are many Mennonite communities in America where this pattern of community life has broken down and others where it is breaking down at present. Some alert ministers and members are aware of this situation and are trying to do something about it. If one makes a spot map of his community on which he places his church and then the homes of the members, it will immediately become clear whether the members are living close to the church or at a distance and how far. It will clearly show also that where members live at a distance it is difficult to maintain any kind of a strong sense of community spirit. Where such is the case the church is no longer the center of life and activity, and very likely increasingly less the source of spiritual power.

What To Do

It is of course one thing to discover an undesirable fact or a trend in that direction and quite another to discover a satisfactory solution. One thing that can be done is to help people see that the church is important and central to their lives and that for that reason they should seek to settle close to the church and have their sons and daughters do so as well. If our older people are really interested in the future of their church they can do much to encourage and give financial help to worthy young couples who would like to buy farms, enter business, and establish homes close to the church.

MISSION RALLY

A mission rally of the young people of the Western District will be held at the Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas, August 8, 1943, 8:00 p.m. The theme of the rally is "Ye shall be My Witnesses." Miss Wilhelmina Kuyf, returned missionary to China, is the main speaker.

Everyone is invited to come.

NEW WORKER GOES TO MISSION IN TORONTO

The new worker engaged by the Home Mission Board and the Candidate Committee of the Mennonite group in Toronto, Canada, was born in Mountain Lake, Minnesota. His parents soon moved to Montana where he received his elementary education. He attended and also was graduated from the Lustre Bible School.

Arnold A. Fast

At this time his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham P. Fast, moved back to Mountain Lake, Minnesota, where he took his high school work. In his youth he joined the Church upon confession of Christ as his personal Saviour. Being deeply impressed by the fine example of Christians in his home church and led by the Holy Spirit he entered Moody Bible Institute. On August 5 he will be graduated from the Three-Years Pastor's Course.

While attending Bible school Brother Fast has had many opportunities to conduct street meetings, teach Sunday School, preach the Good News, and visit the sick in hospitals, and preach to those in prison. During the last year he has also been singing with a quartet, in this way singing the gospel into the hearts and souls of men.

The Board asked for and also received a clear statement of faith from Brother Fast. As soon as convenient after his graduation, he will leave to take up the leadership of the Mennonite group in Toronto.

The first meeting of Mennonites in this city was held in the summer of 1942 when Rev. J. J. Esau visited all the Mennonite churches and groups in Ontario. Ever since meetings have been held, at first once every two weeks, but of late they have been holding meetings every Lord's Day.

We earnestly solicit the prayers of all who are interested in this work and trust that the Lord's will might be carried out in this large Canadian city.

Brother Arnold A. Fast was ordained as an evangelist in accordance with the regulations of the Evangelization Committee, August 30, 1942, in his home church, First Mennonite Church, Butterfield, Minnesota, his pastor, Rev. Victor J. Sawatzky, performing the ordination.

The Toronto Candidate Committee consists of the following: Mr. I. I. Lehn, 996 Woodbine Avenue, Chairman of Committee, Mr. I. G. Newfield, 27 Dundoland Street, Secretary, Mr. John Brown, 1857 Dufferin Street, Member.

The Ontario Home Mission Committee also concurred in this selection. This Committee has arranged for ministers to supply the pulpit until the arrival of Brother Fast.

Let us so labor and pray together that we may some day look back and say with Paul, "but God gave the increase."

HOW WILL CHRISTIANS USE A RADIO

The radio, like many other modern inventions, is here to stay. It can do much good. It can bring much that is evil. It blesses if its use is properly regulated.

In an article, "The Christian and His Radio," in the current issue of the Sunday School Times, three watchwords for a Christian's use of the radio are given:

1. Discrimination—What we hear—The "best in information and inspiration is offered. For every hymn or gospel song Satan has his jazz. Instead of gospel messages he offers false teachings. Sensible information for farm and home has its counterfeit in nonsense and thrillers. A Christian does not turn the radio on in the morning and leave it on. He carefully chooses between the "evil and the good."

2. Consideration—How we hear—Courtesy and unselfishness should regulate our use of the radio. We must consider the developing of likes and dislikes in others. Callers or guests should not be expected to visit with the radio on.

3. Moderation—How much we hear—To hear every "news broadcast" may cause us to lose our peace of heart and mind. Too much listening can crowd out duty. The average family has the radio on 4 hours a day. To many it takes the place of church attendance. We would not discourage the use of the radio but warn lest words of men crowd out the Word of God. Good devotional services are helpful but cannot take the place of our own. Jesus says, "Take heed therefore how ye hear." To listen to God's "still small voice," the radios must sometimes be turned off.

—Walter H. Dyck

"THE KIND OF PREACHER I LIKE—enunciates clearly. Speaks with authority, as God's ambassador. Does not rant. Is not sarcastic. Speaks earnestly, as though he were saying the most important thing that could be said at the moment. Shows he knows and feels the burdens of the hearers. Aims to bring God to men and men to God. Lives in accord with the gospel he proclaims. Reveals an outline, but does not bore me with it."—A. D. Hill.

Industrial Developments of the Russian Mennonites in the Chaco

By John R. Schmidt, M. D.

The Russian Mennonites that went to Paraguay had next to nothing when they arrived in Paraguay, even with the marvelous help the M.C.C. gave them. The Canadian Mennonites who had come to Paraguay several years before the Russian Mennonites arrived were fairly well fixed financially. The aid given by the Canadian group helped very much both physically and by sharing experiences.

Digging for Water

The group was organized for villages before they arrived in Paraguay. Their shelter after first arriving was under canvas tents. For the start they all got water from the one well in the "Centrum," and many a day they had to have people at the well day and night to get all the water possible. Many of the first wells yielded salty water. After considerable experience they found out that certain vegetation was always found with sweet water and other vegetation was indicative of salty water, which helped much. All the wells are dug by hand, of course, and the danger for caving in is always there. One person was covered up and killed that way. Through experience they have improved on the kind of wood and type of architecture for the wood lining of their wells so they are supposed to last for twenty to thirty years.

Grasshoppers, Ants, Malaria

During the first ten years they made progress under many setbacks. One year they had grasshoppers take their complete crop. A variable amount of damage is always done by ants. Drought has caused many crop failures. The first year they had a very severe typhoid epidemic. Malaria has caused loss of time and physical strength as well as some deaths· After six years many of the colonists considered the Chaco as a place impossible to live, so a large number (about eight hundred) moved south and across the Paraguay River where conditions seemed more favorable. For the Chaco group this was quite a blow. The investments in industry had to be carried by a smaller number.

Industrial Progress

Even with all the hardships we find the colony has had a progressive improvement. The industry has a steamer with a sawing machine, feed grinder, and oil press. After cotton had been sold with seed for several years they invested in a cotton gin which already more then paid for itself. Several years ago a new steamer was bought, one larger, to supply the added power needed for driving the added machinery. They invested in a refrigeration machine and built up a cheese and butter factory several years ago. In the last year, before I left, this factory bought up 73,800 gallons of milk and sold over 40,000 lbs. of butter and 20,000 lbs. of cheese to Asuncion. Some lactose sugar was also made and sold. Around 400 to 500 dozen eggs are also sold every week to Asuncion.

Besides the products raised for the distant market they raise products for home markets such as the military station near by, cattle ranchers and members of its own colony. Of these the most popular are kaffir corn, watermelon, mandioka (a potato plant), sweet potatoes, beans, peanut oil, and to a less extent fruits and vegetables. The military station is very anxious to buy cattle from the colony, but the colony has little to sell because they need to build up their own stock· After a late start, with considerable disappointment, some progress has been made in growing good orchards, mostly citrus fruits.

In fairness to the colony I must relate how bravely they worked with the difficulties of the last two years. Cotton is their main income crop. The year ending 1939 they sold over 820 ton (which incidentally was over 1/5 the tonnage raised in all Paraguay that year). The year ending 1941 they sold over 522 tons. The year ending 1942 they only sold 240 tons. By statistics the average farmer needs $130.00 (U. S.) to live on in the Chaco. For the year ending 1941 there were only 20 per cent that made that much, and a very much smaller per cent made that much the year ending 1942. The products for the home market made up more than its usual share of the deficit which meant much work. Also more milk and eggs were sold. Some families milked twenty-six cows with milk selling at one half cent per quart. Most exhausting and distressing thing to see was the hauling of Palo Santo wood to the end of the railroad. For a man with team of horses and wagon this paid about $4.00 (U. S.) per week. That means being out in the woods or on the way, away from home, all the time. No one knows how hard this work is on clothes and treacherous to man's skin because of the cactus unless you have been in the bush. The work was also very hard on horses and wagon because of the bad roads. Most of them found little clear profit from this, but it saved them from begging for food at the time. During this time the M.C.C. also gave much help to them in the way of money and clothes.

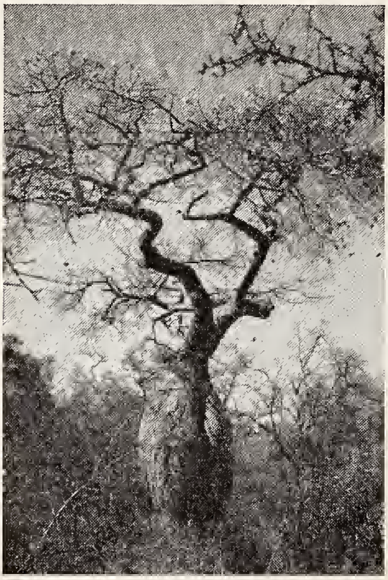
Some Possibilities

The projects that started to grow during my stay that should have a good future are cattle ranches, oil extraction from Palo Santo wood, and road building. Grazing land can be had for the asking, and though the price of cattle is not high, if enough are raised it brings a good income. A North American, who settled in the Chaco in 1920 about 100 miles from where the Mennonites now are, had a very small start; while now he has a herd big enough to keep it constant by taking away 600 head every month. For this one that made good there are many that went bankrupt. Just what luck the colony will have at the new business remains to be seen, but no doubt many will not be able to carry through until the time when the herd is big enough to provide a living. The oil extraction from Palo Santo wood is a project sponsored by the colony and was developed by a mechanic from the colony. It brings in a fairly nice income for the colony even now, though it is marketed with great difficulty since it is sold only on a foreign market (bought by U. S.). The postwar possibilities for this seem very good. The Palo Santo tree grows slowly but the supply available at present will last for some time. If the wood that has already been hauled away had been used in the extraction process it would have brought in about $48,000.00 while as wood with the difficult hauling brought only about $5,400.00.



A Bottle Tree

Road Building

The road building project is one sponsored by the M.C.C. and though it might not directly appear to bring in an income it should cut down an unbelievable amount of time and expense in hauling the colony's products to the railroad track. This project was uppermost in my mind from the time I arrived there and it impressed Vernon Schmidt and my brother Herbert with the same concern when they first arrived. M.C.C. through Vernon Schmidt has promised to carry all expenses to build this road except paying labor to the colonists for work they do. Vernon Schmidt has worked out a three year plan during which time he operates a grader on M.C.C. expense and the colonists work a scheduled amount of time after which there is to be a fairly good country road of 70 miles leading to the railroad. For the twelve years the Mennonites have been there this road has only been a path going through overhanging bush, around mud holes and through ravines. Vernon Schmidt has a very hard job but also a very valuable one.

Dreams for the Chaco

The Chaco undoubtedly is a paradise for daydreamers and air-castle builders. Out of all the ideas for the future I shall name some of the ones that seem more logical to me. The most popular is the idea to have the colony do its own spinning and weaving instead of selling the cotton. While the idea is good, yet with only 4000 colonists there are really not enough people for such diversification. In the last year Asuncion has made great headways in developing the spinning and weaving; until then most of it was sent to Europe for cloth making. There are numerous oily woods which present a field with possibilities. The wood plastics might work in with the above. The castor oil bean tree grows wild in the Chaco. As is well known, the best light oil used for airplanes etc. can be made from its bean.

The reader might ask, "Have daydreams in the Chaco ever accomplished anything?" There has never been enough capital to make fulfillment of expensive projects possible. There have been enough small ingenious devices of the home devised to fill a book. Some of the more important ones that come to me just now are a machine to make steeples by just turning a crank, paris green spraying machine drawn by horses which sprays three rows at one time, hand-made corn planters, home-made horse-driven power-take-off to turn a wood lathe. The blacksmiths make very good wagons and buggies; the farmers make horse collars that can't be distinguished from factory-made ones.

Bear Ye One Another's Burdens

M.C.C. has given the colony much financial and moral support when the colony needed it most. The colony has gone a long way in getting established through its industrial development, but much is still left to be done. For all who can I urge you to help these Christian brothers while you can, for they need it. We know not when we, our children or our children's children may need the same help from them sometime. —March 25, 1943.

WHAT I NEED

I need a strength to keep me true and straight in everything I do;
I need a power to keep me strong when
I am tempted to do wrong;
I need a grace to keep me pure when passion tries its deadly lure;
I need a love to keep me sweet when hardness and mistrust I meet;
I need an arm to be my stay when dark with trouble grows my day;
And naught on earth can these afford.
But all is found in Christ the Lord.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

WHAT REALLY IS EDUCATION

It may seem presumptuous for me to write anything on such a subject; whereas many veterans in the field of education have defined it, and set forth its purposes. My only excuse for writing is to say something on this subject from the missionary's point of view.

The three strong phases of missionary activity are preaching, teaching and healing. Our Master did all three, and so do most missionaries; though there are some specialists in every one of these lines of activity. Today let us look upon the recipients of these three phases of service. Which of these three do people who are the recipients want most. That all depends upon their motive. As a whole our people in the Orient want teaching the most urgently, because they hope that through the means of education they will be able to get a paid job; and will be relieved from the drudgery of ordinary labour; which most people look upon as degrading and unworthy of gentlemen. But the real purpose of education is seldom sought; because no need is felt for that real purpose. Physically healing is sought because of pain or discomfort or because of fear of epidemic. Spiritual healing or help is frequently sought because people fear hell: however a few seek spiritual healing because they permit the love of the Father to draw them. But very few people ever realize that the mind without education is a fertile field for all kinds of superstition and wrong ideas and fear. The mind without real education or with wrong education is an easy prey for all sorts of sordid propaganda and wrong faith. The mind without real education is as diseased as the sick body or the unregenerate soul.

What then is real education? It is receiving in our mind the mind of Christ—the mind that thinks God's thoughts after Him; the mind that knows his maker because it obeys His laws (I John 2:3): the mind that uses God's handiwork (creation) for the good of all people, not selfishly; the mind that is intent upon helping that His will be done on earth as in heaven. It will thus be quickly seen that few people seek these ends in education. Often this real education has been obtained outside of the classroom. Often classroom education has been as bad and dangerous as the worst primitive idol worship, or as the worst witch doctor's craft. We are told that a thousand of the keenest scientists in Germany have experimented and planned and schemed for eight years how to destroy those who were believed to be Germany's enemies. Such is bad education, and not in line with Jesus' challenge, "Learn of me." In our education work in India we conscientiously aim at the real purpose of education; but it is exceedingly uphill work because our people too constantly put other aims as their goal for education of their children. We again urge our churches at home to pray for our Indian Christians and their school children that the real purpose of education may never become vague or be lost sight of.

RELIEF

Increase in Clothing Donations

Indications of the continuing and increased interest in the work of the Clothing Depot can be seen in a comparision of clothing donations of 1942 and and 1943. The May and June 1942 contributions totalled 1,855 lbs. and 1,104 lbs. respectively. For the corresponding months of 1943 the amounts of clothing shipped to the Akron, Pa., depot was 4,616 lbs. and 4,269 lbs.

Mrs. M. C. Lehman reports that the increase is due largely to two factors: (1) The regularly supporting congregations have enlarged their donations; (2) Some congregations are giving clothing for the first time.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Carl O. Basinger, Chicago, Illinois

AUGUST 8—"For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." Gal. 6:8.

One hears a great deal about self-expression. It is contended that Christianity with its emphasis upon repression and self-control has had the tendency to warp personality, and has often produced highly emotional personalities such as neurotics and perverts. Now this is not as it should be, nor, realistically speaking, is. Many Christians are well integrated persons. They can face life with equanimity of spirit. They can accept themselves in the situations in which heredity and circumstance have left them, and face life with incentive. Most physiologists now agree that health is dependent upon spiritual as well as physical factors.

AUGUST 9—"The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth his handiwork." Ps. 19:1.

The great tragedy in the intellectual life of the last century was a widely prevalent conviction that man had no cosmic significance. In a tightly closed deterministic system it appeared as though the human personality was an accident of chance and its destiny in the hands of impersonal forces. There is today a sharp reaction toward that type of thought. It is the privilege of the Christian faith to interpret the living soul of the universe as tender, sympathetic, and redemptive. That living soul is God, who sent our Lord into the midst of the world to reveal to our human eyes His Father's glory and goodness.

AUGUST 10—"And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." John 8:32.

There has never been a time when truthfulness has not been a cardinal virtue. The Persians taught their students three things: to ride, to shoot straight and to tell the truth. To call a man a liar is the deepest of insults. It is not difficult to see why such a value has been placed on truthfulness. Unless society has mutual trust among its members no form of social organization would be possible. If everyone would use counterfeit money, our whole economy would be thrown out of gear. Lying is the refuge of a coward.

AUGUST 11—"He that loveth not, knoweth not God; for God is love." I John 4:8.

John summarizes the Christian life in terms of "Agape" or Christian love. "Agape" is not an ephemeral, sensusal type of love. It is rather a suffering, redemptive love—a love that is capable of going the second mile, and which is willing to return good for evil. It is the theme found in our great hymn:

"Ich bete an die macht der Liebe
Die sich in Jesu offenbart
Ich geb' mich hin dem freien Triebe,
Mit dem ich heiss geliebet ward;
Ich will nun statt an mich zu denken,
In's Meer der Liebe mich versenken."

AUGUST 12—". . .(lay) aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speaking," I Pet. 2:1.

Many individuals speak disparagingly of another's achievements in order to raise their own status in the eyes of the world. Envy is poison. Ralph Waldo Emerson says, "There is a time in every man's education when he arrives at the conviction that envy is ignorance; that imitation is suicide; that he must take himself for better, for worse, as his portion; that though the wide universe is full of good, no kernel of nourishing corn can come to him but through his toil bestowed on that plot of ground which is given to him to till."

AUGUST 13—"Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill." Matt. 5:17.

It has been remarked that what Jesus offered in the Sermon on the Mount does not touch the three major problems of our day: war, industry, and politics. Jesus, therefore, is out of date, declare these people. He legislated 2,000 years ago for a simple type of society which cannot be compared with our society of today. If His object had been to lay down definite rules, this criticism would doubtless be valid. It is well to remember that the laws enacted for one age always become inadequate for the next age. Jesus never intended to lay down laws. In the Jewish systems of His own day he saw the futility of legalism. Instead of laws he offered a few great principles which would be valid in all circumstances and to all times.

AUGUST 14—"I will put a new spirit within you." Ez. 11:19.

Christ laid stress upon the new "will." He went behind principles. His real object was to create in man a new "nature," a new moral disposition. He did not intend that his principles be taken as definite commands, but rather as illustrations. Jesus aimed to set men free from the Law. The place of the Law was to be taken by the "new spirit" which would act spontaneously, and which would be the same in every age and circumstance.

Training For Relief Work

By N. Paul Stucky

"For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me." (Matt. 25:35-56.) These words of Jesus provide a command and inspiration to each member of the Relief Training Corps at Goshen College this summer.

Occasionally the prospective relief worker finds himself confronted by some friend or acquaintance with the exclamatory question, "You don't want to go to some foreign country with all the dangers, do you?" To us in this unit, that isn't the issue. We see people in all sections of the world who are going hungry, whose homes have been ruined, whose land has been devastated, whose bodies are diseased, whose families are separated, and whose minds are diseased, all due to the destruction of war. We, in this country, who are somewhat removed from battle scenes have some difficulty in picturing ourselves in place of these many millions of people. These people must be helped as soon as possible, and if we have no responsibility, then who does?

To us, Mennonite relief is more than physical relief. It is truly mission work; it is expression of our faith and way of life. Such is the motivation which brings us here.

The curriculum includes courses in "Christian Life and Mennonite Heritage," "Community Hygiene and Nutrition," "Growth of Christian Personality," "Relief Administration," "Contemporary World Relief Needs," and "Physical Fitness."

The daily program begins at 5:50 with the rising bell. At 6:00 everyone is out for fifteen minutes of calisthenics. This provides opportunity to awaken completely and at the same time stretch. In addition it creates a good appetite for breakfast.

From the beginning of classes at 7:30 until the time of retiring at 10:30 p. m., the time is completely occupied with class attendance, work and study. Each person is required to give one hour per day to help care for the additional expense above that in ordinary C.P.S. units. Men are assigned to work in the dining hall, dormitory office, janitor work, care of the buildings and grounds, and other work which has increased due to the coming of the training school.

This program is very unique in that it is the first time in history that the different Mennonite groups have cooperated in such training. Members of the different groups learn to appreciate each other's views and usually, they feel, there is very little difference. In any case, we as Mennonites have found another way in which we can all cooperate, and we hope the doors can soon open, when we can begin such work.—Goshen, Indiana

ROBERT KREIDER WRITES

From Somewhere at Sea, Robert Kreider wrote June 29:

"All of us feel that these days at sea have been a great experience. It is as though we have stepped into a new world—the world of ships and seas and sailors.... It's a real joy to stand at the rail in the evening or to lounge in the mess hall—hearing the salty talk of sailors. They talk of running the Mediterranean blockade, or going in convoy on the dangerous Russian run, or dodging subs in the North Atlantic.

"We take our meals in the officer's mess salon. Rationing does not seem to have touched this ship's galley. Never have I seen such an array of excellent cuts of meats as served on this voyage...... The Officer's Pantry is open to us in the evening for free snacks—sandwiches, toast, cold meats, coffee, etc. If one is hungry after all this one can still purchase candy at the ship's canteen—called the 'slop chest.'

"We have all taken a morbid delight in all the submarine safety measures followed while at sea. The first day we were issued kapok life preservers equipped with knife (for cutting our way through wreckage), flash light and whistle. We were told to keep these life preservers near us at all times. The following day we were issued our "zoot suits." These are huge black rubber suits, worn over the life preservers which covers one from head to foot. They are designed to protect one from exposure in the water and to cold. . . ."

Bob writes much time is spent each day studying the Chinese language and reading about China. The highlight of each day is an early morning meditation period usually held at the prow of the ship.

When a fountain pen begins to flow too freely it is a sign it is getting empty. "There may be a moral in this for the clergy," says Rev. H. Cowly Carroll.

Report of The Third Saskatchewan Retreat, June 29-July 3, 1943

It was about mid-June when the invitation was extended to the young people of Saskatchewan to attend the third retreat at Rosthern Experimental Farm.

Accordingly we all arrived there at the appointed day, the 29th of June. Preparations had been made the previous day, so everything was ready to receive us. After the fellowship supper was partaken of, we all assembled in the auditorium which otherwise provides shelter for the implements of the farm.

Mr. J. C. Schmidt, president of the youth organization and director of the retreat extended the official welcome. A very interesting report, which was made clearer by the aid of lantern slide pictures, was given of the relief work in England by Mr. T. Klaassen, secretary of the Canadian Branch of the M.C.C.

Lodging was provided for in the Bible School and at the "Roost," of the Academy Farm.

For morning devotions we were divided into four groups, each under a separate leader. In the fresh open air we dwelt upon the Word of God to give us strength for the day.

We were especially privileged this year in receiving into the retreat staff, Missionary P. A. Penner, who, in four addresses, led us into the following topics: 1. The Great Commission. 2. The Open Door of India; 3. Beauty Out of Ashes; 4. What India Thinks of Christ.

This venerable man of God, whose life has truly been dedicated to the greatest cause, led us through his inspirational messages to ponder on the commission that God has assigned to his children. Yea, it touched the hearts to hear how the leprosy-infested, idolatrous India is calling, "Come over and help us!" How after this help, both physical and spiritual, has been ministered unto the poorest of the poor, there arises a new beauty out of ashes. How, though the degradation of the country, both spiritually, and morally, is in its lowest state, still many refuse to accept Christ as Savior.

Rev. J. J. Esau, whose acquaintance we were all able to make the previous year, brought near to our hearts salvation full and free in several messages. One of these, according to Eph. 1:1-14 told us definitely what God the Father, God the Son and God the Spirit have done and are still doing for us. In another message centered on Rev. 3:20 we heard the appeal of Christ to our souls. It was made clear to us how our intellect, our affection and our resolution are enriched and ennobled by giving the prestige in our souls over to Christ. We were shown by Gal. 2:20 how the life philosophy of Jesus was self-denial, how the world does not desire to read the Bible but it desires to read our lives.

We were then led deeper into the secret of what it means to be a Christian by Rev. Walter Dyck, Beatrice, Nebraska. Four cornerstones on which the spiritual house is built, were shown according to Matt. 5. 1. Sacredness of human life—you can't resist will by killing him who commits it.

2. Sacredness of the home—not only the deed, but the thought that provokes it is inexcusable. God will never honor and bless a union that is formed at the expense of dishonoring father and mother.

3. Sacredness of honesty, truth, and integrity—we are not permitted to swear because we are powerless to change anything. By using idle words we identify ourselves with the world.

4. Sacredness of the method of overcoming evil by doing good—A person who is doing more than is expected of him is bearing testimony. We must not look to human beings as examples, but unto Christ, the author and finisher of our faith, to lead us to the right maturity, to perfection.

Rev. David Toews spoke for a little while, then introduced Rev. J. M. Regier, president of the Home Mission Board, who later addressed the young people with II Cor. 3:2 as text, "ye are my epistles." It is the letter of life that the people read.

Rev. J. G. Rempel, principal of Rosthern Bible School, gave us a little glimpse into the surroundings and life of Menno Simons. It was stressed we do not believe in Menno Simons, but in God, in whom Menno's faith was also built.

Rev. Isaac Epp, Secretary of the Youth Committee of Saskatchewan, led us in singing. Choruses, and hymns were sung as well as a number of chorales taken from the Mennonite Hymnary. The services were enriched by special numbers—several trios, duets, quartets, and solos were brought.

Rev. Charles Dirks, Ridgedale, Saskatchewan sent an appealing message to our hearts through Mark 8:36-37.

Rev. I. I. Friesen presented to us an inspiring address on the theme "The Gospel."—Its history, its integrity, and its value to the Christian.

Mr. Henry Friesen, who says the least and does the most, was the business manager. He also helped the teachers of summer Bible school to find the right co-worker and the right field of service.

There were 178 young people that registered. Besides these there were every day a number of visitors. There was a fee of $1.50 for registration. This, combined with the fund realized from the collection, covered the expenses of the workers that followed the invitation to the retreat as well as the travelling expenses of the S. B. S. workers.

There were representatives from the whole province. From local districts, some from places not so near, and others coming from districts as far as Swift Current in the south or Meadow Lake and

SOMETHING ABOUT THE CHURCH

Matt. 16:13-19; 21-26

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "Hark, Hark, My Soul!" No. 261; "The Church's One Foundation," No. 273.
2. Reading of main topic, prayer, and leader's opening remarks.
3. Question box on Book of Acts.
4. Offering for foreign missions.

II. Leader's Introduction:

"The followers of the Way met weekly in the homes of believers. With evangelical zeal they daily added new converts to their number. They commissioned representatives to carry the good news of Christ to other parts of the Roman world. They caused the sacred literature to be written which became, in the course of time, the New Testament. In their gatherings they developed forms of worship which became a part of the rich heritage of Christendom. They evolved forms of government and administrative policies which continue to be used by the various denominations and communions today. Their methods of receiving converts and preparing them for membership in the churches should serve today as an example for us."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Birth of the Church,	Acts 2:1-4
2. Christ, the Corner-stone,	Mark 12:10
3. A new name,	Acts 11:26
4. The body of Christ,	I Cor. 12:27, 28
5. The church in action,	Acts 5:14-16

IV. For Discussion

1. In what cities did the early Christians live?
2. What work did the apostles do?
3. Discuss Paul's missionary journeys. (Have a good leader for the discussion.)

V. Facts for Study:

"The Antioch church, the first one to be called "Christians," was the first church to be composed of people who had been Jews, and also of those who had been converted directly from Gentile beliefs. The Great Commission is about to reach its third stage. The first had been "in Jerusalem"; the second, "in all Judea and Samaria," and now the third, "and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:18). Formerly ordained by fasting, prayer, and the laying on of hands, Paul and Barnabas were sent forth to take the story of Jesus to new fields. There were three missionary journeys, each time Paul and his companions returning to make a report. He preached in Europe as well as Asia, establishing churches as he went. The last journey was the trip to Rome as a prisoner. Acts of Apostles closes with him in Rome, having the privilege of receiving his friends, and making converts to Christ."

The last words of Acts, "none forbidding him" indicate the continuous progress from the early days of the church to the present time.

VI. Illustrations:

Everything for Christ

"Would you advise young Christians to do something for the Lord?" This was the question once put to Robert Chapman of Barnstaple. "No," was the prompt and rather astonishing reply of Chapman. But he added immediately, "I should advise them to do everything for the Lord." The advice was consistent with that given by Paul when he said, "Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

"Well, I never knew before that you were a Christian," said one man to another in a Michigan logging camp, "though we've been on the job together here for two years. When the sky pilot was here last winter and talked with me about my soul, I told him if so clean a chap as you could get along without religion I believed I could take a chance on it myself." The silent Christian felt that he had been disloyal to Christ.

OUR NEIGHBORS OF OTHER RACES

I. Purpose of This Meeting

The race problem is one of the greatest problems facing this country and the world today. In fact, it has been said that if there is another war, it may be a race war. Certainly Christ came bringing a message that would draw all peoples of the world together. As we have failed to live in a brotherly way with the negroes, the Japanese, the Italians, the "foreigners" of all races, so have we failed to follow Christ.

We need to acquaint ourselves with the facts about various races represented in this country, about their leaders, their accomplishments, the discrimination against them. And always we must seek to find the Christian attitude toward these problems.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

AUTHOR OF LIBERTY—OUR FATHER'S GOD,

Micah 6:8

"Be still, and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the nations; I will be exalted in the earth."

"The Lord of hosts is with us, The God of Jacob is our refuge."

"They that trust in the Lord are as Mount Zion, which cannot be moved but abideth forever."

Of late years there has been a tendency to think more seriously about what our country is for, than was formerly true. For Christians the call to be a good citizen is, of course, the first call of patriotism, a Christian patriot.

Man does not make his own liberty, rather it comes from God. Do you often thank God, that you were born in a free land with liberty of speech and worship?

We should remind ourselves daily that God is the "author of liberty" and unless He wills it for a nation, that nation cannot attain it.

Just since the declaration of this war, several unfortunate trends have been noticeable. First crime and delinquency among youth have risen 20 per cent. Secondly, race prejudice have become violent in places. Thirdly, an America First Attitude has led people to become blind and selfish in their patriotism, wanting luxuries for themselves, even when the rest of the world is starving. These people think nothing of hoarding or using the black markets.

As young people, let us keep busy so we will not get into trouble and lend a helping hand where needed. We can help the world by showing friendship to all races and nations. We can hate fascism and still refuse to hate people in our hearts.

What Others Say About Liberty

Abraham Lincoln, one of our great presidents, knew that liberty comes only as the gift of our Father, God. He once said, "What protects our liberty and independence? It is not our frowning battlements, our bristling seacoasts, our army and navy. These are not our reliance against tyranny. Our reliance is in the love of liberty which God has planted in our hearts. Our defense is the spirit which prized liberty as the heritage of all men in all lands everywhere."

A good American, the Jewish Rabbi Hillel Silver, wrote a beautiful poem about the making of America.

"God built him a continent of glory and filled it with treasures untold,
Then He called unto a thousand peoples and summoned the bravest among them.
They came from the ends of the earth, each bearing a gift and a hope.
The glow of adventure was in their eyes and in their hearts the glow of hope.
And out of the bounty of earth and the labor of men,
Out of the memory of ages and the hopes of the world,
God fashioned a people in love, blessed it with purpose sublime and called it America."

The Question Bee

1. Why are the most boisterous and hilarious patriots, not always the most sincere? 2. Why did George Washington believe in prayer at Valley Forge? 3. In what ways do our actions speak louder than words?

The Prayer List

1. That we may be worthy of the gift of liberty. 2. That our lives may reflect Christ in us, to those around us. 3. To live more unselfishly, and give of our things to those less fortunate and starving. 4. Pray daily for God to lead and man to be willing to follow.

CORRESPONDENCE

ALEXANDERWOHL CHURCH

Goessel, Kansas

We could hardly believe it when the message came to us Tuesday morning, July 20, that Rev. P. H. Unruh, the elder of our church, had died suddenly. We all knew that his health was failing and that something like this might happen, but no one expected it just now.

His last sermon to his congregation he preached on June 27, as a special message to the young people on the subject "Does the Youth of Today Have a Future?" He had the sermon ready for July 18 on the subject "What Must I do When I Get Into a Tight Place?" However the services were canceled because of the unusually heavy rain, and so he was not able to deliver it.

Funeral services for Rev. Unruh were held Friday July 23 at 2:30 p.m. at the Alexanderwohl Church. The order of the service was as follows:

Prayer and Scripture, Rev. C. C. Wedel; Song "Lasz mich gehn, Lasz mich gehn," choir; Obituary and Sermonette (German), Rev. C. C. Wedel. His text was from Hosea 6:1, "Come let us return unto the Lord; for he hath torn, and he will heal us; he hath smitten and he will bind us up." Song "The Haven of Rest," choir; Obituary and Sermonette (English), Rev. P. H. Richert.

He based his sermon on Hebrew 13:7, "Remember them which have the rule over you who have spoken unto you the word of God; whose faith follow, considering the end of their conversation." Song, "Be still my soul," choir. The close was made by Rev. P. C. Hiebert, the President of the Mennonite Central Committee. He based his remarks on Proverbs 10:7, "The memory of the just is blessed."

The service at the cemetery was conducted by Rev. J. M. Regier, Pastor of the Johannestal Church.

Rev. Unruh will be greatly missed by all of us in the church. May this deep sorrow which we are experiencing help to draw us closer to our dear Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

FEAR IN THE ORIENT

IV

We sometimes hear that fear is paralyzing. Perhaps if any of us would all of a sudden face a tiger in the open forest, we might experience such paralysis. But in the Orient it takes much less than a tiger to render people helpless out of sheer fear The readers will have heard about the cholera scourge in India during the hot season of 1942. Several months after it was all over I visited in one of the villages in which we have a good sized church. Brother Rupdhar, the local evangelist, told me about what had happened when the cholera pest was on them. One of their great needs had been water. A good well with good water was only a little over a quarter of a mile outside of the village. Yet no one could go there for fresh water. Just a bit over a mile away is a natural spring, flowing right out of the mountain side. However, no one even thought of going there for water. Right near the village was a pond, nearly dried out, and very muddy. There people went and drank. Even to this place no one would go alone; but several people together, leaning on each other. Brother Rupdhar said he had prayed very much, and as a result he had been strong enough to go from home to home to visit the sick and pray over the dead. He had gone to non-Christian homes too. But one morning he too was disabled. He had gone to the home of one of the village authorities with whom he had been on friendly basis. He enters the courtyard, but not a soul is in sight. He goes into the house, and there he sees the man lying on a cot; eyes wide open, mouth wide open, —dead, of cholera. "Then my strength failed me too," he said, Fear had just overwhelmed him too, and he could hardly walk home.

Reply To Inquiries

Announcements have been sent out stating that a school, calling itself the "Grace Bible Institute," is to be opened at Omaha, Nebraska. The following ministers, who are pastors of General Conference churches, are named in the circular as officers of this Institute's executive committee: President, C. H. Suckau, Berne, Indiana; Vice President, Albert Schultz, Butterfield, Minnesota; Secretary, Harold Burkholder, Quakertown, Pa; and Treasurer, August Ewert, Mountain Lake, Minnesota.

Biblical training that will unite us more closely on the basis of sound Christian doctrine is needed and should be encouraged.

Since our conference has elected boards and committees that are accountable to it for carrying on its work along the line of education, mission, relief, etc., deep concern has been expressed as to the object of said Institute, and inquiries have come to me as to what relation it may have to the officially established activities of our General Conference. I therefore felt impelled to make written inquiry.

While some questions I asked were not answered, may I state that the Grace Bible Institute has no official connection with our General Conference, or with any one of our six district conferences. I am informed that it considers itself an auxiliary to the Oklahoma Bible Academy. Furthermore, assurance has been given that the undertaking is not directed against any conference activities, that its aim is to endeavor to meet the need of such young people who may be contemplating attending a Bible school, and that it is the purpose conscientiously to support the Conference.

If this support should be lacking—however much one might deplore that fact—how could one take any favorable note of the undertaking or give it moral or financial support without becoming disloyal to our Church and Conference? We owe first allegiance to the church of our choice.

Therefore let us scrupulously avoid anything that might be divisive in doctrine or in deed. Let us cheerfully accept the charge which Christ Jesus has entrusted to our church. And may I kindly ask and urge every member and every one of our 180 churches to continue to give their prayerful and wholehearted support and devotion, first of all, to each and every one of the various authorized conference activities which our Lord and Savior, the sole Head of His Church, whose we are and whom we gladly serve, has definitely entrusted to our branch of the Mennonite Church. In these disturbed times that undivided support is needed more than ever before. Let us search our hearts to make sure we are "walking worthy of the vocation wherewith we are called . . .Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

To that end may all of our efforts have that Divine motivation which the Master can richly bless.

IN MEMORIAM

REV. JOHN C. GOERING was born at the village of Waldheim, in the province of Wolhynia, West Russia, on February 24, 1862. In 1874 he came to this country and with many relatives and friends settled in what is now the Moundridge, Kansas, community. With his widowed mother, one sister and one brother he experienced the hardships of pioneer life.

He received the holy rite of baptism on April 19, 1878, and became a member of the Hopefield Mennonite Church, Moundridge. In 1883 he transferred his membership to the First Mennonite Church of Christian, Moundridge, where he remained a member for the rest of his life.

On March 22, 1885, he was united in marriage to Maria Wedel. On March 7, 1907, death snatched his beloved wife from his side. This was as a staggering blow to him. After serving the place of mother as well as father to his large family for four years he married Magdalena Hirschler on April 16, 1911. But soon he was called upon to bear a wife to the grave for a second time when she passed away on January 28, 1920.

For many years the deceased farmed in the Moundridge, community, but he also lived in Moundridge many years and engaged in business. As a business man he was conscientious and upright. Very much of his service he rendered gratis, and many there were who sought his wise counsel. Various offices were entrusted unto him. He held the position of Mayor of Moundridge from 1892-1895, Commissioner of McPherson County 1899-1905, was appointed as Notary Public by Governor Leedy from 1898-1902, and in 1919 was appointed as a member of the Board of the McPherson County Hospital.

His most outstanding services he rendered as Pastor of the First Mennonite Church of Christian. To this pastorate he was elected on November 2, 1902, and ordained on December 7 of the same year. His ordination as Elder was on January 12, 1908. Conscientiously and sacrificially he served the church, and under his leadership it prospered. Upon his urgent request he was relieved of his duties as Elder of the church on Mar. 21, 1917, but he continued to serve occasionally as health and strength permitted. He was also active in the conference, serving as a member of the Home Mission Committee of the Western District Conference from 1914-1917.

The last years of his life he lived with his children. He passed away at the hospital in Upland, California, on June 20, 1943, at the age of eighty-one years. Five sons and four daughters survive him, namely Gerhard of Pretty Prairie, Kansas, Ernest of Arlington, Kansas, Daniel of Pamona, California, Elmer of Hutchinson, Kansas, Richard now oversea in the service of the government, Martha, (Mrs. Pete Wedel) of Hardin, Montana, Katharine (Mrs. August Ritthaler) of Perry, Oklahoma, Selma (Mrs. Ray Schowalter) of Wichita, Kansas, and Maria (Mrs. Otto Ritthaler) of Hutchinson, Kansas.

EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE NOTES

DEEP RUN—The Deep Run Mennonite church, near Bedminster, Pa., of which the Rev. Russell L. Mast is pastor, recently introduced a weekly church bulletin. The cover page has a nice picture of the church and the back page announces the stated church meetings. The order of service and news notes are found on the inside pages.

PHILADELPHIA, SECOND—The Rev. and Mrs. Walter J. Dyck of Mt. Lake, Minnesota, the newly elected pastor and wife arrived in Philadelphia about the middle of July. We wish them God's richest blessing in the Second Church and the Eastern District Conference.

PHILADELPHIA, FIRST—The Rev. J. J. Plenert, pastor, recently visited the C.P.S. Camps at Grottoes and Staunton, Va., in behalf of the Peace Committee of the Eastern District Conference. Cpl. James Plenert, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Plenert, recently spent a week with his parents. Mrs. Peter Kuyf, Jane, and Wilhelmina recently visited the Rev. and Mrs. Carl Landes at Meron, Indiana. Wilhelmina then continued travelling west to attend the Western District Conference Retreat. The church closed its very successful vacation Bible school on July 14.

EAST SWAMP—The Rev. Harold D. Burkholder, is Secretary of the Board of Directors of the newly organized Grace Bible Institute at Omaha, Nebraska. The Church held a special offering for this cause on Sunday July 11 that amounted to $615.45. Dr. C. H. Suckau, pastor of the Mennonite Church at Berne, Indiana, was the guest speaker at the Sixth Young People's Bible Conference held July 15 to 18. Dr. Suckau has been elected President of the Board of Directors of Grace Bible Institute.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION—The Annual Sunday School Convention of the Eastern District Conference will be held in the East Swamp Church Saturday, September 25 with afternoon and evening sessions. The convention theme will be "Guidance." Delegates and friends are requested to bring their own lunch.

ALLENTOWN, FIRST—The Christian Endeavor Society was in charge of the service at the Home for the Aged on Sunday afternoon, July 11. The meeting was in charge of Miss Jean Shelly, president of the Society. Instead of delivering a message the pastor, the Rev. Howard G. Nyce, conducted a Bible quiz which was greatly appreciated by the home guests. The pastor spent July 15 visiting the guests of the Home in their own rooms. Every month a certain pastor is assigned for this visitation program which is greatly appreciated by the home family. The pastor was recently elected a member of the Advisory Council of the newly formed Grace Bible Institute at Omaha, Nebraska.

FAIRFIELD—On July 11, the members and friends of the church gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Benner and family for a picnic lunch and an afternoon of fellowship. Gas rationing has made it difficult for the members to get together often. This is the reason that we had this meeting after church on Sunday. Most of the members and friends were present and enjoyed a day of fellowship together. On July 13, the women of the Fairfield Mennonite Church met in the kitchen of the Methodist Church in Ortanna to can cherries for the C.P.S. camps. A few women of the Bethel Mennonite Church of Mummasburg, assisted in the project. During the day they canned 111 two-quart jars of sour cherries. The cherries were donated by the Ortanna Canning Company. They plan to get together later in the summer to do some more canning for the camps. On Sunday morning, July 18, Brother C. L. Graber, at present assistant to the executive secretary of the National Board for Religious Objectors, visited our church. He spoke to the group on a number of the problems that the C.P.S. program is facing today and also of the hope for the future of the program.

THE CHURCH PAPER

J. S. Wood

It is the common practice of denominations, associations, and independent organizations to publish a paper known as their official organ. The purpose of such publication is to send forth their message through the printed page, as well as from the pulpit; to keep their constituency well informed as to the past accomplishments, the present activities, and the future of the church work, to promote unity and cooperation in carrying forth their programs, to interest others in their activities, and to encourage all in their problems and assist them in spiritual life and development.

It is surprising, sometimes shocking, to learn how many members and friends do not take the church paper. True, some few are not financially able to take it but with many such it is not the case as they can afford a daily (including the Sunday paper), magazines, journals, and others. Very few, if any, church papers are self-supporting as they do not usually carry worldly advertisements. Many of them have a deficit which must be met from some source. Therefore, the members and friends should subscribe for, and boost their church paper.

A prominent Presbyterian Church, on its weekly program printed the following reasons for taking the church paper:

1. A religious paper makes Christians intelligent.
2. It makes them more useful.
3. It secures better pay for the pastor.
4. It secures better teachers for the Sunday School.
5. It secures better attendance at the prayer meeting.
6. It leads to a better understanding of the Scriptures.
7. It increases interest in the spreading of the gospel.
It promotes unity of faith and practice in the church.
9. It exposes error.
10. It places weapons in the hands of all to defend the truth.
11. It affords a channel of communication between the brethren.
12. It gives the news from the Churches.
13. It awakens the talent of the church and makes it more useful.
14. It throws light upon the obscure questions of practical interest.
15. It is a great aid in the study of the Bible.
16. It cultivates the taste of reading.
17. It makes the children more intelligent.
18. It makes better children.
19. It creates interest in the salvation of others.
20. It gives the current news of general interest.

Boys in Camp Enjoy News From Home Church

The First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, sends the "Home Church Letter" to boys in camp. Below are some of the expressions of appreciation received from the boys:

1. "Received my copy of the 'Home Church Letter' the other day and sure want to thank you for it. It really means a lot to us to get the news from our home church."

2. "You will never know how much that letter means to us, who are away from home."

3. "Today I received the second 'Home Church Letter' and I read it over and over. These letters are very interesting and show what is going on in our Church while we are away, but more than that they show us that you are thinking of us and praying for us."

4. "Many, many times I'll be waiting for the next 'Home Church Letter.' "

5. "Received the news letter yesterday and enjoyed it immensely. I think it is a wonderful way to keep interest in the home church and strengthen old ties."

6. "I find so much spiritual comfort and advice."

7. "I received the letter from the church this evening and enjoyed it very much. It was a real blessing to me."

"Mennonite" Passes 4,000 Mark

On July 31 the subscription list to The Mennonite totalled 4,001. The subscription list has been growing steadily. A goodly number of churches have adopted the 100 per cent subscription plan. If you are interested in this plan for your church, write to Rev. J. M. Suderman, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas, for information.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By. J. Winfield Fretz

MENNONITES AND TOBACCO

In certain sections of Eastern United States where Mennonites are settled, tobacco is regularly grown on their farms as one of the main crops. Many claim that it is their chief source of cash income. The income thus derived is referred to as "mortgage money" and "mission money." Although Mennonite and Amish people grow tobacco a high percentage of them do not use it. Mennonites in other parts of the United States who discover this for the first time think it strangely inconsistent with the Mennonite way of life and cannot see any justification for raising the "ugly weed." Within the last decade or two, however, the church has more and more clearly taken a stand against the raising of tobacco. Each year additional farmers find themselves uneasy of conscience to grow such a useless and harmful crop when the world is crying for food and shelter. They are substituting other cash crops such as tomatoes, potatoes, or peas and finding them equally satisfactory. This is a hopeful sign and an encouraging trend in favor of a more thorough-going plane of pure Christian living.

An Unfortunate Counter Trend

While there are a great many Mennonites in the country who think it wrong for Christians to raise tobacco, they see no inconsistency in their practicing the useless, enslaving, and filthy habit of smoking and chewing it. Because of the large number of Mennonites who are now employed in shops, factories, and offices; attend schools and are in contact with people who use tobacco in various forms, there seem to be an increasing number of Mennonites who are allowing themselves to develop the profitless habit. The popularizing of smoking in this war by the tobacco interests will undoubtedly find many Mennonite young men returning from the service thoroughly victimized by the habit. From the "slushy" advertisments one reads today about sending the boys in service a carton of cigarettes we are supposed to believe that it is a thoughtful and heroic sacrificial act of mercy equal to bringing a cup of cold water or a piece of bread to a famished human being. We can be thankful that the Mennonite Central Committee, as the agent of the Mennonite churches, has consistently discouraged the use of tobacco in any form by the boys in the Civilian Public Service Camps.

A Personal Matter

Most of those people who use tobacco insist that it is a personal matter and therefore of no concern to others. Such reasoning is basically fallacious from the Christian standpoint because on such grounds all matters pertaining to morals, ethics, and religion would be personal. The Mennonite Church, however, is concerned with all personal matters that affect the whole body of believers. It considers itself a communion of saints, each member of the body living as pure and as holy a life as it is possible for him to live. Whatever hinders this goal is not a purely personal matter. Therefore, whether growing or consuming tobacco, the Mennonite Church will view with concern any conduct of its members that threatens its four century tradition of high thoughts and plain living. God has given us a pure and invigorating atmosphere; let us not defile it and make it stifling.

Why Use Our New Junior Quarterly

Use It Because—

1. It is unwise to try and travel the lines of one railroad system while relying for one's information upon the time table of another system.
2. Of the valuable knowledge that your family physician of long-standing is able to utilize for diagnosis and treatment in case of sickness.
3. Of the better fit that is generally secured when a suit is skillfully made to order.

The new Mennonite Junior Quarterly has been designed to meet the needs of our conference. —rw.

Come Ye Apart and Rest a While

God made this world for activity and rest. Night follows day. One out of seven days is a day of rest. Human beings become tired and then are refreshed as they rest. After rest one's feeling tone is generally better, one's mind works more clearly, and one's body is stronger.

Yet like a little child that rebels against going to sleep, many adults seek to engage in prolonged feverish activity as though the need for rest could be evaded. Pressing and exciting conditions drive them into this attitude. We are living in a restless world.

However, as Christians we dare not be of this world. As Christians we can have a peace that passeth understanding. Perhaps, this wonderful peace cannot be entirely separated from the need for rest. Born-again human beings need rest for the refreshing of body, mind, and soul after wilting activity.

God desires to restore the freshness of life to us through rest. We need to give Him this opportunity. God's way is right. If we ignore it, then we sin and suffer. "Come ye . . . apart . . . and rest a while."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

MARTHA BURKHALTER REPORTS

Janjgir C. P. India
April 29, 1943

Dear Brethren of the Board of Foreign Missions,

Greetings with Hebrews 2:11. I wish to thank you very much for your Christmas letter, which I received on January 30. We were all glad to get information about our missionaries in China, in the Philippines and in the Home-land. It is true, we are all one great family and God is the Father of us all. If one member of this Family of missionaries and members of the Mission Board suffers we all suffer, and if one is blessed, we are all blessed in spirit.

We were all very happy to get your last air-mail letter, in which you state your intention of sending two single missionaries out to India as soon as possible. We hope and pray that the way will be open for them to come soon. So far we have not heard of many missionaries being able to come back since the war has started. We hear of many missionaries of different Missions who are eager to come back. We have heard of only one or two Bishops who have been able to fly here by airplane.

I do not intend to come home this year, if the Lord continues to give me health and strength, as He has done throughout this whole term. I wish to praise His name. It is now seven years and nearly four months since I arrived in India the last time. My furlough was due last year, and I intended to come home. I had all my boxes packed and the Janjgir church had already given me a farewell. But the Lord cancelled my plans. The past year was a blessed one in many ways and I am looking forward to another year of rich blessings in His Vineyard.

Throughout this whole term I have been the principal (or supervisor) of the Janjgir Bible Training School, which Rev. Unruh started in 1930. The School has grown very much. We have had, at different times, students from eight different Missions. Since the last two years the Methodists have been sending us students also, in spite of the fact that they have their own Theological Schools. Our aim is not to train preachers for city churches, but to train village pastors, evangelists, and lay leaders. Over 50 have received diplomas or certificates in the last ten years. Including these, 147 have been enrolled in all. Some have stayed only one year. But all except a very few who have been here, are now pastors, evangelists, Bible-women, and lay leaders. A few who have been here, have been sent on to high schools to learn English, and to prepare for more responsible positions.

We are still having our classes in the Janjgir church building and on the veranda of my bungalow. We need a new Bible school building. The Missionary Workers' Conference has passed a resolution that I will be permitted to solicit funds for such a building when I go home on furlough. At present it is not advisable to build, because nearly all materials have tripled in price, and some materials it is absolutely impossible to get, such as cement. Nails and screws are almost worth their weight in silver. We count them as carefully as pennies. But we hope the war will end some day and then we can go ahead with our plans. I feel that the Bible School is the most important institution in our Mission at present, especially since we need so many trained leaders in the mass-movement areas.

During our touring season with the Bible students in January and February, we found many eager listeners. Rev. and Mrs. Moyer and Rev. Waltner helped to supervise the five camps. Rev. Waltner took some moving pictures of camp life. In nearly every camp we had true seekers after salvation. However on account of the severe persecution of any one who wished to become a Christian by the Brahmins and village head-men, we were not able to baptize anyone while our camps were there. Really the Brahmins in the Janjgir area seem more determined than ever to hinder our work of spreading the Gospel. However, some baptisms have been given since. The seekers sometimes follow us from camp to camp or come to Janjgir to be baptized.

After the touring season I went to Jagdalpur, a Methodist Mission station, 200 miles southwest from here, to take part in an Institute for village leaders. Over 100 leaders, who have charge of the shepherding of 4000 Christians in dense jungle areas, were present. The Institute was held in a jungle on the shore of a small lake. The Lord was with us as He was present with the disciples on the Sea of Galilee, and said just as definitely to all of us, "Feed my sheep, Feed my lambs."

After this Institute I came back to Janjgir and found that all our evangelists, Bible School teachers and Bible women had gone to a Hindu Mela, where 20,000 Hindoos gather yearly to bathe in a sacred spot of the Hasdo River, and where they offer 20,000 coconuts to idols of wood and stone, with the hope of getting some blessings for their fields and for their families. I decided to go too, and the next day I made the trip of seven miles in our two-wheeled ox-cart over terribly dusty and stony roads. As I came near the river, I could see a continual stream of pilgrims coming and going. Some of these had walked for eight days to come and attend this Hindoo festival. Our ox-carts stopped at the edge of a 40-acre mango grove. Here our Christians had pitched their tents.

From this slightly elevated position one could see a mass of humanity moving among the trees and in the open spaces. They were all going to or returning from the river, the temples, or the booths of merchandise. Near the temples sat a row of "holy sadhus" posing as gods and receiving gifts from rich and poor alike. They are in fact the unholiest people in all India, but the masses of pilgrims throw their coins before them and worship them.

I found Mrs. Moyer and our evangelists and Bible women carrying on a campaign of selling books, tracts and Bible portions to the pilgrims. They had been at it for several days. They were trying to see who could sell the most. Mrs. Moyer was offering a prize to the one who had sold the most at the end of the week. They had already sold 800 books and tracts and Gospel portions! And this in a year of famine and high prices. A group of workers would go out and sing a song to attract the attention of the people. Then the books were held up and displayed and the contents described. Most of the books were Gospel portions. But there were also hymn books, and stories of famous Indians who had become Christians, and stories of poor unknown villagers who had accepted Christ and through whom mass movements had been started. There were tracts in which the way of salvation was made plain to any who could read. These were given away free with other books which were sold. Again and again our men and women went back to Mrs. Moyer's tent to get new supplies when all their books had been sold. Can you see the hands of India stretched out reaching for the Bread of Life?

But here was opposition too. A merchant in a booth selling his wares was given a tract to read. He looked at it and when he had read a few lines he said angrily, "Jesus Christ! I will never read this nor will my children read it," and with great vehemence he tore it into shreds, and said to some one near by, "Burn this up!" One of our evangelists came back very sad to relate this story.

But our sadness at such opposition was turned into joy when one day a fair-faced young man with a head of black curly hair, and bright eyes came to the evening devotions at Mrs. Moyer's tent and asked for a New Testament. He wore the saffron robe of a sadhu and said that he had been wandering from place to place in search of salvation. Evening after evening he came, and two weeks later he was baptized at Janjgir. Now he is going about preaching salvation through Jesus Christ.

With greetings
Martha Burkhalter

Do any of you get the Evangelical Christian? Read the article on page 475 of the December 1942 issue. It tells of the experiences of Mrs. R. E. Bell and her two children who had to live 20 days on a raft 8x10 after their ship was sunk by a U-Boat. Mrs. Bell was a missionary of the Christian and Missionary Alliance on the Ivory Coast in Africa. If the Lord gives me health and strength, I would rather stay in India till the war stops, rather than to go through an experience like that. A large group of India missionaries have lately been stranded in Develan, South Africa.

FIRST QUARTERLY REPORT

United Mennonite Church, Vancouver, B. C.
6460 St. George Street

The New Year started out with a lot of work outside the work in Vancouver. I had to make a number of trips to the outlaying churches in British Columbia. In addition to preaching the Word many other problems had to be considered; also Infant Consecration, Communion Services had to be conducted and Bible Conferences were conducted.

On March 21 the Bible School teacher and Evangelist, Jacob Dieterich Siemens, was ordained as Minister of the Gospel, in Coghlan.

Another trip was made to attend our Conference when matters concerning our Non-resistance position were considered, and also the work of the Mennonite Relief work in England was reviewed.

These many tasks afford a sense of joy and satisfaction since I can see that each instance is an open door of service in our field. On some Sundays the task is a bit heavy to travel 50 or more miles into the country for some Worship Service and possibly an afternoon meeting and then to be back in the city ready and fresh for the evening worship.

The attendance at our regular worship services is such as to give encouragement and the evident hunger for God's Word, makes the work a delight. On Thursdays I give Catechism instruction. Some of the girls in the Home are also attending these classes, while the others attend choir rehearsals. The inquiries for girls is constantly larger than the supply. There are not quite as many girls working in the city as in past years and those that are here are usually kept by their former employers. The girls make many articles that can be used in Mission work, also do they make comforters. These are sold and this year the money realized in this way goes to the Coghlan Bible School.

The money for the Relief Work in England is coming in quite well. The monthly offerings from the B. C. Churches in this Quarter have already reached beyond the $300.00 mark.

The conscientious objector situation precipitates many questions, but so far we have been able to adjust them in a satisfactory manner with the Provincial Board. The Lord has been gracious to us so far.

I wish to close with a greeting to all friends and the Board,

In Love,
E. and J. B. Wiens

Cooking School Closes

On Wednesday evening, July 21st, appropriate exercises were held at C.P.S. Camp No. 4, Grottoes, Virginia to mark the closing of a Cooking School which has been in progress there for the last three months.

Twenty-one assignees were permitted to attend this school, but two did not complete all of the prescribed work due to special assignments elsewhere. A Certificate of Recognition was awarded to all of those who completed the prescribed work. This Certificate specifies the particular courses completed as well as the Special Project which was undertaken by each of the students.

Mary Emma Showalter, dietician at the Grottoes Camp, was in charge of the school. She was capably assisted by Misses Ava Rohrer, instructor in Home Economics at Eastern Mennonite School and Edna Ramseyer, instructor in the same field of Bluffton College.

A number of special speakers visited the School, most of whom were able to present the current needs for relief-feeding in war stricken areas.

Most of the boys who received training in the School will return to the camps from which they came. We anticipate very worthwhile service in our camp kitchens as a result of this successful endeavor.

Camp Briefs

The Smoke-Jumper's Project at Seeley Lake, Montana has reported its first casualties. One broken leg, and a number of sprains and bruises were included in the results of the first jumps. The Project, however, remains very popular with all those participating in it.

Miss Alida Schrag, Matron-Nurse at Camp Denison has left C.P.S. to enter missionary work in India.

Grant M. Stoltzfus, formerly of the Publicity and Peace Section of the Mennonite Central Committee Headquarters, reported to C.P.S. Camp No. 24, Hagerstown, Maryland, on July 26. Brother Stoltzfus' work at the Akron office is, for the present, being cared for by other members of the staff.

Brethren Eli Bontreger, Shipshewana, Indiana, and Ira Nissley, Kalona, Iowa, Old Order Amish Bishops have been in and out of Akron Headquarters during the past two weeks in connection with their visiting of Amish men in eastern C.P.S. camps and units. Their visitation schedule calls for at least two visits yearly to each of their men in C.P.S.—the total number from the M.C.C. group now being 295.

Puerto Rico's Need

Correspondence from Justus Holsinger in Puerto Rico indicates that conditions of poverty and abjection arrest the attention of the newcomer. The natives are unbelievably poor and ignorant. Most marked of all, Holsinger relates, is the spiritual destitution.

Goshen Relief Training Unit

The training course at Goshen College for prospective relief workers will complete its work by mid-August. Plans are being undertaken to provide opportunities for the bulk of the participants to transfer to a project in which their value to relief effort will be further enhanced by both additional training and experience. Some of these men have elected to return to their former assignments, others will have opportunity to get into a beneficial hospital program. Of the remainder, a few will likely serve in Puerto Rico. While the group without earlier C.P.S. experience will move to one of the camps where it will be possible to maintain the group interests.

P. C. Hiebert and H. A. Fast are giving assistance in the closing weeks of the School.

Dairy Testers

Three more dairy testers have been added to the number in Michigan. This brings the total in that state to sixteen. Approval has been given for the placement of five testers in Iowa.

PEACE SECTION NOTES

Draft of Fathers

We have received the following note out of Washington: "Selective Service has announced that fathers will not be drafted at least until October.... To Selective Service a father is a man living with and supporting a child or children born before September 15, 1942. Quotas are expected to be filled in the meantime with 50,000 of the 90,000 youths turning 18 each month, by those already in line for induction, and by 'recoveries' from the 8,976,000 Class IV-F. Current refusal rate of those physically unqualified still runs around 40 per cent.

Arnold Epp Goes to Burrton Church

Brother Arnold Epp, who was ordained to the ministry by the Bethesda Mennonite Church, Henderson, Nebraska, on August 8, has accepted a call to serve the Mennonite Church at Burrton, Kansas. This Church was formerly served by Brother J. J. Regier and previous to his term of service by Walter H. Dyck.

Our Post-War Youth Problem

The problem of our drafted youth—will they be a source of strength for our church when they come back, or will they be estranged? What is our responsibility?

The answer to this question depends chiefly on three things, namely: (1) in what spirit our draftees leave their home churches; (2) and what influence camp life will have had on them; and (3), how they will be received, when they come back.

I

Our draftees when they leave for camp are not all alike. We here at home know this, and when they come to camp it does not take long before those who live with them in the camp also know it. This is seen from articles that appear in the camp papers like the one in a recent issue of the paper from Downey, Idaho, under the heading "Is C.P.S. Beneficial?"

I know the writer as a very conscientious young man, and he undoubtedly expresses his honest opinion about two things: (1) about the difference in the home training with which the draftees come to camp; and (2) about the effect which C.P.S. camp life has upon them. On the last point he is rather hopeful without being dogmatic. This agrees with practically all letters that come home from the C.P.S. camps. Most of these letters are rather optimistic. They praise the educational and devotional program in the camps, and mention especially the mid-week prayer meetings as a blessing. Most of these men come from churches that cannot very well have such mid-week prayer meetings; and when one hears the testimonies of our young men about the blessings they receive from them in camp one wishes that we at home could have more of it. And these testimonies are already beginning to stir up prayer life at home even before these young men come home. Why should they not do the same, and even more, when they themselves come home? Perhaps not so much by introducing the same prayer meeting in the home churches, but rather by injecting the prayer spirit into the other regular meetings which we have such as C.E. meetings, Bible study classes, etc.

Then the opportunity in these camps to get something of our Mennonite history, which they should have gotten in our schools at home but did not get, should prove helpful to appreciate our heritage. Not only our history but also our doctrine is taught in camp of which many of our young men in camp do not know enough when they leave home. Most of you, perhaps, have seen the titles of the six booklets written especially for our campees. But they are also being used by special study classes in the home churches which already is a blessing for us here at home. Their general title is, "Mennonites and Their Heritage." It is an excellent set of booklets. Only one of them contains a chapter that is not quite scriptural.

The titles are as follows: Mennonite Origin in Europe, Mennonites in America, Our Mennonite Heritage, Our Mission as a Church of Christ, Christian Relationships to State and Community, Life and Service in the Kingdom of God.

Besides these there are many other studies in the educational program of our camps. I counted some fifty of them, such as Red Cross First Aid, German, Spanish, Typing, and other high school studies. Also some ten handicrafts are taught, such as rug making. This keeps the boys busy even after their regular working hours in soil conservation, forestry, reconstruction, etc.

Then there is the detached service in hospitals, dairies, experiment stations, etc. The campees have also a library and learn to read good literature, including our church papers; they can get a taste for such reading, besides Bible reading. Our church papers are being read more in camp than at home. One of the weakest spots in our home church life is that the church papers are not read enough by the young people. The big dailies and certain magazines take nearly all their reading time at home if they read at all. This is a great loss to spiritual life and thinking.

So far we have described only peace camp life. But what about war camp life? Perhaps one third of our draftees are in war camps. What influence that will have on them and on us at home largely remains to be seen. But some indications we have already from the letters that come home from the camps. Some are already confessing the mistake they have made.

Who is to blame for these mistakes? The young men, his parents, pastors or teachers? This is a very important question when it comes to the question of discipline. What about those who have taken the gun voluntarily? Will their home churches receive them back as 100 per cent Mennonites just like the C. O.'s? Many of them will very likely say when they come home, as some did after the last war, "Never again, even if they shoot me." They will have a good influence on the church life at home. Others may weaken our C.O. position in the churches.

II

That brings us to the second part of our subject, namely the responsibility in this whole matter, especially when there has been a lack of peace teaching at home. How can a home church discipline its members, who have conscientiously served in the army either as combatants or non-combatants because of lack of instruction and training? Who should be disciplined for misguided consciences? Or should there be no discipline? For those who voluntarily took up arms some discipline appears necessary, or else the acceptance of our peace confession at baptism does not mean much. Of course, if a change of conviction has taken place the churches must respect the conscience, but they cannot respect the denial of their accepted confession. Some churches would want to wait with discipline until further instruction has been given. But if even that fails to bring about repentance, a church letter to some church that believes in war would seem to be the best discipline if we may call it so. Or the right to vote and hold office should be taken away. That would respect the conscience without respecting its mistake. The greatest responsibility on the part of the churches will be in regard to the following four points:

(1) Respect conscience, (2) Correct a misguided conscience, (3) Sharpen a dull conscience, and (4) Honor the steadfast conscience of the C.O's, and support them.

Never in all history was conscience put so much on its metal as it is today, unless it be before the flood, when there were no laws and governments, but only the Holy Spirit speaking to conscience. When conscience broke down the flood had to come. But conscience held out 1,700 years without government which is a marvel as compared with conscience today. Nothing is more needed in the world today, even among Christians than an awakening of conscience consciousness. Even a misguided conscience is better than a dull or a dead one. If our C.O. position as a church would do nothing more than make the world conscience conscious, we would have fulfilled a great mission. Only three countries today respect conscience officially enough to have exemption laws for the C.O.'s, namely; United States, Canada, and England—including Australia, I think. That shows how terribly low the world stands on the conscience problem—so low that dooms-day cannot be far away, unless a revival comes. Jesus compares the last days with Noah's days.

So the chief problem of our responsibility will be how best to deal with conscience. There will be no end of the need of teaching and praying.

In conclusion, it may be well to remind ourselves that we must respect also those of our non-Mennonite neighbors who are for an all out war, because they have been trained so. We must not call them murderers unless they hate their brothers If they call us slackers we must not be too much afraid to give them the reasons for our stand. In many cases this will take away the bitterness and make both them and us feel better.

Mennonite Bible Academy North Newton, Kansas

At a recent meeting it was decided to offer a full four-year high school course in our Mennonite Bible Academy instead of only a two-year course as announced previously. It has been felt by parents that their children should have an opportunity to get their Bible training in connection with their high school courses as early as possible. In order to meet this demand plans are in preparation to offer in our Mennonite Bible Academy a fully accredited high school course. We are happy to make known that well qualified teachers have promised to put their talents into this venture. The names of the teaching staff will be announced later.

The school will open its doors, if the Lord permits, Friday, September 3, 1943.

Please direct all correspondence to the Mennonite Bible Academy, A. Warkentin, North Newton, Kansas.

The spiritual life of our fathers, as of all true Christians, was in essence the fruit of a personal relationship with God. The essence of Christianity will become ours in no other way than by sustaining the same personal relationship with Christ as they did. May we, like them, follow Christ in unreserved loyalty and consecration to His service.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Carl O. Basinger, Chicago, Illinois

AUGUST 15—"Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation." Mark 13:33.

The consciousness of the divine presence as an immanent and precious reality cannot be secured without daily practice in prayer and meditation. The saints have not entered into the mystic sense of the ever-present God without the cultivation of habitual prayerfulness. This is a priceless privilege leading to the innermost sanctuary of spiritual life. Said Thomas a'Kempis, "Pray without ceasing—do it many times a day. In the morning fix thy good purposes; and at eventide examine thy ways, how thou hast behaved thyself this day in word, deed, and thought; for in these perhaps thou has oftentimes offended both God and thy neighbor, and knew it not."

AUGUST 16—"But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father." Mark 13:32.

Jesus never concerned himself with speculations of the future. It is interesting to compare the sobriety of Jesus in regard to this matter with the other religious leaders of his time. The rabbis and apocalyptists never hesitated to describe what will happen in the world to come, and would even go so far as to predict the time when it would occur. Jesus is content to say "of these things no man knoweth, not even the Son, only the Father." One thing, however, is certain: the future will be morally conditioned. What a man has made of himself in this life will condition his next life.

AUGUST 17—"Because I live ye shall live also." John 14:19.

The universe is not a hap-hazard affair of aimless atoms, but is organized around spiritual purposes; and personality, far from being a chance inadvertence, is the fullest and completest way of being alive and the most adequate symbol we have of the nature of God. In Eckerman's Conversation With Goethe, Goethe declares, "Our spirit is a being of a nature quite indestructable and its activity continues from eternity to eternity. It is like the sun, which seems to set only to our earthly eye, but which in reality, never sets, but shines on unceasingly."

AUGUST 18—"If ye love me, keep my commandments." John 14:15.

Sometimes one feels that too much emphasis has been placed on the so-called "social gospel" in recent years. Jesus fully admits that man should rebel against social tyranny. But he demands that in the inmost recesses of one's heart one be responsible to God. Do God's will. This applies to personal as well as to social life. The part of one's life which is most free demands the most urgent obedience to God.

One can show his sincerity by doing the will of God. Paul clinches the point when he says, "No man liveth unto himself; no man dieth unto himself; both are unto the Lord. "Living for God is the true Christian position.

AUGUST 19—"Swear not at all." Matt. 5:34.

This passage has always been of interest to Mennonites because of their traditional repugnance toward the taking of oaths. In the time of Christ no one accepted a statement unless accompained by an oath. The strongest oath was a direct appeal to God, or to swear by your "father's beard," or by your "own head." An individual was believed in proportion to the strength of his oath. Jesus prohibits oaths altogether. It is not that God's name is being used vainly. The purpose of an oath was to call in God to vouch for the truth of a statement. This, according to Jesus, was presumptuous. One might be speaking the truth as far as he knew, and yet might be calling in God to witness a falsehood. forging God's signature, figuratively speaking. Thus, Jesus prohibited oaths entirely.

AUGUST 20—"For thy work shalt thou be rewarded, saith the Lord." Jer. 31:16.

Work in itself has little to do with religion. Too often it turns people into machines and distracts them from higher purposes of life. Many people work to keep themselves from thinking or distressing worry. Jesus does not attach value to work for its own sake. He thinks of the great meaning of life as quite apart from general value of life. For the most part he thinks of work desparagingly. To work beyond the supplying of mere needs is actuation of ambition and the love of gain. Work is important in that it is a discipline to fidelity.

AUGUST 21—"But I say unto you, love your enemies." Matt. 5:44.

It is easy to love those who love you. There is no reward to be found in that. The genuine trial comes when we have to deal with someone who has offended us. Jesus commanded that we love our enemies. Someone has said that to love our enemies doesn't mean that we should really "like them." Confucious was once asked, "Should we be kind to our enemies?" Confucious pondered on that question a long time and then answered, "No. You must be kind to your friends, but to your enemies be just." Christian love demands that we be kind to our enemies.

How It Feels to Be a C.P.S. Smoke-Jumper

Below are given quotations from men in C.P.S. who use parachutes to get to fires in places not easily accessible.

"After days of training on the tower and ropes, and physical toughening on the obstacle course, the time came for actual jumping to begin. The "Tin Goose" droned in from Missoula, banked sharply over the Ranger Station as we were suiting up, sat down on the tiny field between snow covered peaks at the head of the lake. Since then the parachutes have blossomed out in clusters of three, and each form swinging underneath the silk has undergone an experience unlike anything he ever had before."

"A test chute is dropped and the wind drift determined; then we circle the target again, making allowances for the wind. We hook our static line to the cable and jump. . .It takes from one and one-half to three minutes to come down

. . .When you leave the plane, you don't get any feeling of falling; it's more of a suspended feeling; you can't see the earth coming up till the last 100 feet or so . . .I came in with the wind, which gave me an approximate forward speed of 15 miles per hour. I lit on my feet and rolled forward on my face and mask; then ploughed the dirt with the mask. When I got up and shook the dirt off, I was ready to try it again. . ."

"Fumbling for the step was hardly an encouraging start, but departure was so quick that I did not reflect upon it. A half conscious thought about the distance to the ground was all I had time for when the chute gave me an easy jolt as it opened. I relaxed and found it was marvelous to hang there and look about. Yet in an all too short a time I became aware of the proximity of the ground. I steeled myself for the landing shock, and was surprised by an easy bounce. My disappointment was that it did not last longer."

"As you step to the door with static line hooked, your heart gives a heavy beat, and a grand feeling envelopes you as you take your place.". . .Then the man in front of you jumps, and it is your turn. The feeling is indescribable. If you stop to think you may turn back. You must jump. . .catch your breath as the slip stream hits you, then brace yourself for the shock you feel sure is coming. . .I looked out below and my power to jump almost left me, yet somehow I was able to complete the jump. . .Too late now; we're over the spot; I'll be out in a minute—and I was—out like a light! a little rag doll being swung around in space on the end of a string. . . Can this really be me?. . .Nice and quiet up here. The ground's moving up—I'm going to hit—ugh! Oh, boy! I'm OK! If ma could only see me now. . . .My third jump; A little more apprehensive this time. . .Perhaps it's because I'm beginning to realize what I am really doing—diving out of a plane at 2000 feet with only a bag full of silk and a few small cords."

"After challenges from various individuals, I suppose I would have stepped out without a chute. . . The thrill of floating through space cannot be expressed in words, but must be tried for oneself. My only regret on landing was that I couldn't step right in the plane and do it all over again."

Western District C. E. Convention

Despite gas and rubber rationing, young people of the Western District turned out for the fifty-first annual C. E. Convention on July 31 and August 1. Twenty-three societies were represented by delegates at the business session Saturday evening. William Juhnke, presided at the meeting. Various committees reported on their work during the year. The treasurer's report was encouraging; the total income for the convention year climbed above the $1,800 mark—approximately $750 more than last year's income. Almost $1000 of this came from local societies for specific district projects. Another interesting part of the business session was the vote to amend the convention constitution to the effect that the secretary-treasurer be eligible for re-election for successive terms. The amendment was adopted by a majority vote. This was the year to elect a vice-president and secretary-treasurer for the convention. Alvin L. Reimer of Beatrice, Nebraska, was elected vice-president, and Helen Hiebert Mueller was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Two new members were elected to the Retreat Committee: Miss Mary Becker of Newton, Kansas, and Rev. Herbert Miller of Deer Creek, Oklahoma. Both will serve a two-year term. The report of the resolutions committee was adopted. (It will appear in a later issue.)

The convention program on Sunday was centered around "Our Mennonite Heritage." Rev. J. M. Regier, pastor of the Johannestal Church, Hillsboro, spoke on "Our Mennonite Heritage of Worship," stressing the fact that many homes have become lax in their maintenance of the family altar and in church attendance. He suggested that churches take a census of their members to discover where the group as a whole stands regarding these points. "Our Mennonite Heritage in Education" was discussed by Rev. Lester Hostetler, pastor of the Bethel College Church. He mentioned many early Mennonite leaders, founders of the church, who were university-trained men, and said that there is nothing in the Mennonite faith which is inconsistent with education. He also quoted statistics, showing that young people who attend schools of their own denomination will be more likely to retain their affiliation with their own church than if they attend state schools or schools of other denominations.

Dr. A. Warkentin, Dr. Melvin Gingerich, and Rev. Walter Gering spoke on various Mennonite groups who have migrated from Europe to America: Russian Mennonites, Prussian Mennonites, and Swiss Mennonites, respectively. All three discussions were interesting and full of information.

Helen Hiebert Mueller Re-elected Secretary-Treasurer

The Junior C. E. of the Bethel College Church gave a short program during the afternoon. After the mass meeting adjourned, there was a meeting of Junior C. E. Sponsors; Mrs. T. A. van der Smissen of Buhler spoke to the leaders, giving them many helpful suggestions for their work with children.

At the Sunday evening program Orlo Kaufman spoke on "Our Mennonite Heritage—What of its Future." Helen Hiebert Mueller announced the winners of the true story contest sponsored by the C. E.

"From the Nile to Mount Nebo"

A Character Sketch of Moses

Approximately 3,500 years ago there floated among the reeds of the Nile, a little ark made of bulrushes. In it lay a little baby boy, good to look upon. He was a descendant of the house of Levi and thus had a heritage that predicted nobility and strength of character.

As the little ark rocks to and fro upon the muddy waters of the Nile, there descends from the courtyard of King Pharaoh's palace, his daughter Bithia, the princess. She comes to the Nile to bathe. In a little while the child in the ark is adopted into the royal family and is christened Moses.

But the story of Moses, as the Levite and Israelite does not end here. Because of the strategy of Moses' sister, Miriam, Jochebed, the mother of Moses, is asked to rear Moses through his early infancy and boyhood. Because of the strategy of Miriam, Moses is saved from becoming a haughty, cruel member of the Egyptian court, and Israel is saved a leader.

Playing at his mother's feet, Moses absorbed a loyalty to the God of the Israelitish nation, and a loyalty to the chosen people. This loyalty, the loyalty which he did not give up in royal palace, or in the blazing desert, kept Moses from being merely one of the millions of specks that gray the wall of history, but rather, made him a star of all ages.

A second character trait lovingly instilled by his mother was a combination of a true sense of justice and sympathy for the oppressed. Perhaps on quiet days when there was no shifting sand, the little boy, Moses, adventurously accompanied his mother to the brick-yards where under the stinging glare of an Egyptian sun and under the torturous floggings of Egyptian taskmasters the Israelitish slaves were making bricks. Perhaps, these dirty, coarse people were at first repulsive to the dainty little boy. Perhaps, he at first had no concepts of fear or pain. Slowly there developed in him a sense of sympathy, a sense of justice, as he saw bleeding, grimy backs, heard the brutish yells, and saw the scowls of the taskmasters, as his mother told him that even if these people were dirty and did not act nice, they really were nice people if they would only be treated right. Maybe as Moses skipped back towards his home he remembered all that his mother had told him that these people had once been free, prosperous, and had loved the God that he had been taught to love. From her words that they should again be a free, god-loving people he probably constructed a dream in which he as a big man would free these slaves from their drudgery and make them respectable people again.

Soon Jochebed, with an aching heart, had to send her wellreared little son to the mighty Pharaoh's palace. Then Bithia, the princess, decided that he must start to school. Very likely he had the very best teachers. Certainly his foster mother would see to that.

When Moses finally comes out of the "Yale of Egypt" he has a thorough Egyptian education. He enters the army of Pharaoh. In short, he seems to be a brilliant Egyptian success. But there were certain qualities in Moses that were spoil-proof in face of the heathen environment that he had and the heathen education that he had received. Soon these qualities were to blossom and the true Moses was to emerge.

On the burning Egyptian sands a taskmaster is flogging an Israelitish slave. Moses sees it. His anger kindles. Injustice? Yes, and it inflicted on an already oppressed man. A blow. A dead Egyptian, a disconcerted, disturbed Moses. Things are happening fast to this youth adopted into the royal family. Accused of murder, when he intervenes between two quarreling Israelites, he flees into the land of Midian, breaking all royal bonds, leaving position, honor, and the land of birth. Yet he was only ringing true. He was now on the road that was to send his name echoing and reechoing through the corridors of Israelitish history.

Newly arrived in Midian, just out of a broil of trouble

he shows his chivalrous, sympathetic, and just nature by aiding the daughters of Jethro. The dormant qualities of Moses had not yet been fully awakened. Forty years ensued in which God molded and shaped the simple, desert shepherd.

The day of his career arrives. God talks. Moses quails. A weak character?—No, an immense task. The task of making a unified nation of God-fearing and following people out of thousands of idolatrous, weakened, dulled slaves, who hungered after the fleshpots of Egypt and were content to perish in their misery.

With Paraoh's permission to leave, Moses starts on the long wearisome journey with the straggling thousands, who know not whom to trust and know little of where they are going. Only a man with iron courage, an indomitable will, unflinching faith in God, and with physical and mental powers superb was fitted for such a task.

Before them is the Red sea, on two sides high mountains; on the open side comes the fickle Pharaoh with murderous soldiers and war chariots. The people quail, murmer, reproach Moses and know not what to do. Moses in the strength of God stands firmly, quietly, as though watching sheep in far-off Midian. God reveals his plan. Moses talks to the people. A terrific wind blows back the waters of the Red Sea. In the morning, the Israelites are safe, and in the gray dawn one might have seen Egyptian cloaks floating upon the turbulent sea. Moses with his faith in God had prevented a panic and had led the way through a precarious situation.

The long wearisome journey continues. Israel need not worry; it has an able leader. Disease, immorality, idolatry, lack of unity are abolished or lessened when the lawgiver, the prophet, reveals to the people God's laws. Out of a disorganized, trashy, rabble of slaves, who had few higher yearnings than to satisfy their stomachs and to secure the alleviation of pain and hard work, Moses shaped a wandering nation that far surpassed the other nations in extensity and quality of moral character, in physical prowness and soundness, and in freedom from disease and crime.

Yet even Moses is not faultless. He succeeded in making thousands obey, but lost control of himself and disobeyed Jehovah. The result of this flaw of character, death on Mount Nebo. Yet not inglorious, but glorious and triumphant, for God showed him the promised land and led him out of this life in a manner not that of the ordinary mortal.

Summing it up I quote from the Christian Herald: "Moses is magnificent. Grandeur rests on his mighty head like clouds on Sinai. In him humanity had a noble peak. God a great ambassador."

Convention this year: Anne Kroeker of Newton placed first and Dr. A. M. Lohrentz of McPherson placed second in the senior division; Amanda Ediger of Buhler, Evelyn Zerger of Moundridge, and Betty van der Smissen of Buhler ranked first, second, and third, respectively, in the junior division.

Highlight of the evening meeting was an address by Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman, president of Bethel College, on the subject "Preserving Our Heritage." He told how the Jews have managed through the centuries to preserve their faith. He suggested that we, too, might do much to preserve our heritage by having festivals to commemorate important events in the history of Mennonitism. Dr. Kaufman also stated that Mennonites should venture forth in economic and educational undertakings to an extent which they have not in the past. Colonization and land-ownership projects help to develop community spirit among people, and these should not be neglected by our denomination. There is need for greater emphasis on the education of our young people. Vacation Bible Schools, parochial school, summer seminaries for ministers—all these are possibilities which either need to be explored or developed further. If we so strive to preserve our Mennonite heritage, we will be writing it in the sky "with letters of fire."

Meetinghouse of the Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas

The Hebron Mennonite Church, which belongs to the General Conference, is the only church in the conference—so far as the editor knows— that practices baptism by immersion. However, the church shows excellent spiritual discernment by accepting those not immersed without re-baptism. The constitution says of baptism, "The church is committed to baptism upon confession of faith, and practices immersion, but recognizes other forms of baptism. Baptism may be administered at any time to persons who are ready in the judgment of the pastor, the deacons and church. Before baptism, the recipient shall give an expression of his belief before the members of the congregation. Baptism shall be preceded by instruction."

He was baptized by Elder Jacob Stucky and joined the Mennonite Church in Russia. He came to America in 1874. He attended the Halstead school. CORRESPONDENCE

SWISS MENNONITE CHURCH

Alsen, North Dakota

It is indeed with thankful hearts that we look back over the last two months. For we have heard the pure word of God. Rev. and Mrs. H. Larson were in our midst and served two days. Then Rev. Elmer Dick of Montana held services one evening which were also enjoyed by those who could be there but muddy roads kept many of us at home.

The first part of July we had the privilege of having one of our missionaries with us for a few days; this time it was Sister Aganetha Fast. I think it was the first time she visited the churches of this community. She also showed pictures of the work in China. We learned more about the field and of the native Christians.

Brother Albert Schultz of Butterfield, Minnesota, who came up here for the youth conference which was held in the Bethel Church, near Langdon, came to Alsen after the conference for three days, and we had a blessed time. Brother Schultz believes in obeying the command of Jesus to feed the lambs and to feed the sheep. He fed us the Word, and I know all those who had a hunger were fed richly. It seems in our day so many forget to feed the flock; they try to bring them into the fold and then forget about them.

Since we do not have a pastor yet, Brother David Hooge, pastor of the M. B. Church near Munich, has been serving us regularly for a month already by having the preaching service before the Sunday school in our church and after Sunday school in the M. B. church. We are so thankful to have such a consecrated brother serve us. We are strengthened and encouraged, and we hope that the brother may be able to serve till we have the pastor whom God has chosen for us.

Several mistakes somehow got into the last Jotting that I sent in. Mr. W. W. P. Wiebe died and not Mrs. Wiebe. And neither Mr. Pankratz or Mr. Wiebe belonged to our church, but they both attended services in our church.

The grain fields are turning golden; so the busy season is at the door. The crops look good although some grain is lodging. Gardens also look very good, but need rain badly at the present. (Written Aug. 1)

RELIEF

Miss Gunden Writes

From Brenners Park Hotel, Baden Baden, Germany, Lois Gunden has again gotten a letter through to her folks. Sister Gunden, together with the Bullers, are patiently passing the weeks and months at their place of internment. There still exists no immediate prospect for the return of these workers.

Attempts are made to make profitable use of these days by engaging in rather intensive courses of study. Apparently a wide variety of talent and experience is represented among the internees.

From Paraguay

Robert Geigley writes encouragingly of efforts to develop plans for the advantageous disposal of produce, etc., by the Mennonite Colonies in that country. It becomes a tedious and arduous task, particularly with all the handicaps in transportation, etc.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—Brother Erland Waltner, who is joining other town people in helping relieve the labor shortage emergency on the farms these days suggests "that those who desire interviews with him make appointments ahead of time. Even though the season is a busy one the pastor welcomes anyone who desires to come to him with a spiritual problem."

—Fred A. Johnson writes (August 2) "Right now we are busy getting ready to attend our Southwest Bible and Missionary Conference at Flagstaff, Arizona.... We have been busy with our vacation Bible schools in our field. This year the total enrollment of all children was 297. It is still very dry in Arizona . . . and the weather is very hot everywhere."

—While Brother Earl Salzman and family were absent for one Sunday of their vacation, Dr. Brubacher of Beulah College brought the message.

—Stewardship figures at a glance. In the bulletin of the Menno Mennonite Church, Lind, Washington, are twelve rectangular spaces with figures in each space. The top six tell how much was given for peace, relief, publications, education Committee, foreign missions, and home missions in the first half of 1942. The bottom six show the giving in the first half of this year. This presents an excellent opportunity for the members to compare their giving of this year with that of last year. All figures pertain to General Conference causes only.

—Jacob Goering, Education Director of the Lapine, Oregon, C.P.S. Camp, spoke to the Menno Church on a recent Sunday morning.

Hospital Plans Debt Elimination Drive

The above is a picture of the Bethel Hospital in Mountain Lake, Minnesota, which is initiating a drive to eliminate its debts. Frank Rempel, a member of the Hospital Board, has been interviewing church boards in the community for the purpose of laying plans for such a drive. Each church is asked to select a committee which is to meet with other committees to make the final arrangements. Shown beside the hospital building above is the old people's home.

—General Hershey testified before a sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee last week and told the Committee that twenty-three per cent of the men called for the draft had been rejected because of mental and nervous disorders.

"When it appears," he said, "that about a third of your rejections for white soldiers are for mental and nervous reasons, you pause to wonder how you can run a successful war. Maybe we are unfit for modern war. Where does that leave us, if we must win the fight?"

He submitted a table in which he showed the major causes of rejections in this order: mental disease, syphillis, musculos skeletal, cardiovascular, hernia, neurological, ears and mental deficiency.

—The Olive Branch

The above picture is of the Bible school students with which Miss Martha Burkhalter, Janjgir, India, works. When the picture was taken the students were gathered together for a retreat, preparatory to an evangelistic tour of two months.

—Good attendance at Western District Retreat: A total if 175 young people from Kansas and Nebraska (eighteen from Nebraska) attended the retreat held again at Camp Wood,

—Very soon choice students from a dozen states will be travelling in every direction towards Bethel College. Here their talents and energy will be educated, shared, and directed towards the end that all mankind might accept Christ and through Him have life and have it more abundantly.

That same Christian faith which prompted our forefathers to trade prosperity in the old world for religious freedom in America is today moving their children to attend Bethel College.

At this time those who are responsible for the Christian education of these young people seek the intercessory prayers of all Mennonites. Great problems face us. With our own strength alone we would surely fail. Only with God's grace can we go forward.—w.r.

—"We thank our many friends and neighbors for remembering us in prayer during our recent sorrow. We express our sincere appreciation for their kindness and expressions of sympathy in cards and letters."—Mrs. P. H. Unruh, Velma, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Unruh.

—Vacation Church School in August: Because of difficulties encountered in previous years when the school was held earlier in the summer the Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa, is having its vacation church school from August 9 to 20. There are classes for children from four to fourteen.

—Dr. John R. Schmidt, who is to go as doctor to the Mennonites in Paraguay this fall, spoke and showed pictures in the Bethel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, on August 7.

EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE NOTES

Retreat—The 1943 Eastern District Conference Retreat was the largest one we ever had. There were 109 at the Intermediate Retreat, 109 at the Junior Retreat and some eighty at the Senior or a little better than 300 for the ten days. One Junior made a definite decision for Christ, and several young girls expressed their conviction that they felt called into missionary service. How much good has been accomplished otherwise, only God knows. To be sure if each one who attended could give a testimony as to what retreat meant to them, it would prove a very interesting meeting.

The First Quarterly Conference for the 1943-44 Conference year was held in the Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, Pa., Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, pastor, August 2. Every one admired the beautiful interior of the Church and Sunday School. There seems to be an atmosphere demanding a worshipful spirit. The Treasurer's report showed that the Conference churches had already sent in $972.46 toward this year's Conference Budget of $3,800.00. The Treasurer of the Peace Committee, Mr. Willis A. Moyer, of Harleysville, Pa., announced that he had received between $1,500 and $1,600 since Conference. Rev. Delbert Welty, pastor of Memorial Mennonite Church, Altoona, Pa., presented a very well prepared paper on the theme "Visitation Evangelism." A long interesting discussion followed the presentation of the paper. The conference president intrdouced the Rev. and Mrs. Walter Dick, pastor of Second Church Philadelphia to the Conference.

After a box lunch, the evening session was opened. The evening message on the theme "The Foundation Stones of our Faith" was presented by the Rev. Ernest J. Bohn of Souderton. This was his last conference meeting prior to his leaving for his new field.

No Home Anniversary—At the Quarterly Conference, Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, member of the Board of Managers for the Home of the Aged announced that at the meeting of the Board held "this morning," (August 2) the Board decided to cancel the Home Anniversary this year on account of the gas rationing, but that the week of September 5 to 12 will be Home Donation Week.

—Howard G. Nyce, Conf. Corr.

Correction: In last report "Second Church, Philadelphia" should have read "First Church, Philadelphia."

BUILDING FOR STORAGE OF RELIEF CLOTHING

A large and commodious brick structure, located in Ephrata, has been made available to the M. C.C. rent-free for the purpose of storing relief clothing. This added facility will prove quite valuable since the building now used for receiving, sorting, and packing of clothing was not adequate for storage purposes.

Important Announcement

Recently we mailed sample copies of the new General Conference publication, the Mennonite Junior Quarterly, to all the Sunday Schools of our conference. These sample copies contained two complete lessons, just as the lessons in future issues of this quarterly will be worked out. On the back cover of these sample leaflets we asked that these lessons be carefully examined by the Sunday School officers and teachers and used by the teachers of the Junior classes in the study of these particular lessons. The purpose of this request was to give both officers and teachers an opportunity to become acquainted with this new quarterly.

No doubt the Sunday Schools made use of this opportunity to become familiar with this newest of our conference publications, and we hope that the Mennonite Junior Quarterly has won many friends through its printed pages and, particularly, its adaptation to the understanding and the needs of the Junior age pupils. It is valuable also because of its Mennonite tone, something which cannot be said of any lesson quarterly published by a non-Mennonite organization. In order to interest our young people in our Mennonite faith and principles, they must be given an opportunity to learn what that faith and those principles are. And this is what the Mennonite Junior Quarterly aims to do.

Beginning with the next quarter (October-December), the Mennonite Junior Quarterly will be available for all Sunday Schools of our conference in any quantity desired. A number of S. S. have already placed their order for the October quarter, and no doubt many more will want to do so. A considerable number of these quarterlies have been printed, but not knowing how many copies will be called for, it may be that the supply will not be sufficient to fill all orders that will be received. In order to make sure of having their order filled, Sunday Schools should send in their order as soon as possible, preferably not later than September 1st. The price will be as follows: Single copies 30 cents per year; five or more copies 5 cents each per quarter, or 20 cents per year. All orders and money in payment for the Mennonite Junior Quarterly should be sent to the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas.

Dr. H. A. Fast Joins Bethel College Faculty

Word has just been released that Dr. H. A. Fast joins the Bethel College faculty as head of the Division of Bible and Christian Education, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. A. E. Kreider. Dr. Fast graduated from Bethel College in 1917 with an A.B. degree. He received his B.D. degree from Witmarsum Seminary in 1922 and continued his graduate study at Garrett Biblical Institute in the summers of 1922, 1923, and 1924. In 1936 he received his Doctor of Philosophy degree from Hartford Theological Seminary.

Dr. Fast served as a professor of the New Testament at Witmarsum Seminary from 1922-25, pastor of the Bethel College Church from 1925-1930, pastor of the Buckingham Congregational Church in Glastonbury, Connecticut, from 1930-36 while attending Hartford Seminary, after which he served as the field secretary for the General Conference until 1940, during which time he visited all of the General Conference congregations as well as the Mennonite settlement in South America. Since 1940 Dr. Fast has served as general director of the C.P.S. camps under the auspices of the Mennonite Central Committee, in which position he has rendered outstanding service.

Dr. Fast is assuming his duties at Bethel College beginning with the new school year. He may, however, be unable to give full time for the first quarter as the Mennonite Central Committee may need his assistance in working out the new arrangement to carry on his present work.

Bethel College is fortunate in securing the services of a man with the training and experience of Dr. Fast as a member of the faculty, in which capacity he will also assume leadership in the school's program of ministerial training. During the last school year there were nineteen ministerial students enrolled and for the current year, according to indications, there probably will be a few more.

"The man who thinks he knows it all has merely stopped thinking."

"In the end the things that count are the things you can't count."

Young But Once

We are young but once. How very important this fact becomes when we realize that youth is the period in which nearly all lives are molded for good or bad.

Youth is that period when the soil of knowing, feeling, and willing can be best cultivated. It is like unto the period immediately following a rain before the ground hardens again and cultivation becomes nigh impossible. Just as it is important to hoe or stir the ground at exactly the right time after a rain, just so is it important to cultivate the whole life-soil of a child before the hardening and drying process of maturity sets in.

That's why we must choose with care the schools which our children attend. In terms of money it may be a little cheaper to attend a local high school or state college or university than a Mennonite academy or college, but in spiritual terms it may be terribly expensive. This year the High School Victory Corps will, undoubtedly, be a very prominent part in the program of the public high school. If carnal strife is sin for us and our children, should we not be very careful as to what influences we expose our children?

Youth is a precious period of opportunity. Are you doing your best for your child now when so much can be done for it? Soon maturity and adulthood will be here. Will you then be able to say to your grown son or daughter, " . . . from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."—rw.

The Executive Committee of the General Conference

The constitution of our conference says of the Executive Committee:

"The Conference Officers and the Chairmen of the Boards of Foreign Missions, Home Missions, Publication, Education, Emergency Relief, and Trustees, shall constitute an Executive Committee which shall represent the Conference between Conference sessions and shall co-ordinate the work of the boards and standing committees. This Committee shall call special sessions of the Conference; prepare and publish an annual budget, it may appoint or employ field workers; get into touch with other Mennonite bodies in matters of our faith and represent the Conference at Washington; if it approves of obligations proposed to it by Boards, the Conference shall be bound by such approvals to the amount of $35,000.00. This committee is authorized to send fraternal delegates to other Mennonite bodies; and to have one meeting annually."

One seldom hears anything of this committee. The writer is unable to remember any report of a meeting in the past year. In view of the emphasis that we put upon the independence of each congregation this may have its favorable aspects. On the other hand, the committee was created for a purpose. United action is desirable as well as independent action. As we act together in the unity of the spirit we can accomplish things that we cannot do alone. Perhaps, the time is ripe for this committee to function more vigorously. The recent establishment of a headquarters for the conference at 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas, and the employment of an office manager (P. A. Penner) and a secretary is a step in the direction of more integrated, efficient action. The efforts of all of our churches and institutions need to be coordinated to a greater extent for the glory of God.

Members of the present Executive Committee are: Chairman, C. E. Krehbiel; Vice Chairman, A. J. Dyck; Secretary, Phil. A. Wedel; P. P. Wedel, J. M. Regier, H. J. Andres, E. G. Kaufman, I. W. Bauman, H. E. Suderman.—rw.

Sam Goering in Lima, Peru

Brother Sam Goering, who is on his way to China with Brother Joe Graber of the Old Mennonites as relief commissioners, wrote from near Lima, Peru, on July 28. Riding 17,000 feet in the air, he wrote the letter to his family, telling them that they would soon land, and the way things looked they would spend about five days in Lima. Bro. Goering reports that so far they have enjoyed the trip very much, that flying has been so smooth that he could balance a cup of coffee on the arm of his chair and that none of the passengers had felt ill.

The men came from Ecuador, and after their stop at Lima were to cross the Andes Mountains by air into Argentine.

THE MENNONITE

The Mennonite is a man of action rather than of words. He is simple in his philosophy of life, straight forward in his statements (sometimes too much so), and logical in his conclusions. He stands firmly by his views and principles.

He is not faultless, of course, and he knows it. He is almost too much given to self-criticism and gloom, which he often mistakes for repentance. But he firmly believes in the redeeming blood of Jesus Christ that takes his sins away and thus removes the barriers put up by them and the mistakes of the past, and marches on again to attain to the purification of his heart and to see God.

Mennonites are divided among themselves, but their true members are all headed for the maturity in Christ Jesus and for God, their Father, in whom they will all be one in God's own good time.

Today the paper, The Mennonite came to my desk again. It bears its name rightfully and I like it for its preserving conservatism as well as for its fiery, youthful progressiveness.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By J. Winfield Fretz

EDUCATION FOR A PURPOSE

Today a father of thirteen children told me he was not going to allow his children to get an education beyond the minimum legal school requirements. He said he had observed that Mennonite young people graduated from colleges and universities tended not only to be lost to the close fellowship of the family circle by great geographical distances but that they were also generally lost to the home community and to the Mennonite Church. There is more than a little truth in this observation.

College Alumni

An analysis of the activity of our Mennonite College Alumni will pretty largely substantiate the fears of the father mentioned above. A very high percentage of our college graduates have been lost to the home church and community. The work for which they have been trained has all too often unfitted them for local places of leadership. College education has thus rather depleted than completed talent in the home community.

Education For A Purpose

My answer to the father of thirteen children is not that he should prevent his children from getting a higher education but rather that he should help them get the right kind of an education. In this area our colleges must do careful thinking and planning. The purpose of higher Mennonite education should be to train our young people to serve effectively in the local communities from which they come. It should not serve as a stepping stone out of these communities. The first purpose of a college education should be to learn to live a pure and wholesome Christian life and, secondly, to earn a living. The present emphasis is too frequently in the reverse order.

Technical courses in agriculture, business, engineering and the like may be important but not nearly as important as are courses on the Bible, religion, poetry, literature, philosophy, history, and biology. Purposeful Mennonite education will seek to make spirit-filled men first and occupationally successful men second. It will train men to serve well their home church and community. For what doth it profit a man if he serve the whole world and neglect his own community?

NOTICE TO MINISTERIAL STUDENTS

All denominations in America, including the Federated Council of Churches, are greatly concerned for the future of the ministry as affected by the draft. Selective Service fully shares this concern that a steady supply of men shall be made available for the Christian ministry. Occupational Bulletin No. 11 as revised on July 1, sent out by General Hershey, states that a pre-theological student should be considered for occupational classification (2-A) if (1) he is a full time student in good standing in a recognized college and it is certified by the institution that if he continue his progress he will complete such pre-theological course of studies within twenty-four months of date of certification, and (2) it is certified by a theological college which was recognized before September 16, 1940, that such student is accepted for admission to undertake professional studies upon completion of his pre-professional work.

At Bethel College the first two years are considered pre-theological, after which a student takes up professional theological work, which means that students must complete the pre-professional work within twenty-four months after reaching the age of eighteen. All of this, however, must be so indicated on the questionnaire that a person fills out after his registration for draft upon reaching the age of eighteen.

Young men interested in ministerial training and desiring further information on any of the above points should write to the President of Bethel College.

THE MARVEL OF CONVERSION

The Apostle Paul speaks of the man in Christ being a new creature (II Cor. 5:17). This seems so miraculous that one may sometimes wonder with Nicodemus, "how can this be." We also all know enough about "old Adam" coming back unto us that one is rather humble about calling oneself very new. Yet in Christ we are new. So are our Christians in India who come out of the most depraved and depressed conditions of life. People who have never been permitted to choose and be responsible for their choices. For generations and centuries they have been pressed and held in a mold which permits no change. Now Christ comes to make them free. Many accept this freedom, and almost in bewilderment they look around wondering what to do with that freedom. This accepting Christ is a marvel which no human language can express. Indian social life and Indian thinking, especially in village areas is set and encased in a hard crust. But as moisture and warm sunshine breaks the hardest crust in which a kernel is encased, so the grace and love of Christ can and does break the fetters of the most cruel social and mental bondage in India. People do change from a life of superstition and fear to a life of confidence and trust in the heavenly Father. They do change from dishonesty and instability to a life of honest dealing and Christian manliness. The change is from a life of darkness to the light which is in Christ. Yes, the marvel of conversion is that people become new creatures.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, April 15, 1943

Dear Friends in Christ:

To work to advantage one has to have a goal and a program toward which he strives. To work without planning is sure to be simply a marking of time. At the beginning of the year we had a rededication service and decided on some goals to be attained. The two main objects to be attained in a mission or church is to win souls and to build up the saints in the Lord. We took as our text for the year: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, and lo, I am with you always."

The "entrance of Thy Word, giveth Light"

If a man is to have a healthy knowledge, he must have certain instruction. Who questions this that much of our trouble exists because men do not have the right knowledge or in many cases any knowledge of the will of God for us. The proverb: "Knowledge is light, ignorance is darkness," is as true today as ever. In this present time it is especially noticeable how active the powers of darkness are in order to suppress all that is eternal, holy, or true; therefore the Church needs to be more concerned than ever to preach the Word and to establish our youth in the Way of life. This task is not easy, and if we would not have the promise, "lo, I am with you" we might become discouraged, in the effort to reach our goal.

We were busy preaching the Word in regular worship services, in private personal work, in the Sunday School, in catechism classes, in mission societies, in Christian Endeavor meetings, in meetings in the Girls' Home, and in every other way that was open. Constantly souls were found that responded to the Word. It was a real blessing to have such who did declare themselves "on the Lord's side."

Extreme Cold Last Winter

Our worship services were quite well attended, weather conditions considered. Some winters it may be snow and storms, but this winter it was the extreme cold weather that worked hardships. The thermometer dropped to forty degrees quite often and it even went down to sixty below! Br.r.r! On account of a shortage of fuel some churches had to cancel their services, but we were fortunate to have sufficient fuel so that all our meetings on Sunday and during the week could be held regularly.

Catechism Class Plans for Baptismal Service

The catechism class was started January 18. Ten persons were enrolled. In the Sanatorium we have two young women, and these are also given regular instruction. They too commit the answers to memory It was a joy to work with these two individuals. A young man with leanings toward our Mennonite Church would also like to be baptized, but had no one to instruct him; so we correspond regularly and by mail; the lessons are assigned, explained, and answered. He has a good foundation from Bible School and has declared his faith and acceptance of Christ as Saviour. He is planning to be at home on Pentecost, June 13, for the baptismal service.

Special Singing Instruction

At the annual meeting the fact was acknowledged that our church singing was not as good and as wholehearted as it ought to be. Provisions were therefore made for the engaging of David Peatkau out of the Academy (Fine song leader at the General Conference) and Mr. K. H. Neufeld from Wickler, to conduct special choir rehearsals during the winter. First came Teacher Paetkau and later on came Neufeld. Noteworthy progress was made and the closing program found everyone in anxious anticipation. However, a deep sorrow came with it. While the singers were getting ready to open the program one of the members, Mrs. David Lepp, had a heart attack and died three hours later. She was only forty-four years old and at the height of her strength and usefulness in the Sunday School, mission society and in the Church in general.

In the Girls' Home the work is going on as usual. At the present time we have many more inquiries than girls to meet the demand for work. Very few new girls come to the city. The reduced number that are in the city, attend the Bible studies in the Home as regularly as their work permits.

Personally we have enjoyed fairly good health. We have been spared serious sickness, for which we are duly grateful when we consider the many who are sick in our hospitals. For some time I have been handicapped, since the dentist had to pull the remaining twenty teeth, and then unfortunately the first plate did not fit so that I have to wait several more weeks to get the second one.

Thanks to the Board and all supporters for the regular remuneration that comes to us.

Brotherly greetings,

J. J. Thiessen

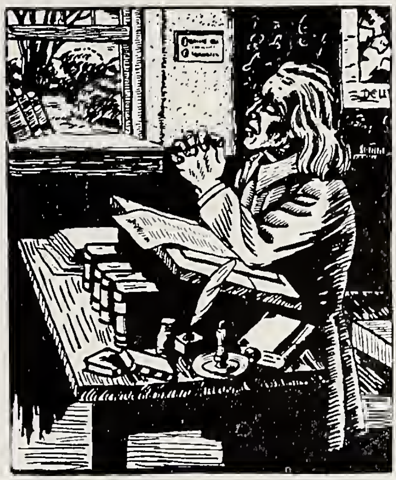
(Translated by A. J. Neuenschwander from the German.)

HE MOST LIVES

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;
In feelings, not in figures on the dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs when they beat
For God, for man, for duty. He most lives
Who thinks most, feels noblest, acts the best.
Life is but a means unto an end—that end
Beginning, mean, and end to all things, God.

Suggestions for the Observance of Education Sunday

The Board of Education of the General Conference has set aside the last Sunday of August as Education Sunday. This day of prayer for our schools falls on August 29 this year.



Christopher Dock, early Mennonite teacher, who made it a practice to pray for his pupils.

Worship Service

A special sermon stressing the place and importance of Christian education in the life of the individual, in the program of the church, and in our nation.

Special prayer for our church schools and for those about to enter upon a year of school work. Ask God's guidance for those who have in their charge the destinies of the school.

Request and stress continued prayer throughout the year for education and for those being educated.

The Sunday School

A special program for the opening exercises of the Sunday school might be arranged, stressing the importance of Christian education.

Special decorations for the day can be arranged, including flowers, posters, and pictures. Catalogs and picture bulletins could be on display. If you want material of this kind about one of our schools write to the school for it.

There could be a farewell service for those going away to school. Our young people need the interest and prayers of the church and need to feel the interest which the church has in them

Special programs could be arranged in the junior, primary, and intermediate departments for those about to begin another year in the public schools. Pupils should be led to appreciate the privilege of education and to see its importance. The relation of education to Christian living and to opportunities for service could be stressed.

Young People's Meetings

Evening young people's societies could select a special discussion topic dealing with the need for and difficulties of Christian education in such a day as this. The need for education of Mennonites in the principles of the church could well be stressed. Information could be given regarding the provisions Mennonites have made for the education of their children.

In the Home

Education Sunday is to be essentially a day of prayer for our educational institutions and for guidance for all connected with them, either as students or as staff members. Parents can give due recognition during family worship to the importance of Christian education.

Mennonite Bible Academy, North Newton, Kansas

At the last Western District Christian Endeavor Convention, held July 31 and August 1, 1943, the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved . . . that we urge our young people to pursue the development of their spiritual qualities and talents, and that we urge enrollment for college students in our own schools of learning which have for years held high the banner of Christ. That we recommend to individuals of high school age to make use of our college academies that are being conducted, if in their own town high schools they find the demands of conflicting loyalties a danger to their moral and spiritual development."

The Mennonite Bible Academy of North Newton, Kansas, has taken notice of this splendid resolution and would like to express its appreciation to the Christian Endeavor Convention for this encouraging note and evidence of confidence.

The aim of the Mennonite Bible Academy is to give the Bible a prominent place in the curriculum of the school. In fact, it is expected that all courses will be brought into harmony with the Scriptures and the revelation of God. High scholastic standards shall also be maintained. It is our prayer that we may live up to the expectation of the fathers and mothers and of the young people who come to attend our school. Our life shall find its orientation in the Bible and in personal fellowship with the Lord and shall express itself in work of high quality.

The Mennonites in Switzerland

By John C. Wenger, Goshen College

Almost one hundred thousand American Mennonites, says the late John Horsch, are of Swiss descent. These Swiss Mennonites are continuing in North America the faith and practice of their forefathers in the Canton of Bern in the old Fatherland. How did the Swiss Mennonites get their faith, however? How did the church originate in the first place? What are the Mennonites of Switzerland like today?

The Mennonite Church originated in Switzerland in January, 1525, well over four centuries ago. The chief founder was of a wealthy and influential Swiss family, a young man of less than thirty, Conrad Grebel by name. He was supported by a converted monk named George Blaurock, by a young scholar named Felix Manz, by a converted priest named William Reublin, and by others. Grebel was at first a follower of Ulrich Zwingli, the reformer of Zurich, Switzerland. But when Zwingli refused to go all the way in the establishment of a church patterned after that of the New Testament, Grebel broke with him and dared to inaugurate believer's baptism. The followers of Grebel called each other simply brethren, and are now known technically as Swiss Brethren, but were by others dubbed with various terms because of their rejection of infant baptism. Among such nicknames were Taeufer, Wiedertaeufer, Anabaptists, Catabaptists, Taufgesinnte,—all of which indicated some sort of stand on baptism, against (infant) baptism, in favor of re-baptism or simply baptism-minded. The Swiss Brethren set up congregations of converts who had accepted Christ and were baptized on confession of faith. They exercised a scriptural discipline over their members. They taught the principle of Christian love and nonresistance. They bore one another's burdens, assisting each other as there was need. They made no demands on anyone except the right to live holy lives and preach the gospel, but were denied even these privileges. For separating from the state church and for rejecting all extra-biblical practices and beliefs, they were subjected to abuse, social pressure, imprisonment, and martyrdom.

The Swiss Brethren preserved their faith through dungeon, fire and sword. They were drowned, beheaded, and burned at the stake. But through it all they maintained a beautiful resignation of spirit, a stalwart fortitude, and a remarkable testimony of good cheer and Christian joy. The first known martyr was Eberli Bolt burned at the stake in May, 1524. The last known execution was that of Elder (bishop) Hans Landis, beheaded in Zurich in September, 1614. All Mennonites were ordered out of Bern in 1660, but many refused to emigrate. A special division of the Bernese government was set up in 1659 to combat the Swiss Brethren. A dozen years later Bern sentenced some Mennonites to galley slavery on the Mediterranean. In 1669 a special police force called Taeufer-jaeger was created. Indeed, one could say that the Swiss Mennonites were abused for the first three centuries of their life in their homeland. As recently as 1811, for example, twenty-seven Mennonite children were forcibly baptized in Langnau in the Emmenthal (Emme Valley).

Partial relief finally came about 1815 when at least one bone of contention was removed. The Swiss Mennonites were allowed to purchase freedom from military service by the payment of a fee. This privilege was continued until 1874 when complete equality with all other Swiss citizens was achieved. At that time, however, they lost the right to purchase their military exemption. The Mennonites of Switzerland were required by law to perform military service.

The Mennonites objected at first but ultimately yielded. The year 1875 saw the first Swiss Mennonites in army uniforms. The government did grant them the concession of having the right to do sanitary service, a noncombatant function. This step was a complete reversal of policy for the Mennonites of Switzerland. Indeed, when the question of the Mennonites and military service was discussed in the Bernese Senate in 1835 one senator declared: ". . .If we wished to compel the Wiedertaeufer to do military service, we would make them martyrs of their faith. For not a single Wiedertaeufer will allow himself to be forced to take up arms."

The compromising stand of the Swiss Mennonites since 1875 has somewhat broken down their conscience on the doctrine of nonresistance. Today many of their young men do not even take advantage of their privilege to do noncombatant service; they voluntarily take up arms.

Swiss Mennonite history is of further interest to American Mennonites because it was in Switzerland and Alsace that the Reist-Ammann division took place in the last decade of the seventeenth century. The major issue was caused by Jacob Ammann's desire to inaugurate the Dutch Mennonite practice of avoidance or shunning. Today the Amish-Mennonite issues have all but been forgotten in Europe.

Large numbers of Swiss Mennonites emigrated to the Palatinate, to Holland, to Prussia, and to America down through the centuries. The bulk of the eighteenth century Mennonite immigrants to America were either directly or indirectly from Switzerland, mostly from the Canton of Bern. Again in the first half of the nineteenth century, many Swiss Mennonites emigrated to Wayne County, Ohio, to Adams County, Indiana, and to Minnesota.

In 1899 the late A. D. Wenger, a Virginia Mennonite, visited the Swiss Mennonites near Basel. He wrote: "The congregation was small and the service was much similar to ours at home. Three ministers took part, each speaking very emphatically in German on the truths of the Word. The worshipers had the appearance of sincerity and humility. There was nothing so flashy about their attire. The sisters wore plain hats and one aged sister wore a black cap." (Six Months in Bibles Lands, page 29).

In 1823 the government of Bern ordered a census of the Mennonites in Bernese territory (where most of the Swiss Mennonites lived then, and still do) and found that there were 1,365 Bernese Mennonites. Persecution and emigration kept the number down, so that a 1916 census of the Bernese Mennonites revealed a Mennonite population of but 1,545 souls, of which 873 were baptized. The Swiss Mennonites today probably have a baptized membership of about one thousand.

Those who read the German ought to look up the article "Bern" in the Mennonitisches Lexikon, written by Bishop Christian Neff of Weierhof in the Palatinate. Even more interesting and instructive is the only volume on their history produced by the Swiss Mennonites themselves Die Taufgesinnte-Gemeinden (The Baptism-Minded Congregations) published at Karlsruhe, Germany, in 1931. The author was Samuel Geiser of near Tavannes, assisted by David Lerch, and Samuel Geiser of near Tramelan, all of Switzerland. Chapters 10, 16, 17, 18, 19, and 20 are especially valuable. After page 400 there is a picture of a typical Swiss Mennonite preacher of the eighteenth century, as well as a Mennonite woman of the same century. Peter S. Lehmar's (1821-99) likeness is found after page 416; he was ordained to the ministry by the lot in 1848, and emigrated to America in 1852. Other interesting pictures are of Bishop David Ummel (sometimes Umble in this country) who died in his ninety-ninth year in 1896; Johann Gerber and wife, a minister who was ordained in the year 1875 and died in 1918; and Bishop Ulrich Steiner, 1806-77 author of the book, Angenehme Stunden in Zion (Pleasant Hours in Zion). Steiner was ordained as preacher about 1830 and as bishop in 1835. Once he was imprisoned and once fined for "proselyting" (the fine was later cancelled). One of the most typical figures of the book is the picture of Bishop David Lerch, 1829-1915. Lerch was ordained to the ministry by lot in 1856, and as bishop twenty years later. The author of the Swiss Mennonite history, Samuel Geiser, also has an article in English translation on "The Mennonites of Switzerland and France" in the January 1937 Mennonite Quarterly Review. The same journal, October, 1937, issue, contains an important article by Milton Gascho on the Amish division, 1693-97. John Horsch's last book, Mennonites in Europe 1942, contains numerous chapters on the Swiss Mennonites. Very valuable also is C. Henry Smith's Story of the Mennonites, 1941.

Today the Swiss Mennonites are a humble and sincere body of earnest Christians who have weathered the storms of persecution. They have maintained their witness through four centuries. They can still be classed as evangelical Christians. Believer's baptism they have retained. No distinctive garb is worn, but the simplicity of the dress is quite marked. Their ministry is generally without special training or salary and is elected by the congregation. Ministers are not ordained upon election, however, but first pass through a probationary period.

Perhaps the most encouraging factor in Swiss Mennonitism today is the keen interest which some of their active leaders are taking in their glorious history and the courage and inspiration which they are drawing from the life and witness of their forefathers.

INFORMATION FOR COLLEGE FRESHMEN

Our people should be informed that Bethel College complies with the recommendation of the Policy Commission of the North Central Association to accelerate the educational program of young people by admitting students who have senior standing in high school, rank in the upper ten per cent of their class, and are recommended by their high school principal for college work. By this arrangement qualified young people are permitted to skip the senior high school year and go to college. It is urged that young people who are interested and qualify should send in their applications at once.

BETHEL SECURES DIRECTOR OF BAND AND ORCHESTRA

Mr. Vilas R. Gerger of Pandora, Ohio, is coming to Bethel College as an addition to the Music Faculty. He secured his Bachelor of Science in Music from Bluffton College in 1938 and his Master's Degree in Music from Ohio State University in 1942. He has specialized in wind and string instruments. Besides teaching vocal and instrumental music in various schools, he has also played in various symphonic bands and orchestras.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Carl O. Basinger, Chicago, Illinois

AUGUST 22—"But even the very hairs of your head are numbered. Fear not therefore: ye are of more value than many sparrows." Luke 12:7.

One of the principal themes of Jesus' teaching was God's care for man. We can trust in Him absolutely because He knows us as individuals. We can depend on Him at all times because of his goodness and kindness. Every man's duty is to submit to the will of God. Jesus was tremendously conscious of God. He taught that: (a) believing in God's providence we must rid our minds of all anxiety, and (b) a mood of quiet trust is the best source of strength.

AUGUST 23—"We know that thou art a teacher come from God". John 3:2.

The truth is that Jesus was not primarily a teacher. We misunderstand him altogether when we class him in the same category as Socrates, Kant, and Acquinas, who were great thinkers in regard to moral issues. Jesus was a man of action, but wanted to build a world on different principles than those which were held by the world builders of his time. He realized that a firm basis could only come about through a change in the individual. Said Napoleon, "None of us can compare with Jesus Christ. He built an empire which is lasting even today."

AUGUST 24—"Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; for God seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart." I Sam. 16:17.

There is sternness and tenderness in the thought that ultimate judgment will be given by a righteous God and not by man. Some of us may pass a favorable examination from society and receive a rating of respectability, but behind the veneer God can see us in our true light. On the other hand, men often rest their condemnation on the innocent. But the Father knows both our nature and our circumstances, and His judgment is both just and gracious.

AUGUST 25—"Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors." Matt. 6:12

Almighty and most merciful Father, we have erred and strayed from thy ways like lost sheep. We have followed too much the devices and desires of our own hearts. We have offended against thy holy laws. We have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and we have done those things which we ought not to have done . . . Have mercy upon us. Through Jesus Christ our Lord! —Allen Knight Chalmers.

AUGUST 26—"Ye are all the children of light." I Thess. 5:5.

It is comforting in these depressing and tragic times to realize that God's creativity has not ceased—that He is still working in the world and in human events. It is our faith that even now we as a denomination are playing an integral part in the creation of a world brotherhood based on love and equity. It is our faith that God is working through us in the extension of His creativity. What a privilege it is to cooperate actively in that creativity.

AUGUST 27—"Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." Phil. 2:12

Handling difficulty, making the best of bad messes, is one of life's major businesses. Very often the reason victory is not won lies inside the individual. The recognition of this fact, however, by the individual concerned is difficult. At times we all resemble the Maine farmer laboriously driving his horses on a dusty road. "How much longer does this hill last?" he asked a man by the roadside. "Hill!" was the answer. "Hill, nothing! Your hind wheels are off!"

AUGUST 28—"That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ." I Pet. 1:7.

It is through intense heat and oxidation that the impurities of a mineral are eliminated and the final hardened metal is obtained. The same principle is applicable to the Christian life. "The bodies of martyrs are the seed of the Church". Trial and persecution invariably result in renewed growth in the history of the Church, and tend to bring forth the noble and deeply spiritual qualities of a people. "Be ye not weary in well doing."

AUGUST 29—"For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." Rom. 8:18.

"There is a fact in life, O God, and we try not to face it; that righteousness comes only through those who are willing to suffer for the right; that justice is restored by those who are willing to bear injustice; that peace comes to men through the restless, unsatisfied, hungry searchers for the peace which passes the understanding of common men."—Selected

AUGUST 30—"The sting of death is sin . . . ." I Cor. 15:56.

O Breather into man of breath
O Holder of the keys of death!
O Giver of the Life within:
Save us from death, the death of sin;
That body, soul, and spirit be Forever living unto thee.

—John Ellerton

BITTER WATERS

By Fredric E. Carter

I think I know where lies the fault,
That makes the Ocean bitter salt!
Measure all the scalding tears,
Through the endless lonesome years,

Of sweethearts, mothers, and of wives;
For all their loss—ten billion lives,
And all the children who have cried
When their soldier fathers died.

Weigh all the rivers of bitter tears,
Shed in the wars across the years,
Mixed with blood down to the Sea;
Pray, what else could the Ocean be,
But salt and wormwood to the taste?
God in Heaven—what useless waste.

"It's the voice with a smile
That is surely worth while;
It gains its reward in the end,
It turns anger to calm,
To sore hearts it's a balm,
An enemy it turns to a friend!

"Why speak harsh and gruff
To call some one's bluff?
It's yourself you really revile;
Make him comprehend
And still be your friend—
In your voice put a friendly smile!

TELL HIM SO

If you hear a kind word spoken
Of some worthy soul you know,
It may fill his heart with sunshine
If you only tell him so.

If a deed, however humble,
Helps you on your way to go,
Seek the one whose hand has helped you—
Seek him out and tell him so.

If your heart is touched and tender
Toward a sinner, lost and low,
It might help him to do better
If you'd only tell him so.

DO IT NOW

Ben L. Byer

There's a letter you should write,
Write it now—
It may make a dark day bright,
Write it now.
Some sad heart may keep its sorrow
And more trouble try to borrow,
If you wait until tomorrow,
Write it now.

The human heart,
Watered by hope and warmed by love,
Shall start
Their upward growth.
Some day the grain,
Increased a hundredfold, shall yield
Eternal gain. —Selected

When the Leaves Fall on the Bluffton College Campus

An education is very important in one's life. However, no less so is one's husband or wife. Much of our happiness in life depends upon the mate we choose. Realizing the importance of a careful choice we look for the opportunity to make one. Our church schools present such an opportunity. There Mennonite young men and women of like interests and ideals become well acquainted with one another. Daily contact for nine months for possibly several years is an opportunity for acquaintanceship that is not easily duplicated. Young people can learn to know each other well, as they should. It is not accidental that marriages arising out of acquaintanceships made in our schools are so free from unhappiness. A Mennonite school is helpful for a careful choice.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE WESTERN DISTRICT C.E. CONVENTION

Bethel College

July 31, 1943

We are grateful to our Heavenly Father for the privilege of living in a democratic land where the right to worship according to the dictates of one's conscience is clearly recognized; where freedom of speech and of the press remain the rights of citizens, and where the desires of men to follow the Prince of Peace can find expression in deeds of mercy and kindness.

RESOLVED: That we as Mennonite followers of Jesus Christ take advantage of every opportunity to rediscover the basic elements of our heritage through:

1. Individual study of our background, in an attempt to get the scriptural basis for our faith.
2. Organized study groups, sponsored by pastors and interested laymen, which will give information about our church and its basic tenets of faith, and thereby create a deep appreciation for our heritage.
3. Urging our ministers to assist us in knowing and appreciating our own church, and to discover wherein we are unique, why God has preserved us for this day, and what He is asking us to contribute to our present day.

RESOLVED: That by the Grace of God we bend every effort to a positive witness to the Jesus Way of Life, by:

1. Engaging personally in deeds and acts of kindness and goodwill at every opportunity.
2. Collectively supporting the M.C.C. in its Relief and Civilian Public Service efforts, with our prayers, with our talents, and with our financial means.
3. Keeping a vital contact with those from our churches who have gone to the camps, through individual correspondence, and through organized church groups who work in conjunction with the pastor. That we earnestly entreat our Heavenly Father for grace and strength to keep them morally pure and spiritually in fellowship with Him.
4. Eliminating from our lives ill feelings and prejudices against racial groups by learning to know these groups, to understand them, and to consider them as brothers of ours and all of us together as children of our Heavenly Father.
5. Endorsing wholeheartedly our many-sided church program:
   a. Missions. Though the doors may be closed in certain areas, we are yet confident that God will open other doors where He will want us to enter.

   That we acquaint ourselves fully with our mission program, both at home and abroad; with the personnel of the program, and with the work that is being done.

   That we set forth a committee to study and find a very definite project to which the Christian Endeavors of our conference could give their wholehearted support, and which they could sponsor as their primary project, and which would receive the endorsement of our Western District Conference.

   b. Education. That we urge our young people to pursue the development of their spiritual qualities and talents, and that we urge enrollment for college students in our own schools of learning which have for years held high the banner of Christ.

   That we recommend to individuals of high school age to make use of our college academies that are being conducted, if in their own town high schools they find the demands of conflicting loyalties a danger to their moral and spiritual development.

   c. Young People's Work. That we offer our services to the pastor and to our churches with a new and stronger zeal.

   That we give serious thought to the idea of large numbers of us giving a year of service to the church within our life time.

   That we give serious thought to the idea of giving a tenth of our earnings to the Lord's work, and that we begin to place a much greater emphasis upon our function here upon earth as stewards of God.

   d. Retreat. That we endorse the retreat program as an excellent place for young people to relax from the cares of every-day life and to reconsecrate themselves to the things which are eternal.

RESOLVED: That we make use of this time to better acquaint ourselves with the several other branches of Mennonites who are fellow-members of the Mennonite Central Committee.

That we learn to understand and to respect the differences that exist among us.

That we try to appreciate the several contributions that each of our groups are making to our total Mennonite constituency.

That we try to make use of the many talented leaders of the various groups in order to gain an appreciation for the emphasis that have become our common basic concerns.

RESOLVED: That, in fulfilling the positive corollary of our peace principle, we encourage our government in its new effort to relocate Japanese-American citizens, and that this be done in the following ways:

1. Inform ourselves on the problem.
2. Commend the War Relocation Authority for handling their problems well in face of adverse circumstances.
3. Consider possibilities of relocation of Japanese-Americans in Mennonite colleges, farms, etc.

A SONG OF HOPE

"One broken dream is not the end of dreaming,
One shattered hope is not the end of all,
Beyond the storm and tempest stars are gleaming;
Still build your castles, though your castles fall.
Though many dreams come tumbling in disaster,
And pain and heartache meet you down the years,
Still keep your faith, your dreams and hopes to master
And seek to find the lesson of your tears."

All-Mennonite Retreat Held

The annual All-Mennonite Retreat was held August 2-8 at Camp Mack, Milford, Indiana, with niney-two young people from three states and thirteen churches in attendance. The largest delegation, composed of twenty-five members, was from Bluffton, Ohio.

The young people were under the leadership of Rev's. Wilmer Shelly, retreat chairman; Harry Yoder, retreat director; Jesse Smucker, retreat pastor; Forrest Musser, Donovan Smucker, Robert Hartzler, Herbert Fretz, and Miss Margaret Detwiler, Miss Edna Ramseyer, Miss Verna Yoder, and Mrs. Robert Hartzler.

The peerless facilities of Camp Mack offered a splendid setting for a week of study, worship, and recreation which gave the young people fresh insight into the joys of Christian fellowship.

High spots of the week about which many of the young people will think and talk until next year's retreat included the sunrise and sunset services led by Rev. Jesse Smucker out in the open on the side of Vesper Hill; the evening programs which included an address by Rev. William Stauffer, pictures of China by Rev. L. S. Pannabecker, a stunt night in which each cabin presented some kind of a special act, a musical program staged entirely by retreaters, and an evening spent in discussion with relief trainees and Dr. M. C. Lehman from Goshen College. Probably the softball, swimming, boating, etc., will be long remembered also. And it is certain that the impression made on the young people by the unusually fine staff of instructors will be carried with them for a long time.

At the reorganization meeting of the retreat committee Rev. Robert Hartzler was elected chairman and Rev. Harry Yoder, director, for next year's retreat.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

WAR IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

Matthew 26: 47-53

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "Thine Arm, O Lord, in Days of Old;" "When My Love to God Grows Weak;" "Love Divine, All Love Excelling."
2. Reading of leading topic, and prayer.
3. Talk by pastor: "Righteousness Exalteth a People, But Sin Is a Reproach To Any People." Prov. 14: 34.
4. Offering for Civilian Public Service Camps.

II. Leader's Introduction:

When Christ came to earth the angels sang, "Peace on earth good will to men." As he took up His work He claimed this as His mission, "To preach good tidings to the poor, bring release to the captives, sight to the blind, liberty to the bruised." He emphasizes that His kingdom is a spiritual kingdom, and He goes about "doing good." He says, "Blessed are the peace makers," and tells his followers: "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you." He lived a life of love and service, of kindness and helpfulness. He came to save men, not to destroy them. He gave life everlasting to those who would accept Him and His way of living. If we are His followers we cannot kill, we cannot go to war, we dare not hate our enemies. We have something better and nobler to do—we must prove to them and to those around us that since "God is love," we too must love, and love will help and save. We must be willing to follow Christ's teaching: "Whosoever shall smite thee on the right cheek, turn to him the other also."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor. Rom. 13:10
2. Avenge not yourselves. Rom. 13:19
3. Overcome evil with good. Rom. 13:21
4. If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight. John 18:36
5. The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but spiritual. II Cor. 10:4
6. The fruits of the Spirit. Gal. 5:22
7. Christ, leaving an example. I Pet. 2:21-23

IV. For Discussion:

1. What did Christ mean when He said, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's?"
2. When should we obey God more than man?
3. How can we arrange our daily life so it is in harmony with our peace stand?

V. Facts for Study:

When the negroes were forced into slavery they were deprived of their freedom; they were required to work for their masters, but their work was for constructive purposes. Today, when the young men of our nation are forced into the army, they are deprived of their freedom, and they are made to work for destructive purposes. They are asked to kill and destroy. If two boys fight and the stronger wins, we do not acknowledge that he was right because he won. It sounds sacreligious for any nation to ask God to help them win the war when His word plainly tells us that war is sin. How can the God of love, to Whom every human soul is precious, approve of maiming and killing men who are created in His image?

VI. For Further Study:

MARK TWAIN ON WAR

There has never been a just war or an honorable one. I can see a million years ahead and this rule will never change. The loud little handful will shout for war. The pulpit will object at first. The great, big, dull bulk of the nation will rub its sleepy eyes and try to make out why there should be a war, and will say: "It's unjust and dishonorable, and there is no necessity for it." Then the handful will shout louder. A few fair men on the other side will argue and reason against war and at first will have a hearing and will be applauded; but it will not last long; those others will outshout them and presently the anti-war audiences will thin out and lose popularity.

Before long you will see a curious thing, the speakers stoned from the platform and free speech strangled by hordes of furious men, who in their hearts are still as one with those stoned speakers—but do not dare say so. And now the whole nation, pulpit and all, will take up the war cry and mob any honest man who ventures to open his mouth; and presently such mouths will cease to open.

VII. Food for Thought:

We need to be deeply penitent for our sins and the sins of our nation.

TALK by a person who has made a study of music on the general topic:

Music and the Development of the Church. (Tracing the connection of music and the worship of God from Old Testament times through the early Christian church, the development of organ music, the singing of hymns, etc.; the characteristics of a good hymn.)

SPECIAL MUSIC SELECTION

CLOSING HYMN

Breathe on Me, Breath of God—135

PERIOD OF SILENT MEDITATION followed by a brief

CLOSING PRAYER from the leader.

PLANNING THE MEETING

A worship service should always be worked out in detail so that there is no last-minute confusion. Copies of the program can be made for all those taking part. This will make it possible for the program to proceed with a minimum of announcement.

The theme of the meeting can be announced by means of a poster.

In almost every church there is someone who has made a special study of music or who has a vital interest in it. Sometimes this can be the public school music teacher. It should be a person who realizes that only the best music should be used in the worship of God. Such a person may have a special musical talent, such as singing, or playing the violin or piano. He may then also be responsible for one or both of the special music numbers.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

THE LAND WHERE JESUS LIVED—BETHLEHEM, WHERE JESUS WAS BORN—Matt. 2: 3-6.

When we know something about a place, or things that happened there our interest is aroused and we become keen to know all we can about this place. Here are some facts of Bethlehem even before Jesus was born there.

1. About five miles from Jerusalem.
2. Rachel, wife of Jacob, died on the way to Bethlehem and is buried nearby.
3. For generations the family of Caleb was very influential in Bethlehem.
4. The rich Boaz lived there, and in his fields outside the city walls, Ruth was gleaning when Boaz fell in love with her.
5. David was born here.
6. David fought many battles with the Philistines around here.

Why was Jesus born at Bethlehem? Because that was the family town of Joseph, the earthly father of Jesus, and the Roman law required that wherever a man might go to live, he must come back to his family home to be registered. Joseph had no choice but to make the journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem, bringing with him Mary, his wife.

On the hills outside the city wall the shepherds were watching their sheep when the star appeared and the angels came to pronounce the holy birth.

When Joseph and Mary arrived in Bethlehem, it was no wonder that the small inn, or public hotel was overcrowded, for many people had come to Bethlehem for the same reasons as applied to Joseph. Here the baby Jesus was born, in a stable. To Bethlehem came the Wise Men with their gifts for the Baby Jesus, and later came the warning that Herod, the king, was likely to have the baby Jesus killed. From Bethlehem Joseph and Mary rode away in great haste, escaping into Egypt before the king's soldiers reached Bethlehem.

Bethlehem was built upon a hill. The houses cluster close together, and they are built of stone and brick. Outside the city wall are vineyards and farm lands. After you ride through the gate into the city you will find yourself in a very narrow street. Of course the inn, and stable are no longer standing, but if any of you should ever go to Palestine and into Bethlehem, you could see other buildings and inns like the ones we read about. The place is also marked where Jesus was born.

The Question Bee

1. Why do you suppose Jesus was born in such a humble place? 2. Did the people believe prophecy then? Do they today? 3. Why are you glad that Jesus was born? 4. Why is Jesus a gift? 5. For whom was Jesus born?

The Prayer List

Thank God for the great event, the birth of the Christ Child, the fulfilling of the prophecy, foretold by Isaiah. That we may have life through him. We pray that we may glorify the name of Christ—always.

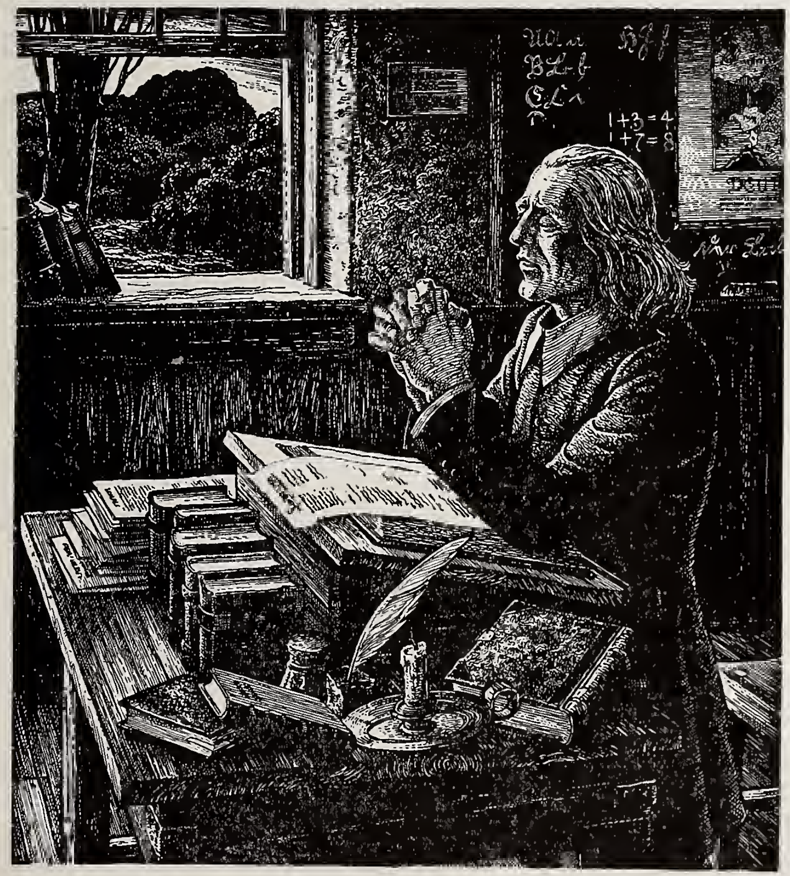
Mennonite Christian Education Sunday

AUGUST 29, 1943

One of the early examples of Christian teaching in the week day schools of America was Christopher Dock, a German Mennonite who emigrated to America and settled in the Skippack valley in Eastern Pennsylvania between 1710 and 1714. His biographer, Dr. Brumbaugh, says of him, "It was his custom each evening after dismissing his pupils to remain in his schoolroom to pray. With the roll of his pupils spread before him, he would kneel and ask God to forgive him for any act of injustice or neglect toward any pupil in his school that day. He would ask, as he pronounced each pupil's name, that God would help him on the morrow to do the best things for each one.

"One evening in the autumn of 1771 he did not return from his school at the usual time. A search was made and he was found in his schoolroom on his knees—dead. Thus ended in prayer for his pupils a life singularly sweet and unselfishly given to the welfare of those whom he believed God had divinely appointed him to teach."



Christopher Dock, early Mennonite teacher, who died on his knees in prayer for his pupils.

"The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."
James 5:16

Mennonites early appreciated the value of education, and in the first Mennonite colonies in America few grown persons could be found who could not read, and the men almost without exception, could write and keep accounts. As the general level of education increased, Mennonites also saw the need for higher education. However, because they understood the teachings of Jesus in a somewhat different way from many of their contemporaries, they wanted schools of their own which would teach Christian faith and life as they understood it. Consequently they sacrificed to build and maintain their own academies and colleges.

This faith and teaching, which Mennonites believe, is now being put to a severe test. Schools which they have maintained are especially essential now, that young people interested in that way of life may have the opportunity of studying together, under the leadership of sympathetic and consecrated teachers. These schools need the prayerful support of all those interested in the church and its teachings, and they need the young people as students if they are to perform the task for which they were created.

Education Sunday is for the purpose of united prayer for these schools and for those who are about to enter upon another year of study. It is also fitting time for rededication of individuals to the purposes for which Christian institutions have been created and maintained.

Just as that early Mennonite teacher, Christopher Dock, believed in education and in the power of prayer, and took to God the interests of his school and of his pupils, so let us today unite in prayer for our schools and for those young people who enter upon another year of study.

C.P.S. EDUCATION

Constructing a terrace, grassing a water runway, preparing a tasty and healthful meal, making a bed in the approved manner, studying the Bible and Mennonite heritage booklets, singing, conducting devotions, getting along with a large assortment of human beings, becoming acquainted with the men of various denominations, re-thinking our peace stand, discipling oneself to regularity of sleep, work, and eating, being away from home, travelling through new stretches of country, working without being paid—these and others are educational opportunities for our C.P.S. men. Those in detached service have opportunities unique to their special work.

Frequently thoughtful young men in C.P.S. say that a year in C.P.S. is of greater value to them than a year in college. Frequently one hears church leaders express the thought that after the duration many of our most able church leaders will be drawn from the number who have been in C.P.S. camps.

Inspiring is the attitude of many who say with Paul, "For I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content." Such realize the opportunities that are theirs. They are the ones who will come home from camp and will enrich their home communities.—rw.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BE A MENNONITE?

If some stranger asked us the above question, what would we answer? Could we list six definite points? Below are listed six such points as given by Paul Erb in the booklet entitled, What It Means To Be A Mennonite.

It means . . .

1. A definite Christian experience.
2. A noble heritage.
3. A simple life.
4. Separation from the world.
5. Close adherence to God's Word.
6. A living witness.

Each member of a Mennonite church might well ask, "How well is my life characterized by these points?"—rw.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By J. Winfield Fretz

SMALLER RURAL FAMILIES

A few years ago the typical rural family had from four to six children on the average. In the United States today the average rural family has from three to four children which is just enough to meet the annual death rate. In our present society from three to four children are required per family to keep the population steady.

Steady Decline

A study of population figures reveals that the size of the typical American family has been steadily declining during the past twenty years. This declining trend has been concealed and in part counteracted by the flow of immigrants into the country until the twenties. The birth rates have fallen most drastically in the cities. Here for many years the annual number of deaths exceed the annual number of births. But the rural areas are imitating the cities in this respect just as they are in so many other matters pertaining to fashions, fads, and customs. If this decline continues it cannot help resulting in a total population decline. This fact is obvious.

Some Causes

We do not know all the causes for this situation but several causes are immediately evident. For one thing children are no longer able to find opportunity for work inside or outside the home as they once were. This is certainly true in the cities and is becoming more and more so in the country. Labor saving devices eliminate the need for so many hands. This is one reason why school laws are constantly raising the compulsory attendance age level. Modern conditions in the cities make it almost impossible for a man to support a large family because of prohibitive housing costs. Also parents wanting a first class education for their children find it increasingly difficult with a large family.

Significance

The Biblical injunction to "be fruitful and multiply" is thus being discouraged by modern economic circumstances. The divine institution of marriage and the family circle is becoming of less and less importance in the eyes of the world. Of what good will more wealth, more comforts, and better education be to mankind if these things result in a gradual undermining and potential destruction of the basic institutions for which they were created? The church with a future will be the one that succeeds in stressing strong family life and this in turn can succeed only if she seeks also ways strong family life can thrive.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

OUR INDEBTEDNESS TO WILLIAM CAREY AND THE BAPTIST MISSION IN INDIA

Jagdishpur, Via Raipur, C. P., India.
March 23, 1943

Dear Friends at the Home Base:

Greetings in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Heb. 13:7 has a very interesting reading according to Weymouth's translation of the New Testament. It reads, "Remember your former leaders—it was they who brought you God's message. Bear in mind how they ended their lives, and imitate their faith."

It was our privilege this last week to visit our neighbors to the east, the English Baptists, and to take part in the commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the Baptist mission work in India. It was also the 50th jubilee of the work started among the Gara people surrounding this particular mission station.

The distance between our two stations is a trifle less than one hundred miles, but this was our first visit there. Besides Mr. Duerksen and me, seventeen of our Indian Christians went. To most of these it was like going to the home mission because they were from that section of our field that formerly belonged to the Baptist mission. Denominational differences slip into the background in a place like India. To our Indian church, Christians are Christians.

It took this visit to remind us how indebted we are to William Carey and the work of the Baptist Mission in India. One afternoon the young men presented the drama of Carey's life. That same evening we were also shown lantern slides. How little we modern missionaries know of sacrifice compared to that small group who first came to India. Their trip out from England took from June 13, 1793, until November of the same year—never once in between did they get off the ship.

When they came here they found no place ready for them; funds were exhausted long before more could be expected; sickness came and even death when they had to lay away little five-year-old Peter. For almost two years no letters came. But they carried on. The work Carey did in the way of translation work is almost unbelievable. He prepared grammers in six languages, dictionaries in three, and then led in the translation of the whole Bible into six languages and parts of it into several other languages. Among the languages into which the whole Bible was translated were also the Hindi and Oriya, both of which we use in this area.

Quoting from S. Pearce Carey's William Carey, "He was often asked how he had contrived to acquire so many tongues, and would answer 'that none knew what they could do, till they tried;' and then, that, having once thoroughly mastered Bengali, Hindi, Sanskrit, Marathi, Persian, Punjabi and Dravidian Telegu, all else was simple."

One of the speakers at this jubilee gathering was a young man, a graduate of Serampore College—Carey's College, so to speak. He is now one of the committee working on a revision of the Oriya Bible. He told us that often they returned to the translation made by William Carey as being the best for the particular point which they were working.

Challenging us at every meeting was a poster bearing those memorable words of Carey, "Expect great things from God. Attempt great things for God."

Coming closer to our Mennonite work was the fiftieth jubilee that was being celebrated. Missionaries and Indian workers of the Baptist Mission had come into that area fifty years ago. They had worked, at first, among the so-called great and were utterly discouraged with the seeming fruitlessness of their labour. Then the missionary and his native workers gave themselves to prayer and pleading that the Lord might show them what He wanted of them. He unmistakeably pointed to the outcast Gara people. They obeyed and the result was far beyond their expectation.

At this time of celebration they could report over eighty churches in that area. Their work had overflowed into Phuljhar State, which is now our mission field and there are twenty-nine organized church groups. And it was the outcome of the Baptist work that opened the work in our Sukhri in 1916.

So we were one in rejoicing in the work God had wrought. No mission work stands by itself—we are bound up with all our fellow missions in the work of spreading the gospel. There is a thrill in the realization that that which sometimes appears so piecemeal to us here on earth is seen as one united task by Him who sent His own out to preach the Word, baptize, and bring into blessed fellowship, peoples from every nation, tribe and tongue.

Yours in His service
Christina H. Duerksen

VICTORY GARDENS

By Mrs. Paul Wenger

We are interested in Victory Gardens, but at this time I am thinking of a different kind of victory gardens than those of which we commonly speak and hear in these days. We cannot get away from the fact that we and others must eat; it is going to be good for many youngsters and grown-ups as well to get out and dig in the soil. And the blessings of it will not all be of the kind that we can eat, but I suspect that good old mother earth and the process of watching things grow may have some precious secrets to tell.

But let us remember that in the midst of all this constant pressure that we must work, give, think, speak, eat, live, pray, for victory, there is another kind of victory garden which we cannot afford to neglect. We must still have some lovely flowers, and the flower of which I am thinking can only be cultivated to the fullest degree of perfection in one special garden, the HOME.

And since the Holy Scriptures speak of the man in the home as its head, I have chosen to call you fathers at this time the head gardener of your own lovely flower garden. I wonder in how many homes the father still holds his God-given place of authority in the home, not as an autocrat or dictator, of course, but in the sense of all that is included in that strong, yet tender word, father, into which has gone the content which gives us as Christians that unique concept of God Himself.

The Father's Part

As head gardener in our flower garden, it may be the father's part, if he has not already done so to find the correct response to the challenge which comes to us all in these days just as clearly as to those of old, "choose ye this day whom ye will serve!" Do any still need to be convinced that the only road that leads to victory in the home must come in the wake of that same decision, centuries old, that "as for me and my house we will serve the Lord"? Today sons are challenging their mothers, and perhaps also daughters their fathers for this very thing. Who would be so hard as not to find a ready response from within his very soul to the pleas that some of the soldier boys are writing home. You must have read the letter from the young lieutenant, which is being printed in many papers, and broadcast from many stations, in which he calls upon all America to go to her knees, and writes, "you complacent bridge-playing, cocktail-drinking mothers why did you not give your son the Bible instead of a cigaret and dance program?" Here is another in which a young lieutenant and graduate of a school of law bemoans the "spiritual barrenness" of our country's forces and says that unless there be a return to religion, there "will either be no victory, or if there is it will have the taste of ashes instead of fruit." And these laments of failure strike right back beyond school and church into the home.

Only last week I heard what I felt was a very lame, insufficient, and if true, then pitiable reason given for the most alarming increase of moral delinquency among youth, saying that children and young people are being neglected because everyone is so busy winning the war. Having seen what I have seen and heard what I have heard in one year, having travelled from coast to coast, I am fully convinced that we have a defense struggle to face right here at home which is second to none. Yet while young men are giving their lives for the one cause, I am afraid that we as parents and leaders of the young scarcely notice the other, or if we do, we throw up our hands saying "what can parents do?"

Joint Responsibility

We must not be forever seeing black, and yet if there is black there, it were better that we see it, than having eyes see not. But I do not wish to be understood as being one of those who can do nothing but find fault with this generation and claim that all that is good, honorable, and worthy will pass with the passing of my own generation, neither do I accept the attitude that all that is old must be scrapped just because it is old. There can be no fight between the generations. I once spoke a word of criticism of this generation in the presence of a young man. I saw at once a reaction of displeasure and hastened to smooth it over for the moment. Later I said to him, "You did not like that, did you?" "No." "Why not?" "Well, I belong to this generation and naturally I feel it when something is said against it." Whereupon I asked, "Do you merit any more of the blame or of the credit for what this generation is than I do?" And we quickly agreed on the point. We must not blame one another, but share responsibility, and understand each other, and my impressions are that there are young people who are more willing to follow the lead, than their parents are to give it.

One often hears speakers, especially at commencement time telling young people that the world is just waiting for them. One even went so far as to say to a high school graduating class that "it is up to you to get us out of the mess that our parents have gotten us into." On the other hand I have heard a speaker taking down a group of college students by telling them that only a very small percent, only an occasional few really ever do anything very great. Perhaps a better view of ourselves, both old and young, would be that, "we are neither a wonder nor a worm," recognizing that each one of us has his own responsibility and must make his own contribution, and putting as your motto has it, "Service above self" or in other words, "He that would be greatest of all, must be servant of all."

Into the cultivation of our Victory Garden then, there must go some very humble and some old-fashioned tasks, for we are interested in making our flowers the very finest possible, for it is theirs to scatter the fragrance of a truly beautiful and virtuous womanhood, and the day has not come when the world has no need of such.

Abusing Our Language

Perhaps, by way of example—for these flowers do have a very remarkable way of reflecting even unconsciously what their gardener is like, we shall have to remember that even our Lord and Master "pleased not Himself," and look well to some of our habits. I speak first of that of language. Has anyone ever proved that our English language is weak, incomplete, insufficiently expressive to make ourselves understood in these days? A man was buying a perfectly innocent-looking piece of meat from a perfectly friendly and obliging sort of merchant, when giving it a look he said, "it's too damned big." What was he expressing? Would the salesman not have understood had he merely said "It's too big" or had he given some intelligent direction as to how much of it he would like to have? Again let me refer to the message of one of the soldiers which came over the air within the past week, saying that he was utterly tired of hearing cursing and swearing and blaspheming twenty-four hours of the day. And another nearer home, in defense work says he must leave the job because he cannot tolerate the swearing of the women who have come in to do defense work. We would do well to go back to Matt. 5 and re-learn how to use and not to abuse our English language. We would not like it if another nation would come in and corrupt our language as we have done.

Smoking and Drinking

And we certainly would not tolerate being put into such a bondage by any people as we see ourselves getting into through the most enslaving habits of smoking and drinking. But here, sad to say, we must ask who will be the example and set the standard, father or mother? I heard a most challenging testimony over radio a few days ago, told of an army official who being offered a drink, refused. In renewing the offer and pressing the gentleman to accept, the tempter said, "You don't drink?" Why even women and children drink." Whereupon the official replied, "No, thank you, I am neither. I

Students Studying in Musselman Library, Bluffton College am a man. I do not drink" Who of us does not thrill to that splendid expression of clean, courageous manliness?

What Does It Contribute?

Speaking from a background of much travelling, I have often wondered whether people who are otherwise considerate and courteous, have no conception of the discomfort and in some cases actual suffering they cause to non-smokers in places where there is no escape from it. But why should men apologize or retire to a smoking room as they once used to do? May I say to you girls that I have yet to see the first Indian woman smoking. May they long treasure the freedom from this habit which is still theirs. But some will ask, what is the harm in these and other habits. Every generation has asked that question, and no one can possibly fully answer it. We need not ask that question, for it gets us nowhere. But we can challenge such habits to produce a better reason for their indulgence than that it is smart and popular to do them. We can look each temptation squarely in the face and ask it, what are you going to contribute to my highest well-being, materially, socially, physically, mentally, and above all spiritually.

Have You Prayed?

Our Victory Garden will need plenty of sunshine, by which I mean prayer. The very life of it will depend upon it. And when you fathers perhaps saw in the daily newspaper a picture of a group of soldiers, somewhere over there, kneeling in a circle, in the shadow of a great bombing plane, you did not think, how strange, how old-fashioned! Deep down in your heart there was gratitude that the boys were being committed to the care and protection of an Almighty God. Above the picture were the words, "Pause for prayer, then into night skies." If we were to speak truly, of how many of our choicest flowers would it have to be said, "No time for prayer, then into night depths, of evil and temptation," and for many of them to come out crushed and ruined, broken in body and soul. Fathers, when have you knelt in the path by the side of your own fair flower in tender love and concern for all that she is and is to be?

And when I see the soldier boys kneeling there and remember that some of them are now in the home of my adoption, India, my heart cries out, Father, don't let some of them live there as they have done at home. And this is our part back home, to watch and pray and work for the time of their returning. Surely, some of them at least, having seen so much of debauchery and sin, will be utterly weary and sick at heart, and would long to turn their faces homeward to a society whose watchwords are purity and godliness. Will we work for this? If not, then the allies may wipe Germany and Japan from the face of the earth, and our civilization will yet remain a weak, degraded, broken thing. Many most heartening reports come from the soldiers saying that they are finding God. Let them and us remember that "the pure in heart shall see God."

Closed Church Doors

And for all these things we are going to have to be old-fashioned enough to acknowledge that we need the Christian church, living and active and powerful. We are told that one of the main purposes of this ghastly struggle is to "preserve religious freedom, freedom to worship God." "The doors of our churches must not be closed." But I ask you, my non-church-going friend, if such be present, how long since the church doors have been closed for you and yours, and who closed them? Let us not rationalize. Our forefathers had a different idea of freedom to worship God, and no hindrance was so great as to keep them from seeking God's face in regular fellowship and worship. To all who have read the statement in our local paper that less than ten percent of the people are found in churches on Sunday evenings there comes the clear question, "Who is to blame?"

Have we not realized yet that we are a nation of Sabbath desecrators? Many ask, in the face of all the terrors of earth, "Why does not God do something?" Someone has well replied, "Why ask Him to do more, when mankind will not accept that which He has already done." With whom shall we fight in order to preserve the spirit of worshiping God? Why fight or pretend to be fighting for a thing which we do not value?

A Responsibility

And now a closing word to the flowers. I recall the story of a gardener, who after he had planted his garden with the choicest vines, fenced it well, had taken out all hindrances and looked well to its sources of life, yes, was even prepared to receive the fruits of it, in the end had to lament "Why these worthless fruits?" "What more could I have done to my garden?" Lest this be their result, you too will have your part to do.

A well-dressed, well-educated modern mother told her own story to a large group of mothers thus: After some years of separation from her daughters she went to make a home for them again on a large American university campus. Mother and daughters were going out one day when daughter said, "Oh mother, don't wear a necklace; no one wears them anymore." And mother saying, "All right, it does not matter to me," put the necklace away. Another day, another error; her hose were too light in color, so these were laid away with a smile. But mother too had been making some observations. Young students were sometimes being carried home, too drunk to walk. And when she tried to find out how daughter felt about questions of drinking, smoking, divorce, etc., there was no response, and she had to lament that whereas there were such definite opinions on necklaces and hose, there were no convictions down where her daughter really lived. And, sad but true, she added that it is the mothers and girls who are responsibile for these things.

Yet we are interested in how you appear, as well, and may I suggest that artificial flowers, no matter how attractive must always remain inferior, as long as God continues to give us such lovely and beautiful real ones.

Make much of the priceless companionship of your gardener, girls, and of friendship with Him who loved a garden, and who struggled and triumphed there.

"In the cool of the day in the garden, Lord
Let me hear Thy voice, let me know Thy Word.
I shall see the path, I shall find the way,
In the garden with Thee, in the cool of the day."

(The preceding address was given at a Father-Daughter banquet, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Roaring Springs, Pennsylvania.)

Miss Marguerite Sprunger Is Volunteer for South America

Miss Marguerite Sprunger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Sprunger and for the past year a linotype operator at the Berne Witness company, has tendered her resignation to enter Bethel College at North Newton, Kansas, in about two weeks.

Miss Sprunger was recently accepted by the Mennonite General Conference Foreign Mission Board for missionary service in South America, for which service she volunteered. The opening of a Mennonite mission field on that continent is at present under consideration and the project is soon to be investigated by the board. Miss Sprunger is on the waiting list and will be sent to one of the South American countries as soon as her prescribed course at Bethel is completed and the field opened.

Miss Sprunger, who is quite widely known for her chalk talks, is a graduate of Moody Bible Institute and had one year at South Dakota State College. She has been quite active in her local church and will no doubt be well fitted for the work she has chosen.—Berne Witness

A.S.W. Camp News---Forest Service, British Columbia

by Paul L. Storms

Greetings in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ to all readers from the boys in Alternative Service Work Camps in British Columbia, Canada.

Many of you have been deeply interested in us, as evidenced by the effect of your prayers on our behalf and the snatches of news we receive from home. Many of us are poor letter writers. So, through the courtesy of the editor of this publication, we trust to give you from time to time snatches of camp life. To begin with, we will give you a general account of everything and finally deal with current events in the camps. In this way, we hope to answer some of those questions which no doubt must be on your mind.

Employed by Forest Service

The Conscientious Objectors in British Columbia are employed by the Forest Branch of the Department of Lands of British Columbia (which has its headquarters in the Provincial Parliament Buildings, Victoria), in accordance with Dominion regulations concerning the call up of men of military age.

Firefighters

Nicknamed "Conchies" these men are also known as "Firefighters" as it was primarily for this purpose they were called to British Columbia, a precautionary method against the dreaded forest fires resulting from possible enemy incendiary action, which could do millions of dollars damage in the province's heavily wooded valuable timber land. Forest fires resulting from carelessness or slash burning yearly do much destruction throughout the province.

Each firefighter wears a round aluminum tag with his firefighter's identification number indicated thereon. All correspondence to the boys should have this number before the name on the envelope addressed.

The forest industry in British Columbia is the province's chief source of revenue, 40 per cent in fact. Agricultural, mining, and the fishing industry are respectively the next three to lead.

On Vancouver Island

All conscientious objectors report first to the Green Timbers Manning Depot, on the Trans-Canada Pacific Coast highway, five miles from the City of New Westminster. Here the Forestry operates a beautiful tree nursery and experimental station and at the present produces annually six million fir trees for reforestration projects. The first A. S. W. men reported on May 2, 1942. Last year they came to the depot in large groups averaging fifty each, totalling 740 by December 31st, but this year they have been reporting by ones and twos, as a rule. From Green Timbers the men have been shipped to various camps in the southern mainland and chiefly on Vancouver Island.

Nineteen Camps

These camps number at present 17 plus two auxiliary camps, the Mobile and the Farm units. Only

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

by Jacob Goering, C.P.S. Camp, Lapine, Oregon

SEPTEMBER 1—"For where your treasure is there will your heart be also." Luke 12:34.

Wherever we place our investments, there our interest and concern will be found also. This is true concerning money, time, talent, labor—yes, everything over which we have any control. Our loyalty literally follows our investments. In what are we placing our treasure. Let us ever bear in mind the words of Christ as he tells us that heart and treasure cannot be separated.

SEPTEMBER 2—"Suppose ye that I am come to give peace on earth? I tell you, Nay; but rather division." Luke 12:51.

Christ emphatically tells us that His purpose for coming to earth was not to soothe and console the sinful conscience of man, but to get them to change their way of living. He came to call men to repentance. Division is inevitable because some will respond and others not. However, it is better that even a few see the light rather than to have all perish. To quote this verse as Scriptural justification for war is dishonest. War is technique, a way some choose of dealing with differences, but not the difference itself. Jesus' answer as to how to deal with such "division" can be found in Matt. 5, 6, and 7.

SEPTEMBER 3 ". . . . except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Luke 13:3.

We see by these words that all sin eventually brings its victim to disaster. Sin destroys and kills. It is only when we turn away from sin, forgive, and are forgiven, and travel the road to Life that we keep from perishing. But to repent solely for the purpose of saving ourselves is not true repentance. If our daily walk and life is not purely a result of a sincere desire to live according to the will of God, we shall again likewise perish. Only God's will ultimately endures.

SEPTEMBER 4—". . . . Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity." Luke 13:12.

What an amazing thing for one so afflicted to hear! She believed and was healed. Thousands today are suffering infirmities needlessly. Our physical health is closely tied to our spiritual health. So many illnesses today are not structural at all, but rather functional. So often the answer is simply become healthy spiritually and the physical infirmity will disappear. Why do we so marvel at this? Christ can do the same for us today. Many will bear witness to this truth, for their infirmities fled when they truly found God. Good physical health in man is dependent on spiritual health.

SEPTEMBER 5—"Ought not this woman, . . . whom Satan hath bound, . . . be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?" Luke 13:16.

The only determining factor in Christ's ministry was human need, both spiritual and physical. Institutions were only means to this end, and where they had become something else, he over-ruled them. In this day of institutionalized religion we need to keep this fact clearly in our minds. The Sabbath, the church, the school, the hospital—all were made for man and his needs so that God might be glorified. Let us scrutinize our attitudes and our lives closely, for this powerful truth can be sadly misinterpreted and misapplied.

SEPTEMBER 6—". . . . Unto what is the Kingdom of God like? and whereunto shall I resemble it? .It is like a grain of mustard seed." Luke 13:18-19.

A mustard seed is of the smallest of seeds, yet when planted it grows into a good-sized bush or tree. How like the Kingdom of God ! From a small beginning—an insignificant teacher and preacher, a short ministry and finally crucified—from such a seed came the church of today and a host of saintly lives through the centuries. Some small seed sown today may save many souls tomorrow and in the days to come. How important that we sow good seeds at all time. We ought to examine our words and deeds constantly to see what we are sowing.

SEPTEMBER 7—"And behold there are last which shall be first, and there are first which shall be last." Luke 13:30.

Our measurement of the worth of an individual is much different from God's standard. Many whom we today consider to be the least in our estimation we shall some day find standing highest in God's sight. Also, those who today are considered highest in rank may be found to be lowest according to the perfect measuring stick of God. Our powers of judgment are not dependable. Only God is capable of judging others.

SEPTEMBER 8—"O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killeth the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not." Luke 13:34.

The tragedy of tragedies is man's failure to respond to the love of the Father. Christ calls us and longs to gather us together with the same passion which here longed to gather the children of Jerusalem. Yet so many of us so often spurn His love. How shall we be saved if we refuse to respond? Only by accepting His love so that we too partake of this same passion for souls of men can we become children of God.

"Smoke Jumpers"

By Floyd Schmoe

The last thing C.P.S. men would call themselves or wish to be called, is heroes. They are trying to do a constructive job in a world bent on destruction. The headlines, the oratory, the medals, are all reserved for the men who fight, but not for the men who fight ignorance, disease, and fire.

Civilian Public Service Camp No. 103 is located at Seeley Lake Ranger Station, fifty miles north of Missoula, Montana. Seeley lake is one of the hundreds of mountain lakes which together with the rugged peaks and the forests of tall pine, fir, and larch, make of the Lolo, the Cabinet, the Bitterroot and the Blackfoot National Forests a marvellously beautiful wilderness. No. 103, under the Administration of the Mennonite Central Committee and the U. S. Forest Service, is a fire-fighting unit, but certainly the most remarkable fire-fighting unit in existence.

Hundreds of C.P.S. men in a score of camps stand guard against the forest's Enemy Number One, fire, but they employ conventional methods of fire detection and suppression,—lookout towers, telephones, trucks, pumps and hand tools. Most national Forests are equipped with lookouts, patrols, telephones, lines, and tool supplies. When a fire is reported, a large crew of men can be hauled in by truck. Even special "tankers" can usually attack the fire from truck trails. But in this greatest remaining forest wilderness, an area larger than most states and covering half of Idaho and a third of Montana, there are few roads. Here the Government has worked out a new fire-finding and fighting system using patroling airplanes which spot fires and then parachute men and equipment directly upon them.

This technique is now beyond the experimental stage and rather than being the extremely expensive method it would appear to be, with airplane operation and maintenance at fifty dollars or more per flying hour, the record of the past two years has shown that fire suppression by "Smoke Jumpers" costs hundreds of dollars per fire as compared with thousands of dollars by ground crews. This season the C.P.S. Smoke Jumpers are to be the front line of defense

A Smoke-jumper Descends

If this chutist is skillful and if he has judged the wind correctly he will land in an open meadow near a large orange cross which has been placed there as a target. If his judgment is not good or if the wind suddenly plays a trick on him he may land in the tall timber or in a swamp near by.

against the fire demon in this entire sector.

At Seeley lake the Forest Service has assembled rangers, pilots, and parachutists to train the seventy men who have volunteered from camps all over the country for this hazardous work. As I write this at Seeley Lake on June 25th some men have already completed their training and have ferried out by air to their stations. Here in small isolated units hundreds of miles apart, but connected quickly by airplane and radio they will spend the summer waiting, mostly, for the occasional epidemics of fire which will send them literally to pounce from the air upon the insipient infernos and put them out before they have an opportunity to spread. This ability to find the fire almost as soon as it starts, get at it quickly, and suppress it while it is still small and comparatively easy to handle is what saves the Forest Service thousands of dollars in expense and millions of board feet in timber.

After the fire is out, the fighters must find their way out to a trail or road where horses will be sent for them, or to a mountain meadow where an airplane can pick them up.

These men of C.P.S. 103 are not the daredevil type, definitely not. They are not even the College football type that I had expected. They are a cross section of C.P.S.—Mennonites, Old Order Amish, Quakers, Brethren and Methodist. They are woodsmen, farmers, teachers, ministers, single men, married men. Some are beginning to gray, others are almost bald. but they are all physically fit. The oldest man among them can stand on the training net, turn a flip in the air and land squarely on his feet.

Physically they must be hard and capable. Most of them have had previous fire-fighting experience. Smoke Jumpers are not parachutists primarily; they are practical woodsmen who simply use the silken canopy to travel the last half mile to the job. Observing all this, I was agreeably surprised at the beginning of each day, each meal, and on Sunday to observe a greater apparent concern for the religious side of life than is evident in most camps.

Training consists first of days of ground work; setting up exercises, obstacle courses, toughening and coordinating muscles and learning how to emerge safely from the emergencies which are to be the common experiences of their lives. The final test of the ground course is to jump repeatedly from a twenty foot tower into the harness of their parachutes which are tied high above them. This is to accustom them to jumping and to toughen them to the hard but welcome shock of the opening chute. The most important part of the training however, is the map and compass work which will enable them to find their way out of the trackless forest after their job is done and the method by which they lower themselves from trees where, more often than otherwise, they may hang up, dangling high in the air. Some of the trees are so tall that parachutes, after fouling the treetops, open again on the way to the ground. The latter half of the training consists of actual practice jumps from an airplane, first over mountain meadows and later directly into the tall timber. When I looked down from the open door of the plane two thousand feet above the mountains I was sure that it would take a lot of nerve for me to deliberately step out into the roaring void, but so far none of the men have refused to jump when his time came. With a flaming plane to push you or even a cheering crowd waiting below it might be easier, but these fellows jump at a nod of the pilots head.

Those who have not yet reached the jumping stage of their training, look forward to their first leap and resent each rainy day which delays that time. Even the six men who joined the Unit as cooks have so caught the "jump fever" that a few days ago they went to the instructor and asked to take the training. Today there was joy in the kitchen because their request had been granted. It is likely that they will have the distinction of being the first parachuting kitchen mechanics known to history.

Because of the special hazards of jumping into dense forests on rugged mountain slopes special suits have been devised for "Smoke Jumpers." Ready to descend upon a fire a man carries some eighty pounds of excess weight. He wears heavy wood boots with ankle braces, a steal-ribbed leather corset, a heavy canvas sponge-rubber padded suit and a leather helmet equipped with a strong wire mask. Fully rigged with two coils of rope, a bully back-pack chute and a smaller chest chute, to be used in case the first one fails, he looks like a stuffed dummy of a deep-sea diver that has been used to hang things on. In his pocket he has a large clasp knife which opens at the touch of a spring in order to cut himself free from his harness in an emergency, maps Forest Service compass and First aid kit. With the fire tools, radio, sleeping-bag and rations which the pilot drops to him by cargo chute once he is safe on the ground, the fire fighter is ready for almost any emergency except that of landing in water or actually landing in the fire To avoid this possibility a weighted test chute is dropped before the first man jumps, to determine the drift and direction of the wind. In addition the parachutes used for this work have special steering slits which can be opened and closed by proper manipulation of steering lines. When a slit is opened, the recoil of the air which spills from it drives the chute in the opposite direction. In all but high winds the parachute can be maneuvered fairly effectively. Should a miscalculation be made or a sudden gust of wind cause a man to drop into the fire or into a lake it is admitted that he has almost no chance as it would be impossible to swim and difficult even to walk in such equipment.

Two added hazards which fire-fighters face in this area are rattlesnakes and ticks, of the two the latter is far more deadly as they are infected with the dreaded spotted fever. All of the men have been inoculated against spotted fever.

Never less than two men jump on even a small smoke because of the hazards incident to fire fighting and mountaineering in general and the additional danger of parachuting into rough terraine.

There is little glamor to "Smoke Jumping." These are simply men who feel that it is important to combat forest fires and who have confidence in this modern method. Most of them do not think of the danger. In training they get a thrill out of the leap, enjoy the ride down, regret that it is over so soon, and are keen to go aloft and jump again. Last evening when I was showing them my pictures of skiing on Mount Ranier on of the fellows asked. "How do you keep from breaking your legs on these terrific slopes?" I suppose to an ordinary smoke-chasing, parachute-jumping, fire-fighter, skiing does look dangerous.

Aberdeen Young People's Retreat

A very inspirational retreat was held July 24 and 25 by the young people of the Mennonite Church of Aberdeen, Idaho. The retreat centered around the theme, "Reasonable Service" Rom. 12:1, with Willard Wiebe as the camp director.

Beautiful, tree-covered mountains were the setting for the retreat at the ranch of the Weston and Dvorak families. The camp is located ninety miles from Aberdeen.

About forty-five young people attended from the Aberdeen Church. We had as our special guests Sunday Mrs. Kaiser, Mr. and Mrs. Hess and about fifteen boys from the Doney C. P. S. Camp. Mrs. Hess favored with some beautiful solos.

Our meals were prepared on an outdoor fireplace, and we ate in the outdoor mess hall under the trees. Recreation was furnished in the form of mountain climbing, badminton, ping-pong and horseshoe.

The first meeting was held Saturday evening around the campfire with vespers led by Esther Wiebe. Henry D. Becker was the camp song leader. Mrs. Henry Becker directed our thoughts in the topic, "The Conditions for Service." Rev. P. A. Wedel conducted an interesting Bible study and discussion.

The evening was closed with an hour of games in charge of the recreation committee. We retired to our beds in the cabins or out under the stars, where we were reminded more than ever how "the heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth His handiwork." We were hushed by the distant sound of a quartet singing "Day is Dying in the West"—a song which has come to mean a great deal to those of us who have attended past retreats.

Sunday morning found everyone up bright and early. After our appetites were satisfied, we were led in devotions by Esther Lehrman. The Sunday School lesson was taught by Mrs. Carl Wenger. The morning message was given by Carl Wenger, who spoke on "Opportunities for Service."

Various questions handed in by the group furnished the material for a open forum discussion in the afternoon in which everyone could express his ideas.

Our evening song service was one of the most enjoyable parts of the retreat. This was followed by a consecration meeting in which many of the group testified what Jesus Christ meant to them and how this retreat had been a real highlight in their Christain lives.

Williard Wiebe gave a challenging closing message, "Challenge for Service." All of the messages plainly brought to our minds that each one of us has some Christian service to do, no matter where we are.

As we joined hands at the close of the meeting and sang "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love" we knew that truly the fellowship of kindred minds is like to that above.

This retreat was a mountain top experience for each one who could attend and we are looking forward to more like it in the future.

2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Reports from the Retreat.

II. Leader's Introduction

God had revealed Himself to man in many ways. The Bible tells us of Him, Christ made Him known to men. He speaks to us through the lives of consecrated men and women of today, through the events of history, and through the voice of nature. Morning sun and evening sky, the song of the lark in the morning, the hum of the bee at noon, the contented lowing of the cattle at eventide, the unceasing rushing of the waters in the canyons, the hush and quiet of the moonlight night. Who is there with eyes so blind, or ears so deaf, that he does not sense the presence of God? How beautiful to meet God at the call of His voice through nature in the morning, how heartening to feel His presence brooding over the city and country in the noontide heat, how comforting when evening comes to go out and walk and talk with Him in His grand out-of-doors.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Admonition to Worship	I Chron. 16:18-33
2. Invitation to Worship	Ps. 95:1-7a
3. A Great Worship Service	I Kings 8:54-61
4. Prayer in Worship	Matt. 6:5-8
5. Spirit of Worship	John 4:20-24

IV. For Discussion

1. Should each church sponsor a three-day retreat for its own young people in its own community?
2. What should the "Retreats" do for our lives?

V. Facts for Study

A Lesson From a Russian Thistle

I John 3:2

by Amanda Friesen member of the Emmanual Church, Doland, S. D.

"One morning as I cautiously made my way to the living-room window with the aid of my crutches, I felt impelled to gaze for a long time into the outdoor world.

During the night frost had painted an otherwise bare and ugly yard into a scene of beauty. "Truly this is fairyland!" I gasped.

My attention was then drawn to a lone Russian thistle. Each branch was frost covered. Every thorn sparkled with millions of tiny diamonds.

Despised, ugly thistle, when you were rolling about in the dust you did not dream that some day you would be the dazzling shining object that you are this morning. Thus my thoughts ran. Then as I glanced at my body, twisted, bent, not beautiful, I looked up to God in glad exultation because some day He shall change our vile bodies like unto His glorious body."

Can the time spent at a Retreat transform our outlook on the everyday duties and incidents of life in a similar way?

In 1941, after the first Mennonite Retreat in Saskatchewan, Marie Klassen wrote in The Mennonite:

As each one has again returned to his own environment, we sincerely hope and pray that every one may be a willing instrument of the Lord, to serve Him with more zeal and diligence at home, in church and community, in accordance with the theme of the Retreat, "All for Jesus," and the theme song:

"All for Jesus, all for Jesus,
All my being's ransomed pow'rs,
All my thoughts and words and doings,
All my days and all my hours."

VI. Food for Thought

"I need not shout my faith. Thrice eloquent
Are quiet trees and the green listening sod;
Hushed are the stars, whose power is never spent,
The hills are mute: yet how they speak of God."
—Charles Hanson Towne

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

PATRIOTIC AND CHRISTIAN

I. Purpose of This Meeting

In this emergency of war there is so much talk of patriotism, that a thinking person begins to wonder what it really is. There are those whose ideas of being patriotic would mean that our Christian principles must be dropped "for the duration." Just what is patriotism? Can a person be both patriotic and Christian? These are the questions to be discussed for this meeting.

II. Worship Service

Prelude (God the All-Merciful—351 may be used)

Leader's Introduction

The following reading was written by a Jewish rabbi, and puts into words our best thoughts of America, our homeland:

"God built Him a continent of glory and filled it with treasures untold; He studded it with sweet flowing fountains and traced it with long winding streams; He carpeted it with soft rolling prairies and columned it with thundering mountains; He graced it with deep-shadowed forests and filled them with song.

"Then He called to a thousand peoples and summoned the bravest among them. They came from the ends of the earth, each bearing a gift and a hope. The glow of adventure was in their eyes. And out of the bounty of earth and the labor of men, out of the longing of hearts and the prayers of souls, God fashioned a people in love, blessed it with purpose divine, and called it America."

—Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver

Closing Hymn

My Country 'Tis of Thee—344

Closing Prayer

"Keep Looking to Him Who Has Promised To Keep You Wherever You Go"

The above are the closing words of each of three verses of a poem called "To the Soldier Boys."

In I Kings 22 we read how the King of Israel wanted to go to war against Ramoth Gilead and how he asked the prophets about it. They all with one accord said: Go forth, the Lord will prosper thee; only Micaiah warned him against it. The result was that the King of Israel was killed and his people suffered a great defeat.

The above promise will result in such catastrophies, unless we consider what the Lord has promised us and humble ourselves in His sight. In Matthew the last two verses Jesus says, "Go therefore and teach all nations—and lo I am with you always even unto the end of the world." This promise of Jesus has a condition: "Go and teach, preach them the Gospel, teach them all things whatsoever I have commanded you, baptise them." It does not promise to be with us and keep us when we go with swords and spears depending on might and power.

In Matthew 10:16 He says, "Behold I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents and harmless as doves." And what did he send them out for? To preach the Kingdom of God.

When we apply the promises of God, let us apply them under the conditions that He has set forth. Let us continue to pray for the boys in the service. Here are some of the promises that we can hold on to:

"Father forgive them for they know not what they do."

"Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need."

Here are some questions that we might ask ourselves in regard to this matter of praying for the boys in the service.

Are we praying for them as fighting for a great cause? Why then did we, just a few years ago, aid Japan against China? Or why did we aid Russia with materials when she was invading Poland and Lithuania?

Is this a Holy crusade? It would be well to go amongst them, or just stand at the street corner and hear the songs that the crusaders sing, or notice the swearing and the drinking. This would answer the above question as to whether they were in a Holy crusade. Or note where the bombs drop, who is killed? Do the innocent suffer with the guilty?

Are we and the boys innocent partakers? Statements of Jesus are quite clear: "He that taketh the sword shall perish by the sword." etc. At the post office while mailing some parcels to missionaries, a man said to me, "How foolish to send missionaries to the Orient. Those people are hundreds of years ahead of us; we still have the sword in one hand and the Bible in the other." And last but not least our government has made provision for exemption for those who feel that they cannot take the sword or gun. Are we innocent?

Shall we not in our prayers for God's mercy rather come with confession of sin? We are thankful to God for great Christian men and women of our land, but let us also think and confess our great waste of money and men through smoking and drinking. We are the greatest drinking nation; we have a higher divorce rate than even our enemy countries.

If we come to God in a contrite and penitent spirit, asking for mercy and protection for our boys, then we can expect great things from Him.

—John T. Neufeld

Mennonite Bible Academy

Why Another School?

1. The loss of our former parochial schools has put our young people in a disadvantage as far as Bible instruction is concerned. Only a few of our high schools teach the Bible.

2. The Sunday School hour is too short in order to acquire the necessary Biblical knowledge.

3. The worship hour in our homes is often cut down to a minimum or even dropped completely.

4. Thus the knowledge of the Word of God is dwindling down in our homes and communities. Our young people, our children, are the ones who have to suffer for it. We have not carried out the Word of our God which says: "These words which I command thee . . . shall be in thine heart and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house and thou walkest by the way and when thou liest down and when thou risest up." Deut. 6:6-7.

5. We need this school in order to increase the knowledge of the Scriptures and the knowledge of God and Jesus Christ, our Saviour.

Forest Service, British Columbia

five of the seventeen camps are on the mainland and these are known as the G. T. Camps, (G. T. for Green Timbers). The balance are scattered throughout Vancouver Island at strategic points for firefighting and fire prevention, road construction, and tree planting.

The southern camps are called "C" Camps ("C" for Cowichan) while the northern Island camps are identified by the initial "Q" ("Q" for Quinsam). Green Timbers, Cowichan and Quinsam are all tree experimental stations. Quinsam operates a forest nursery as Green Timbers, although not to as large an extent.

The work includes snag falling, reconditioning of old railroad grades, bridge and culvert building, tree nursery work, blazing fire trails, stringing telephone lines, guard duty on private Forestry roads, park development, besides camp establishment and maintenance.

Relieve Fuel Shortage

At present the boys are also making fire wood to releave the existing fuel shortage, chiefly with regards to the city of Vancouver which now numbers over a million inhabitants.

400 in Camps

To date 774 men have been assigned duties in the Forest Service, but at the present time only 400 remain in the camps, the balance having either obtained farm or sick leave or been medically discharged. The 744 men may be divided as follows: 203 from Alberta, 197 from Ontario, 144 from Manitoba, 129 from British Columbia, and 101 from Saskatchewan. Before coming to British Columbia, many were previously stationed for several months in camps in these provinces.

50 cents per Day

The current rate of all A. S. W. men is 50 cents per day. Many of the boys are married, some with children, but no extra allowance is made them. However, this is still better than with respect to C. P. S. men in United States. An exception is made in the case of cooks or straw bosses and some timekeepers and truck drivers, who either make 75 cents or $1.00 per day. The average campee makes no complaint of his wages, however, since he is prepared to make sacrifices for the privilege of living according to his non-resistant convictions.

Buy Own Clothes

The boys are required to buy their own clothing, although in the case of their Dry Bak outfits (comprised of hat, coat and pants besides logger boots equipped with calks) the Forestry pays half the cost. A complete outfit therefore costs a campee $8.60. Some of the boys are on their second pair of boots already. These outfits are particularly serviceable for rough usage and wet weather.

Camps Teach Thrift

Some church organiations are rendering various of their boys financial assistance. However, the majority manage to clothe themselves, look after incidental items, and pay for their transportation while on leave from what they make in camp. Circumstances have, therefore, taught many to be thrifty and economical.

Medical attention is paid for by the Forestry, a number of the boys having undergone tonsilitis, appendix, rupture, or other operations. An exception is made in the case of teeth to be filled—here the boys meet the expense. While we are on the subject of medical care, we might state that, unless a conscientious objector is in "E" category, he will not be medically discharged. This category is considerably lower than that set for army entrainees.

Tithe Wages

In spite of small wages, the boys in the A. S. W. camps have manifested their sympathy and love for those in Europe who are suffering because of the injustices of war by raising sums of money to relieve the war sufferers. Money has also been given for such commendable work as the support of fundamental radio broadcasts and the purchase of Bibles and Testaments for the men in the active forces.

(To be continued next week)

TWO PRAYERS

"Last night my boy confessed to me
Some childish wrong;
And, kneeling at my knee,
He prayed with tears:
'Dear God, make me a man like
Daddy—wise and strong:
I know you can.'

"Then, while he slept, I knelt Beside his bed,
Confessed my sins, and prayed
With low-bowed head;
'O God, make me a child
Like my child here—
Pure, guileless, trusting Thee
With faith sincere.' "

THE FAMILY IN THE CHURCH

Ever since our congregation has started worshipping in our new building we have suggested the custom of having families sit together in the worship service in the church. While this may not be practical for every situation it has some definate values: (1) It strengthens family ties to worship God together. (2) It reminds parents of the responsibility of bringing the whole family to church. (3) It usually makes for better order in the worship service.

CIVILIAN PUBLIC SERVICE

A Sailor Meets C.O.s.

Through the kindness of relatives, we have a story about a sailor lad who, while on shore leave, got in touch with some C.P.S. men who are in a special service. The exact location of the C.P.S. Unit which was contacted was not given in the letter, but it was rather obvious that these folks met in Puerto Rico.

This boy indicates he was greatly impressed with the type of service being done by our men. A quotation from his letter will clearly evidence this. "So with a prayer of grateful thanks I ended my second day of vacation."

As of July 31

Items of significance and general interest taken from July 31 Month End Report to Mennonite Central Committee members:

1. July donations to Civilian Public Service from cooperating groups, $60,076.97.
2. Total C.P.S. expenditures for July, $56,334.08.

This is good news from those who have crossed dangerous waters. It is hoped that these brethren can visit Ethiopia to survey needs and possible opportunities for relief effort there.

Bennett to Sail

Brother Ernest Bennett is expecting to sail this week for England. He goes as a Special Relief Commissioner for the Mennonite Central Committee to review the work which is being done in England. Beyond this, Brother Bennett with the workers now on the field, will attempt to lay the broad plans for expansion in the future when conditions warrant. Prayers are solicited for a safe journey and for a fruitful service abroad.

Janzen Reports

The most recent letter from Brother A. E. Janzen from Paraguay indicates that he has concluded his work of debt adjustment in the Fernheim Colony. He is very well pleased with the progress of this task and indicates frequent opportunities for personal counsel and for a spiritual ministry.

Brother Janzen continues his mission in Friesland Colony, East Paraguay and also will visit the Mennonite Colony in Brazil.

—Mrs. Ola Moser, who was a member of the famous Westminster Choir during the first European tour and who has appeared on the radio with the Frigidaire and other commercial programs, will give a musical concert for the First Mennonite Church, Wadsworth, Ohio, on August 29. Mrs. Moser is a native of Bluffton where she attended the Ebenezer Mennonite Church.

—Deer Creek Mennonite Church, Deer Creek, Oklahoma: After our Bible study hour on August 8 our whole church enjoyed a social hour at the home of the pastor, Rev. Herbert E. Miller. The ice cream and cookies were a special attraction. Eleven young people were baptized on August 15. Every two weeks throughout the summer, our young people—divided into three groups—have been receiving Bible instruction, also spending part of the period singing. On the evening of August 22 they rendered a program.

—All new and renewal subscriptions for The Mennonite should be sent to The Mennonite Publication Office, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas. They should not be sent to the editor, for the editor then has to transmit them to the publication office, and this takes extra time and work.

—Miss Helen Graber, a Mennonite missionary among the Jewish people in Los Angeles and sister to the wife of Rev. Carl Landis, talked before the Sunday School of the First Mennonite Church, Berne, Indiana, on a recent Sunday morning and before the church on Sunday evening. The Berne Sunday School entirely supports Miss Graber in her work.

—Married: Wesley W. Bartel and Esther Jost, both members of the Johannesthal Mennonite Church, Hillsboro, Kansas. They are at home at 1095 Clarkson, Denver, Colorado. As a C.O., Brother Bartel works in a mental hospital in Denver.

—Brother and Sister Alfred Habegger visited the First Mennonite Church, Upland, California, recently.

—The Canadian Young People's Organization is making plans to purchase the Rosthern Experimental Farm, where they have had their last few retreats. It includes one section of land, six large bulidings a number of smaller buildings, an orchard, gardens, lawns, hedges, etc. They want to use it for an orphan home, Bible School, retreats, etc., also as a definite youth center. They think the price will be $20,000.00, but they hope to get it for a few thousand less if they can make a cash payment by the end of the year. Dorothy Dietz, Secretary-Treasurer of the Young People's Union of the General Conference reports that the young people of the Pacific District have decided to raise $100.00 for the project in case it materializes.

—Grace Mennonite Church, Dallas, Oregon: Eleven more united with the Grace Mennonite Church, making a new total of 233 members, with prospects of more to be received in the near future. All services are well attended and more room could be used to advantage. Missionary Alfred Habeggar spoke and showed slides on August 1. Our pastor has been giving a very timely series of messages on the Holy Spirit. They have been as follows: "The Personality and Reality of the Holy Spirit," "The Holy Spirit in the Believer," "Seeking a Bride (the special work of the Holy Spirit in this age)," "Spiritual Atmosphere." He illustrates the messages with sketches and charts, which is very delightful.

EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE NOTES

Ministers Retreat, The ministers of the Conference held a retreat at Men-O-Lan on August 10. Nearly all the ministers and their families were present. The meeting also served as a farewell to the Rev. E. J. Bohn and family who received a beautiful guest book from the Conference ministers. Box lunch was enjoyed in the dining hall at noon, and in the evening a camp fire service brought a unique day to a close.

Rev. Russell L. Mast, pastor of the Deep Run Mennonite Church, was elected as retreat chairman for 1944.

Mr. Willis A. Moyer, Harleysville, Pa., is the correct address of the Peace Committee Treasurer of the Eastern District Conference. Mr. Moyer requests that all those sending in money for the Peace Committee should address him as stated above. Another Mr. W. Moyer, has been receiving some money and often a week or so passes by before the money is in the hands of the treasurer. Mr. Moyer is a member of Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, Pa.

The Springfield Mennonite Church, Rev. Ward W. Shelly, pastor is issuing a neat little church bulletin with a very clear picture of the church on the cover page. Mr. Jacob Landis is the Deacon of the Church, and Ely R. Fretz is the Sunday School superintendent.

Philadelphia, First, The Rev. Horace DuBois occupied the pulpit on Sunday, August 1, in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. J. J. Plenert, who was at Men-O-Lan, as retreat chairman.

The East Swamp Church, Rev. Harold D. Burkholder, pastor, is remodeling the front of the church which will give them two more, much needed Sunday school rooms.

The Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, pastor of the Eden Church, Schwenksville, attended the New York Mennonite Fellowship, Wednesday evening, July 14. He also delivered the evening message in the Norristown Brethren Church, Sunday evening, August 8. —Howard G. Nyce, Conf. Corr.

Our Country Church

This article is by Bernice Goertz, a member of the Brudertal Mennonite Church. It was written for a course in Constructive English taken at Bethel College

It's not a magnificent structure—our church. It has no stained glass windows, towering spire, nor heavily carpeted corridors, and aisles. It is merely a small building with structure likened unto the character of the people who gather in its shelter to pay homage to their God. Here every Sabbath morning its members, composed mainly of simple country folk, gather to join in praise and adoration. Through the years these people have worked next to nature where they have become conscious of the beauty of their Creator.

The minister is not a man of eloquent speech, but his words are those of wisdom, spoken sincerely. His is not the boisterous oratory which often times removes much of the quiet meditation of a service. His sermon is given in a subdued and positive manner, so that it leaves a worthy impression upon its listener.

The very environment adds significance, especially, to those who come from neighboring towns to attend its services. It is surrounded by an open space of verdure, bordered by tall elms with friendly spreading branches. There are no places of business to molest or discolor the view, but instead there is the limitless blue of the heavens above and the refreshing view of the countryside all about it.

Directly across from the church, on the opposite corner of the crossing, is its small cemetery. Here, too, nature has added its beauty. The place of rest is a little knoll covered with grass and surrounded by trees planted long ago, perhaps, by one of the now departed. Only the stone markers give evidence of the presence and works of man.

Such is the picture of our country church—a typical country church—similar to many throughout the world which serve as havens to a God-fearing people.

PRAYER IN A COUNTRY CHURCH

I went to worship in a house of God,
Built with the loving hands and sturdy brawn,
Of those who fought the forest, turned the sod,
And planted here a nation; and the dawn
That saw the springing of the pregnant seed
Seemed close; I saw the rugged, tight-lipped men
And shrinking women kneel to tell their need
And their despair, and pray for strength again.

Dear God, who tempered forces that they fought,
And filled their church and land with hallowed peace,
Send peace to men; the peace that faith has wrought
Into these walls, give to the world, nor cease
To answer ancient prayers, and ours as again,
We pray for "peace on earth, good will to men."

BE PREPARED

"Getting ready" for school may mean the purchase of tablet, pencil, over-all, the sewing of dresses, visiting the dentist, or having tonsils removed. Most important, however, for those young people who attend the public schools is their spiritual preparation.

For Mennonite young people with certain Christian convictions public school life will be very critical this year. The thoughts and feelings of the majority will have to be disagreed with very definitely in certain instances. Add to this the fact that public school training is a secular matter, and you face a great need for which young people and youngsters must be prepared.

Such preparation is possible. A renowned missionary of today relates how as a young college student he always explored new fields of knowledge by going into them hand in hand with Christ. Education was not secular for him, but definitely Christian. We may not be able to list any glaring sins in our public school activity. But even though that should be true, there still is the secular emphasis that must be made up for or counteracted in some way. The public school does not generally teach religion. Therefore it is up to the home and the church to provide their students with a Christian motivation that will carry them through the many hours spent in school in such a way that God remains close and important to them. Students can be given a hearty spiritual breakfast, and a good spiritual lunch can be sent along with them. In the evening the new knowledge and the activities of the day can be discussed at the supper table in the light of Christ's spirit. The greatest achievement of all, perhaps, is to win the student to the desire that Christ be his intimate companion throughout the day. But in addition to this general approach there should be a clear definition of the specific doctrines held and plans and prayers made to uphold them when unpopularity threatens. Students can be greatly influenced as to the nobility and worthwhileness of Mennonite doctrines by parents who are such staunch upholders of the doctrines that they make them an integral part of their family conversation and their daily walk. Furthermore, parents and pastor can write a letter of good will to the school authorities, wishing them God's blessing and assuring them of their willingness to cooperate as far as possible. Rev. J. T. Neufeld of Chicago has made this a practice with very good results.

"Be prepared!" That is a good motto. Are your children prepared for the trials and temptations of public school life?—rw.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

J. W. Fretz

MENNONITE GIRL'S HOMES

We talk a great deal about the problems of our Mennonite young men. They are serious problems and worthy of our prayerful attention, but Mennonite girls face equally serious problems. If a girl is not needed in the family at home what is she to do to earn a living and be useful? Many have found opportunities to work in the cities. Often the first job that brought the girls to the cities was house work. Mennonite girls have been in great demand for this work in every city in America where they are known, because of their quiet, industrious, dependable habits.

What Happens?

Often, however, housework becomes tiresome and the girls seek other types of work where there are more people to meet, more pleasant things to do, better pay, and more limited hours of work. They may turn to factories, clerical work in stores, offices or as waitresses in restaurants. Whatever and wherever they work it generally means a denial of normal family life and social relationships with girls of their own tastes and teachings. It results in a certain type of loneliness in the midst of many people because they have so little in common with those around them.

Fellowship

In a very few of our larger cities in the United States and Canada, Mennonites have established centers where rural girls working in cities can meet regularly for periods of fellowship and study and, in some cases, actually live there. This is a splendid service our churches are rendering, but only a beginning has been made. Looking after the welfare of our young people who go to the cities is a legitimate form of missionary enterprize, all too long neglected by the Christian Church. It is money well spent to buy a city property, engage a consecrated Christian man and women on a whole or a part time basis to establish a home for working girls in the cities. A home where girls may live in a wholesome environment, or if they live in private homes, a place where they may come regularly to fellowship with other girls and receive religious instruction.

This program, more thoroughly developed, would return numerical and spiritual dividends to the Mennonite Church. It is not the Church's duty to police its young people but rather to guide, teach and serve them. The establishing of more girls homes in our cities gives the Mennonite Church such an opportunity.

"When you kill time remember that it has no resurrection."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

AROUND MAUHADEI

The second place in our India mission field where hopeful things are happening is Mauhadei. That area yields favorably to the Gospel call. It could be still better. Let us pray for richer developments.

Quite recently we made a tour under the hot sun for a few days. We were stopped seven miles short of Mauhadei at Tal Deorie. The laborers were all busily engaged in putting the finishing touches to the new church. Quickly all were asked to wash and get ready for a service. The four baptism candidates were gotten ready and their six children for blessing. In an hour's time the service ended; these newly baptized rejoiced having displayed courage to testify their faith in Jesus Christ through baptism. Frequently this requires a good deal of venture, because generally persecution, etc. awaits them. The father of the young couple became furiously enraged that the children changed their religion and deserted their caste, so he tore off the roof of their dwelling house. It now looks as if a cyclone swept over the place. The poor man now has to gather somehow a little cash for the repairs. Where shall he secure that? Oh, Satan's anger rages when his subjects loosen his bands.

From here we proceeded to Mauhadei for the noon-hour to be shielded against the terrible heat; again for the night on the Ghoghra about fifteen miles southeast. A temporary bridge across the almost one-mile wide Mahanadi had considerable sand blown on it. Our car got stuck twice; it could be gotten out with great difficulty.

At Ghoghra the church nears completion. The three candidates for baptism had ulterior motives, and the ceremony had to be postponed. They were exceedingly poor, requested money. We intimated that salvation is not sold by the yard. All business was quickly disposed of.

The next morning we hurried to Beltikri, eight miles west. When the car was sighted from a distance, a messenger flagged us to stop. The entire church moved out to welcome us with appropriate songs, etc. The first intimation communicated was that eight candidates should be baptized just then and six children blessed. A beehive stir occurred. Hurriedly the candidates were summoned. A committee of three examined them. They were found eligible for baptism. The live-wire Kharia busied himself cutting the locks back of the heads of the men which have a heathenish significance. All heathenish signs are removed as far as possible before baptism is performed. Happily the Lord overcast the sky and let a soothing breeze come. During the noon-hour this significant service came to pass. The schoolhouse had been adequately replenished, so it was dedicated for a church. Both the baptism and dedication stirred the congregation of now over forty members with unspeakable joy. A general meal was served. Sister Wiens writes in January, "Now it is six years when we camped at Beltikri, not the slightest sign of any awakening could then be noticed!"

Then we returned to Mauhadei for a few days of business. On the bridge our car again stuck in the sand. Fortunately with the help of other travelers we could get it out without serious trouble as before.

On June 3 the new church at Tal Deorie could be dedicated. The members are actually exceedingly poor, a number must be placed on the starving list. They let their faces overstream with joy and praise to the Lord. With uplifted hands they exclaimed, "Oh, now we have our own house of worship." The angry father, spoken of above, tried to blur the happiness, but failed utterly in his effort. The son convincingly said, "I rejoice to have become a Christian; I shall never regret the step!" The funds to erect the church could fortunately be drawn temporarily from another fund. The Lord shall further supply the means to credit the deficit.

Besides the above joyous experiences others may be added. Tal Deorie sank a well which now has seven feet of water. Then the Beltikri congregation noticed their well giving out entirely. Some villagers offered their help to deepen the well, provided I would furnish the blasting powder. This was done. One day after going down another three feet, the Lord suddenly opened up several springs; the water gushed out. The next morning five and one half feet water were measured. The congregation mentioned this fact in their prayers specifically. The Ghoghra villagers have no wells whatever; when we started digging, they did discourage the enterprise utterly, even wanted to prohibit their folks to dig because they feared some bad omen. This well had at the time of our visit about four feet of water. How amazed the villagers stood there seeing that our effort was crowned with success. The Christians praised the Lord highly that He had manifested Himself thus.

These efforts all served three outstanding purposes: (1) To group the Christians into congregations to have a better chance edifying themselves when gathering; (2) To give them places for due worship; (3) To enable the desperately poor people to earn the major necessities of living. Most of them really wear no clothing, but have rags dangling around their loins. A famine-like condition prevails throughout the area, and will remain that way until a good harvest shall come and the prices for grain, etc. will change to the better. The conditions are certainly most pitiful.

"What has God wrought!" (In less than a year fifty-eight souls could be baptized and received into the church; four churches organized; two churches dedicated, the third nearing completion (the walls made of mud or unburnt bricks; two wells sunk successfully, the third made to supply abundantly. With Psalm 100 we ask the readers to join in, "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord—Serve the Lord with gladness—Know ye that the Lord He is God . . .Enter into His gates with thanksgiving . . . Bless His name!"

Yours as ever in Christ Jesus and His Kingdom,

ROBERT KREIDER IN SOUTH AFRICA

According to a card received from the A. E. Kreiders, Goshen, Indiana, "a cable has been received in Philadelphia that the China unit of eight has reached South Africa. The American Friends Service Committee has no word to report as yet on further plans for them."

DR. AND MRS. DELBERT PREHEIM TO GO TO PUERTO RICO

The M.C.C. has asked Dr. and Mrs. Delbert Preheim to go to Puerto Rico for health service. The first C.P.S. unit in Puerto Rico was supervised by the Church of the Brethren. Recently a Mennonite unit has been established there, and it is in this unit that Dr. Preheim will serve as a medical doctor and Mrs. Preheim as a trained nurse. They are to leave in September.

Brother Preheim belongs to the Salem Mennonite Church, Freeman, South Dakota. He attended Freeman Junior College and graduated from Bethel College in 1937. He received his M. S. degree from the University of Colorado Graduate School in 1940 and his M. D. from the University of Colorado School of Medicine in 1942. He has a IV-E classification.

Mrs. Preheim is a trained nurse and is a member of the large Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas. She is the former Mary Ann Goering.

DR. AND MRS. JOHN R. SCHMIDT TO LEAVE FOR PARAGUAY IN SEPTEMBER

Dr. and Mrs. John R. Schmidt will leave for Paraguay sometime in September according to present plans. They will leave by plane from New Orleans. With them will go Dr. and Mrs. G. S. Klassen of Hillsboro, Kansas.

Dr. and Mrs. Schmidt, the former Clara A. Regier, were united in marriage on August 25. Mrs. Schmidt is a member of the First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, and was a member of this year's graduating class of the School of Nursing of the Bethel Deaconess Hospital. Brother Schmidt is a member of the Alexanderwohl Church.

These four workers are going under the auspices of the M.C.C. Brother Schmidt is to serve as physician and Brother Klassen as dentist. The latter plans to serve for one year. Writing in the Hillsboro Journal he says, "In Paraguay, South America, where we are going, are many people of our 'own household of faith' who have been very unfortunate in a number of ways. One of the ways is that they have not had regular dentistry for the twelve years they have been there. I, therefore, am offering my services to them for one year without a salary . . . We will live in a house by the side of a path through the jungle, no modern conveniences. We will perhaps drive an ox team instead of a late model car. We will live like they live whom we are to serve." Dr. Schmidt is well known to many of the people of our General Conference and to others as well, having already served as doctor to the Mennonites in Paraguay under the auspices of the M.C.C. He has contributed a very interesting series of articles to The Mennonite and has assured the editor that there will be some more of them in the future.

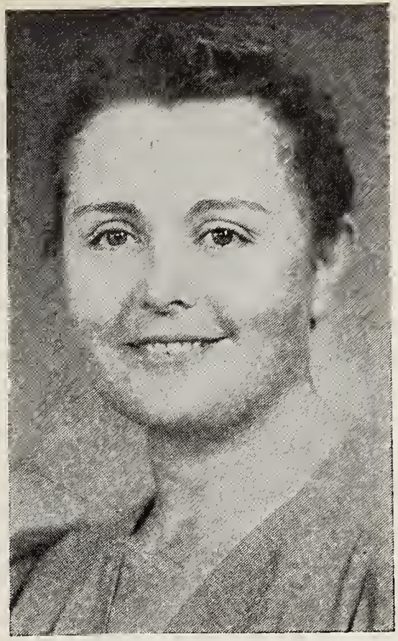
SAM GOERING ARRIVES AT BUENOS AIRES

Brother Sam Goering and J. D. Graber left Lima, Peru, on August 6 for Buenos Aires, according to a letter received by Mrs. Goering. The letter was mailed from Buenos Aires, indicating that the two Mennonite relief commissioners to China arrived safely at Buenos Aires. Brother Goering related that they had had a shorter stop-over in Lima, Peru, than expected. High mountains must be crossed as one travels from Lima to Buenos Aires. Flying at such a high altitude makes it necessary for the passengers to utilize the oxygen supply carried in the plane. Brother Goering describes his experience with this as follows:



Mrs. G. S. Claassen

"This is one place where it is O.K. to keep my mouth open. It helps to relieve the pressure on the ear drums. The purser has just put an oxygen tube into my mouth so I have to keep it shut anyhow.

"Whenever we feel drowsy we take oxygen by pressing a button. I tried myself out and know what it means to pass into oblivion. Things become blurred before one's eyes and large drops of sweat come out on the forehead and hands, and you know unless you press the button—the oxygen button—you'll either faint or fall asleep. As you take the oxygen the drowsiness leaves you, the vision clears, and you soon feel better again."

"I hope the plane into China has oxygen. They say the drowsiness does not really hurt one. But I prefer to go to sleep the natural way. Just now I am taking a lot of oxygen and am wondering whether a person can get too much of it.

"We are passing over high mountains. Hidden in the valleys below are villages surrounded by green fields. We are nearing Lapaz, and I hope I can mail the letter there, for it is the highest capital in the world. (This letter was written just previous to the one mailed from Buenos Aires.) We are just putting on our straps because it is bumpy on account of the mountain currents."

NOTE: After the above article was set in type, additional news was received from Mrs. Goering. A letter sent off on August 12 relates that Brother Goering was writing on board ship and that they expected to sail from Buenos Aires that same night or the next morning for their destination in Africa. The trip was expected to last fifteen days. So if all goes well Brother Goering should be in Africa by the time this appears in print.

A LABOR UNION WITH GOD

We and God should work together—be co-workers. The work of our hands becomes a holy adventure if done first of all and above all for God's sake. If our work can be done for God and is done for Him, then we have a better opportunity to realize the significance of it as we try to visualize it in the whole of God's great plan. Our work cannot be distasteful labor if we work unitedly with God. God and we should work together every day.—rw.

Public Service In Russia

After The Revolution

By Cornelius Krahn

We remember that in Russia, World War I ended with the Bolshevist Revolution. (See the issues of February 2, June 8, and June 22, 1943.) In this article we will describe Public Service after the Revolution. First of all let us consider the new status of the C.O.'s.

The Status of the C. O. After the Revolution

Before the Revolution the Mennonites of Russia had all been exempted from military service for more than 100 years. This special privilege was discontinued. The Soviet government did not exempt religious groups and denominations as a whole but gave individuals the right to appeal to court for hearings. Could the C. O. convince the court that he could and would not participate in war then he was usually freed from military service. At this time each individual who objected to war could be freed. A decree of 1926 states that this right is granted to all persons "who through birth and education belong to families of sects which forbid and forbade a service of weapons before 1917." Gradually the liberal policy was changed and it again became much easier for a member of a historic peace church to be freed from military service than for persons of other or no church affiliation.

When the writer appealed to the court for exemption during that time he was freed on the grounds that he belonged to a peace church which had migrated from Holland to Germany and from there to Russia because of its belief in the principle of nonresistance and because the life of the applicant was found to be in harmony with this principle.

The religious groups from which most C.O.'s came were the Mennonites, Baptists, Evangelicals, and the followers of Count L. N. Tolstoy. The Baptists and Evangelicals were Protestant Christians which resulted from a revival in the Greek Catholic Church of Russia before and after World War I. Through the influence of the New Testament, the Mennonites, and Tolstoy they became the most loyal followers of Christ with regard to the principle of non-resistance. Count L. N. Tolstoy, one of the greatest Russian writers who died in 1910, was converted to Christ's simple way of life. He gave up his wealth and friends and tried to live up to the standards of the Sermon on the Mount. The principle of non-resistance became the heart of his philosophy of life. Before and after the World War he had many followers among both the lower and higher classes, among peasants and intellectuals.

The secretary of this great writer and pacifist, a man by the name of Chertkoff, was instrumental in founding an agency in Moscow after the Revolution to help all C.O.'s. This "United Council of Religious Organizations and Groups" kept in close touch with the government agencies and carefully studied the decrees affecting the religious life of the country and the principle of non-resistance. The organization was of great help to thousands of Christians and C.O.'s in a time of transition. During this time there was comparative freedom especially for those groups and churches which had been persecuted by the Czarist government.

Russian Mennonite C.O.'s in 1930

In 1930 there were still some Mennonite C.O.'s in Soviet Russia who were permitted to do civilian work in lieu of military service. Because of their non-resistant convictions the above group was freed from military service and asked to do forestry service. The above group worked in Siberia where they engaged in the manufacture of turpentine.

The Work of the C.O.'s

In 1927 the Central Executive Committee announced the following: "Citizens who have been freed from military service because of their conscientious objection and who have passed physical examinations are to be used to fight epidemics or to do work of similar general importance (fire fighting, etc.) in peace time, and to serve in special units for noncombatant work during war." The Commissariat of Interior and the local organizations of the Republics of the Soviet Union were made responsible for their work.

From this decree and others we see that the range of work was very wide. Because of this and the fact that scattered local authorities were in charge, the Civilian Public Service work did not develop to the big scale we have seen in the forestry and sanitary work during the first World War. C.O.'s carried on many types of work but always in small groups. This work in small groups far from their home communities and under constant attack and ridicule by trained Communistic propagandists had a certain purpose. It was to undermine their principles and convictions. Wonderful opportunities were promised to them if they would join the Soviet Army while as C.O.'s their fate became increasingly more unbearable. Let us illustrate this: Around 1930 one of the units of C.O.'s worked in Moscow under conditions as described above. When they were expected to sign up for the regular army most of them remained faithful. Consequently, they were sent to the Baikal Lake in Siberia to build bridges. There they had to work hard without sufficient food. During the late hours of the day they went into the harvest fields to gather a few heads of grain to prepare a meager meal. How glad they were to receive some packages of good wholesome food from friends! These gifts and the words of encouragement and prayers of friends gave them strength to remain steadfast in their testimony for Christ.

A LITTLE LIE

"A little Lie was born one morn,
A feeble fib so white and small
It seemed too weak a thing to live,
Too innocent to count at all.

"But ev'ry minute gave it strength
By noon it had begun to talk;
By nightfall it was on its feet
And crookedly began to walk.

"Another morn it was full-grown
And making many friends, forsooth;
Another night, and it was wed—
For reputation—to a Truth.

"And from this union soon were born
Half-truths that nevermore would die;
For nothing is so hard to kill
As half a Truth and half a Lie.

"So thus, one feeble little Lie
That someone told without a qualm
Lives on and on and multiplies,
An endless wrong, to endless harm!"

CORRECTION

The amount of $463.48 credited to the Newport Mennonite Church in the relief column of the last supplement to "The Mennonite" should have been credited to the Menno Mennonite Church, making the total amount of that church $945.65 and the per member average $6.52. The revised total for the Newport Church is $89.58, and the per member figure is $1.38.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Waldo J. Flickinger, Pretty Prairie, Kansas

SEPTEMBER 9—"Horror hath taken hold upon me because of the wicked that forsake thy law." Ps. 119:53.

A burden because of the wickedness in the earth, is sadly lacking in the hearts of Christians today. Oh that the iniquity of the wicked would make us tremble as we think of the "dishonor done to God, of the gratification given to Satan, and the mischief done to the souls of men." But more than that, terror should take hold of us as we think of the ultimate consequences to the sinners themselves in the judgment that is to come. God hates sin, and it should be a monstrous and horrible thing to all those that are His.

SEPTEMBER 10—"I am a companion of all them that fear thee, and of them that keep thy precepts." Ps. 119:63

It is good to choose for our companions such that love the Lord, for the sake of our own personal welfare. But it is even better, as the Psalmist did, to be a companion to all that fear him. This implies that our love and friendship for certain ones should be motivated, not by what they are, but by what we see of God in them. I will love and companion with everyone who loves my Lord and keeps His precepts. We should not only take of such to be our companions that fear God, but we should be companions to all such that fear and honor Him.

SEPTEMBER 11—"Before I was afflicted I went astray: but now have I kept thy law." Ps. 119:67.

Here we are shown at least on reason why affliction comes upon us. It is while living in ease and comfort, in peace and plenty, that we forget Him from whom all blessings flow, that we begin to rely upon ourselves and soon go astray. It is then that the Lord, in mercy, draws a halt on us with reigns of affliction and slowly but firmly directs us into paths of righteousness. Yes, in mercy, because the heart is desperately wicked, and would continue in sin, were it not for God's mercy. The Psalmist says, "I know . . . that thou in faithfulness hast afflicted me."

SEPTEMBER 12—"It is good for me that I have been afflicted." Ps. 119:71

"Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous," but David was able to speak experimentally when he said, "It is good for me." It has been good for saints throughout the ages, and certainly we must admit that, although not joyous for the present, it would serve to our eternal good. It would be beneficial for us to be purged from all dross, and to be brought into complete and unreserved subjection to the will of God. The real object of a father in chastening a son is not that he find pleasure in the child's pain, but that both may enjoy the peaceable fellowship that issues from the ordeal.

SEPTEMBER 13—"Oh how love I thy law. It is my meditation all the day long." Ps. 119:97.

Do I bear this testimony? David was hardly able to express the depth of his love. "Oh how love I thy law." Do I love the Word of God more than all else that I have? But not only did David testify to this fact, but he exercised the proof of it. He not only read the Word at night, but he digested it during the day and allowed it to become a part of himself. That, which I extremely love, will I allow to occupy my thoughts and to influence me in my daily occupation.

SEPTEMBER 14—"Accept, I beseech thee, the freewill offerings of my mouth, Oh Lord." Ps. 119:108.

David earnestly prays for the acceptance, not of the offerings of his labors, nor of his purse, but of his mouth. "And when they began to sing and to praise, the Lord set ambushments against the children of Ammon . . ." II Chron. 20:22. If we would cheerfully and abundantly praise the Lord, He would do great things for us. We are too prone to accept the many blessings that come from His hand as a matter of course. "I will bless the Lord at all times; his praise shall continually be in my mouth."

SEPTEMBER 15—"I have hoped for thy salvation." Ps. 119:166.

Do you hope in your own strength and in your own works? Or is your hope in the salvation of the Lord? Remember, he has accomplished it, he has done all. He is sufficient for our every need. If his salvation is our hope, it will raise us up above the world and bear us up under all our burdens; it will allay all our fears, and help us to be staunch and steadfast in the face of darkness and danger. His salvation is not only temporal, but eternal. It is not only deliverance from evil, but promises us an abode in his presence throughout eternity.

GIVE THYSELF

Dr. E Stanley Jones has compared the religions of the world with Christianity as follows:

Greece said: Be moderate—know thyself.
Rome said: Be strong—order thyself.
Confucianism said: Be superior—correct thyself
Buddhism says: Be disillusioned—annihilate thyself.
Hinduism says: Be separated—merge thyself.
Judaism says: Be holy—conform thyself.
Mohammedanism says: Be submissive—bend thyself.
Modern materialism says: be industrious—enjoy thyself.
Modern dilettantism says: Be broad—cultivate thyself.
Christianity says: Be Christlike—give thyself.

Experiences Which Make Up a Retreat

"Evaluate the Retreat" read an editorial note in a July issue of The Mennonite. But who can enumerate the blessings of a morning meditation with a wren as a soloist, or of a campfire in a tree-fringed clearing? Who can place a valuation mark upon that sacred moment, when in the stillness of a night watch, a young girl places her hand in yours, and under the conviction of the Holy Spirit says, "I know I should have accepted Christ long ago, and I want to take Him as my Saviour tonight." These are RETREATS!

The place is Men-O-Lan, sacred to us because it is our own Bethel—where we meet God. After three years of retreats at Men-O-Lan, we can say, like Jacob, "This is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven."

On Thursday, July 22, 109 high school retreaters, brimming over with the zest of living, arrived at Men-O-Lan. The evening was spent in fellowship and closed with a campfire address by Rev. Freeman Swartz. Regular camp routine started on Friday, and included classes based on the retreat theme, "Christ Calls." Rev. Delbert Welty taught a course on "Christ Calls to Personal Christian Experience and Growth;" Rev. Paul Wenger, missionary to India, taught "Christ Calls For Christian Action;" and Mr. Joseph Byler, member of the Mennonite Central Committee and foreign relief worker, taught "Christ Calls for Christian Citizenship in Nation and World." Rev. Harold Burkholder led the singing, assisted by Mrs. J. J. Plenert. Rev. Ernest Bohn spoke at the Friday evening camp fire, and Rev. Russel Mast on Saturday evening. The vesper services were in charge of Mrs. Paul Wenger.

The High School Retreat ended with an address by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander on Sunday afternoon, and in the evening a group of 109 juniors gathered for the first junior retreat of the Eastern District Conference. Here was boundless energy to be directed, an amazing thirst for knowledge to be satisfied, and appetites that kept the cooks working at top speed. They proved to be worthy retreaters and weathered a severe thunderstorm on the first night in camp. The next four days were crammed full of activities that had the leaders on their toes to keep pace with the energy of the juniors. The morning was occupied with classes. There was a Bible study by Miss Catherine Niswander, which gave a birds-eye view of the Bible with flannelgraph, charts, and pictures; a missions course by Mrs. Paul Wenger; and a story period by Miss Grace Moyer. After a rest period, the afternoon was filled with handwork and recreation. Some of the boundless energy was harnessed to the benefit of Men-O-Lan. The juniors contributed to Men-O-Lan by improving paths, clearing underbrush, cleaning up around the cabins, and improving appearances generally. The competition between cabins became so strong to see whose could look neatest, that the leaders who inspected each morning were at a loss to decide which cabin should be mentioned as best. Rev. Paul Wenger had charge of the vesper services, and camp fire speakers included Rev. Neuenschwander, Dr. Ella Bauman, and Rev. Burkholder. Rev. Welty gave the closing address on Thursday afternoon.

The juniors left behind them a group of leaders who were tired, but who felt assured that every minute had been well spent, and that there could never again be a retreat without some provision for juniors too.

On Friday evening, July 30, the Senior Retreat met at Men-O-Lan. There were eighty-nine seniors present, making a total of 307 retreaters at the three 1943 retreats. Rev. Welty taught the main course, using the same topic he used at the high school Retreat. There were three elective courses. Rev. Wenger and Mr. Byler taught the same courses at the High School Retreat, and the third was a course on "Christ Calls to Church Loyalty and Fellowship" taught by Rev. Sylvan Lehman. High light of the Senior Retreat was the Lord's Supper on Sunday morning, with Rev. Ernest Bohn in charge. On Saturday night there was a panel discussion on Mennonite Principles by the retreat leaders. Vesper and camp fire speakers included Mr. Byler, Rev. Krehbiel, and Mrs. Wenger. The closing message was delivered by Rev. Burkholder, our song leader.

Those leaders present for all three retreats included Rev. Plenert, our Retreat Chairman; Mr. Walter Temple, genial camp director; and Dr. Ella Bauman, the indispensible camp doctor. Poison ivy, insect bites, and other camp casualities, were almost welcomed by retreaters because they provided an excuse for another visit with Dr. Ella.

There couldn't be a retreat without food, and we had good food in abundance. One appreciative junior, when asked what he liked most about this year's retreat and what he would suggest as an improvement for next year, replied, "What I liked most—eats. What I want next year—more eats." Yes, retreat satisfied the physical as well as the spiritual. Credit for the fine accomodations goes to the board of managers of Men-O-Lan, of which Rev. Olin Krehbiel is chairman. All thanks and praise for good meals goes to Mrs. Krehbiel who planned the meals and prepared them with the aid of ladies from the various churches.

On a rough calculation, this year's 307 retreaters spent a total of 23,000 hours at Men-O-Lan. We believe that the seed has fallen on good ground. Only God knows the extent of the harvest.

Youth Gathering of the Mennonite Church in Paraguay

What a sad state of affairs is noticeable in the world today! This one abuses that one, and another finds fault with the actions of a third one, and so it goes. We rejoiced greatly when we heard of a Mennonite youth-gathering which should take place in our church. We all were eager to come together to be lifted out of the everydayness into nobler heights of the spirit. May 30 was set as the time for our gathering and all who were out of school up to twenty-five years of age, whether they were members of our church or not were included in the invitation. The place of meeting was in the pleasant yard of our beloved Elder Abraham Harder, in Philadelphia. On account of the heavy rains only about half of the group was able to be present at the meeting. We felt privileged and were certain a blessing was in store for us, for had not the Lord Jesus once said, "where two or three are gathered in my name there am I in the midst of them?"

Because of the constant downpour, the meeting was convened at a later hour and not in the yard as planned, but in the home of Rev. Harder who conducted the opening worship service with song and prayer. A poem, "Springtime" was presented and indeed it was most appropriate, since the time of youth and springtime in nature have much in common. The special devotional service for the younger members of the group had to be omitted, because only very few could come.

The paper entitled, "Church Hymns during the Thirty Year War, 1618-1648" was read. Hymns like these were treated: "O God Thou Gentle God" by Joh. Herman; "Now Thank We All, Our God" by M. Rinkart; "Remain with us with Thy Grace" by J. Stegemann, and a number of other devotional and spiritually uplifting hymns were studied. Mention was also made of the value of the beautiful chorales that came to us out of the Reformation period. The value of nature and folk-songs was also pointed out as a means of inspiration for better things. On the contrary, a true child of God should never be able to find any delight in the questionable street-songs (Jazz). In the open discussion that followed many things are objectionable to the true Christian spirit were mentioned, and we were encouraged to take a stand against these whenever opportunity presented itself.

Teacher Peter Wiens delivered an address in which he showed us the development of our Mennonite Church in Russia up to the great exodus to the Americas and the causes of this emigration. This opened up historic facts that were new to many of our young people and it has helped us to understand our ancestors much better.

Dinner and Afternoon Session

The noon-day meal was enjoyed in picnic fashion. Each one present received a remembrance in the form of a beautiful card with a significant proverb or verse of poetry. The noon period was filled with visiting, songs and laughter, under cover since out door games were impossible. An offering was received to defray the expenses of the meal, and because many could not come, the food that was left over, such as cakes and potato salad, was sold.

A paper entitled "Honor" was presented by Teacher D. Boschmann. Honor, how much this word involves! Do we give proper honor to God, to our neighbor, to our parents, our public officials, and to our church? Each one desires honor. Too little consideration is given to others, and their convictions, but our own ought to be respected! There needs to be a change, and it must start in each one of us.

With song and prayer by Teacher Boscherman and a beautiful poem the youth-gathering came to an end. It was a pleasant fellowship where we could learn to know each other better and take with us many helpful thoughts. Our hope and wish is that we might have more gatherings like this in the future. Vernon Schmidt, who was also with us, took a picture of our group to aid us in recalling a pleasant day.

Leaves Granted

Each campee gets an annual leave of two weeks, no time or fare deductions allowed for travel. This means that a boy from Ontario must pay over $100.00 for scarcely a week at home. Week end leaves from Saturday morning till Sunday night are granted usually once a month. Generally speaking, those from cities make most of this privilege. The men from the farm are more accustomed to the quiet uneventful camp life, which, in most cases, excludes the campees from fellowship with the outside world.

Seldom is a pass of any kind granted during fire season, May 1st to October 1st, unless this dry season is intervened by a day of "liquid sunshine," which reduces the fire hazard to a minimum. It is true that, in this country, the sun shines often during our frequent rains. Preference in week end leaves is given married men whose wives often live near or in the nearest village or city, where they are able to get work. Quite a number of the young married men, since coming West, have sent for their wives, the farthest of which come three thousand miles to be with their husbands occasionally.

During March and April a considerable number of boys returned to farms in their own provinces, application for farm leave having been made through their divisional registrar. Since then, all applications must be filed through the Regional Alternative Service Officer, in the case of British Columbia, Mr. C. S. Henley, Vancouver. This officer is appointed by the National Selective Service. Boys are now placed on B. C. farms, and, if married, their wife assists too in the farm work. Farm allocation is thus to be desired by the married men.

Instead of $15.00 per month as in camp, on the farm $25.00 per month is made, board supplied, and the balance of the prevailing wage must go to the Red Cross Society.

Volunteer Relieve Suffering

Many of the campees have willingly volunteered for non-combatant service, chiefly the relieving of human suffering in Europe and China. But till now, the military set up is such that its organization does not include strictly non-combatant units.

Talents Varied and Many

The boys are from all walks of life, some of which we will mention. Farmers lead; then we have the professional men as bankers, salesmen, school teachers, dentists, medical men, office employees and managers, business executives, auditors, clerks, jewelers, printers, also ministers of the gospel, truck drivers, mechanics, paint sprayers, cheese makers, carpenters, telephone linesmen, loggers and from various manufacturing industries, not to mention university and college students, some with degrees.

Denominations Many

The Mennonites lead in denominations represented, which are indeed many. It might be interesting to note those that come to my mind, without mentioning at least fifteen different kinds of Mennonites. In many cases, objection to military training is not a doctrinal point with the churches these boys represent, rather it is a matter of personal conviction entirely.

We have the following—Lutheran, Two by Two, C. & M. Alliance, Free Methodist, Apostolic, Sabbotarian, Seventh-day Adventist, Brethren in Christ (Tunker), Nazarene, Plymouth Brethren, United Church of Canada, Society of Friends (Quaker), Philosopher, Megiddo Mission, Father Divine, Church of the Emmissary of Divine Light, Church of England (Anglican), Church of Christ (Disciple), Occult, Roman Catholic, Hutterian, Greek Orthodox, Church of God (Mennonite), Baptist, Dukobor and Christian Assembly, not to mention various interdenominational churches. So, you see conscientious objection, nonresistance, and pacifism are by no means limited to a few religious groups. We understand that in one camp the boys average only two to a denomination.

Camps Develop Character

Yet, these campees who, in some cases, differ widely in certain doctrine, live and work peacefully, side by side, and are able to enjoy each other's fellowship. There is a certain mutual sympathetic understanding with rare exceptions. If we cannot appreciate the other's view point, at least we show gentlemanly tolerance and agree to disagree in an agreeable manner. Camp life also teaches one to get along in a friendly way with those of a different tempermental makeup and disposition. Therefore, camp life is character building, as it begets the foremost virtue of "love," which, made perfect, is the acid test of true Christianity.

Meetings Held Regularly

No clergymen are stationed at any one camp, but those officially appointed make their rounds from camp to camp, so that a visit is expected on the average of once in two weeks. However, the boys in each camp elect their own religious organization, appointing a religious director who seeks to look after the spiritual needs of his fellow campees, and calls services of fellowship and worship from time to time. These services are held daily in some camps and consist of preaching, Christian endeavor, Sunday School, prayer meeting, and Bible discussion.

Some of the boys have musical ability and such instruments as guitars, harps, violins, and brass are an assistance in the meetings. Most camps have a good male quartet or choir and a capable song leader. Programs are often arranged in which all have an opportunity to participate. Those with little or no experience are encouraged, and some dormant talents have been discovered. These meetings know no denominational barriers, for in knowing Christ as our own personal Saviour, we are all one in Him. Singing is engaged in heartily, in fact, we have heard some of the best male vocal arrangements since coming to camp. Those who were timid from the first now sing out lustily.

Visiting Ministers

The appearance of a visiting minister in camp is always heralded joyfully. Such are often times of real spiritual uplift. Some make the rounds of the camps only once; others stay in our midst for three or even six months.

One minister in his itinerancy covers at least eight hundred miles in making a complete circuit, which he endeavors to make once a month. From the most southern camp on Vancouver Island at Langford to the most northern at Rock Bay the distance is over two hundred miles. Conditions are such that the minister must travel by car, by bus, by rail, by boat, and often many miles walking. During his six months' labor among these camps, Bro. Ed. Gilmore of Ontario traveled approximately 7,000 miles. Bro. D. H. Loewen of Manitoba made it 4,000 miles in four months.

These ministering brethren have been the following Isaac Toews, Swalwell Alta.; John Toews, Coaldale, Alta.; Jacob W. Nickel, Didsbury, Alta.; M. D. Stutzman, Kingman, Alta.; Edward Gilmore, Low Banks, Ont.; Ernie Swalm, Duntroon, Ont.; J. Harold Sherk, Gormley, Ont.; D. H. Loewen, Gretna, Man.; John M. Penner, Ste. Anne, Man.; David H. Neufeld, Mayfeld, Man.; David P. Reimer, Lorette, Man.; Geo. P. Priese, Winkler, Man.; Peter Funk, Gruenthal, Man.; Jacob A. Unrau, Rosenfeld, Man.; Jacob W. Friessen, Lowe Farm, Man.; J. B. Martin, Waterloo, Ont.; C. J. Ramer, Duchess, Alta.; Clifford Hallman, Didsbury, Alta.; W. W. Falk, Altona, Man.; C. F. Klassen, Winnipeg, Man.; Jacob F. Barkman, Steinbach, Man.; David Schultz, Altona, Man.; John I. Penner, Kleefeld, Man.; John Wiebe, Yarrow, B.C.; Nick Friessen, Black Creek, B. C.; John Adrian, Winkler, Man.; Jas. M. Finlay, Toronto, Ont.; Peter A. Toews, Altona, Man.; Peter Zacharias, Reinland, Man.; John Klassen, Vancouver, B. C.; J. B. Weins, Vancouver, B. C.; Peter P. Baerg, Rosenfeld, Man.

As campees, ourselves away from home, we trust that all of us are indeed appreciative of the personal sacrifice involved by each one of these ministers voluntarily leaving home and may we here express our heartfelt thanks to the families and the people of the parishes which each one respectably represents.

TRUE OF US?

"I know only too well how few members of the Society of Friends have any vital interest in the historical origins of their own faith and how even fewer there are who are ready to take the pains to discover what the central message of that faith meant to its founders. There are, however, a few who care intensely and there are many outside the fold who are interested in these issues, and there will continue to be a group of scholars who are eager for the truth in these matters." —Rufus M. Jones

WORTHY OF IMITATION

The General Conference is not meeting the quota requirement of $13,000 per month for the support of the C.P.S. program. Our church has far exceeded its quota but some churches have given nothing.So IT IS UP TO US WHO APPRECIATE THE OPPORTUNITY OUR GOVERNMENT HAS OFFERED OF ALTERNATE SERVICE IN WORK OF NATIONAL IMPORTANCE, AND WHO REALIZE THE BRAVE SACRIFICE OF MANY OF THESE BOYS, TO GIVE MORE THAN THE FIFTY CENTS PER MEMBER PER MONTH THAT IS NECESSARY TO MAINTAIN THE GENERAL CONFERENCE PART OF THE C.P.S. PROGRAM. 'Every blessing is an opportunity and every opportunity a challenge.' "

M.C.C. PREPARES PAMPHLET

A pamphlet, Must Christians Fight, about to come off the press is being published by M.C.C. This pamphlet contains some fifty often asked questions regarding the C.O. position. The pamphlet has been designed to answer a number of charges often made against the C.O. position by certain religious groups. It was felt a clear answer of these questions would be helpful for both sides. It is hoped the pamphlet will clear up some knotty questions for those who are C.O.'s but are confused.

How to Evaluate Foods Canned for the C.P.S.

The release for this week will be made up entirely by the following information from Brother John M. Snyder who is in charge of the arrangements for food-canning for our C.P.S. Camps.

Herewith is presented a schedule of prices for evaluating canned and dried foods contributed in the Canning and Drying Project. These prices in most cases are based on an average of wholesale prices paid at the camps as of April 1, or last preceding purchase. In some cases adjustments were made in consideration of changes in market conditions since that time. The purpose of evaluating these contributions is to provide a uniform basis for the camps in figuring their menu costs, as well as for issuing certificates and giving quota credit to those who request.

Receipt forms for use by collection centers in receiving contributions are on hand. All collection centers should be reported to the Akron office, with names of those in charge of receiving contributions and keeping records. If forms are not received promptly, please inquire for them.

CORRESPONDENCE

HEREFORD MENNONITE CHURCH

Bally, Pa.

The fifth annual Bible school came to a close today (August 15). It was again decided to hold the sessions once a week for six weeks instead of every day for two weeks. The school opened Thursday morning July 9, 1943, and ended August 12 with the children bringing their lunch and enjoying a picnic together for a few hours after dinner. The children seemed to be unusually interested and attentive this year. Mrs. Norman K. Berky had charge of the school together with three teachers, our minister, Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson, and five helpers.

There were ninety-one children enrolled of whom about twelve were visitors, attending only one or two sessions. The average attendance was seventy-three. There were seventeen pre-school, eighteen beginners, thirty-three primary and twenty-four juniors. There were forty-two who had perfect attendance and twenty-four who missed one session.

The primary children studied a mission course dealing with Central America. The two offerings, amounting to $26.26, are to be used for the spreading of the gospel among the Indian children of these countries. There was splendid cooperation between pastor, teachers, assistants, parents, and children.

The attendance at our regular morning worship services has been excellent. The same holds true for our Sunday School.

A beautiful wedding was held in our church on July 4 when Marian Hirsch of Barto was united in marriage with Staff Sgt. Chester W. Rohrbach. They are living at Gainsville, Texas, he being stationed at Camp Howze, Texas.

"The members of the Dorcas Society have taken it upon themselves to contribute to the Pension Fund for Missionaries. The quota per member is two cents a week, or $1.00 a year." The correspondent adds this: "Rev. and Mrs. Mullett are enjoying a two-week's visit from their son J. Lorrel and his wife, who have taken special training at Goshen College and will work in a state hospital at Ypsilanti, Michigan. To complete their family reunion they expect their daughter, Evelyn, Mrs. Emerson Niswander from New York City." This community has had much rain, seven inches at one time.

—At the Mountain Lake, Minnesota, young people's retreat the main speaker was Brother Olin A. Krehbiel from Lansdale, Pa. He taught a class on "Christian Patriotism." Brother J. J. Regier from Freeman, South Dakota, was director of music and taught a class in "Practical Christian Work." Brother and Sister August Ewert taught a class in missions. Brother Erland Waltner taught a class in Bible study. Jake T. Friesen, who served as an interne in the First Mennonite Church, Reedley, California, this summer, was president of the retreat.

—Brother Melvin Gingerich and family returned from Wayland, Iowa, on August 25. Brother Gingerich visited the C.P.S. units at Lincoln and Mount Pleasant and also the C.P.S. camp at Denison; at the latter place he spoke on Sunday morning and evening of August 22. He also reports a very enjoyable visit in the Soil Conservation Headquarters for the Northern Great Plains Region which is located in Lincoln.

—The West Swamp and Springfield congregations held Sunday School and the worship service at Men-O-Lan, the Eastern District Conference—owned Retreat grounds, on Sunday, August 15. After worship, each family spread their own picnic lunch and all had a grand time talking and eating together.

In the afternoon a dedication service was held for the leader's cabin just built this spring. The Brotherhood, composed of members of the West Swamp, Bethany, Springfield and Flatland Churches sponsored the furnishing of the means for the building of the cabin. The cabin is called "Ober-Shel" in memory of Reverend John H. Oberholtzer and Reverend A. B. Shelly, both former pastors of the Swamp Charge. A graphic summary of the life and ministry of Oberholtzer was given by Warren H. Oberholtzer, a relative of the conference leader. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, present pastor of the Swamp Charge gave an account of the work and accomplishments of Rev. A. B. Shelly. Rev. Ward W. Shelly, Coopersburg, pastor of the Springfield Congregation and descendant of Rev. John H. Oberholtzer, offered the dedicatory prayer.

On August 8 the Bethany and Flatland Churches held their worship and Sunday school services and a picnic at Men-O-Lan.

—Menno Mennonite Church, Lind, Washington: The bulletins from this church continue to be marvels of mimeograph work, and are the fruits of Mrs. Edmund Miller's efforts. Brother Miller is preaching a series on "Ten Rules for Living." Helen A. Penner, former relief worker, is expected to visit in the near future. Jacob Goering, assistant director and educational director of the C.P.S. camp at Lapine, Oregon, brought the morning message recently. Brother Goering used his furlough time to help in the harvest in this area and was largely responsible that the community could secure other C.P.S. men to help solve the labor problem. Eldon Unruh, son of Rev. P. D. Unruh of Newport, who is studying for the ministry, brought the message on August 15. August 22 was observed as Education Sunday. The service included the beautiful song from our Mennonite Hymnary entitled "Are Ye Able? Said the Master." The congregation sang the verse and the young people and children going to schools and colleges sang the chorus. Those who have left for Bethel College are: Viola Franz, Adelia Jantz, and Dorothy Schrag.

—Grace Mennonite Church, Albany, Oregon: On July 25 Albert Kliewer, a student in the Los Angeles Bible Institute, brought a message on "We Are Living Epistles." In the evening Rev. It is a "number in which words and music compliment each other producing a feeling of praise, adoration, and worship. The poem was written by the poet Ludwig Uhland whose poems are noted for their brevity, keen insight, and deep religious feeling. The music is composed by Conradin Kreutzer who wrote Lieder and Part Songs in which he displayed a flow of melody and good construction. Both Uhland and Kreutzer belong to the later Romantic period. Prof. Walter Hohmann's arrangment of "This is the Sabbath Morn" was originally intended for the Bethel College A Cappella Choir, and has been used for two seasons."

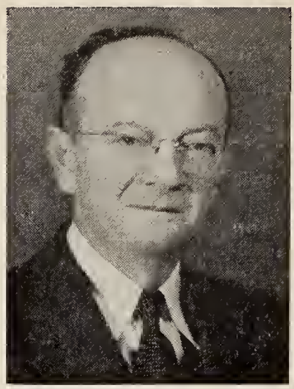
Rev. A. E. Kreider Now Pastor in Indiana



Rev. A. E. Kreider, who resigned as head of the Bible department at Bethel College to become pastor of the Eight Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana, has begun his work there. Brother Kreider began his excellent service at Bethel College in 1935. During that time he was also a member of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference. Brother and Sister Kreider are the parents of Robert Kreider who is on his way to China to do relief work there. The new address of the Kreiders is 605 South 7th Street, Goshen, Indiana.

—Word has come of the death of I. I. Bargen, old and well-known resident of Mountain Lake, Minnesota. At the time of his death Brother Bargen was still serving as Secretary of the Mennonite Aid Society, which position he held for many years. During his years of intense and varied activity he served as Principal of the Mountain Lake Public Schools, as county superintendent, as newspaper publisher, as postmaster, and as a Sunday school teacher in the First Mennonite Church of Mountain Lake for a period of fifty years.

—Ypsilanti Hospital has approved establishing a unit of fifteen C.O.G.'s (C.O. Girls) at the hospital. This unit will do regular work in the hospital as well as prepare for relief service during off-hours. Arrangements were made because of a demand among girls in the M.C.C. constituency for such service.

MENNONITE BIBLE ACADEMY

Only a couple more days and the carpenters and painters will move out of the renovated M.B.A. It will be a real nice, friendly, and clean place, ready for the young people to move in on September 3.

The administration looks forward to greet a goodly number of boys and girls who have indicated their desire to continue their high school education in connection with Bible training.

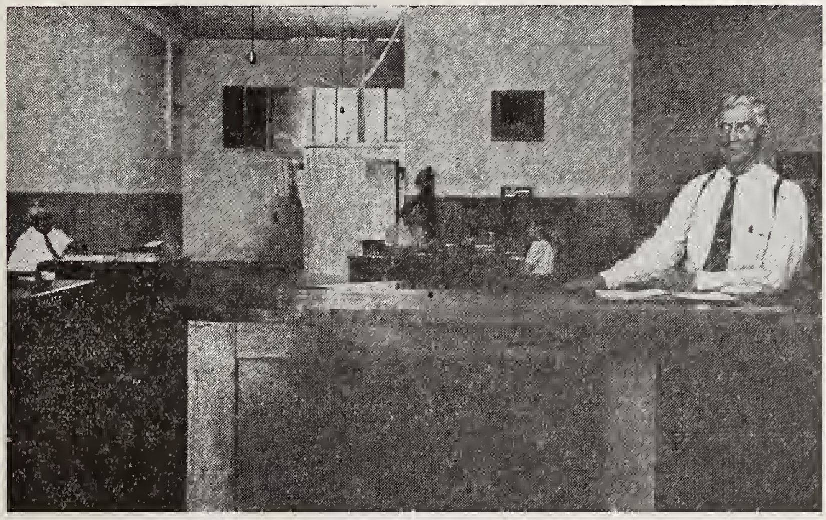
A Visit to Our Conference Headquarters



Standing at the business counter in the front of the headquarters building is Bro. J. M. Suderman, Manager of the Publication Office.

While in Newton, Kansas, we walk to 722 Main Street. The building has an attractive front. We enter and are cheerfully greeted by Rev. J. M. Suderman as he stands in back of the counter on and over which he does much of his work. Since we want to visit him later we walk on to the middle of the left wall.

P. A. Penner, Office Manager

Here behind the second large desk sits a white-haired man who has had a great many deep experiences in Chhistian living. The man is P. A. Penner who knows our churches very well and who is well known by them. He is indeed well fitted to be the Office Manager of our Conference Headquarters.

At his gracious request we are seated and discover that he has been writing the life story of a home-town friend who recently died. A daughter of the deceased requested that he do so. It is characteristic of this man of God to have time for the needs of each person that seeks his help.

He tells us that the main work of his office at present includes the following phases: (1) Receiving of all foreign mission funds and their entry in the books. During July 124 such contributions were recorded and 109 during August. (2) Sending a receipt or receipt with letter to each contributor. Perhaps, a contributor sends some money and then wishes to know whether that would be sufficient to support a native worker in India. Brother Penner may then have to write to India for information and also to the confributor. Much correspondence must to taken care of. (3) Filing of all letters received. There is a separate file for every conference church in the United States. (4) Remitting funds to all fields and people according to vouchers given to the office by the secretary and president of the Foreign Mission Board. Remittances to India are now made by cable and must be carefully worded.

Of course, Brother Penner has many other matters to look after. On many a Sunday he can be found preaching in some church. In addition to that he teaches at Bethel College during the week. Furthermore, he has been given permission to visit churches in various districts. In the future more of the General Conference Treasuries will very likely come under his care. After forty years of rigorous mission service this worker is still very busy. Mrs. A. T. Mueller of North Newton helps him part-time with the books and the correspondence and occupies the desk to his right.

The Publication Office

The Mennonite Publication Office was moved from its former place on West 6th Street to the new headquarters building when it was opened. Brother J. M. Suderman is the manager of the office. He has the welfare of the work much at heart and has had wide experience in teaching, in business, and in the ministry.

Ten hours a day is not, by far, enough time for the great amount of work that he must take care of, and so he often works late at night. In speaking of the correspondence that he has to do he says, "It is simply immense; it takes a big part of my time during the daytime to take care of the correspondence, and much of the rest of the work I have to do in the evening." The office used 6,000 envelopes last year. For our Senior Sunday School quarterly alone it must handle orders for 15,500 copies. Add to that thousands of individual subscriptions to our church papers that must be taken care of, and you have a total of detailed work that is tremendous. Mrs. Suderman is in the office a good deal of the time to help her husband with this large work load. Brother Suderman much appreciates the commodious quarters made possible by the establishment of the conference headquarters.

The Headquarters Building

Mrs. Elva Krehbiel Leisy, Dallas, Texas, daughter of the late Rev. H. P. and Matilda E. Krehbiel, made the headquarters possible by giving the building for it to the General Conference. One brother has made a liberal donation for the interior decoration of the room and for office equipment. Four shiny, brown desks grace the room. Others have helped, and undoubtedly others will help to complete the furnishings. A partition with windows forms the back of the room, for not the whole floor space is needed at present. To the right of that is the spacious vault. Projecting from the space between the vault and the partition is the room for board and committee meetings. A number have already been held in it. On the south wall is a substantial clock with these words on its face, "Be On Time." The clock was donated by Brother C. Van der Smissen who has been connected with our publication work for a great many years as editor of the Bundesbote, The Mennonite, the Kinderbote, and the German Sunday School quarterly. He suggested that the admonition to punctuality be put on the clock, and his ninety-five-year-old sister, Sister Hillegonda, did the neat printing on the sign.

A visit to the Headquarters of our General Conference leaves one with the impression of an attractive building and of important work being done. Stop in on your next visit to Newton.

Give Attendance to Reading

Everything that we admit into our homes has its effects, literature not excepted. The character of the literature admitted into our homes helps to form the character of the inmates of these homes.

A home blessed with Christian parents, with the Bible as the most cherished book in the home, with other literature that is in harmony with the standards of the Gospel, and kept clear of the kind of literature that helps to corrupt the mind and defile the soul, is not only fit for a dwelling place but is a wholesome training school where children grow up to become valiant soldiers of the Cross, faithful workers for the Lord.

On the other hand, where light, frivolous, trashy, fictitious literature (the average popular magazine, for instance) is allowed to have a prominent place in the home, it brings with it an atmosphere that is very detrimental to both children and parents, in that it blunts the moral sensibilities and fosters unscriptural standards and practices.

Another thing worth remembering is this: If you as parents are interested in bringing up your children for the Lord, loyal to God and the Church (to say nothing about your own life and influence), you want to see to it that your own church literature takes precedence over the literature of other churches or societies. Generally, where there is serious trouble in any home or community, there is literature in evidence that has served as an educator and a cause of such troubles. Your life, literature, and testimony should be in agreement with the life, literature, and testimony of your church.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

REPORT OF FIRST QUARTER, 1943

The past quarter has been just another demonstration of and experience of God's grace and provision. How can the poor people live and carry on in the face of such difficulties and high prices? In this we have seen God's hand. Many have found work at various places away from home. Somehow, there is work for everybody. The good rice crop and now the unusually good mauha crop (a kind of flower fruit of the mauha tree) all contribute to solve the problem of feeding the needy.

There have been many good things, as well as discouraging, about the church work. The church of some 270 members at Jagdishpur is badly in need of a full time Indian pastor. Last year I was away from home some months, being in Champa four different times, and in the hills over a month. This year we plan to go a shorter time in September and October. Last week I found it necessary to go to Calcutta for dental work. I am now in Champa while Mr. Mathai is taking his vacation. The medical work here is going on very well under his and Mrs. Ratzlaff's supervision. Their income last month was one thousand rupees, which is very good.

At Basna we are increasingly appreciating Dr. P. Sing-Roy's help and services. The work was unusually heavy the past quarter. We have insufficient wards and there was considerable congestion in the hospital itself. I plan to complete an addition of two wards which had been started some time ago. This is being done partly as relief work. I am also thinking of building an annex to the hospipital, including a general ward, several private wards, an obstetric unit, and several lesser rooms. I have even considered putting in the foundations as a relief project the coming rainy season.

In Calcutta last Sunday I attended the Carey church built in 1809. Being there early I spent about thirty minutes looking at the memorial tablets on the wall. One was in memory of William Carey, Joshua Marshman, and John Mack. The Bible verse was, "The righteous shall be had in everlasting remembrance." The tablet in memory of the Rev. Adoneram Judson, D. D. had these verses, "The field is the world." "The seed is the word of God." "As my Father hath sent me so send I you." Other names with their Bible verses were as follows; Rev. George Henry Hook, "A faithful servant of Jesus Christ." Mr. Hershell Dean, "The blessing of the Lord maketh rich." Rev. John Robinson, "He being dead yet speaketh." "They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars." Rev. James Thomas, "For my names sake thou hast labored and not fainted." "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the lord." Dr. Henry Wilkins, "The memory of the just is blessed." "Yea, sayeth the spirit; that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." Rev. John Sale, "He endured as seeing Him who is invisable," He was one who did, "Preach the gospel or God freely;" he was, "Chargeable to no man," and was "always abounding in the work of the Lord." One question that struck me as significant was this, why is it that a church with such a history, built and founded by and named after, so great a man, should have a mere handful of twenty-eight people in attendance at the regular Sunday morning service? This was an English service. It is possible that the services in Bengali were better attended. Will it be so with the church of which I am pastor? We all need your continued prayer. God's grace is sufficient for our needs.

Yours in His Service,
H. E. Dester

"A WORD ALONG THE WAY"

By Mrs. Harold Ratzlaff

She was squatting on a high mud-made porch when we went by—an old, wrinkled, blind woman with shaven head. A dirty piece of cloth thrown about her was her only piece of clothing. In this appearance there was nothing new—we had seen many women like her. But the tattooing on her body was noteworthy. Over her face, neck, abdomen, legs, and arms the name "Ram, Ram," (a Hindu god) was tattooed literally hundreds of times. Her face was covered with the blue marks—around her eyes, over her nose, her cheeks, and chin. Around her neck several "necklaces" of "Ram, Ram," had been tattooed. And all over her body the name Ram was prominent. "When did you have this done?" we asked.

"Oh, about twenty years ago," she answered.

"Didn't it hurt?"

"Certainly, if it hadn't hurt I wouldn't know I had it."

"And what did you gain by having this tattooing done?" I asked.

"I gained salvation," she replied.

We tried to explain to her that there was only one name by which one can be saved, and that is the name of Jesus Christ. By believing in Him, she would gain salvation. However, she told us that Ram and Jesus were the same—there was no difference. I had to think of the verse, "And their minds were blinded," and I prayed silently that the preaching and teaching which is being done out here in the villages of India might open the understanding of those who listen to the truths of everlasting life.

Urgent Need for Relief in India

Dear Readers of The Mennonite: The following letter was recently received through Rev. P. H. Richert, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board. We are deeply indebted to Brother Richert for his translation of this appeal for the Bundesbote. This appeal should melt the heart of every Christian interested in our conference work and in the welfare of our mission stations. For several years our mission board has been doing relief work in India through our missionaries. This has been very practical and helpful. For nearly two years relief work in India had been done under the auspices of the M.C.C. on all Mennonite stations where necessary. This work was supervised by an organized committee of missionaries. Rev. P. W. Penner was treasurer of said committee. Apparently the needs in our field are getting very desperate. Extra funds are sorely needed. Our board will advance money to Missionary P. W. Penner direct for our field, from our general treasury, in anticipation that the churches will richly reinburse our treasury for the relief of suffering humanity.

—Bythe Emergency Relief Board, John C. Mueller, Secretary

It was not so since 1908

There have been stringent times in our area these thirty-five years, but the present time crests all others. There was a fair harvest in 1942 at most places; however, the previous two failures with the high prices ate away the income speedily. Let us sight just a few instances to corroborate the above introduction.

The government after one crop failure excused the farmers from paying their taxes. The next year seed was necessary; loans were granted by the government. Early this year the rents were collected in full on top of the previous loans. These factors caused an unprecedented scarcity and high prices, for the necessities still were getting more impossible for the general public. For instance clothing, compare the 1938 prices with the present. Cloth now demands at least a fivefold price.

On our tour throughout the first quarter we have never before seen so many ten and nineteen year-old children, and even older in numerous instances, run about absolutely naked. In some villages the majority of the adults wear actually no clothing, but have only rags dangling about them. A good many of the Christians wear nothing but a scanty loin cloth, above the loins absolutely naked, Sunday and every day. A man possessed not even that, but wrapped a bedding rag around him. A person in the village, one lonely Christian, came to the mission station with a thin rag probably three feet long and eighteen inches wide on his loins. That was all he posessed. Another went about with a strip of burlap to cover the most necessary parts. The shopkeepers are at wits end. Their shelves are empty and to replenish them is no need, because the customers are void of cash to purchase. These days boys and girls were sent to our mission boarding schools. The parents were downcast, brought their children unfittingly dressed; they had to be replenished. Every shelf in the bungalow was searched for remnants. Most of the children had earned something, but the low wages of three to eight, the most ten cents a day brought too little to offset the cost of cloth. All treasuries were carefully scrutinized to fill the most necessary wants. Paper is rationed so that nothing can be had unless a government permit is produced. At that, what a price and only a limited amount to be had. Slates are hardly obtainable; pencils are made of some earth and oil. Flour for our use is now counted among luxuries. The other day twelve small potatoes were gotten for twenty-five cents.

To pay taxes and back loans caused undescribable distress. Water and cooking utensils, drinking cups and plates were sold to procure cash. A good many homes possess not a single plate. Then the milking and the draft animal had to go; in numerous instances portions of the land either were mortgaged or sold.

FAMINE SUFFERERS IN INDIA

Mortgages cannot be released, therefore the land is gone. The interest is from 12 per cent to 30 per cent and more. Where remains there a hope to reoccupy?

During our tour January to March we can say that hundreds of ricefields (each only half an acre, others an acre) were walked across or passed by. To our amazement many had not been sown in 1942. At one place a plot of more than a dozen fields lay idle. Upon inquiry the farmers replied, "We had an epidemic which robbed us of the oxen and buffaloes used for cultivation: furthermore to make the payment of taxes and loans most of these remaining had to be sold. The previous years crop failures produced too little seed; to borrow is not possible, and when so, the interest soars high; at the time of threshing the creditors take their share and what is left for our support? O missionaries, behold our fields produce nothing; we are desperately poor; we with our children must ultimately starve. The courage for life disappears. The future looks so hopeless. Oh, when will this end? We better die!"

Now seeding time is here. Has the situation improved? No, not at all. It has become infinitely worse. Large tracts of fields will not be sown this season. Draft animals have become deplorably few and seed out of reach. Where twenty-two measures of rice were obtained just a few years ago, scarcely four are now to be had. Last year we supplied some Christian farmers with seed; this year they somehow (just how we do not know) have to help themselves; new ones were added, to them is given this year as far as finances allow.

Everywhere when people are contacted their first approach consists of describing their poverty, which can be detected without further explanation: the raiment insufficient, food not nourishing enough, the eyes fallen in, the face and body haggard; any sickness lays them flat with, of course, numerous candidates for the Christless grave. Clamoring for help and its evidences haunt one so that sleep and appetite threaten to be seriously undermined.

These lines are written on the Job Fashion, but what can be helped; we feel uncomfortable indeed to draft such a message. Let us pray more, also open the hands wider.

Yours in his happy service,
P. W. and Mathilda Penner

THE TEACHERAGE

Before the day of universal compulsory public school education in America it was the custom of churches to provide their own schools. This meant providing a building and a teacher and determining the content of the curriculum. While there are many things we have learned and gained from public school systems, there is also much we have lost. One of the greatest losses is that of respect for the teacher and the teaching profession. The modern school teacher has today become the tool of politics and this is true in the small local school districts as well as in the larger cities. There are definite limitations to the modern public school teacher's freedom of conscience and freedom to work according to his own best judgments.

The Teacher as Laborer

The modern employer of labor is often criticized for treating human labor as a material commodity that can be bought and sold at will without regard to human feelings. He does this on the ground that he has to make profits. If a man has to be discharged and another one hired for the sake of more economical operation, the act is explained on the ground that "business is business," thus trying to justify what unfortunate consequences may occur to the discharged victim. This same situation holds true in the modern teaching field. It holds true in many of the local communities where most or all of the members of the school boards are Mennonites. School teachers are hired for the lowest possible amounts of salary. This means that beginning teachers are usually hired and that they move on to another school where there is better pay at the first opportunity. Thus in the local country schools the same teacher hardly ever remains for more than two or three terms and many schools have a new teacher annually. It is clear that in such cases the high and noble calling of teaching has been reduced to very nearly the same basis as a day laborer.

The Teacherage

As an interesting and attractive alternative to this situation our Mennonite brethren in Manitoba have devised the plan of providing a teacherage for the local school teacher. Recently I have been in the home of a teacher where this arrangement has been made. The school board provided a small farm for the teacher next to the school house. It has much the same relationship that the country parsonage has to the country church. The teacher to which I refer had his own vegetables, chickens, cow, fruit and quite a large number of bees. As an evidence of the latter the teacher carried with him a swollen eye as evidence of his bee business. Under this arrangement the local rural school teacher can support his family, and he has an inducement to remain at one school for a long period of time. This particular individual had been teaching at his school for twelve years and was not planning to move on to a better paying job in some bigger school next year. In the interest of better rural schools and better teachers other Mennonite communities might adopt the teacherage plan and find it a profitable, long time investment.

Relief Board Meets

The Emergency Relief Board met for an all-day session in the new General Conference Headquarters, Newton, Kansas, on August 31. Members present were: I. W. Bauman, Bluffton, Ohio, Chairman; H. A. Fast, North Newton, Kansas, Vice Chairman; John C. Mueller, Freeman, South Dakota, Secretary; D. C. Wedel, Halstead, Kansas. Jacob Gerbrandt, Drake, Saskatchewan, could not be present. Also absent was Walter H. Temple of Allentown, Pa., who has just recently been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rev. P. H. Unruh, former treasurer. The committee elected David C. Wedel of Halstead as the new treasurer. All money for relief should now be sent to him. The committee was formerly represented on the Mennonite Central Committee by Brother P. H. Unruh. To fill the vacancy caused by his death, the committee elected Brother H. A. Fast to that position.

An important item among the business transacted was the resolution that Brother P. A. Penner, office manager of the new General Conference Headquarters, forward $1,000.00 to P. W. Penner in India for relief among the famine stricken. The committee hopes that further contributions will come in for this purpose. See the article elsewhere in this issue in regard to conditions in India.

The Relief Board intends to meet again in Chicago on September 18, when the Mennonite Central Committee also has a session there.

A PRAYER

By George Turner

God, help me to grow—
Not to stand still, and fret, and chafe
At life; help me to grow.

God, help me to trust—
When skeptics come around,
When scholars seem profound
To me; help me to trust.

God, help me understand
What my life is, and what it
May become; help me to understand.

MENNONITE BIBLE ACADEMY

The enrollment at the M.B.A. began on Friday, September 3. The first day a total of thirty-eight students registered. More are expected during the next week. The formal opening took place on Sunday, September 5. Classes began on Tuesday, September 7.

A visitor once asked a teacher, "Whose are the children in your school?" The teacher understood the visitor to mean, from what walks of life the children came and answered, "their parents are engaged in different professions, some are businessmen, some are farmers, some . . ."—"That is not my question," the visitor interrupted the instructor. "To whom do your children belong?"—"Most of them belong to parents of the middle class. There are only a few who come from well-to-do homes." "I did not mean their social standing. Perhaps, I do not make myself clear, but I just wondered when I looked at the children this morning who really claims them as his very own in body and soul." The teacher looked down for a while and then softly said, "Yes, I understand, they are the Lord's."

What a privilege of a school to teach the children of the King of Kings and the Lord of Lords!

Rev. and Mrs. Arnold J. Regier, formerly of Portland, Oregon, have entered their services as home parents. Mr. Theodore Schmidt of Henderson, Nebraska, serves as the principal of the school, and Dr. A. Warkentin of North Newton, Kansas, has been asked to be the director.

The Academy covets your prayers. We gratefully acknowledge the encouraging letters and the financial support which we have received. Most of all we praise the Lord for His leading and sustaining grace.

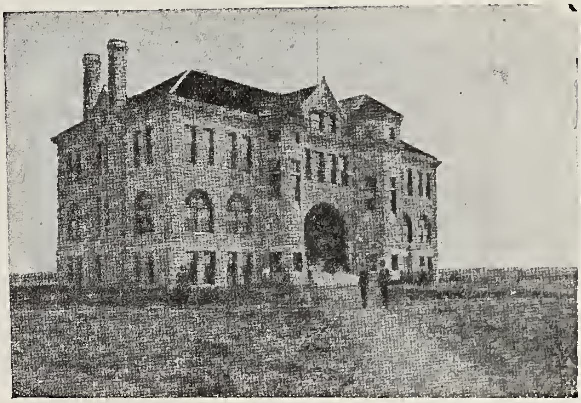
Bethel College Begins Golden Anniversary Year

Bethel College, oldest Mennonite College in America and the only fully accredited, four-year Mennonite college west of the Mississippi River, is beginning its second half century of Christian service. The dramatic history of its first half century is being written by the oldest member of its staff, Dr. P. J. Wedel. For several months Dr. Wedel, former science professor, Registrar Emeritus, and executive secretary of the alumni association has been gleaning valuable material for his history of Bethel by reading letters, accounts, minutes, and catalogues of Bethel College.

The cornerstone of the administration building was laid on October 12, 1888, but it was not until the fall of 1893 that the school was completed and ready for its first class of students. The students enrolled the first year were mostly students who had attended the Halstead Seminary and were interested in seeking a well-balanced Christian education. Today Bethel College reaffirms its faith in Jesus Christ, proclaims with new zeal the full gospel of salvation, and stands as a bulwark of Christian democracy in America.



The Bethel College Administration Building as it appeared when the first students arrived in the fall of 1893.

Bethel's faculty ranks among those of the best universities and colleges in our land in training and experience. Its net worth has shown phenomenal growth even during depression years. The number of its active friends has increased each year for the past ten years.

Although this year the enrollment has suffered an inevitable drop since the school declined the offer to act as a military training center, the present freshman class has seventy members, only ten of whom are boys. The total college enrollment to date is approximately 160.

The following statement indicates the desire of the board of directors and of the faculty at Bethel College: As we face the future—

Our objective is fundamental:
"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness."
Our foundation is sound:
"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."
Our mission is clear:
"Go ye and TEACH all nations . . ."

Bethel College Annual Fall Faculty Retreat

Brother P. A. Penner addressed the faculty meeting in Memorial Hall on Sunday afternoon, August 29. He began by stating that he believed that "Religious Education in the Christian sense includes all efforts and processes which help to bring children, young people and adults into a vital and saving experience of God revealed in Christ; to quicken the sense of God as a living reality, so that communion with Him in prayer and worship becomes a natural habit and principle of life; to enable them to interpret the meaning of their growing experience of life in the light of ultimate values; to develop a deepening fellowship with Christ which will find expression in attitudes and habits of Christlike living in common life and in all human relations; and to enlarge and deepen the understanding of the historic facts on which Christianity rests and of the rich content of Christian experience, belief and doctrine." The above quotation is the finding of the International Council of Religious Education in India.

Asking how a faculty of a Liberal Arts College like Bethel could bring this about, he mentioned five points:

1. The faculty ought to be a spiritual body accord-

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Waldo J. Flickinger, Pretty Prairie, Kansas

SEPTEMBER 16—"I am my beloved's and His desire is toward me." Cant. 7:10.

If His desire had not been toward us first, we would never have been able to be His. "But God commended his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." How much more, now, since we are His, does He encompass us in His great love and desire to give unto us every good thing. Oh, the blessedness of being my beloved's! The picture is that of a young bride and her husband. And it shows the blessed relationship existing between them. We belong to the One we love, and His desire is toward us.

SEPTEMBER 17—"I am with thee to save thee." Jer. 15:20.

Would that we, the children of God, were able always to realize that He is on our side, and that He is with us to help us, yes, to save us from whatever may befall us. "Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee: yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." Also we are promised, "And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the land of the terrible."

SEPTEMBER 18—"Fear ye not; stand still and see the salvation of the Lord." Exod. 14:13.

Even as the Israelites were worrying and fretting themselves as to how they were going to save themselves from the enemy when they came to the Red Sea, even so Christians, many times, worry over their deliverance from unhappy circumstances. But Moses knew who held the key to the problem; and so should we stop our fretting and "stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord." He knows the end from the beginning, and He wants us to leave the outcome in His hands. What a peace and calmness of soul comes over us as we entrust our all into His care and keeping.

SEPTEMBER 19—"I will go out as before and shake myself. And he wist not that the Lord had departed from him." Judg. 16:20.

Many times when having fallen into temptation we think that we can go out as at other times before and shake ourselves loose from the clutches of the Evil One, but alas, we find to our dismay the power of the Lord is not present. Many times Christian workers go out with that idea that they will put forth all their power and ability, i. e., shake themselves, to accomplish great things for the Lord, but learn the bitter lesson that the Lord is not in it. "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord."

SEPTEMBER 20—"Praise waiteth for thee, Oh God, in Zion." Ps. 65:1.

As long as we are bound by unwilling hearts and stammering lips, our praise to God will be limited. Never-the-less, let us offer praise to Him continually, "for His mercy endureth forever." "That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." At the same time let us watch and pray for that time when we, in glorified bodies, shall cry with a loud voice, "Salvation to our God . . . and unto the Lamb . . . . Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honor, and power, and might, be unto our God forever and ever. Amen."

SEPTEMBER 21—"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee." Isa. 26:3.

Do you want perfect peace in time of war and strife? Yes, that is exactly what the Lord promises to the one whose mind is stayed on him, trusting in the Lord. With what is your mind occupied? Are you, like Peter, taking your gaze away from the Lord to watch the fearful waves? Look up to Him and let your mind be occupied with Him who stilled the waves by his command. There will be no room for doubts and fears as you behold his beloved face. Hear Him say to your heart, "Peace, be still."

SEPTEMBER 22—"I know their sorrows." Exod. 3:7.

Monotonous toiling day by day, forced upon them by the Egyptians, the children of Israel must have many fainting hearts as year by year went by and the God of their fathers seemed unconcerned. And yet he remembered them. In due time God revealed his concern and delivered them. He said "I know their sorrows." Are you burdened or stricken with grief today? Or perhaps your problem is small, yet God says "I know all about it." Take your burden to the Lord today and ask Him to lead and guide you, and then trust Him to do it.

2. The faculty should be definite as to its position on the statement of faith as adopted by the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America, in session at Souderton, Pennsylvania, August 17-22, 1941.

3. The faculty should be approachable to students to help them in their problems and difficulties and also encourage them.

4. The faculty should be a praying staff, making mention of individuals.

5. The faculty should recognize the potentialities in every student.

Prof J. M. Moyer presided at the meeting which was opened and closed with a devotional period. The responsibilities of guiding students prompt the faculty and administration to seek the prayerful interest of all friends of Bethel College during this golden anniversary year.

A DIFFERENT GIRL

By Ida Boyer Bontrager

"Ready, Dorothy?"

The rest of the family was in the hallway putting on wraps but Dorothy was still upstairs.

"We're waiting," her father called to her a second time from the foot of the stairs.

"Coming!" Dorothy answered impatiently, and came slowly down the steps.

"Hurry!" her father insisted. "We'll be late."

"And then what?" Dorothy dared to ask.

"Here, George, hold my coat."

" 'And then what?' " repeated her father. "Isn't that enough? I don't enjoy walking into church late, especially on Sunday morning. Besides, I can worship better if I'm there for all of it."

"Huh! Not me! I don't care much if I never get there."

"Why, Dorothy!"

"Well, I always get a bawling out when I do go. There isn't much fun in that."

"All in?" asked Father, stepping on the starter. "I've never heard anyone bawl you out in church, Dorothy."

"You haven't? Well, listen to the sermon. I always get hit. Brother Davis must be spying into my private life all the time,—which is bad enough in itself. And then to have him blow it off in his sermons yet—ugh! It gets me down!"

"Dorothy, Dorothy! Whatever are you—where are you getting all this? You know Brother Davis doesn't spy on people."

"He must, Father. How can he know so much about us otherwise?"

"I never noticed that he knew so much about me."

"Well, he reads me off from A to Z."

"For instance."

"For instance? You mean, for instances. Last Sunday he mentioned cheating in school. He must have asked my English teacher how I was behaving, for she was the only one who knew it. And to think that he'd have the brass to publish that over the pulpit. If he'd only tell the whole story! I asked Miss Norde's pardon, and she granted it. Now why does he have to come along messing into things and stirring them up again?"

"Aw, Dot," philosophized ten-year-old Harry, "you just can't take it! He didn't mention any names. He could have meant me or anybody else as well as you. And he didn't even say anybody did cheat! He just told us not to."

"That's right, Harry," his mother remembered. "Brother Davis had no certain person in mind, I'm sure. He merely mentioned it as one of the evils in school life. He did it to help you."

"Maybe!" doubted Dorothy, feeling uncomfortably exposed. "But I'm sure he does mean me when he fusses about primping."

Harry couldn't miss the chance to say, "You were the last one ready at our house this morning, weren't you? And last Sunday, and Sunday before that, and—"

"Will you shut up?" Dorothy stopped him.

Father had to smile a bit to himself before suggesting, "Well, Dorothy, again I don't remember that Brother Davis mentioned any names, or even made it personal. You know there are other primpers that he could have meant besides you. But—'if the shoe fits—' "

" 'Wear it!' " finished Harry emphatically.

"Were there any more grievances?" asked Father, turning in at the churchyard.

"Yes, plenty of them. But I don't have time to give vent now. Anyway, there'll probably be a new one to mention on the way home today."

Brother Davis spoke on the "Fruit of the Spirit" that day, contrasting it with the works of the flesh. " 'Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings and such like,' " he was reading, as he approached the fruit-of-the-Spirit verse. "There are the things the flesh indulges in—jealously, hatred, drinking, and carousing. Maybe murder and drunkenness aren't pet sins of us who are here today, but how about revelling? Many people who pose as Christians in the daytime are workers of darkness at night. They are out for a good time, which must last most of the night. Did you ever hear folks say they didn't get home until three or four in the morning? Wouldn't you in general class them at once as revellers? And, folks, the Bible condemns revelling. Christians will not be found amusing themselves in this way, or even in finding their recreation in the wee hours of the morning. Four o'clock is too late for a Christian to get home."

"Four o'clock!" Dorothy would have gasped if she hadn't been in church. "There he goes again. Now who told him this time? And why doesn't the talebearer mention our flat tire and empty gas tank, and—I wonder what Earl is thinking." She turned toward the place where she knew Earl was sitting, but there were too many heads between.

Dorothy spent the rest of the sermon hour in nursing hurt feelings and deciding on some means of humbling Brother Davis. What could she do to him? She must do something. Things daren't go on this way. He was forever embarrassing her, and there must be a reckoning. He must learn that he can't get away with this all his life.

"I have it," she suddenly decided, missing all the beautiful and practical thoughts that Brother Davis was giving on the fruit of the Spirit. "I'll find Mabel after church. She'll help me out. Mabel always has ideas. But—but—do I want Mabel to know that Earl and I were out until four? Oh, well, she'll keep it."

After church she quickly located Mabel and pulled her up the aisle toward Brother Davis. "Quick before others start talking to him. You must chip in and help me out, Mabel. Will you?"

"Wh-what's it all about?" Mabel wanted to know, drawing back. "Come on. I don't have time to tell you now. Sh! he'll hear. But help me give it to him. Brother Davis, there's a matter that Mabel and I would like to talk to you about."

"Yes, girls," the kind minister said warmly, shaking hands with them.

"Your sermons seem quite pointed of late," accused Dorothy, omitting preliminaries.

"Yes? I'm glad you think so. I've prayed that they might be."

He seemed to look right at them. And—was that a blush on Mabel's face? What was wrong? And why wasn't Mabel helping her out?

"You did about everything but mention names, didn't you?" she continued, looking first at him for signs of apology and at Mabel for support, but she got neither. Strange!

Mabel shifted her gaze and position uneasily. "Don't stick up for me any longer, Dorothy. I'm sorry it happened."

"Sorry what happened?" asked Dorothy. It was her turn to be surprised now.

"Sorry John and I stayed out so late. It won't happen again," she promised, almost in tears. "It was just carelessness, not intentional revelry. We both forgot to watch the time, and first thing we knew it was—'way past midnight. We were both sorry, and resolved to skip two dates to make up for it. Not that we can correct it that way, but the discipline will do us good."

"Fine," commended the surprised minister, giving her his hand. "And may God help you. Learn to be principled while you are young. My prayers will be with you." Then he hurried down the aisle to the front door to shake hands with the departing people.

"Mabel, can you forgive me?" begged the stunned Dorothy.

"Forgive you? You did me a favor. I've felt ever since John and I did that foolish thing that I ought to speak to Brother Davis about it; and I never could quite screw up the courage. Now you came along and helped me. Thanks again."

"But I didn't help you—that is, I didn't mean to—to do this to you. I didn't have you in mind when I—"

"Maybe not. I don't know what you had in mind, but this is what happened, and I'm glad."

"You mean you're glad it's out?"

"It's not out. That is, unless you—you won't though, will you? And Brother Davis is as safe as lock and key."

"Then—Brother Davis wasn't advertising you in his sermon this morning?"

"When?"

"When he mentioned that four a.m. stuff."

"He couldn't have been. No one knew it but John and me and our parents."

"Well, I'm all mixed up. What was he aiming at then?"

"Nothing that I know of, except—prevention, maybe. But it looks as though the Holy Spirit helped him hit the mark without his knowing it."

"Holy Spirit? You think—do you really think that Brother Davis gets his inspiration from the Holy Spirit and not from talebearers?"

Mabel looked at her, surprised and disappointed. "Why, Dorothy! What makes you think—?"

"Well, he hits me so often."

"But you see how this happened today, surely. Maybe your grievances have occurred in the same way."

"Maybe," Dorothy had to admit. "Let's go."

Dorothy's parents waited in vain for her complaints about Brother Davis that day on the way home. In fact, they waited in vain for any expression from her at all. She was quiet during dinner, and soon afterwards she disappeared to her room. Wisely they did not disturb her, guessing that some fierce struggle was hers to fight.

At five o'clock she came down, a bright, victorious expression outshining the tear stains on her face.

"Mother," she said quietly out in the kitchen where she found her mother preparing the evening lunch, "I ought to go over to Mabel's and then on to Brother Davis's—if she can go along. May I? There is a matter —you see, the Holy Spirit—"

"Yes, dear, I see," the understanding mother rejoiced, kissing away the trace of afternoon tears on her daughter's face. Somehow she knew—as praying mothers always know—that repentance had come at last.

"See you at church tonight!" was Dorothy's good-by as she went out the door. "And—I'll be a—different girl from now on."

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH
Reedley, California

Greetings to all who read The Mennonite, a worthwhile paper. I have noticed quite frequently that jottings from our church bulletin have appeared in the paper and felt it was taking care of the most important activities that needed to be reported.

Since I have a little more spare time, or rather manage to put in thirty minutes of extra time in the morning by getting up just a little earlier and do some writing, I will do my part as correspondent.

We have been blessed in so many ways, and are thankful to our heavenly Father that He esteems us worthy. Were glad to have Rev. and Mrs. Habeggar with us. They had never been in California before. They served as leaders at the annual retreat held at Lake Sequoia. The main topic at the retreat was "For Such a Time as This."

Our Senior C. E. group met in the city park the Sunday the Habeggars were with us. Both Mr. and Mrs. Habeggar gave short talks. After the program a fellowship picnic lunch was enjoyed by all who attended. At the evening services we were privileged to see their pictures, they work with the Indians in their mission field.

Harold Coens, missionaries to Nigeria, West Africa, (she being my sister) have also been in our midst for a few days, the last time before they go back to their field. They may have to leave all their children in the states in a missionary home in South Carolina.

It seems like fall is right arround the corner; the weather is so cool, quite out of the ordinary. The ranchers are beginning to pick their grapes for raisens this week. We're asked to help again this year; so we will try to do our part in working part time.

The Mexicans that are shipped in by carloads are not wanted by many farmers, because they want good wages and are not experienced workers.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH
Madrid, Nebraska

The Lord has done great things for us, and we are glad. We had an abundant wheat harvest. Some fields which had been fallowed yielded as high as forty-five bushels to the acre. Some corn fields are beginning to suffer from the hot and dry weather (written August 27).

Since we are situated on the outposts of the Northern District it happens quite frequently that missionaries and church workers pass us up. We regret this very much. Missionary F. J. Isaac visited us on August 7. His talk was very interesting. Since we were schoolmates in Bethel College in 1912, I was very glad to meet him and renew our friendship after a separation of many years.

Alvin Fast, New Minister

From July 24 to August 2, Brother Alvin Fast of Butterfield, Minnesota, visited our congregation with the intention of getting acquainted and considering the pastorate. He is a brother to Arnold A. Fast who has accepted the field in Toronto, Ontario. He served our church two Sundays, both mornings and evenings. He also held evangelistic meetings during some evenings of the week. After that our congregation extended a unanimous call to him to accept the pastorate of our church. Brother and Sister Alvin Fast intend to move here by the middle of September.

We regret very much that Brother J. F. Sawatzky resigned as minister of our church this summer. They are still here serving the church, but they intend to move to North Newton, Kansas, where they have purchased a new home. They plan to leave by the middle of September.

Report of Women's Missionary Society of Middle District Conference

Mrs. Forrest Musser, president of the organization, presided at the busines meeting of the Women's Missionary Societies of the Middle District Conference on Friday afternoon, August 20, at the St. John Church near Pandora, Ohio.

Mrs. Waldo Hofstetter, member of a previously appointed committee, gave a detailed report of their findings in a survey made among the societies regarding girls' work. This committee reported that nine junior and intermediate societies in eight of our churches have a total membership of 267. Six societies reported no girls' groups, while four of the nineteen societies in the conference sent in no report. The total contributions from these junior and intermediates groups during the year was $1,530.01, a very commendable sum.

The following motions were passed: That 25 per cent of the evening's offering go toward migrant work, and the balance be equally divided between home and foreign missions.

That the committee interested in girls' work draw up and amendment to the constitution, giving the girls' societies the right to be represented in the business meetings; this amendment to be voted upon at the next conference session.

That a statistical report of the girls' work be included in that of the adult organization.

That a secretary of junior and intermediate work be appointed to represent the Middle Conference.

That Miss Elizabeth Locher be this aforementioned secretary.

That we place the following recommendation before the conference: That our nominating committee be permitted to recommend nominees for the office of secretary-treasurer, these names then to be voted upon by the conference for a three year term.

A nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Edwin Amstutz, Mrs. Herbert Sprunger, and Miss Martha Suter presented a ballot which resulted in the following election of officers: President, Mrs. Mrs. Clovis Oberli, Berne; Vice President, Mrs. B. D. Smucker, Bluffton; member of program committee for three year period, Mrs. R. E. Bixel, Lima. The Conference body also elected Mrs. Isaac Neuenschwander, Columbus Grove, Ohio, as secretary-treasurer for a three year term.

Due to lack of time only a very brief period could be given to each of three persons, who all represented very important and urgent projects in which our societies are interested, namely, Women's Advisory Board of Bluffton College, by Miss Edna Ramseyer; Clothing and Cutting Room for relief, by Mrs. Sam Locher; and Canning for Civilian Public Service Camps, by Mrs. S. F. Pannabecker.

At the public program in the evening, a most impressive program was rendered, featuring an inspiring missionary address by Miss Wilhelmina Kuyf from the mission field in China, a chalk talk by Miss Marguerite Sprunger of Berne, who is a missionary candidate, and several numbers of music by a ladies chorus made up of voices from the four churches in the Bluffton-Pandora area. A large offering of $182.48 was received at this service.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. CECELIA SHELLY, daughter of Peter and Lydia (nee Trone) Kauffman, was born in Lehigh County, Pa., on June 1, 1862, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Russel Landis, New Hope, Pa., on August 7, 1943. In 1879 she married Edwin B. Shelly, who has preceded her in death. In 1908 she united with the East Swamp Mennonite Church. She is survived by three daughters: Mrs. Reno Rosenberger, North Wales; Mrs. Elmer Fellman, Quakertown; and Mrs. Russel Landis of New Hope.

He was a deacon in the Wayland Mennonite Church, a director of the Wayland bank, and town clerk for many years. He is survived by his wife, his mother, Mrs. Mary Wittrig; one sister, Mrs. Lydia Rittler of Riverside, California; five brothers, Will of Dallas, Texas; David of Alhambra, California; Sam of Washington, and John and Ed of Wayland.

In 1872 they moved to Kutosowka, fifty to sixty miles furthur east, where upon baptism he became a member of the Mennonite church in 1873. In 1874 this congregation migrated to Moundridge, Kansas, where the congregation retained its organization and continued under the name of the Hoffnungsfeld Mennonite Church. In 1879 he married Anna Krehbiel. In 1884 they moved to Pretty Prairie where land was cheaper; here they went through a second period of pioneering and building a new settlement. In 1886 death took his wife Anna. He found a second companion and mother to his children in Mary Krehbiel in 1887. In 1901 they moved to a farm near Moundridge where they lived six years. Later when a new settlement was made in Kingman County they purchased a farm near Belmont where they lived until 1940, when they retired to make their home with a son near Rago. Goshen Unit Disperses

Plans to meet the special interest of those desiring to do relief work are being realized as the Goshen Training Unit disperses into special study and work units. Goshen closed its courses August 15. Efforts to care for the interests of the other men wishing to do relief work will continue until they are properly handled. This means an estimated 150 to 200 will enter these special units once they are established and transfers can be made.

Selective Service has approved a special 25 man unit at the Ypsilanti hospital. Sixteen of this unit come from Goshen. Added to this are fifteen girls also wishing to take training. Besides a regular 48 hour work week, the members of this unit will take the equivalent of six hours of college work. Two hours will be on mental health taught by Dr. O. R. Yoder, medical superintendent of the hospital. Two hours of language will be taught by a language professor from the University of Michigan, and two hours of relief administration will be taught by Dr. Carl Kreider of Goshen College. Ypsilanti will center its attention on South America or Europe.

The Alexian Brothers hospital has been approved for a unit of fifteen men. Five of these will come from M.C.C. camps. They will follow a pattern similar to the above, but will center their attention on the Far East. An eighteen man unit is approved for the Duke University hospital, six of which come from M.C.C. camps. They will study Europe as their special interest.

A Florida M.C.C. hookworm unit is yet awaiting final approval at the time of this writing. Other special units under consideration are an Agricultural Training unit and an institution for mentally retarded children. Other openings have not been worked on as yet.

The members of these units will put in a regular 48 hour week and any studying and preparation they will carry on will be extra. The program is planned that they will remain a year at a place.

The Goshen unit is dispersed as follows: Grottoes—17 including the college men who have had no C.P.S. experience; Ypsilanti—16; Puerto Rico—4; Florida—7 (if unit is cleared); special Far East unit at Grottoes until it is relocated at a special study camp—6; individual transfers—10; these go to various camps and units.

Mennonite Bible Academy

One of the great slogans of the present time is "training." People are "trained" to fly airplanes, to detect enemy crafts by electrical devices, to figure out with scientific accurancy the distance of an objective, to throw bombs, etc. etc.

The "training" of the mind and the "training" of our hand certainly is of great importance in human affairs, but there is another area in human life which is far superior to the physical. This is the spiritual. One of the greatest poets of the world, Goethe, once made this remark: "All earthly things are merely symbols," the reality behind them is of a spiritual nature.

The "training," therefore, of our spiritual life should always be considered first.

God has revealed Himself in nature and in His Word and in His Son. To know those thoroughly means to know God. In order that we know Him better, we read His Word, we study nature, and we have fellowship with Jesus Christ, His Son, our Saviour. This we can do alone but most effectively in groups. Since the family group often is not equipped well enough to give us this spiritual "training," we must have schools in which the supreme aim is to learn to know God and to serve Him better. This, the Mennonite Bible Academy is trying to do.

Even though many Terry people have sons in the army, they have been very fine to us. They have invited us to use their swimming pool and to use their yards in order to get shadetrees to sit under for protection against the hot summer sun.

One of our men is directing the church choir of the community church and six of our men sing in the choir. Two of our men have filled the pulpits in two of the churches.

We have several boys playing in the Terry orchestra and several in the band.

We are truly appreciative of this expression of tolerance and understanding on the part of the Terry people and we hope that we might continue to be deserving of this fine spirit. Surely God has a hand in this work of the church.

Brother J. H. Langenwalter to be Minister-at-Large of Pacific District Conference

In response to a request for a statement of the work that he is to do as Minister-at-Large of the Pacific District, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter submitted the following for publication in "The Mennonite." He has requested that he be released from his service as minister of the First Mennonite Church, Reedley, not later than September 30. For over seven years he has served this church. —rw.

On June 19, 1943, the Pacific District Conference adopted the following recommendation: "We recommend the appointment of a full time worker by the Pacific District Conference whose work it shall be to represent all phases of the Conference activities in cooperation with the officers and committees elected by the Conference."

This recommendation was made by the Evangelization Committee after the reports of other committees had made it clear that there were needs to be met which called for definite attention. Appeals had been made for full time workers for a few months of the year. When all the requests were added it became clear that the better way would be to have someone responsible who was set free to really give the work and the opportunities of the Conference the attention that these deserve.

The Executive Committee of the Conference was instructed to make plans for the work and to find a worker. After they had reached an agreement they consulted with members of all Committees who were present at the Conference. The result was that the undersigned was asked to undertake this work until the next session of Conference.

This is new work and plans must be adapted to situations as they are found. However, the objectives are quite clear.

The Churches

These are to be visited and to be served with messages. The tentative plan is to meet with the minister and the officers of the church first in order to get as clear a picture as possible of the particular needs of the group to be served.

Messages are to be delivered from Sunday morning until Friday evening at such times and places as are best suited to the group. During the week there are to be sessions with the various workers in the church such as Sunday school, young people's workers, men's groups, missionary groups, as well as workers who may be doing things without being definitely organized. It is also the intention that those who have men in service shall be met.

The purpose is to be helpful in meeting conditions as they are, to encourage those who are bearing the brunt of difficult situations, and to help the fellowship to see more clearly the place of Christians at this time.

The Men In Service

These are to be contacted as far as possible. Nobody can define the possibilities in this field because of the rapid movements of the men and their wide distribution. In whatsoever ways the contacts can be made, this is the purpose that they shall be served according to their needs in order to encourage them, counsel with them, and help them in every possible way both in their present position and condition and in the face of the future opportunities and responsibilities.

Others

Who does not need encouragement these days? Those who see the possibilities of the work will pray and put forth consecrated, expectant effort God-ward for it. This will be necessary to accomplish most nearly what is expected.

It is my hope that this undertaking on the part of the Conference may result in more serious attempts, in increasing areas, to listen to the call of Jesus: "Follow Me!"

In His Name,
J. H. Langenwalter

Recreate Thou Me, O God

A banquet was given. A women's association of the community prepared the large amount of food. The husbands came in to wash the many dirty dishes. People talked, sweated, and smiled as the courses were served and the disorderly pile of dishes and utensils was cleared away. Towards the end members of the group broke out in joyful singing. For most it was a happy experience in spite of fatigue.

Married brothers and sisters of a family got together and dug potatoes and enjoyed it. A neighbor bought a piano; a group enjoyed moving it into his home. A Minnesota mother reports that her husband likes to be on the community threshing crew. Threshing together has a certain charm. Quilting parties can be very alluring. To present the gospel with another is a joyful experience.

Human beings can get away from "self" and experience joy by being active with others in constructive work. In a great many cases group work can yield just as much joy as group "games," and at the same time it can produce work results of great value.

Living in material abundance we have been tempted to play, perhaps, too much. (An extreme case, the "play-boy" of great wealth.) All the while the fields have been standing ripe unto harvest. While Rome, Chicago, and the Centerville community burned, much fiddling has been one by Christians. Christians are tempted to think more of rights than of duties, of enjoying themselves than of serving the Lord.

Recreation is necessary, but it can be achieved in various way—some very definitely more wholesome and worthwhile than others. Group work is one possibility for recreation that might well be explored more by Christians.

In I Cor. 13:11, Paul says, "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things." A child needs to play; we can't think of any getting along without it. But an adult has possibilities that a child does not possess. He can put away childish things and do God's work. Although play for adults may have its rightful place in certain instances, it is, undoubtedly, true that we ought to give more attention to recreation through various kinds of work experiences.

Prayer and Meditation

People with little or no interest in Christ have said much about the need of recreation for relaxation. Relaxation is needed. But must we attain it through a secular approach?

Prayer and meditation make for peace and refreshing of body, mind, and spirit. Too little emphasis is given to these important parts of Christian living in our day.

As a result bodies are held unnecessarily tense, minds are unnecessarily confused and tired, and spirits are unnecessarily disturbed. The soul is the ultimate source of the most thorough-going relaxation. We must pray to God and must meditate on His word if we would be truly freed from the tight tenseness of fear, anger, hatred, and all forms of egocentricity. Much of the relaxation achieved through a secular approach seems to be merely a forgetting of tenseness and weariness for a short while and then a quick return to them.

Of Jesus it is said in Mark 1:35, "And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed." Undoubtedly, that was very important recreation for Jesus. He stood arduous activity very well. Jesus has a message on recreation for us that we need to seek after and emphasize.—rw.

"Home Church Letters"

(Eph. 6:10-18)

This war is teaching us a lot. It will either be the making or the breaking of the individuals, and the church and churches as a whole.

Among the many things to be grateful for are the "Home Church Letters" send to the boys in the various camps, be they C.P.S. or military camps.

What about the "Home Church Letters" to the ones engaged in the "Spiritual warfare" at the "frontiers of the churches"? Are there those who must say that they never have received a single "Home Church Letter" all their life-time service at the "battlefront"? Are they receiving it now, those at the home front as well as those across the seas? They have been in the "C.P.S. camp" these many trying to represent the Principles of Christ as entrusted to our Church. They also are drafted—but by God.

They would have expressions of appreciation and deepest gratitude as found in the extracts of letters presented in The Mennonite of August 10, 1943.

W. C. Voth and Gerald Stucky Leave for Latin America

Brother W. C. Voth left Newton, Kansas, on September 9 to go to El Paso, Texas, where he was to meet Gerald Stucky. From there the two were to go by train to Cuauhtemoc, Chih., Mexico, where there is a Mennonite settlement. Proceeding from there to Mexico City, they will leave Mexico City by plane for Quatemala, Honduras, and Panama. They also plan to visit by plane such South American countries, as Bolivia, Argentina, Paraguay, Uruguay, and possibly Colombia, and Ecuador. They expect to be gone about six months. They hope to be back in time for the spring session of the Foreign Mission Board. See the "Foreign Mission" page for further information about their task.

—Rev. J. J. Regier will teach in the Bible department of Freeman Junior College this year. On the first day of school it was reported that there were some eighty academy students enrolled and twelve or thirteen college students.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

TO INVESTIGATE NEW FIELD

As previously announced, two missionaries are to go to Latin America on an investigation trip to find a suitable field for a new mission either in Mexico or Central America or South America. The two brethren chosen for this are the veteran missionary from China, W. C. Voth, and the new recruit, Gerald B. Stucky. Their photos appear herewith.

Brother W. C. Voth

Traveling to these countries is always difficult, and doubly, so now. But they have their passes, and are about ready to start on the trip, which will be on airship. They plan to visit six or seven countries, including Paraguay and Argentina, because in these two states Mennonite missions are already established by the Russian Mennonites in Paraguay and by the Old Mennonites in Argentina.

Some Mennonite missionaries have gone to other states, such as Colombo in South America, partly because they did not wish to wait until we were ready. Our Board feels that the General Conference next year, being so near, should have a chance to vote on this new undertaking, before we actually build a new mission in Latin America. But to make it possible for the conference to vote intelligently, it seemed necessary to do some preliminary investigating like this, and present a report to the conference, perhaps, with recommendations.

May the Lord guide and bless the undertaking, for which we desire the prayers of all mission friends.

SISTER ALIDA SCHRAG TO BE ORDAINED AS MISSIONARY NURSE TO INDIA, SEPTEMBER 26, AT 2:30 P.M. IN HER HOME CHURCH,

The Lord willing, the ordination of Sister Alida Schrag as missionary nurse is to take place on the above date. All friends of missions are invited to participate either by their personal presence or by intercessory prayer.

If ever much prayer was necessary for mission work and for the Lord's protection on the way, it is now. If Brother and Sister F. J. Isaac get permission to return soon, Sister Schrag is to accompany them. But if the Isaacs do not get permission, we may send her alone, if she is willing.

Sister Mary Becker was also ready to go along, but London did not yet give the permission. We hope to send her next year.

H. J. BROWNS TO RETURN ON GRIPSHOLM

"The second exchange of Japanese and American citizens, will take place in Mormugao, Goa, Portuguese India, about the middle of October. Many of these names have come to the Department of State only within the past few days. No complete list of persons to be repatriated has as yet been issued to anyone, but on Saturday, August 28, we had access to the only complete list up to that moment in the office of the Special Division of the State Department, and this report is the result of our perusal of that list. There is a possibility of a few additions yet, but the Department has promised that as soon as a complete list is available it will be sent to this office. (H. J. Browns are on the list.)

Communication with repatriates on the return voyage of the Gripsholm:

1. Mormugao, Goa, Portuguese India—Subject to censorship regulations, commercial facilities are understood to be available for telegraph communication with persons in Mormugao.
2. Port Elizabeth, South Africa—The Gripsholm will probably reach Port Elizabeth in late October, but air mail is advised. Allow a month. Postage is 60c per half ounce. Letters should be addressed to the repatriate in care of the American Consulate, Port Elizabeth.
3. Rio de Janeiro, Brazil—The Gripsholm will probably be in Rio de Janeiro in early November, but again air mail is advised, and three weeks should be allowed. Postage is 40c per half ounce. Letters should be addressed to the repatriate in care of The American Embassy, Rio de Janeiro.

Ample supplies on the Gripsholm: We have been informed by the Department of State that ample supplies of food, clothing, and medicines will be provided on the exchange vessel to meet the needs of its passengers." (Part of a letter from the Secretary of the Foreign Missions Conference.) —P. H. Richert, Sec.

SUFFERING AND FRUIT-BEARING

Planting an apple tree in a small chicken yard, we were told that it would not bear fruit, and we found that for many years the blossoms would all drop off before the fruit was formed.

Mentioning this to an experienced horticulturist we were told that this might be due to the very rich soil, and we were advised to drive some large, rusty nails deep into the trunk of the tree in order to check its vitality. We did this and in the following year this tree began to bear fruit in abundance. Could it be that we sometimes are overzealous in our efforts and that God must check us through sickness or other apparent handicaps in order that we may bear fruit to the fullest extent?

FORBEARING AND FARMING

Forbearing is a highly esteemed Christian virtue. The New Testament has a multitude of references to it. Jesus taught it as an essential characteristic of Christian behaviour, and, more significantly, he repeatedly demonstrated the art of forbearing in difficult circumstances. The same can be said of Paul and the other Apostles.

Non-Resistance

In this sense the doctrine of non-resistance is the attempt to carry out in actual life the Christian virtue of forbearance. It requires a refusal to strike back or harm or hurt the other person in any way. Our fathers believed that the doctrine of forbearance or non-resistance was an applicable when applied to groups or nations as when applied to individuals. It means that one accepts suffering, hardship, and inconveniences for himself or his group rather than inflict such things on others.

Farming

That forbearing is a teaching of God is rather clearly revealed in nature and no one is more aware of it than the Christian farmer. God constantly teaches the farmer to forbear. In times of crop failure due to storms, hail, drought, and pestilence of one kind or another the farmer must bear losses and forbear the temptation to become angry, dejected and bitter with God. When his crop is not as good as his neighbor's or his cattle not as productive, he is tempted to become jealous, but these things he must forbear. Those who have learned the secret of forbearing through God's plan in nature have also been able to get along with their fellowmen without hatred, violence, and law courts.

Faith

It is not purely accidental that the three historic peace churches, the Friends, Brethren, and the Mennonites have taught Biblical non-resistance as a part of their religious faith. By tradition all three have been rural churches. We believe that God has taught His children the lesson of forbearance through the laws of nature. Farmers, more than anyone else, have a chance to learn this lesson through years of experience. There is a close relationship between forbearance, farming, and faith.

ARRIVE AT CAPETOWN, AFRICA

According to reports the Frank Mannings and Sam Goering and J. D. Graber left Buenos Aires on the same boat. A cablegram from South Africa states that the Frank Mannings have arrived safely. Therefore, it is assumed that the two relief commissioners to China have also safely arrived there.

Pacific District Conference Report, 1943

On the morning of June 17, 1943, the delegates and friends of the Pacific District Conference met at the First Mennonite Church at Reedley, California, for its forty-fourth session. It was a joy to be able to assemble from far and near in order to confer with each other about the Lord's work. The program committee had chosen the theme "Alone With God" for the session.

According to the program the first session was a minister's conference, with Rev. Earl Salzman presiding. It was opened with a song service and devotions. Fervent prayers and thanksgivings were offered. Then followed the three topics assigned for that session. Between the second and third topics we were favored by a solo by Rev. Arnold Regier.

Rev. Wm. H. Stauffer delivered his first address on our C.P.S. camps. In it, among other thoughts he said: "The C.O.'s have taken their stand. They do what the Mennonite church is teaching. They carry out the principles of our church, of Christianity.... The boys are under pressure. The church is not backing them up enough."

With a song and a prayer the forenoon work was closed, and we met in the dining room for a good and well prepared meal. In the afternoon Rev. P. A. Wedel, Aberdeen, presided, and Rufus Franz, camp director at Lapine, Oregon, led in the devotions. The three assigned topics were treated efficiently. Mrs. Chris Ummel spoke on John 5:39, in place of Rev. W. A. Regier, who could not be present.

The evening session was the beginning of our regular conference work. Mr. Earl Eyman conducted the song service and devotions. Dr. J. H. Langenwalter gave the welcome address, and F. F. Jantzen responded. The Reedley Men's Chorus brightened the evening with special music. The Rev. D. J. Unruh, conference chairman, delivered the conference sermon, taking for his text Matt. 5:16; Num. 8:1-4; and Rev. 1:11-12,20c. A few thoughts expressed were: "It is well that we should meet as a conference to see what is done, and what is left to be done. A conference should encourage and be a time of refreshing....When the lights go on again all over the world, let your lights so shine. The lights should glorify the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Father in Heaven."

The delegate certificates were read by the conference secretary. Because of the absence of Rev. W. A. Regier and a delegate certificate from Los Angeles, the conference voted that the Immanuel Mennonite Church be represented by Mrs. A. J. Richert, and by Rev. and Mrs. Chris Ummel. Rev. Homer Leisy was to represent Albany, Oregon.

The following committees were appointed and announced by the chairman:

Nominating Committee:
  Homer Leisy
  P. D. Unruh
  L. J. Horsch
Resolutions Committee:
  Arthur Wenger
  Willard Wiebe
  Mrs. Chris Ummel
Memorial Committee:
  J. H. Langenwalter
  J. P. Glanzer
  P. A. Wedel
Committee on Complimentary Votes:
  A. J. Regier
  Earl Salzman
  Emma Ruth
Auditing Committee:
  Earl Eyman
  Chris Ummel
  J. T. Friesen
Tellers Committee:
  J. T. Friesen
  Rufus Franz
  Joel Koehn

With a song by the Reedley Men's Chorus and a prayer the evening session was adjourned.

Friday morning our session was opened by a prayer service led by Rev. Homer Leisy. The Committee on complimentary votes handed in the following names of guests at the conference and recommended that a vote be given each of them:

Rev. J. T. Friesen
Dr. E. G. Kaufman
Rev. Wm. H. Stauffer

1. The conference voted to do so.
2. It was resolved,
That the secretary read the main points of the 1942 conference report together with the recommendations made and resolutions passed. This was then carried out.
3. It was resolved,
To adopt the secretary's report as printed.

The auditing committee reported: "We have found the treasurer's report neatly kept and in order."

The treasurer gave the following summarized report:

Balance on hand, June 15, 1942	$ 506.51
Received during the conference year	3885.53
Total	$4,392.04
Total paid out during year	$4,165.85
Balance on hand, June 10, 1943	$ 226.19

He also reported that the debt on the Portland parsonage was paid in full, leaving the Conference debt-free.

4. The conference resolved,

To accept the treasurer's and auditing committee's reports, with a rising vote of thanks to our treasurer, Brother Jantz for his faithful service.

Brother Jantz asked for permission to make his reports hereafter from June 1 to June 1, if the conference is held in June.

5. The Conference resolved,

That we accept the treasurer's recommendation that the treasurer's fiscal year be as of June 1 to June 1, or if the conference should be held at some other season of the year, that it be as of the first of the month.

The Field Secretary, Miss Emma Ruth, reported that after the conference at Colfax, she had been privileged, together with others, to visit the churches of Washington and Oregon; that the Y.P. Retreats, one held at each state of the Pacific District, in 1942, were encouraging in attendance and spirit, even though some had to be held under difficulties. A Layman's Retreat was also held in California for which much interest was shown. Seven issues of the Worker's Exchange were again sent out to about 500 interested workers in the churches of the district.

"I believe that the time has come for a forward step in field work. I am asking to be relieved of this responsibility and suggest that in place of volunteer service in this all important work, our budget includes a sufficient sum for at least a few months of employed field work each year. I can truly say that the years spent as field secretary of the Pacific District have been rich in proving the Lord's faithfulness and the willingness of young and old to cooperate in the various churches to advance the Kingdom of God. I deeply appreciate this spirit and would thank each one who has had a part in making some progress possible. I wish that more could have been done.

In view of the foregoing I would like to make the following recommendations:

I. That the Workers Exchange be published quarterly as a young people's paper by the Y. P. Committee.

2. That a sufficient sum be included in the budget to cover not less than two months of field work by an employed secretary appointed by the Executive Committee of the Conference, with the emphasis on young people's work." Emma Ruth, Field Secretary.

After discussing the report of our Field Secretary,

6. the Conference resolved,

To postpone consideration of Miss Ruth's recommendations until more definite study of our conference needs and our constitution could be made.

7. the Conference resolved,

1. That the Workers Exchange be published by the Field Secretary in co-operation with the young people's committee.

2. To adopt the Field Secretary's report without the recommendations.

In between Brother L. J. Horsch gave the following report on Bethel College:

"This is my ninth annual report to the Conference as its representative on the Board of Directors of Bethel College. With this year my term as a Director expires. May I suggest that in considering a successor the Conference should nominate an individual who is also a member of one of the General Conference boards or committees so that meetings of both could be attended in one trip. It is essential for the Conference to have representation on the board so that active participation in the Board's activities can be accomplished by the representative.

"Bethel College is a member of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This membership fully accredits our College. Before election to this membership the school was subject to examination by official representatives of the Association. In their report the examiners make the following observations.

"In the first place Bethel College has certain elements of strength. The report points out that 'Bethel College is the only Mennonite college west of the Mississippi River granting the baccalaureate degree. Within this field of service are 75,000 Mennonites of which number one-third live within a radius of 250 miles of the college.' The report continues by referring to 'a vigorous administration.' It cannot be denied that under the Presidency of Dr. Ed G. Kaufman the college has had an almost phenomenal growth. We owe him a tremendous debt. Then the report pays tribute to 'a loyal, devoted, and comparatively well-trained faculty.' Here are elements of strength of which any college can be proud.

"In the second place the report of the examiners very definitely points out certain glaring weaknesses of the college. Significantly the rehearsal of the weaknesses begins with the 'Failure of the Mennonite Church to provide the College more adequate financial support,' and continues with the 'pitifully low salaries for faculty members.'

"In support of above observations it is my unpleasant duty to report to this conference that the College is burdened with a debt of $90,000.00 which threatens not only to undermine whatever strength the school may possess but also to deprive the college of membership in the North Central Association, for Bethel College has been warned by the Association that it must undergo another examination to determine whether membership in the Association shall be continued and this debt may prove the decisive factor if further membership is denied to Bethel College.

"As is the case with all institutions of higher learning, the war is placing a severe strain upon Bethel College, a strain which only tends to aggravate the conditions described above. Other colleges and universities can weather the storm in that the Government of the United States in selecting them for centers of basic training for Army or Navy personnel provides adequate and even generous financial support. But Bethel College cannot avail itself of this opportunity and retain its loyalty to 'the faith of our fathers' or retain the integrity of its conscience. Bethel has refused to participate in the program of educating soldiers or sailors. On the other hand, however, the Federal Government has approved Bethel College as one of the training centers for relief and reconstruction workers who will be selected from the personnel of the C.P.S. Camps. These young men must volunteer one year of service after the end of the war. But this training program brings no financial aid to the College.

"It is my pleasure to close this report by telling the Conference that the Board of Directors has authorized Bethel College to grant the degree of Master of Theology. This degree involves two years of study above the Bachelor of Arts degree, one-half of which is to be devoted to practical ministerial work. This is a progressive step designed to enable the College to train more effectively the workers in our churches so badly needed today.

One verse of Scripture has been in mind ever since this report has been in the making. I feel I should quote it. It is this, 'Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord.'

Then Rev. Arthur Wenger gave us some special music, which rested us. Rev. Salzman now gave his address on: "Jesus and I are Friends."

The afternoon session began with devotional exercises led by Rev. J. T. Friesen and some special music by a quartette created by our chairman, and consisting of the brethren Friesen, Wenger, King, and Regier. The Conference discussed the report on Bethel College, especially the questions:
1. Since Bethel College does not accept the war program in training men for the army, navy, and air-force, does the government permit Bethel to be a training center for relief workers?
2. Why does Bethel College refuse army, navy or any war-force training?
9. The Conference resolved,

To adopt the report of L. J. Horsch on Bethel College.

Now followed the report of the P.D.C. Peace Committee: The work during the year has been along three lines or phases, namely: 1. C.P.S. camps, 2. Contact of our service men, 3. Distribution of literature. They had little trouble with the boys as to their behavior. There are capable men and women as directors, etc., in the camps. These four recommendations were placed before the conference:

1. That the Conference create a permanent Peace Committee consisting of three members, one to meet with the General Conference representative.
2. That we, as a Conference, allot some time to Rufus Franz, director of the Lapine C.P.S. Camp, to present to the Conference the needs of our local camps and suggestions for the Home Canning Program.
3. That this Conference give serious consideration to the possibility of sending a man to contact all men in the service, both in the army forces and in the C.P.S camps.
4. That the Secretary of our Conference be instructed to send each of our local camp staffs a word of appreciation and commend God's richest blessings in their work.

10. The Conference resolved,
(1.) To accept the report of the Peace Committee with thanks.
11. (2.) To adopt recommendations 1, 2, and 4 as presented.
12. (3.) That we send some one to visit all boys in the C.P.S. camps, and the boys in the military camps, within the Pacific District. Recommendation 3.

The above named quartet again favored us with a song.

13. The Conference resolved,
To extend the time a little to hear Brother Rufus Franz.

Among other things he said it is well to remember that at Lapine Camp the soil is not good for gardening. We can raise pigs. The boys have eighteen pigs and fifty chickens. For canning they bought 3,000 3-qt. jars. Let the congregations fill them.

Rev. P. A. Wedel now brought us a splendid message on: "Christ or Chaos."

Friday evening the Women's Missionary Society Program was rendered.

Saturday morning the devotions were led by Rev. Arthur Wenger. The report of the Evangelistic Committee was given. They report of:

Deer Park, Wash.: "Rev. A. J. Wiens has moved to Lynden, Wash. Since then Brother W. H. King has served this congregation with preaching every second Sunday of each month and Brother P. D. Unruh on the afternoon of the last Sunday of each month. Three families are now living in Spokane and others have moved into the Newport community. The committee recommends to continue the aid as arranged."

Newport, Wash. "The Newport church under the leadership of Rev. P. D. Unruh is growing in grace and number. It solicited the help of your Committee and last March Rev. P. A. Wedel of Aberdeen, Idaho served them with a series of meetings and counseled them in their problems. Rev. Unruh receives $20.00 a month assistance from this Conference. The Committee recommends to continue this aid to Rev. Unruh."

Portland, Ore. "Thanks to the Lord, the debt on the parsonage is paid in full and that now belongs to the Pacific District Conference. The church property belongs to the Home Mission Board of the General Conference. The constituency of this congregation has more than doubled in the last years. Also the church building fund has reached the mark of over $400.00. Brother and Sister Regier have handed in their resignation and Portland is again looking for a leader."

Albany, Ore. is since March, 1943, on the self-supporting list.

Winton, Calif. The Bethel Church at Winton is prospering normally under the pastoral care of Rev. Glanzer. They report an attendance of over forty in the morning services, and Sunday School, and evening services. Every other Sunday they have C.E. which is well attended and as many as eighteen in the mid-week Bible and prayer service. Brother Glanzer gets $44.00 assistance from the H.M.B. and $10.00 from our conference; free rent, and $10.00 from the church monthly. The Committee recommends to continue this aid to Brother Glanzer."

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Waldo J. Flickinger, Pretty Prairie, Kansas

SEPTEMBER 23—"Fret not thyself because of evil doers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity." Ps. 37:1

As it was in David's time even so it is now, that, as we look abroad and see the prosperity of the ungodly, we fret ourselves and become envious of them. The expression in the original is very forcible: Do not work thyself into heat; for it will result in envy, the most perilous of all temptations. When we look forward with an eye of faith we shall see no reason to envy wicked people their prosperity, "for they shall soon be cut down like the grass and wither as the green herb."

SEPTEMBER 24—"Trust in the Lord and do good." Ps. 37:3

This is the antidote to many ailments. The Psalmist has applied it here as the antidote for the Christian who envies the prosperity of the evil-doer. Our life should be one of believing reliance upon God, his providence, his promise, his grace, and his diligent care over all his children. But we are told also to "do good." Think not that you can trust the Lord, and then live a life wholly inconsistent with your profession. But notice the order here: First, "trust in the Lord," and second, "do good." Yes, it is impossible to do good, except you trust in the Lord first. "For without faith it is impossible to please him."

SEPTEMBER 25—"Delight thyself also in the Lord and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart." Ps.37:4

What intensity of inward joy we experience when we are in communion with our God and Saviour! To make him our object of worship and adoration, of love and devotion constantly, would certainly mold our lives to choose and to love that which he chooses and loves. Therefore it would follow that he could and would give us the desires of our hearts. Jesus said, "If ye abide in me and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you."

SEPTEMBER 26—"Rest in the Lord." Ps. 37:7

When the world about thee is confusion and chaos, be thou hushed and calm in thy soul, leaving thyself absolutely in the hands of God. To rest, keep yourself still with perfect resignation to him and to his will. Stay yourself completely on him whose you are, and who has promised to keep you. Dissatisfaction with your state, or anxiety about your future will vanish as you will find Him able to answer all your needs. Such rest in the Lord will supply you with spiritual strength to meet new and hard tasks with eternal reward.

SEPTEMBER 27—"Thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead." Rev. 3:1.

We are too prone to consider every one whose name is on the church roll as a Christian. But Jesus said, "except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." We must learn from the Scripture the evidences of the new birth, that we might discern between the children of God and those of the evil one. These two classes were formed by Jesus himself, (John 8:44). Because some facts are awful does not excuse us from facing them. We must make the distinction in order to follow many of God's exhortations, such as "Be not unequally yoked with unbelievers," or "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly."

SEPTEMBER 28—"As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but that ye may know that ye have eternal life . . ." I John 5:13.

It was in answer to a great need that this serpent was lifted up where all could see. And it was that moment when the needy soul looked, that he was healed. Even so the Lord Jesus was lifted up on the tree, to become the Great Healer of all who are stained with sin. Now if I look to Him, who there died in my stead and plead His finished work on that cross for my salvation, then, that moment I am healed from Satan's deadly sting.

SEPTEMBER 29—"These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye have eternal life . . ." I John 5:13.

It is God's will for all that believe on his Son, to know by the things written in the Scriptures, that they have eternal life. To have, being in the present tense, means to possess as soon as you believe on the name of the Son of God. Death itself cannot halt it. Should not our hearts be filled with praise for such a wonderful gift as revealed to us from God's own Word.

SEPTEMBER 30—"Even the righteousness of God which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe." Rom. 3:22

"All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags." We have no righteousness of ourselves. And so, we, being destitute of it, God provided it through His own Son, the Lord Jesus Christ. And we appropriate it for ourselves the moment that we believe on Him as our personal Saviour, for it is then that His righteousness is imputed unto us. What a wonderful plan of salvation God wrought for us in which everything that he required of us, he also provided. Our responsibility is to believe and to accept what he has to offer.

Bringing Them One by One to Christ

It is not unusual for our thoughts to fly hither and thither when some event has plunged deep into our feelings. Though we may try to take control of our thoughts and make them right, we can't. They are wild thoughts which need a greater master than we can ever be.

Paul in II Cor. 10:5 exhorts us to "bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ." We have no right to the control of our thoughts. We are not good masters of them. There is one who is a perfect Master. We ought to permit Christ to have the control over our thoughts for He will always do the right thing with them. He can make them right, powerful, inspiring, hopeful, and the foundation for further right thoughts.

But if Christ is to be the Master of our thoughts, we must first surrender them to Him. That is our responsibility. He doesn't take them from us. He has given us the power of choice.

However, when a great mass of our thoughts goes stampeding it seems as though we just can't catch them all to bring them to Christ. Conscious of so many of our thoughts we try to chase after each one and end up in catching none. We are like the little boy being "it" in playing "Blackman," who runs after many to catch them but not long enough after any one to catch him.

In face of this it is marvelous how one can learn to surrender one's thoughts to Christ by bringing them to him, one by one. It seems that we can practically always determine the very next thought that we will think. By concentrating upon one thought at a time instead of trying to sweep the whole whirling mass into Christ's control, we can actually make the right choices. We have a wonderful power over the very next thing that happens in our mental activity. God offers us the power to overcome all temptation—all wrong thinking. One thought at a time surrendered to Christ is the way to capture the whole mass of them eventually for Christ's control.

Are you tempted, are you troubled? Make your very next thought right, that is, surrender it a captive to Christ. Repeat this, and Christ will give you victory over temptation and trouble.—rw.

PATIENCE

Many of us may have to develop our patience while in camp. There are times we become restless and want to do more constructive work than we are now doing. At the same time can we say we are making or finding all the opportunities while here in camp? Or are we letting the day go by without trying to improve ourselves and others about us? Sometimes we are so eager to get out and do big things without preparing ourselves while we have the opportunity, and then when the time comes we feel so inadequate to meet the many problems facing us. It may take us years to reach our goal, but we will be better fitted to carry out the goal because of the years of preparation. I think here's where God's will enters in. So often (speaking of myself) we think we know what is best for us and we fail to heed God's will. I can say from my own experience that many times I could not see why God's way was better, but sooner or later I found His way was far better than my way could ever have been. God works in mysterious ways. I would like to give one example of a life revealing true patience, courage, endurance, and love. I'm sure we all know our dear missionary, who started the leper asylum when he was forty years old, I believe, and worked for thirty or forty years with untiring patience, possibly none of us have equaled.

Again I can draw from my own experience that youth is eager to do great things in a short time. I remember how I admired the young man who got his degree with flying colors and by the age of twenty-one he was teaching in high school and at twenty-two he stepped right into Junior College. We fail to see that he had many opportunities that most of the young people do not have. Let us realize that a detour often becomes a blessing. When driving out to California for the first time we had to take a detour; then we even got off from the detour, but the scenery was far more beautiful than any we had seen on the whole trip—this was worth the extra gas and time.

Life is like climbing one hill after another—we think the one in front is impossible. We conquer it only to find another larger one ahead of us. It is often these detours that give us the added strength to go ahead. It isn't so much what the man is now as what he is going to be.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

No. I of Series on Evangelism

MENNONITE MARTYRS

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "In the Cross of Christ I Glory", No. 110, "Jesus, Refuge of the Weary," No. 536. 2. Reading of Heb. 11:13-39, prayer and leader's remarks. 3. Biographical sketches of some of the martyrs. 4. Offering for C.P.S. camps.

II. Leader's Introduction.

The Story of the Mennonites by C. H. Smith offers information on the early history of the Mennonites in various countries and on the persecutions which they were called upon to endure during a good many years. We admire their courage of conviction, their steadfastness under very trying circumstances, and their willingness to face death. Their purity of life gained for them the respect of many of their contemporaries. The almost universal testimony of their enemies bears evidence that the life of the Mennonites was on a high moral and spiritual plane. A Reformed clergyman who wrote of the virtues of the Mennonites advised his people to follow the example of these pious folk. Why then were they persecuted? This question is worthy of study.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Persecutions in Switzerland, (C. H. Smith's Book, pp. 125-163.)
2. Persecutions in the Netherlands, (C. H. Smith's Book, pp. 169-190.)
3. Swiss Exiles in the Palatinate, (C. H. Smith's Book, pp. 307-315.)
4. Trials in Russia, (C. H. Smith's Book, pp. 507-531.)

IV. For Discussion:

1. Why have the Mennonites suffered persecution?
2. Has persecution been harmful or helpful to them?

V. Facts for Study:

A letter written in 1617 states of the Swiss Mennonites, "they are daily hunted with constables and as many as they can get taken as prisoners to the city of Bern so that four weeks ago about forty, men and women, were in confinement there. They have also scourged some, and banished them from the country, one of whom arrived here. They also scourged a minister of the Word, and then conducted him out of the country, into Burgundy, where, when they arrived there they first branded him, and let him go among the Walloons. However, as he could talk with no one, he had to go about three days with his burnt body, before his wounds were dressed, and he obtained some refreshments, being in such a condition that when they undressed him for binding up his wounds, the matter ran down his back, as a brother who helped dress him told me himself."

VII. Food for Thought:

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

BEING A GOOD NEIGHBOR

Prelude: "I Would be True"

Song Service: "Christ for the World we Sing," "True-hearted, Whole-hearted"

Scripture Reading: Luke 10:25-37.

Prayer:

Special Music:

Leader's Introduction:

One hears much in these days about being "Good Neighbors" especially with certain people and countries. Jesus taught us this lesson many years ago through the story of the Good Samaritan. It shows us not only who our neighbor is, but how we should act toward him.

Shall we consider who is our neighbor first? It is that person who is near to us—next to us. That one might be the girl in the desk next to mine in school, the family in the house next door, the church nearest ours in town, the folks in the next county, the next state, and finally the countries nearest ours. This places neighborliness on quite a broad basis, does it not?

Jesus showed how the people one might have expected to help the poor, robbed traveler were just the ones to pass by him. It was a man of a hated people—a Samaritan—who stopped and helped. Thus anyone can be a neighbor—all of us Christians certainly! A representative of the church passed by the helpless man; let us not be guilty of that again.

It is in the spirit of neighborliness that our people go to the needy nations to do relief work. Just as we give our next door neighbors a half cup of sugar, we are willing to distribute milk and other necessities of life to those who have suffered the ravages of war. Pray that we might continue this relief work, and give generously toward it.

We read that the Good Samaritan bound up the unfortunate man's wounds and poured oil in them. What better way to express Christian neighborliness than to care for the sick! Surely a nurse or doctor who carry out their tasks in the spirit of the Lord are showing the sincerity of their faith.

We shall discuss other phases of neighborliness throughout the program. Let us remember that if we permit the Lord to lead us, He will show us how to be good neighbors.

Topics for Discussion:

1. Can you be a good neighbor and bear a grudge against someone?
2. How is courtesy related to neighborliness?
3. To be a good neighbor in school, must one cheat or stoop to other common practices?
4. Do church members need to be good neighbors?
5. In what ways can we be good neighbors to those of other races?

Are You Giving or Receiving?
By Rev. J. D. Kempster

"It is more blessed to give than to receive."
There are few people who truly believe
It's more blessed to give than it is to receive.
But since I have endeavored to follow the plan
I surely am feeling a happier man.

This get all you can, and keep all you get,
Is the motto of worldlings, and bringeth regret;
For the man who is happy and filled with delight,
Is the fellow that's giving from morning till night.

Since nothing is proven until it is tried,
Just give it a test, and it won't be denied,
This Scriptural maxim is evermore right,
'Tis giving, not getting, that bringeth delight.

8. Sing in unison, "Take My Life," verses 1, 4, 6.

II. Study Period

Aim: To help our Juniors to understand that the offering is a very definite part of the church service. To create in them the desire to give to the Lord.

1. Introduction by a Junior girl.

We have been studying about the church service and have found there are various ways of worshiping God. We can and should worship God with our offerings. If we really love the Lord and love the church, we will feel the need of giving gifts to the church, for the offering is an expression of our gratitude and faith.

2. Bible Drill: Exodus 25:2; 35:5; 35:22a; 36:3b; I Chron. 29:12; Neh. 10:39; I Tim. 6:7; I Tim. 6:10; II Cor. 9:7.
3. Study Hour:
   a) Tell the story found in Mark 12:41-44.
   b) Tell the story found in Matt. 19:16-26.
4. Scripture reading, Luke 12:22-34.
5. Talk, "Christian Work Costs Money," by an older person.
6. Song, "Give of Your Best to the Master."

III. Mission Minutes

Discuss: What gifts (offerings) do missionaries give?

IV. Closing Moments

1. In unison repeat the verse of the month.
2. Then pray together the prayer of the month.
3. Sing from memory the song of the month.

PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE REPORT 1943

14. The Conference resolved,

(1.) To accept the report of the Evangelization committee as read and to continue the support.

15. (2.) To give the Budget Committee authority to study the matter of the minister's assistance in the above mentioned churches and consider an increase in their allowance.

"We recommend the appointment of a full time worker by the Pacific District Conference whose work it should be to represent all phases of the Conference activities in cooperation with the officers and the committees elected by the Conference."

At this time the nominating committee reported, and the delegates cast their ballots for the new officers. Then the report of the Education Committee was given. The committee was active in three fields: 1. Publication, 2. Family Worship, 3. Teacher's Training.

16. The Conference resolved,

To extend the time in order to hear the message by Rev. Homer Leisy.

The congregation sang a song and Rev. Leisy spoke on "Whither Bound—Our Changing World."

During the noon hour the Budget Committee met and arranged the conference budget. Afternoon the report of the Education Committee was discussed, and

17. The Conference resolved,

To adopt the report as given.

The Young People's Committee reported "With the help of God the work of the Young People's Committee has been able to continue and go forward during the past year. A year ago we had fifty-three names on our Quiet Hour mailing list; at the present we have 163 names. This devotional booklet goes to all the men in service from our Conference. The boys appreciate it as is shown by this excerpt from one of the many letters we have received: "A spiritual uplift is one of the most needed things for the service man these days. It really gives one a good feeling when he can take his Bible for a few moments before he is to start his day's work, for without Christ it would be a most miserable life. I say this because having been in the service for a year now, I know that without Christ I can do nothing. In these times there is so much sin on every hand that it is really a job to live a Christian life, but I am thankful that I can say that I have found Him to be a friend that sticketh closer than a brother....I want to thank you for sending The Quiet Hour to me and I am sure that it has really given me many a spiritual uplift just at the time when I most needed it."

The following books were sent to the Camino and North Fork C.P.S. Camps last fall: Taylor, Life of Betty and John Stam; Taylor, Borden of Yale; Murray, With Christ in the School of Prayer; Chafer, He That is Spiritual; O'Hallesby, Prayer. Two copies of both The Quiet Hour and The Upper Room were also sent to the Camino and North Fork Camp libraries, and one copy of each to each spike camp.

Some pastors were able to visit the C.P.S. camps last fall, and both the campers and the pastors received a blessing from the visit made. Due to transportation difficulties for many, these visits were not made as frequently as had been suggested—once a month.

We have tried to encourage each of the young people's groups in our Conference to start a newspaper, particularly for the purpose of keeping in touch with the boys in service from their group and with others away from home. A number of newspapers have been begun through this encouragement.

We began a project of exchanging C.E. programs that have been used successfully in some of our groups. Through this we hope to unify our young people and to help some of the groups who have been having difficulty with planning programs.

We have been helping somewhat with part of the work for the Worker's Exchange, taking charge of two pages—the Young People's Committee page and the Y.P. News page.

We have again had as one of our projects the sending of fifty dollars to Ernst Harder during the past year. Most of this amount has come in." —Y.P. Committee.

18. The Conference resolved,

To adopt this report.

The Budget Committee reported that we allot to:

The Field Secretary	$2,500.00
Taxes	75.00
Peace Committee	50.00
Newport	300.00
Winton	150.00
Education Committee	25.00
Worker's Exchange	185.00
Miscellaneous	315.00
Total	$3,600.00

19. The Conference resolved to adopt the budget.

The tellers brought the result of the election as follows:

President	P. A. Wedel
Vice President	Earl Salzman
Secretary	Arthur D. Wenger
Treasurer	John C. Jantz
Member of Evang. Com.	Homer Leisy
Member of Educ. Com.	Marvin Linscheid
	Edward W. Franz
Peace Committee	John C. Jantz
	Rufus Franz
	P. A. Wedel
Bethel College Rep.	L. J. Horsch
Member of Program Com.	P. D. Unruh
Trustee	Julius Franz

The Resolutions Committee reported: "Resolved that

1. We thank our Lord for having permitted us to enjoy the blessings of another conference, to draw apart and to spend time "Alone with God," in spite of the many adverse circumstances.

2. We express our appreciation to our host church the First Mennonite Church of Reedley, California, for its willingness to entertain the conference, for hospitality shown the delegates and especially to the ladies for the excellent meals provided under the handicaps of rationing.

3. This conference send greetings to Rev. S. S. Baumgartner, our senior pastor, who was unable to be present, and that greetings and wishes for speedy recovery be sent to Rev. W. A. Regier and Mrs. John C. Jantz who because of illness were also absent. We regret that a number of our pastors were unable to attend.

4. We extend a vote of appreciation toward Rev. William H. Stauffer, and Dr. E. G. Kaufman, for their valuable contribution to this conference.

5. That we individually remember the Pacific District Conference, its work, and its workers, prayerfully throughout the ensuing year."

20. The Conference resolved,

To adopt the report of the Resolutions Committee.

The question was asked, "Who shall issue an order to pay the conference money?" It was answered: "The constitution provides: The treasurer shall make the necessary payments upon order of the other officers of the conference." This was explained that the secretary order the payment, the president sign it, and the treasurer pay the same.

At this time Dr. E. G. Kaufman addressed the conference in behalf of Bethel College. Brother D. Krehbiel spoke to the assembly about the Mutual Aid Society which has been founded on the Pacific coast recently. Rev. Wm. Stauffer now delivered another message on the C.P.S. camps. In it he said: "The chief trouble with our civilian program is not with the government but at two places: 1. in persons who do not know what they are talking about. 2. in our own churches, those who are not backing up the program. Most of those who have left the C.P.S. camps and have gone into the army are desperately trying to get back into the C.P.S. camps. With the C.P.S. boys lies the future of our church. Two qualities of the C.O. men are: honesty and dependability."

Brother P. A. Wedel, because he was elected president of the conference for next year, resigned from the program committee.

21. The Conference resolved,

To ask the executives to fill the unexpired term of Brother P. A. Wedel.

The executives appointed Brother E. J. Miller to fill the vacancy in the program committee.

The Evangelization Committee announced their organization, according to which Dr. J. H. Langenwalter is chairman and Rev. W. H. King, secretary.

Saturday evening after the usual period of song service and devotions, we enjoyed the stories of great hymns of the Christian Church by Rev. P. A. Wedel, and then the song festival in charge of Miss Emma Ruth. Rev. W. H. Stauffer addressed the conference in behalf of the C.P.S. camps.

On Sunday morning the Reedley Sunday School was conducted by Superintendent E. I. Eyman.

During the morning worship Dr. Langenwalter gave a short message for the children, Prof. J. L. Horsch addressed the congregation, and Dr. E. G. Kaufman delivered the sermon. We were abundantly blessed.

On Sunday afternoon the program arranged by the Education Committee was carried out and in the evening that arranged by the Y. P. Committee.

Our retiring conference president made some suitable and practical remarks, and our newly elected President encouraged us to work on in the strength of the Lord.

Thus another blessed conference became history. Praise the Lord, we could be "Alone with God" during these conference days.

Respectfully submitted,
F. F. Jantzen, Secretary

P. K. Regier to Reedley Church

Brother P. K. Regier who served as pastor of the West Zion Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas, for many years and who taught in the Henderson, Nebraska, public school system this past year has accepted a call to the First Mennonite Church, Reedley, California. His letter of acceptance is reprinted below as it appeared in a recent bulletin of that church.

Henderson, Nebraska,
August 22, 1943

Mr. Herman Neufeld,
Mr. J. H. Friesen,
Mr. Reinhold Ewy,
Reedley, California

Dear Brethren:

In response to your letter of August 12th, permit me first to express our deep appreciation for the faith and confidence shown in extending us the call to the Pastorate of your Church.

After long and earnest prayerful consideration we have decided to accept the call. To me it is a call plus a powerful challenge to give the very best in service to the Lord Jesus Christ and to your Church. It is our hope and prayer that God may place His approval upon this decision, and that He may use us to His honor and glory in building His Kingdom here upon earth. We fully appreciate the great responsibility of directing the religious life of a large Congregation, and we undertake it only because we believe that the Lord God will sustain us and that He will provide the wisdom and strength needed to be His ambassador in this field of service.

As you convey this acceptance to your Congregation, may you request the prayers of all the members, asking that they intercede for us at the Throne of Grace in order that this acceptance of your invitation may prove to carry far-reaching and blessed results for time and eternity.

With anticipation we look forward to meeting you all, and becoming acquainted in Christian fellowship and fruitful service.

Very sincerely yours,
P. K. Regier

The congregation will enjoy a cooperative dinner after the services on that day.

Subscriptions to The Mennonite

The following number of subscriptions from a town or city in the Pacific District was listed on August 31, 1943. Since the members of a church may have many different addresses from the one where the church is located, it is clear that these figures do not give the complete subscription total from all the churches. A case in point is the Menno Church at Lind, which has adopted the 100 per cent plan. The Portland Church also has the 100 per cent plan, but the figure is much more accurate in that case.

Some go to church just for a walk, some to stare and some to talk;
Some go there to meet a friend, some their leisure time to spend;
Some for general observations, some for private speculations;
Some to show their own smart dress, some their neighbor's to assess;
Some to scan a robe or bonnet, some to price the trimming on it;
Some to learn the latest news, that friends at home they may amuse;
Some to gossip false and true, safe within the sheltering pew;
Some because it's thought genteel, some to vaunt their pious zeal;
Some to show how sweet they sing, some how loud their voices ring;
Some the pastor go to hear, his style of voice to praise or jeer;
Some to sit and doze and nod, and some, at least, to worship God.

Mr. Ted Moyer, President of the Young People's Union of the Eastern District Conference was present and brought the greetings of the Union. The church observed Bluffton College Day on Sunday, August 29. Miss Griselda Gehman, a student at Bluffton spoke on, "What Bluffton College means to me." Mr. Daniel Schantz, an alumnus of the college, spoke on "Memories and Impressions of the College." Rev. William H. Stauffer, pastor of the Mennonite church at Sugarcreek, Ohio, also an alumnus of the college, was present and spoke briefly on college Life. Rev. Stauffer spoke to the Sunday School on M.C.C. work.

The New Junior Quarterly is Out

The new Mennonite Junior Quarterly, published by our conference, is off the press. Copies of it have been sent to the goodly number of our churches which ordered it for the fourth quarter of this year. The quarterly has been given an encouraging reception.

May more Junior teachers, Sunday school superintendents and others examine this quarterly to see whether it does not best meet their needs. Undoubtedly, a substantial number of Junior teachers did not get to see the sample copies which were sent out in July. Brother J. M. Suderman, Manager of the Mennonite Publication Office, is again planning to send out sample copies of the new quarterly to the churches which did not order it for the fourth quarter. Those persons who order and receive Sunday school literature in these churches should make it a point to hand these sample copies to the Junior teachers in their church and to the superintendent and the pastor. The Junior age is usually designated as nine to twelve.

Cover Picture

A word about the cover picture. We hope that the Juniors will like the action in the picture and the fact that it does not just deal with adults. Furthermore, we hope that it will help them to connect their daily life with what they learn in Sunday school. May they learn that one who loves Christ ought to do all things "as unto the Lord." May they learn that if something cannot be done "as unto the Lord" it has no place in their life. We pray that God's love and will may influence every bit of their living day by day.

Let Us Know

We plan to make this quarterly more and more useful. More pictures are to be included in the next issue. Please, send us any suggestions which you may have. If you like the quarterly—as we hope that many will—don't fail to tell us what you feel to be the especially strong points of it.—rw.

Ordination Date Changed to October 3

The ordination of Brother Waldo Flickinger which was to take place on September 26 has been postponed to October 3. The change was made because of the harvest festival and ordination service to be held by the Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, on September 26.

Miss Erna Fast to Attend Biblical Seminary

Miss Erna J. Fast, editor of the new Mennonite Junior Quarterly, will attend Biblical Seminary in New York City this year. She will continue her work as editor from there. She hopes to take courses in Bible and education which will aid her in the important work that she is doing for the juniors in our Sunday Schools.

Miss Fast is a member of the Bethel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, and is a daughter of David H. Fast who taught in the Bible school there for many years. She knows and loves juniors. She has had wide experience in teaching youngsters in the public school system.

May the conference remember in prayer the important work that is done on our Junior quarterly.

A Suggestion for Sunday School Teachers

"One of the pathetic performances of modern times is given by the teachers of Sunday school classes who teach these splendid Old Testament lessons and never progress this side of 1400 B. C. For instance there was the lesson of July 11 on the call of Moses. What did your teacher talk about? Just the call of Moses, the story of the burning bush and the hesitancy of Moses to undertake a stupendous task? Lots of teachers talked about that alone. When the important thing is to apply the fundamental principles and practices of the Lord to lives being lived today. What an opportunity to talk about God's call in 1943 A.D. not B.C. only. Does He call men to be farmers as well as ministers—business men as well as factory workers? If so—how can you and I see our burning bushes and hear the Lord outline our task for us? It is, of course, much easier to discuss the past than to see the significant facts for living, but this failure may be the reason a lot of people who go to Sunday school are making a mess of their lives."

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

J. W. Fretz

The Farmer's Wife

During these busy days of the harvest season one is again reminded of one of the unsung heroes of rural life, namely, the farmer's wife. There is much said and written about the farmer, his patriotism, problems, and profits but very little about the life and business partner of the farmer. All too often the problems and the accomplishments of the farm women are looked upon as something entirely incidental and purely secondary to those of the farmer. This is generally not a conscious and deliberate act but rather a carry-over from the days when women were considered not only inferior to men but were treated as chattels.

Her Day

The farmer's wife rises early in the morning and begins the day with her husband. Beside cooking three meals a day for her family, the hired help and occasional visitors, she is responsible for the housework and the tremendous task of mending and patching the hard-worn clothing of her family. It is generally her duty to look after the vegetable garden, the feeding of the chickens, and in many cases, even assist with the milking. Besides all the manual work she has the major task of entertaining, directing and disciplining the smaller children who need constant watching and care. When evening comes the farmer's wife is the last to sit down for a moment of rest to read the family paper or join in the family worship. With it all, the typical farm women is not self-pitying. She is cheerful, courageous, hopeful, unafraid, calm, and God-fearing. She gives her life and strength to the up-building and the enrichment of her family, her church, and her neighbors. She is an unsung hero in our midst.

Her Reward

Her reward is not a life of ease and luxury in old age. Her compensations are in the form of human satisfactions which are invisible and immeasurable. She plants the seeds of human virtues and God gives the increase. Her rewards are described by the ancient mother of King Lemuel who told her son what the rewards of such a women were and when she should receive them, Proverbs 31:25. "Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come."

Oklahoma Convention to Convene October 16 and 17

The Zoar Mennonite Church, Goltry, Oklahoma, is to be host to the Oklahoma Convention on October 16 and 17. This convention was first to be held at Bessie, Oklahoma, on August 28 and 29, but plans had to be changed. The program was published in The Mennonite some time ago.

Announcements by the Emergency Relief Board

The annual meeting of the Emergency Relief Board of the General Conference was held at Newton, August 31. After paying high tribute to our departed brother, Rev. Peter H. Unruh, for his faithful and consecrated services on the Board as its treasurer, Rev. David C. Wedel was elected to take over the duties of the treasurer. HENCEFORTH ANY MONEY SENT TO THE EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD SHOULD BE SENT DIRECTLY TO REV. DAVID C. WEDEL, HALSTEAD, KANSAS. The Conference officers urge strongly that any money given by churches, organizations, or individuals for purposes of relief be sent to the treasurer of the Relief Board even though such money be designated for some special purpose or for the Mennonite Central Committee or some other organization. The Conference should have a record of all such gifts. Money received by the Board without any special designation as to its use will be put into the general relief fund; any money designated for a special purpose or organization will be applied as directed by the donor, but a record for Conference files will be kept when the money is sent thus through the Relief Board of our Conference. When the money is sent directly to an agency by the giver, very frequently no such record can be made of the gift.

The Board also elected Brother Henry A. Fast to serve on the Mennonite Central Committee as its second representative, the chairman of the Board, Brother I. W. Bauman being the other member. The officers of the Conference, as required by the constitution, appointed Brother Walter Temple of the Eastern District Conference as a member of the Relief Board to fill the vacancy left by the death of Brother Unruh until this vacancy can be filled by vote at the next session of the General Conference. The Board plans to issue some further statements in our church papers concerning its policies and actions in the near future.

—I. W. Bauman, Chairman

Addresses Wanted

Every minister in our conference ought to see to it that his name and correct address will go into the minister's list to be published in the Mennonite Year Book and the Bundesbote Kalendar of 1944. If your name is not at present in these periodicals or if you have made a change, be sure and send your name and correct address to Brother C. E. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas. New ministers should be especially mindful of this notice. If this applies to you, dear reader, won't you take pen and card and make the necessary report immediately before you forget about it.

ORDINATION AND HARVEST FESTIVAL, EDEN CHURCH

The Eden Mennonite Church, near Moundridge, Kansas, will observe its annual harvest festival on Sunday, September 26. The afternoon service will be the ordination service for Sister Alida Schrag as missionary to India. Friends are cordially invited to join in the services of the day.

—Eden Church Board; Walter Gering, Chairman

Miss Alida Schrag who is to be ordained a missionary nurse.

A CALL TO PRAYER

In our church papers it was announced some time ago that our Foreign Mission Board planned to send a delegation to Central and South America to investigate the need and possibilities for mission work in one of our neighboring countries. That plan is beginning to mature. The Lord has led in the preliminiaries, such as obtaining of passports and permits. In this leading, I believe we can see a token of the Lord's future guidance, for this undertaking was based on the prayers of many mission friends.

This trip is connected with grave responsibilities. We keenly feel our human limitations and the need of wisdom from God. To know and do His will is our deep desire. For this great cause we extend to all of you a call for consecrated prayer.

At this writing, September 11, Brother Gerald B. Stucky and I are in El Paso, Texas. We hope to go into Mexico to visit our Mennonite group. Then, God leading, we hope to leave from Mexico City by plane on our further journey about September 30.

With sincerest greetings and a hearty "Thank You" for your remembrance of us,

Yours for Christ,
(signed) William C. Voth

ANOTHER MISSION JUBILEE IS HERE

This time it is in Arizona, where Mission work was started fifty years ago by Brother and Sister H. R. Voth. Now Brother and Sister J. P. Suderman and their native co-workers feel that this event should be celebrated, and we, no doubt, all feel the same.

The letter below has just arrived from Brother and Sister Suderman in which they invite us all to join in praise to God for keeping and blessing the mission up to this day. A year ago a new church could be built and dedicated. It is an enlargement of the old church.

This is simply to call your attention to it, so that you may be present in spirit, when during the first week in October this celebration is to be held in connection with protracted evangelistic services. Please, read the letter and comply with the request for prayer. A report of the celebration is to appear in the next mission number.

A LETTER FROM ORAIBI

"For they themselves shew of us what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God;

And to wait for His Son from heaven, Whom He raised from the dead, even Jesus, which delivered us from the wrath to come." I Thess. 1:9,10.

During the past fifty years of preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ among the Hopi Indians there are also those who have turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God. Furthermore, those who are yet among the living are looking forward to the apearing of His Son from heaven. Living epistles they are, not only read by their fellow Hopis, but watched with a keen critical eye. Truly, every Christian's testimony of life and word is very weighty, for the careless and indifferent world does not take time, nor put forth effort to read the Bible; but how they do read the Christian. It is because of this fact that we feel led to choose as a theme for the fiftieth anniversary celebration from September 26 to October 10, "The Living Hope." For to set the Lord ever before our faces, daily waiting for His return, is indeed very wholesome for us. We read, "Every man that hath this hope in himself, purifieth himself." I John 3:3.

In a women's meeting at the Southwest Bible and Missionary conference at Flagstaff, a young Christian Indian mother read a clipping of a Christian lady's testimony on her death bed who said, "I'm not afraid to die for Jesus has saved me, but I'm ashamed to die because I have not lived for Him." It reminds us of I John 2:28, does it not? Hence the two-fold purpose in our meetings: to build up the Christians in the faith, and then all together seek to win the unsaved to Christ. There will be a daily morning prayer meeting led by a native Christian, followed with a Bible study by Dr. P. H. Richert. The afternoons will be given to street meetings and house to house gospel work. Messages for and to the unsaved will be given each evening by visiting missionaries from the various Indian missions here in the Southwest.

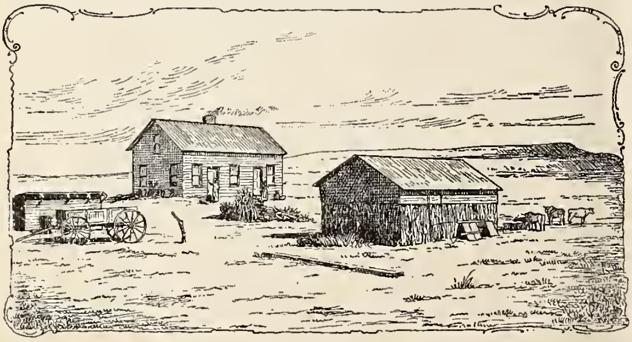
We invite you to join us in praise to God that He has kept this mission for fifty years, and that He has saved many a soul during this time. Will you not also definitely pray during these meetings that the Lord may so purify the Christian group and fill them with His own compassion for lost souls that they may put forth every possible effort to bring these many lost Hopis to Him? Pray also that every meeting and speaker may be entirely under the control of the Holy Spirit.

We had a blessed conference at Flagstaff this year with Dr. Edmond from Wheaton Illinois, and Dr. Ironside from Chicago, as the main speakers. You will rejoice with us in that the Lord so marvelously dealt with one of our Oraibi young Christian girls and her unsaved brother who is in the navy on the West Coast.

Bernice became so burdened for her brother Jonathan's salvation during one of Dr. Edmond's evening messages. She came up for help in prayer for him. A few of us prayed with her that God would find Jonathan, bring him under some sound gospel preaching, reminding him also of the Bible stories and songs learned in the Oraibi Sunday School, and to save him. Jonathan had informed the family not to write to him until further notice of his new address, for he was to be moved. The family was naturally concerned, wondering whether maybe he would be sent onto the high seas. Does anyone dare to doubt God's answer to the young girl's prayer, when after one day's notice of his unexpected furlough he joined the family on the conference grounds? When after his evening message Dr. Ironside gave the altar call and while the congregation was singing an invitation hymn a few missionaries and a pastor knowing of Jonathan's presence were silently praying for him. A battle was raging in the young man's heart. After Mr. Suderman stepped to his side encouraging him to surrender to Jesus Christ, he yielded, stepped to the front, and before the large audience confessed Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour.



House and Barn for the Workers at Oraibi, Fifty Years Ago.

Oh, that we all might at all times be living so close to the Lord, that He could lay the definite burden of an unsaved soul on our hearts! Let us be assured that the moment He can lay on our hearts such a burden and we yield to Him in intercessory prayer, He is immediately beginning His great work of salvation in that soul. For He is the author and finisher of faith.

This has been an exceptionally dry summer. The Hopis' harvest will be but meager.

Since our children, John Mark and Edith Elsie left for Kansas to attend school there this winter, we feel rather lonesome and we all need God's daily grace for this separation for the time being. There are no other white children here in Oraibi and hence there is no public school here for them to attend.

Yours for the salvation of the Hopis,

—John and Mabel Suderman

Public Service In Russia

The Tragic End

By Cornelius Krahn

Our country with its democratic way of life could not exist as it does if it were not for the following movements which influenced European civilization since the Dark Ages. In the first place the Renaissance, the revival of Greek learning and culture, was a step in this direction. Secondly, the Reformation, which emancipated Christianity from dead formalism and tradition and brought it back to the Bible, is another great influential factor. Furthermore, the movements of enlightenment as the French and American Revolutions were creative forces in shaping the American way of life. Without these historic movements and influences a democratic America is unthinkable.

Russia Today

Soviet Russia, too, is a child of the European era of enlightenment, but Russia did not experience the influences of the Renaissance and Reformation which freed Europe from the Dark Ages and created the American way of life. Thus Russia remained in the Dark Ages until the third movement swept it into the claws of Bolshevism in 1917. The parents of the Russian Revolution were the slogans "Liberty" and "Equality." That explains the temporary freedom which was granted to formerly persecuted groups. As Democratic America so is Soviet Russia a product of Western Civilization. The tender plant produced by European Civilization and transplanted to the American continent developed beautifully. But the plant produced by the same Western Civilization and transplanted to Russia developed into a wild thorny thistle. The child of liberty and equality forsook its parents and adopted a wild Asiatic despotism worse than Russia had ever known under the Czars of its Dark Ages.

Russia had always been extremely religious. After the Revolution religion was declared to be an innovation of the oppressing class, the rich. In the future classless society where liberty, equality, and fraternity were to be realized, there was no room for the oppressors and their means for the exploitation of the masses. Therefore the old government and its privileged classes were annihilated. Religion was identified with the Dark Ages from which Russia was to arise. The annihilation of religion became an integral part of the "gospel" of a classless society. This is still true today in spite of all propaganda reports which are designed to make us believe that "things have changed." (See Max Eastman's article in the Reader's Digest for July, 1943.) To believe that the Bolshevic bear has become a tame and pious domestic animal is too absurd and impossible to be seriously considered by anyone who has the slightest idea of the history, philosophy, and practices of Russian Bolshevism. This much to make the change in Russian Public Service understandable.

The Tragic End

We have seen that there was a temporary freedom granted to formerly persecuted religious groups and that for a time conscientious objection to war was respected. After Lenin's death when Stalin came to power Christianity was more and more persecuted and exemption from military service restricted. It is true that exemptions occurred and that public service still existed, but a C.O. encountered many difficulties and had to undergo many trials. It was generally considered a great honor to serve in the Red Army, the "liberator of the proletariat of the world." This "privilege" was not granted, even upon request, to "capitalists," including former intellectuals, merchants, ministers, etc., and their sons. All these, if they had survived the first years of the Revolution, were denied their civilian rights. The C.O.'s were soon more or less identified with these outcasts of the Revolution. In that utopia of a classless society of which the prophets of Bolshevism had dreamed there was now a class which was treated worse than any class had ever been treated in the former Russia. The sons of the former capitalists, not being worthy to become members of the Red Army, had to do forced labor. The C.O.'s were reduced to the same status.

Mennonite C.O.'s in Russia During Czarist Days

As stated above, the original place for some freedom of thought, sacred right of the individual, etc. are gone. They were just ideals. We will not conjecture whether it was impossible to put them into practice because of the backwardness of the people, or the inability of the leaders, or for some other reasons. We simply state that none of that freedom is to be found in Bolshevistic Russia. We also find that where there is no religious freedom there can be no toleration of an individual's objection to war. All that is gone. We do not know how many boys have been shot because they would rather lose their lives than give up their principles. Doubtless, there are many of them. We do not know whether all who object to war are shot. If not, they are to be found among the ten million who are doing forced labor in the Russian concentration camps. Wherever they are, they are a testimony like the Tolstoyan who was led to be shot because he refused to take up arms. His last words were "Brethren, you are killing my body, but in doing so you are killing your own souls."

We cannot send the C.O.'S of whom we have been speaking a letter of encouragment, nor a package of food, but we can pray for them. We can also be thankful to God for giving us a country where we can serve him and our country according to the dictates of our conscience. Are we thankful enough? How do we express our thankfulness? There are many ways open.

A. S. W. Camp News...Forest Service, British Columbia

(A.S.W. in Canada corresponds to C.P.S. in the U.S.A. See issues of Aug. 24 and 30 for preceding articles)

Boys' Bunkhouses

A camp may consist of the following—either tents boarded up the sides and ends or prefabricated huts, twelve feet by fourteen feet. The latter are the most desirable. They have double thickness and are of cedar construction. The only door, situated at the front, has a glass window insert, interchangeable with screen insert, with a ventilator over top, and another in the opposite end. A window on each of the two sides permits one to look down through the entire row of cabins, should they be in one straight line.

The small buildings are easily heated by a stove placed in the center, of either cast iron or airtight tin construction, the wood box being generally built under one of the windows with table over top. Beds, either single or double, depending upon the strength of the camp, occupy the corners. They are for the most part of wooden structure with steel-frame springs and mattress. Each fellow has a pillow and four woolen blankets. Only a couple camps have electricity; the rest are lighted by either coal oil lamps or Coleman. The campees make their own shelves, cupboards, clothes closets, and chests. Generally every available space is taken and all things must have their proper place. A prefabricated hut may be raised or lowered in short order by experienced workers.

Other Buildings

Besides the boys' bunkhouses, there is the office (generally a prefabricated hut too), the mess hall with kitchen attached, the cook's house, the washhouse, equipped with faucets, a long sink with basins, showers, scrub boards or washing machines, and lest you form too high a conception of all this, things are decidedly of the lumber camp style rather than citified—then there is the tool shed, the toilets, the saw filing shed, the pump house, the water tower, and the recreation hall which also is used as a chapel for worship.

Our Meals Are Good

Someone asks, "What about the meals? Do they feed you well?" You women are especially interested here. Meals are an important thing with us but they are just that which we never think to write home about. We always have plenty to eat and whether the meals are tasty enough depends on the individual cook. We must say we have found some decidedly better able to satisfy our appetites than others. It must be remembered here that in Canadian C. O. Camps the government supplies the food and cooks (as well as the lodging) and it is not the church. Certain frozen goods are obtainable but by no means all. We will give you the average menu.

Breakfast—Choice of cereals and porridge. Pan cakes (also called flap jacks or hot cakes) with jam or thin syrup. Bacon and eggs. Coffee or water. Toast. Sugar and butter.

Dinner—Soup (vegetable, bean, tomato, clam chowder, etc.) with biscuits. Hot meat and potatoes. Vegetables, two or three kinds generally (beans, peas, turnips, carrots, cabbage). Often spaghetti or macaroni. Pickled beets or catchup. Pudding (coca, rice, custard) pie (caramel, raisen, apple, date, peach, pumpkin). Of course only one kind of pudding or pie at a meal, but sometimes both pudding and pie are placed on the table. Tea or water. (no butter or sugar).

Supper—Fried potatoes and cold meats. Lettuce or other vegetables. Perhaps cream cheese. Fruit (canned plums, apples, pears, or some dried fruits as prunes). Butter but no sugar. Cookies and cakes, generally plain. Tea or water. Perhaps pie.

Canned or evaporated milk is used as it is impossible to get fresh milk. Of course, there are times when one becomes tired of the cooking, but who is there that does not appreciate a change nor prefer somebody else's cooking occasionally, even if theirs isn't as good as yours!

One boy assisting in the kitchen, has gained over fifty pounds while in camp, many others have gained ten to twenty-five pounds.

Grace before Meals

It is customary to have grace before meals, some of the boys taking turns, the rotation changing with each meal, each day, or each week, according to the set-up of that particular camp. A short portion of Scripture is read before the morning prayer.

There are six men to each table, three on either side. We eat off a white linoleum. When tables are reset, the plates are inverted, also the cup on saucer placed on top of the plate. No handles on cups. The dishes are earthenware. The foremen and cooks prefer little talking at the tables.

Flunkies wait on tables and assist the cook. Generally, unless the camp is quite small, an assistant cook is chosen from the boys.

Real Values

Gal. 6:14-17

By Homer Leisy

Introduction

Our context intimates that we are easily deceived. "Be not deceived." Not all that glitters is gold; we may lack a sense of REAL values. Let a child choose between a big red apple and a Bible; it will choose the temporal. Lot chose the "big red apple" of temporal gain and suffered loss; whereas Abraham by faith chose God's Word and REAL VALUES. Shall we look at one of our outstanding Bible characters, who after he was BORN AGAIN changed his ideas as to what constituted REAL Values.

I. The Cross Changed Paul's Idea of What Was Worthwhile and What Was Worthless. (Gal. 6:14)

1. The Cross itself was changed from a symbol of shame to a badge of honor. In the eyes of the Roman law, the Cross was an object of shame. It was only for the vilest. It was the extreme penalty of the law upon a criminal—a disgrace. Now it has become a badge of honor. He GLORIES in the Cross, he is glad to own it, it is precious, he is not ashamed of it, nor offended by it. Why the change? His eyes were opened to real values, as expressed in that precious hymn, "The Old Rugged Cross." Now he sees its REAL VALUE and is willing to face whatever trials his stand may bring. Have you been to Calvary??

2. The Cross changed Paul's idea about the ONE crucified thereon. Here is not a FALSE messiah—but the SON OF GOD, his SUBSTITUTE—dying there in his room and stead. How could he be indifferent, when he saw the REAL VALUE of the atonement?

3. The Cross changed Paul's idea of the value of a soul. Formerly, he consented to their death as he wrought havoc with the church. Now the soul is of INFINITE VALUE—such a sacrifice—such a price paid—such an eternal destiny. Under the law the sheep died by the hand of the shepherd . . but at Calvary (marvelous grace). THE SHEPHERD dies FOR (substitutionary) the sheep.

4. The Cross changed Paul's idea about the world. (vs. 14 b) The higher our estimate of the cross the lower our estimate of the world which is at enmity with God. It marked a double death in Paul. Dead to the world (world is crucified unto me) it had no claims on him and the death of PAUL to the world (and I unto the world) he had no desire for the world. Its values-empty . . . do not satisfy. From this death came three new things, namely (A) A NEW creature. (v. 15) Death, but no funeral for out of death came a new man. (Col. 3:1-4). (B) A NEW rule (vs. 16). At peace with God—His book becomes the perfect infallible rule of FAITH and LIFE. (C) A NEW mark (vs. 17) as bond slave, (Ex. 21:2-6, Ps. 40:6) he gladly bore in his body the marks of his LORD. He was submissive.

5. The Cross determined the contents of Paul's message. He was not satisfied with mere moral teaching. Christ and Him crucified was the heart of his message. He presented REAL VALUES. (I Cor. 15:1-4)

II The Cross Changed Paul's Idea of Direction

1. He had relied on his family, (Phil. 3:4-8) but NOW he is in GOD'S FAMILY.

2. He had used force, (Acts 9:1,2,13) he thought might made right . . . now love has conquered force. (Acts 9:20)

3. He discovered that fellowship with the Crucified, Risen, Savior was essential to right direction. (I John 1:6,7)

III. The Cross Changed Paul's Idea of What is Permanent, of Real Value

1. Fame is not permanent (many examples of history).

2. Fortune is not permanent. Examples of Lot. (Gen. 19) Rich Fool. (Luke 12:16-20)

3. Neither the world nor anything it has to offer is permanent. The World passeth away and the lust thereof, he that doeth the will of God abideth forever. That takes the props out from under all temporal, transitory things; they are not to be compared to the real eternal values, though they may give temporal —"so-called" pleasure. In the Cross and the Crucified ONE are permanent values—whatever the cost or sacrifice involved, Paul was willing to pay that price. One moment in heaven will pay for it all. Paul gloried in the CROSS of Christ, and in the Christ of the Cross, and triumphed.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

by Orlando Schmidt, Buhler, Kansas

OCTOBER 1—"My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest." Exodus 33:14.

Why should any child of God ever be fretful or of great sorrow when the Father has promised him His presence? It is up to us merely to claim it, and then we can sing with the psalmist, "In thy presence is fullness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore." The promise also says that rest will be ours. If we remember always that we are in God's presence and let our actions and words respond accordingly, we will be able to say "This is my rest for ever: here will I dwell; for I have desired it."

OCTOBER 2—"The Lord is longsuffering and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression." Numbers 14:18.

Have you ever come to the end of a day and felt that it was far from perfect; that there were numerous deeds or thoughts which were not in the center of His will? Who can be a child of the King and not find comfort in this verse? Even though you feel like all your work has been in vain, there is a God in heaven who is "longsuffering and of great mercy," keeping an eye on His child. He is waiting for you to turn to Him, for He has great joy in "forgiving iniquity and transgression."

OCTOBER 3—"Thou shalt rejoice before the Lord thy God in all that thou puttest thine hands unto." Deut. 12:18.

Is is possible for you to rejoice before the Lord in everything you do? Is all your conversation, work, recreation, and your attitude toward others in harmony with glorifying God? In II Corinthians we read, "that the life of Jesus might be made manifest in our body.' We should certainly be in a spirit of praising the Lord if the life of Jesus can be seen in our own bodies. But that is not possible unless we give our lives in complete surrender to Him, so that He can shape us and use us for His own glory.

OCTOBER 4—"Let them that love him be as the sun when he goeth forth in his might." Judges 5:31.

What a challenge there is in such a verse for a real Christian! Those that truly love Him are to be compared with the sun, the brightest and seemingly greatest of God's creation. We are to appear glorious in the eyes of the world, manifesting a kind and gentle influence. For those who love God in all sincerity and let others know of their joy, there shall be such a delight and honor that they "shall shine as the brightness of the firmament;" and "they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."

OCTOBER 5—"Let us fall now into the hand of the Lord, for his mercies are great." II Samuel 24:14.

It was when David was to choose one of the three punishments which the Lord offered to him that he spoke these words. How much better it would have been if he had fallen into His hand even before he sinned. How often people turn to God only when difficulties arise. The apostle says,"It is a dreadful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." Certainly we will not have an easy life just because we trust in Him, but in the end we must always say "his mercies are great." "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him."

OCTOBER 6—"There hath not failed one word of all his good promise." I Kings 8:56.

There is no other book in the world that contains as many promises as God's Book. Promises for the sinner, promises for the saint. Promises that have given joy to people of the past, and promises that have given joy to people of the past, and promises that are yet to show us the glory of God in all His righteousness. And to think that of all these promises not one word has ever failed! And what makes His promises even more wonderful is that he would have every single individual claim them. "God is not slack concerning his promise . . . but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance."

OCTOBER 7—"Who then is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" I Chron. 29:5.

A call that comes to every Christian! Service to the Lord should be our occupation or business. There is enough work in this occupation to keep every part of our being busy. If we accept the call, we must serve him only, serve without restriction, and serve by the strength of grace derived from God. We must do it in all humility and sincerity. Paul speaks of serving as "Not with eyeservice, as menpleasers; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart; with good will doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men."

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

"I wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the way The Mennonite brings splendid articles and important news items to the people of the Mennonite Church and to other readers.

"Every Mennonite home should subscribe to at least one of our church papers. The press is one of the most powerful forces we have in wielding public opinion. It can also be advantageously used by the Church to unify the efforts for which the Church stands."

Ripples of Christian Influence

By Maxlyn Smith

Some glorious fall day take yourself to the bank of a body of water, find a pleasant place to sit, and then proceed to enjoy yourself. Overhead the sun shines brightly, still managing to protect the earth from the cold waves which will soon make man dig into his closet for a warm coat. The soft breezes play in the tall trees, making them sway gently to and fro. As yet, there has been no frost, so the trees and grass are still clothed in their beautiful green coats The crickets chirp and the locusts sing. Now and then a multitude of birds darken the sun as they cross its path on their way south for the winter. In the distance one hears the farmer's cock proclaim his own importance in the form of a lusty "Cock-a-doodle-do." In a nearby field a tractor is humming along. It pulls the drill which sows the seeds that God somehow makes to produce thirty fold.

As you sit there enjoying nature to the fullest, you may pick up a small rock and idly drop it into the water below. You will notice the disturbance in the water as an ever-widening circle of ripples forms around the spot where the pebble hit the water as it fell. You are impressed by the fact that this little rock had such a far-reaching effect that it was able to influence the motion of the entire body of water.

That is the way the Christian life should be—far-reaching in it's influence. Take one good Christian young man or woman, "drop" him into a "pool" of sin and strife and indifference and his life will touch and change the lives of those he meets. They, in turn, will become a challenge to others, and so on and on the process will go until the whole community has been reached and influenced for the better—and all because one person was not afraid to live out his beliefs and convictions, was not hesitant to spread Christ's gospel of peace and good-will toward all.

Each of us is but one individual, but each of us is one, and our capacities and capabilities are greater then we know or even suspect. If we will but lean on God and live our daily lives in the very best way that we know how, our lives will be as far-reaching as are the ripples that issue forth when a little pebble is dropped into a pool of water.

Give of Your Best to the Master

Membership in some athletic team is not taken lightly by most young people. For instance, the boy belonging to a high school basketball team may practice over an hour each day. If conscientious he will go to bed early and get plenty of sleep; he will watch his eating habits carefully and will abstain from smoking. He will dream of how to execute certain plays and of how he will work himself out of tight situations. He will cooperate willingly with the rest of the team and will obey the captain's orders. He will give of the best that he has in order that his team may be victorious. He will sweat and "never give up."

What would happen if all young people took their membership in the Sunday School class and in the C. E. society that seriously? What kind of a Sunday School period would there be if each member of the class would spend an hour each day in preparation for it and would get plenty of sleep on Saturday night? What kind of a C. E. program would we have if each member would spend hours in preparation of his part in the program? Wouldn't there be victory over most of the difficulties that so often beset the Sunday School class and the C. E. society?

Athletic contests are exciting and draw many onlookers. Spiritual activities such as Sunday School and C. E. also become attractive to members and others when there is vigorous preparation.

How much of our best are we really willing to give to our Master when it comes down to an accurate side-by-side comparison of actual time, energy, and interest spent in preparation for activities such as the above? Do we try to kid Jesus or ourselves when we sing "Give of your best to the Master" and then live so inharmoniously with that song day by day? Furthermore, instead of giving only "of our best" should we not give "all our best" or our whole selves to the Master?

"And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men." Col. 3:23.—rw.

Three Churches Sponsor Retreat

The 1943 young people's retreat, which was sponsored by the three General Conference churches of Mountain Lake, was held in the Bergfelder church in Mountain Lake from August 22 to 25.

The theme of the retreat was "To Know the Love of Christ," Eph. 3:19, and the theme song was "Oh Pow'r of Love, all else transcending."

Our guest speaker was Rev. Olin A. Krehbiel from Lansdale, Pennsylvania. He gave the following evening messages, "Love Commeded," "Love Constrains," "Love Challenges," and "Love Calls." Rev. Krehbiel also conducted a class entitled, "The Mennonite Viewpoint" and led in the boys' discussion group.

Rev. J. J. Regier of Freeman, South Dakota, was in charge of the music and had a class entitled, "A Soul's Value."

Rev. August Ewert of the Bergfelder church was in charge of the missions class, and Mrs. August Ewert led the girls' discussion group.

A class on the study of I John was conducted by Rev. Erland Waltner. A project of making flannelgraphs was in charge of Mrs. Diedrich and Miss Ella Dick.

Officers were elected to plan the retreat for 1944. Esther Ruth Schroeder was elected as our president.

On Wednesday afternoon we had a "Retreaters" picnic on the Bergfelder church grounds. After the picnic we had a devotional period during which Mrs. Olin Krehbiel told us about the Men-O-Lan retreat.

In the evening we had an impressive consecration service followed by the candlelight service.

Our hearts are filled with gratitude to the Lord for the many blessings He bestowed upon us during our days of retreat.

Young People's Rally

Great blessings were enjoyed by the Wolf Point and Lustre communities on August 29, 1943, at the Young People's Rally held in the Bethel Wolf Point Church.

The services of the day began at 10:00 a. m. with the Sunday School lesson discussed in general. This was followed by a very fitting message entitled, "The New Birth," in keeping with the theme of the day "The Christian," by the local pastor, Albert Ewert.

During the forenoon session the children between the ages of three and twelve had a program in the basement which consisted of Sunday School classes, stories, Bible contests, object lessons, and choruses.

The afternoon session which was between the hours of 1:30 to 4:00 p. m. brought before us the growth of the Christian as pictured to us in the four topics discussed which were: "The Young Christian," I Peter 2:2; "The Adolescent Christian," I Cor. 3:2; "The Mature Christian," Heb. 5:12-14; "The Advanced Christian," Psa. 92:14. These were interspersed with numbers in song from individuals of the various churches of the communities.

A light lunch was served to all by the ladies of the local church which was followed by an half hour of singspiration enjoyed by all. Then came the round table discussion on Christian conduct.

After a few minutes recess the evening service began with some hearty singing and then seven young people gave short interesting reports of various phases of mission work which they had been doing, such as child evangelism, mission work among the Indians, city mission work, rural mission work, Sunday School work, and mission work as a nurse.

Offerings were taken during the day for eight different kinds of Inter-denominational mission work which amounted to $312.14.

Submitted by the Secretary of the Young People's Committee, Mrs. Albert Ewert

Retreat Emphasis on "Roots of Mennonite Youth"

A young people's retreat was held at Freeman College August 27, 28, and 29, for the benefit of the young people of the various churches in the Freeman vicinity. In spite of a busy season the registrar reported ninety-five as having registered for the afternoon classes. The evening meetings were always attended by a full house.

Two outstanding and stimulating Mennonite leaders were secured to direct the studies on the main theme, "Roots of Mennonite Youth." Rev. S. F. Pannabecker from Bluffton, Ohio, and at present specializing in a study of Mennonite history, took the historical approach. He very vividly and graphically traced the historical development of the Anabaptist-Mennonite movement from its beginning to the settlement of the various groups in America. He placed particular stress on the economic, social and political influences as they affected the religious thinking of each particular group. Dr. J. E. Hartzler, Goshen, Indiana, on the other hand presented the philosophical interpretation of our Mennonite way of life. He particularly brought to mind the sacred opportunity and responsibility of youth today and their need for a working, practical faith in God to meet the crisis. Together our two leaders led us to think deeply, to rethink carefully, and to appreciate more understandingly the roots in which our Mennonite faith has been grounded and the solemn responsibility we have in keeping it alive and effective. Quoting Rev. Pannabecker, "Mennonitism is a way of life . . . a true Mennonite will live it. If we have not the zeal of the martyrs of our faith we cannot truly call ourselves Mennonites and may as well be something else."

A new retreat committee was elected to arrange for another retreat next year. We are looking forward to another truly rich and blessed experience.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

No. 2 Series on Evangelism

TELLING OTHERS OF CHRIST

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "We've a Story to Tell," No. 335; "We Have Heard the Joyful Sound," No. 334. 2. Reading of John 10:7-18, prayer, and leader's remarks. 3. Prayer Service. 4. Offering for C. E. projects.

II. Leader's Introduction:

Evangelism in its original sense means the proclamation of the "evangel" or the "good news" of the gospel. It is to lead men to accept Christ and to commit their lives to Him. It brings the message to men which was put into these words by Christ: "ye must be born again." It directs its appeal to the end that a decision be made by men to follow Christ. It emphasizes His invitation, "Come unto me . . . and I will give you rest."

The world still needs evangelists. We are to tell others of Christ, to invite them to become children of God. We are to tell them of the need of repentance and of regeneration, of the meaning of discipleship, of the life of Jesus among men, of the Saviour's death and resurrection.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Incentive to missions, I Chron. 16:23-26. 2. Demand for preachers. Rom. 10:14,15. 3. The command to evangelize, Matt. 28:19,20. 4. Beginning at home, Luke 24:47-5. The gospel for all, Acts 10:34, 35.

IV. For Discussion:

1. What did the Sunday school movement do for the church?

2. What emphasis should be put on S. S. teacher training courses?

3. How can we reach those in our midst who do not attend S. S.?

V. Facts for Study:

Read the handbook on church evangelism Other Sheep I Have published under the auspices of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference.

The Evangelism Committee lists the following observations: 1. Too many churches depend upon special services for evangelism and do not utilize lay members to carry on a year-round program of evangelism. 2. The assertion of some ministers that there are no Mennonite leaders available for evangelistic work must be modified since a considerable number of churches have used Mennonite leaders. 3. There is great need for the development of evangelism in Sunday schools and of a proper understanding of the relation of religious education and evangelism.

VI. Illustration:

D. L. Moody always appealed for instant decisions for Christ, after an early experience in Chicago. On October 8, 1871, Moody closed a sermon with the words: "What will you do with Jesus? Come back next Sunday and tell me your decision." Soon the fire bells began to ring. The Great Fire had started, and by morning Chicago was in ruins. It was then this great evangelist felt he had missed his opportunity with that congregation, and found it hard to forgive himself for asking men and women to delay their decisions. Speaking of the occasion, he exclaimed, "I would rather have that right hand cut off than give an audience a week to decide what to do with Jesus."

VII. Food for Thought:

"God was the wonder-worker; Paul the instrument. Without the electric current the radio is silent."

Give us illustrations of His power in that capacity, and tell us how He impresses you.

A WAY TO DOUBLE OUR SUBSCRIPTION LIST

The Mennonite—your paper and my paper—ought to go into a great many more Mennonite homes in America. How can we at once double its subscription list? There are several ways it can be done. Here is the easiest and the simplest way to do it:

If every present subscriber will consider himself (or herself) a responsible member of The Mennonite family, and will therefore act as a personal representative to secure at least one paid subscription from some other Mennonite, we can within one month double our number of readers. Will you do It?

The Seventh Beatitude

By Erland Waltner

"Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God." Matt. 5:9.

There is an obvious difference between the peacemaker and the peace-breaker. Some people, it seems, are born peace-breakers. Wherever they go they stir up trouble. Strife and contention follow them as consistently as their own shadow. Jesus has no beatitude for these.

There is also a difference, however, between the peaceful and the peacemaker. It is a good thing to be a peaceful and a peaceable person but this beatitude includes more than that. Peacefulness may even be a very selfish thing. This beatitude is for the peacemaker. It speaks of activity not of passivity. Peacefulness may be only negative but peacemaking is distinctly positive.

How is true peace made? True peace is more than a cessation of hostilities between two striving parties. It is a reconciliation resulting in a bond of unity. True peace with men is impossible apart from peace with God. Such peace is impossible without the Prince of Peace. Through Christ alone can men be reconciled to God. Through Him alone can they be truly reconciled to one another. "He is our peace." (Eph. 2:14)

How then can we be peacemakers? Only as we are witnesses of the true way of reconciliation which is in Jesus Christ. The peacemakers are those who proclaim the Prince of Peace. They are those who endeavor to bring men into harmony with God and who thus make it possible for them to be in harmony with their fellow men. These shall be called the children of God.

—Mountain Lake Observer

WHAT CAN A MAN BELIEVE—about the progress of the war? About the atrocity stories we hear? Experience from previous wars should make thinking people careful as to what they accept as true. Still it is often difficult to distinguish between propaganda and truth. We recommend as a helpful pamphlet on this subject the one entitled "Propaganda" written by the late Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, available through the Mennonite Book Concern. He quotes Muriel Lester saying, "The first casulty in every war is truth. Those who are aware of this remain obstinately skeptical about news, prophecy of speedy victory, propaganda lectures, atrocity stories and glamorous magazine articles which describe the suddenly acquired saintliness of the nation's defenders." Paul says, "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good."

"God gives every bird its food, but He does not throw it into the nest."

CIVILIAN PUBLIC SERVICE

The whole problem of camp assignment is now under review by our agency. A form has been sent to all of our campers on which each may indicate his present desire for detached service assignment or transfer to another camp. It is not clear just how completely we will be able to meet the wishes of our men, but a consistent attempt has been made to make every reasonable adjustment.

Polk County, Florida, has been approved as the location for a Mennonite Unit which will engage in hookworm and malaria control. The camp will be set up near the small town of Mulberry. The present number of men authorized for the project is twenty-five, but it is anticipated this will be increased. Assignments to this work will be limited to campers who are vitally interested in preparation for relief work and wil agree to devote their leisure hours to a prescribed study and work program.

PEACE SECTION

The present increased interest in Civilian Bonds is indicated by a larger volume of inquiries which have been reaching the Akron office. Many continue to appreciate the opportunity to register their desire for non-participation in any effort which violates the Christian conscience. The limitations of the present plan are readily recognized but appear to be the only course open for those who are interested in making such purchases in line with our profession. —September 8.

« « JOTTINGS » »

—A new Mennonite C.P.S. unit, located at Mulberry, Polk County, Florida, will have as its projects sanitary pit privy construction for the fight against the widely-prevalent hookworm disease. Perhaps, they will also be able to do health education among the needy people. Roland Bartel was one of three men who helped open the camp on August 30. The campers will occupy buildings formerly occupied by some single workers in the nearby phosphate mines. The off-project educational program will emphasize relief and reconstruction training. Several men from the Goshen College training unit have been assigned to this camp.

—Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Isaac spoke to the First Mennonite Church, Upland, California, on September 19. The Isaacs are planning to return to India in the very near future if at all possible.

—Berne, Indiana: Rev. Erland Waltner of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, was the speaker for the recent young people's conference sponsored by the young people of the First Mennonite Church. He also brought the message on both Sunday mornings that he was there.—Gerald Stucky has left the United States with Missionary W. C. Voth for an estimated trip of 22,000 miles into Central and South America. The two men plan to make a survey of the possibilities for establishing a mission. If one is begun there, then Brother and Sister Stucky are to open it.—Carl M. Lehman, who has been in C.P.S. since 1941, left recently by plane for Puerto Rico where he is to be the business manager of the New Mennonite C.P.S. unit that has been established there to provide health service to the poverty-stricken and undernourished people in the mountainous region of Central Puerto Rico. —An enlarged church bulletin: Pastors and members, you use your church bulletin to carry important information to the church, don't you? Have you ever thought of our church papers as enlarged bulletins bringing very important information to all the members of our conference who read them? There are too many who still miss the important information in our church papers. A recent bulletin of the Wayland Mennonite Church, Wayland, Iowa, calls attention to valuable articles carried in a recent issue of The Mennonite. This is one way in which pastors can draw their member's attention to the value of our church papers.

The kitchen force canned all but 19½ bushels—which were served fresh to the campers—in eight days.

—Christian Endeavor Reflector is the name of an interesting four-page mimeographed paper put out by the Inman Mennonite Church, Inman, Kansas. It contains summaries of recent sermons, inspirational articles, and news items. One such item reads in part; "Canning bees have been held in the church basement where approximately 130 quarts of fruit have been canned. Home canning has also been stressed. Our goal for our church is about 400 quarts, and we believe if we all do our bit we shall reach our goal." The paper goes to the boys in camp.

—Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas: The sewing societies have been spending most of their time in doing relief sewing, and in gathering and mending old or used clothing. BLUFFTON COLLEGE NEWS

Bluffton Students Plan for School Year

Members of the Bluffton college Student Christian association held their first fall planning retreat the weekend of September 4 and 5, on the Bluffton campus.

This will be the first year for the Bluffton Student Christian association as such. Reorganization of the extra-curricular groups on the Bluffton campus took place last spring, evolving into this new centralized activity organization. Activities for freshman week at Bluffton included the traditional all-college sing Monday evening, September 6, held in the Lincoln hall lobby this year instead of on the campus, due to rain; the freshman "mixer" in the gymnasium, Tuesday evening, September 7; the first Student Christian association meeting, Wednesday evening, September 8, presenting commission groups of that organization; a roast at the college cabin for "big" and "little" sisters and brothers, Thursday evening, September 9; the traditional formal all-college "mixer" in the gymnasium, Friday evening, September 10; and the first all college party in the form of a treasure hunt, Saturday evening, September 11.

Speakers Presented in College Chapel

Dr. Lloyd L. Ramseyer, President of Bluffton college, addressed Bluffton students at their first regular Chapel service, Wednesday morning, September 8, challenging them to consider the question of why they were in college at this critical time, and what they were going to do about it. Rev. Jesse Smucker, pastor of the local First Mennonite Church, spoke at the second chapel service, Thursday morning, September 9; he extended an invitation to, and urged all students to attend the church of their choice regularly; he also presented the associate membership plan of the Mennonite church, to students for their consideration. Rev. J. A. Weed, pastor of the local Methodist Church and President of the Bluffton Ministerial association, addressed the students Friday morning, September 10. He stressed the necessity of living "above the clouds" in meditation and prayer in order to be prepared for life's strenuous demands. Rev. William Stauffer, pastor of the Mennonite church of Sugarcreek, Ohio, and now doing special field work in connection with the Mennonite Central Committee Civilian Public Service program, addressed Bluffton students at chapel, Tuesday morning, September 14. He spoke of the opportunities for service and of the commendable work C.P. S. boys are doing in institutions for the mentally ill.

Improvements Completed on Bluffton Campus

Considerable repairing and renovating has done on the Bluffton college campus during the past summer. Among projects completed were the refinishing of the floors in the reception rooms and first floor halls of the women's dormitory, refinishing of the table tops in the college dining room, laying of a new floor in the college kitchen, redecorating of rooms on the first floor of Lincoln hall, men's dormitory, and painting of College hall.

The Mennonite Bible Academy, Beatrice, Nebraska

Our churches cannot "make disciples" nor "teach" without definitely Christian schools. The Beatrice M. B. A. opened its doors again on September 6. It provides two years (9th and 10th grades) of balanced instruction. It offers five courses: three of high school work, one of Bible, and one of music. Miss Violet Miller, Hurley, S. Dakota, a 1943 graduate of Bethel College, who majored in Bible and Music, serves as instructor. Her interest in and preparation for both Bible and music instruction qualifies her well for the position. Students come from the homes of both Mennonite churches. We are looking forward to a blessed school year.

Dwight L. Moody and War

Reprinted from a tract published by the Middle District Conference of Mennonites, C. Henry Smith, Bluffton, Ohio, Editor.

The nineteenth century perhaps witnessed the greatest advance the Christian Church had ever known since the Reformation. Missions, education, and evangelism flourished and prospered. Great names emerged: Livingstone, Spurgeon, Booth, Finney, and Brooks. No name, however, loomed more mightily than that of Dwight L. Moody. From the depths of his great faith flowed a torrent of saving and cleansing triumphs. When he died in 1899, the greatest monuments to his divine labors were thousands of human beings in Europe and America who had experienced spiritual re-birth as a result of his God-inspired power.

Yet, it is a curious fact that with all this ongoing publicity, the story of Dwight L. Moody as a nonresistant Christian is almost unknown. A careful reading of the official, authorized biography of the great evangelist written by his son, William R. Moody, reveals the full story.

Dwight L. Moody was a young man of 24, living in Chicago when the firing on Fort Sumter launched the tragic Civil War. Like all large cities, Chicago felt the excitement of this struggle; near the southern limits of the city Camp Douglas was started for the massing and instruction of recruits. Some of his own converts were among those who enlisted. Moreover, "a company was also raised among his friends and former associates in business, and on all sides he was urged to enter the service of his country."

His son points out that the cause of the Union appealed to the youthful Moody very strongly. For he had been an ardent abolitionist, having listened to the powerful oratory of men like William Lloyd Garrison, Wendell Philips, and Elijah P. Lovejoy. More amazing, his biographer-son records, were the public demonstrations against slavery in which he had joined.

But, in spite of all these heavy pressures toward the war, Dwight L. Moody could not enlist. Read his own words on the matter: "There has never been a time in my life when I felt I could take a gun and shoot down a fellow being. In this respect I am a Quaker." Precisely! This was the identical attitude of the Quakers, Mennonites, and Dunkards in the Civil War: Anti-slavery, pro-Union, but faithful to the commandment of Jesus Christ to " . . . Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you." (Matt.5:44)

This conviction was maintained in his personal life. Once Moody was the silent spectator to a rather violent argument. To a friend he commented, "Mac, the world is in great need of peace-makers."

This conviction was also manifested in his preaching. One of his most famous sermons was called, "Good News." This tremendous message contains a famous passage which plumbs the very depths of forgiveness as taught by our Lord. Moody quotes Christ's famous farewell charge to His disciples: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." Then the imagination of the preacher is brought into the sermon. He imagines Peter saying, "Lord, do you really mean that we shall 'preach the gospel to every creature?' " The answer is, "Yes." Then Peter asks, "Shall we go back to those Jerusalem sinners who murdered you?" "Yes, Peter, go back there and tarry until you have been endued with power from on high. Offer the Gospel to them first. Go search the man who spat on my face; tell him I forgive him; there is nothing in my heart but love for him. Go search out the man who put that cruel crown of thorns on my brow; tell him that I will have a crown ready for him in my kingdom, if he will accept salvation; there shall not be a thorn in it, and he shall wear it forever and ever in the Kingdom of the Redeemer.

"Find out that man who took the reed from my

October 20-21

The Lord willing, the Western District Conference will convene October 20-21 in the Memorial Hall on the Bethel campus.

A. E. Funk, President; H. E. Miller, Secretary hand and smote my head, driving the thorns deeper into my brow.' If he will accept salvation as a gift, I will give him a scepter, and he shall have sway over the nations of the earth. Yes, I will give him to sit with me on my throne.

"Go seek that man who struck me with the palm of his hand; find him, and preach the Gospel to him; tell him that the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin and my blood was shed for him freely.

"Go seek that soldier that drove the spear into my side; tell him there is a nearer way to my heart than that. Tell him that I forgive him freely; and tell him I will make him a soldier of the cross and my banner over him shall be love."

Here Dwight L. Moody has created a stirring picture of the Prince of Peace and His utter willingness to forgive seventy times seven; His compassionate love for those who do Him evil. This is the source of all true nonresistant testimony Let us pray that God will raise up more true apostles of God's redeeming love like Dwight L. Moody.

Dr. H. A. Fast was elected as Vice-president of the M.C.C. at its recent meeting in Chicago. This filled the vacancy left by the death of Rev. P. H. Parents As Bible Teachers

Children of today lack Bible knowledge. There is wide agreement upon that, and tests substantiate it. That is sad.

The generally proposed solution is the teaching of more Bible by agencies outside the home. It is suggested that what Sunday school pupils need is to know the stories of the Bible in the order that they appear in the scriptures. Daily vacation Bible schools are expected to fill in a large lack of knowledge. Bible courses are introduced in grade school and high school.

While these agencies are emphasized, the home is very largely ignored. It is held that because many parents fail to teach the Bible in the home, other agencies must assume this task. There is no question that the agencies mentioned are doing a very commendable piece of work. However, they are also guilty of drawing away the attention from where it ought to be very largely centered, the home.

Once there were no Sunday schools, no daily vacation Bible schools, and yet Christians had a very thorough knowledge of the Bible. Where did they get it? Very largely in the home. One very important way of scriptural teaching in the days of Moses is given in the following command: "And these words which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates."

The home is, undoubtedly, the most fruitful means of spiritual teaching. When parents have God's word in their hearts and express it as the answer and guiding principle for troublesome situations in work and family life, then they are able to give to their children spiritual lessons that hardly anyone else can approximate. Home life furnishes opportunities for the application and illustration of spiritual truths—opportunities which are usually missing elsewhere. Let parents talk about God's word in the living room, on the highway, and in morning and evening devotions, and the chances are that much spiritual seed will be sown in the children's hearts. Parents are to teach the Bible diligently. This means that in the home there must be a greater use of the Bible than of funny papers (in most cases not at all funny) and fairy stories. Parents can be excellent Bible teachers, and thy ought to take the time to do it.

"And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children . . ."—rw.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

ON THE WAY

A letter from Wm. C. Voth dated September 15 states that he and Brother Gerald Stucky were at Cuauthemoc with the General Conference Mennonites located there. They expected to go out into the mountains to the Indian tribe where Mr. Randall Groening works, spending until about Saturday September 18 there. (Mr. Groening is from the Bergtaler Mennonite Gemeinde in Manitoba)

Leaving El Paso Sunday afternoon they had arrived at Chinuahua late that evening and arrived at Cuauthemoc the next day where they were warmly welcomed by the Redekop family. Mr. Groening was there and they enjoyed a good visit. They visited several of the Mennonite villages and saw how those people who are of the Old Order Mennonites work. They use no cars in the colony.

They wanted to visit some of the Indians that day. Mr. Groening would like to see the General Conference support that work.

Sewa Bhawan - House of Service

What an eyeopener a visit to our hospital would be to most of you. The long corridors opening into private rooms and wards, stiffly starched, immaculate nurses hurrying about, bouquets of flowers and many other things you associate with hospitals in America are missing here. Yet for the last three months—January to March, the record is as follows: Dispensary Patients—meaning those who came for medicines but did not stay in the hospital—2,500. Hospital patients—502 making an average of 44 in-patients daily. Major Operations—69, and Minor Operations—124. Total treatments given were 3,500.

How big a hospital force carried on all this? Two doctors—Dr. Dester and his assistant Dr. Prem Singh Roy; three compounders who do mixing of medicines; laboratory and dispensing work; a clerk to keep records; one Indian trained nurse and an untrained helper for her; one "dresser" who does the work of nurse for men patients; two floor women, who also do the hospital washing; and a night watchman.

Patients range all the way from the poor beggar leper to the proud village owner or government official. The richer ones pay for medicine and treatment; many pay only for medicines; and a host pay less than cost of medicines or even nothing at all. Yet, to run this hospital the Mission Board is asked to send only three dollars a day.

Does the hospital make any attempt to bring the Gospel to the people that come? Yes, it does, Every morning before the dispensing of medicines the people are invited to come to worship. Very sick patients, of course, cannot come to this. With them personal work must be done. But each patient generally has from one to four family or caste people with him to care for his room, cook meals, give baths and be on call. These, together with patients that are up and around, come to hear the messages. During the past year the hospital workers sold 3 Bibles, 5 New Testaments, 196 Gospel portions, 298 tracts and a number of song books, Some remain indifferent to the message of Christ. Others express a measure of faith. Some, we believe, will be counted among the ransomed.

Little nine-year-old Gularam has just left. He was here for three months and we were all drawn to him, His poor, lame back caused him much suffering. Yet he was so keen to know about everything. One day he said, "I am the biggest in our family, just as my father was the biggest in his. If this sickness had not come then I would be in the fourth class now." He was given a simple Bible story book and became especially interested in the story of Zaccheaus. He had it read to him over and over. When the Bible women questioned him, he could tell the whole story. One day he said to them, "Zaccheaus was a Christian; so, of course, Jesus loved him. But I am not a Christian." They hastened to explain that Zaccheaus was not a Christian when the Lord called him. Before long Gularam could repeat the verse about the Lord coming to seek and to save that which was lost. When he was to go home he was not at all happy. He wanted to stay here. In childhood's simple language he expressed his trust in "Yishu Masih." Does it not make you glad?

Christian Education in the Home

By Paul R. Shelly

Many people are realizing today that Christianity or any way of life cannot be taught alone but that it must be lived. Educators are emphasizing this truth, telling us that the program of the school cannot be effective unless there is cooperation in the home. Leaders in the field of Christian education are also stressing this same approach. We are learning anew that we cannot teach children the way of Christ on Sundays unless this way of life is lived in the homes.

There is another fact that is obvious to all who have eyes to see and that is that the Christian home has become less and less the center of our lives, our nation, and the world. This is, particularly, true in countries like Germany. The family is no longer the central institution of the nation there. In our country too we have become so busy and life has become so departmentalized that we have little time to spend together as a family in our homes.

There is one encouraging factor in the situation and that is that people are realizing that more is needed in life than that for which they have been seeking. We see signs of this everywhere. One of the evidences is the type of reading people are doing. People seem to realize that they need a foundation in life which they have neglected.

These are trends that can be seen round about us. They reveal a tremendous need. Unless our homes again become centers of Christian living the Church cannot be effective, dynamic, and meaningful in the future. These trends also present a great opportunity. People are seeking for a way of life that satisfies. This is the opportunity the church should seize. There are three things that should be kept in mind as we carry out a program of Christian education in the home.

Christ must be at the Center of the Home

Sometime ago I saw again Rembrandt's painting "Christ at Emmaus." It shows the author's conception of what it means to have Christ at the center of the home. The two travelers are seated, one at each end of the table. There is a servant in the background. At the center is Christ. One cannot very well keep his eyes focused on one part of the picture alone. He must see it as a whole with Christ at the center. There is a motto which appears in some homes which emphasizes this truth.

Christ is the head of this home,
The Unseen guest at every meal,
The silent listener to Every conversation.

This is the starting point and the central truth in our program of Christian education. If we want our nation and the world to endure we must have marriages based on things unseen. We must have Christ as the common denominator which binds the family together into one common unit. Statistics are revealing in this connection. Marriages that are founded on a mutual experience with Jesus Christ are usually successful and happy.

The Christian Life Must Be Lived in the Home

Our Mennonite heritage has been maintained because through these four centuries we have not only taught certain doctrines in our churches but we have lived our religion in our homes. This has been one of the reasons why we have been able to maintain our way of life. Recently, I talked to a Mennonite girl who went to a denominational college of another church for a year. We were discussing this matter of distinctiveness. She said that the dean of women there said that the one main reason why our young people are different is because of the family training they receive.

This is our heritage, but I am afraid that we have not been as faithful in maintaining it as we should have been in recent years. We have stressed a certain type of program in our churches. We have copied many methods from other groups. However, we have not emphasized the fact enough that the Christian life must be lived in the homes if our distinctiveness is to be maintained. Now in the time of war we have again been reminded that we have certain principles that are distinctive. We have been surprised that more of our young men have not remained true to our way of life. How could we expect them to when parents were not practicing distinctive principles in their daily lives?

We must constantly keep in mind the fact that the Christian life cannot be lived in a vacuum. Parents cannot expect the Church and the Sunday School to "teach" their children religion. It can only be taught as it is lived in the home.

We must have Family Worship in our Homes

During recent years many changes have entered into our lives and have made it more and more difficult for families to gather together each day to worship God. Then too, there has been more and more emphasis on material things, and people for a time did not feel a need to keep in daily communion with God as a family There were people too who felt that the type of family worship they had practiced as children was not helpful, and consequently they decided to do away with it entirely in their homes.

Today people are again stressing the need for family worship. This is noticed in many different groups. We as Mennonites must emphasize this need in our churches. We must do more than simply preach about it. We must give our people helpful suggestions in how they can best have a meaningful period of family worship in their homes each day.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

J. W. Fretz

MANIA FOR MEMBERS

The Christian churches of today are no longer satisfied with small memberships. Unless a church has a membership of at least two or three hundred it is considered a rather weak and struggling organization. This is a far cry from the small bands of Apostolic Christians in the first and second centuries which were held together by the bonds of God's love as revealed in Jesus Christ. At that time an organization did not have to be big in order to be good.

The Business Attitude

Today in many of the churches, and to our shame, some Mennonite churches, have taken on the attitude of modern business which literally worships "Bigness". Every new thing must be bigger than the old things or the new is not considered a success. The salesman must sell more goods each year than he did in the former year; the merchant must attract more new customers, the doctor must serve a wider clientele and the factory worker must turn out more goods. The primary emphasis is on quantity. There is of course no objection to quality but that in most cases is of secondary consideration. It is the exceptional business man who gives primary consideration to quality. The average concern wishes to sell goods and more goods in ever increasing quantities.

The Minister as Business Man

In many of the modern churches the minister must be not only the preacher on Sunday and minister to the needs of his people during the week, but he must also play the role of the business executive in his church. He is the leader of the church and upon him often falls the responsibility of seeing that the church budget is balanced. The more members there are the easier it is to raise the budget, thus the tremendous emphasis on getting new members. Of course, no minister invites people to join his church in order that the financial load of the church will be spread over a larger number of individuals. This would be too bold and too frank an appeal, but that is the reason many people are taken into the church. It is certainly not because they raise the spiritual level of the whole Body of Christ.

What Price Members?

Mennonite churches too often manifest a certain mania for members, not only to win new ones but also to hold old ones. Many times questionable forms of conduct and behavior are tolerated rather than members disciplined and probably lost from the active membership of the church. We have many members who do not believe in discipline. They hate to offend members even when such members forsake the admonitions of their Lord, the instruction of the Scriptures, and the faith of their fathers. We need today a purified church; a church that exercises discipline. What good is a large church membership if it is attained at the cost of compromise of its once sacred principles? Jesus said: "If the salt has lost its savor it is good for nothing but . . . "

SAUL OF TARSUS AND THE HORSE'S TAIL

By John Thiessen

In our fifth and sixth classes in our school at Jagdeeshpore, India, we studied the life of Paul. Our boys and girls were very much taken up with the life of that great hero. We gave just a little time to Saul as the persecutor of Christians, but by far most of the time was spent in studying his life as a great missionary hero. Towards the end of the study I asked the children to write a paper on the life of Paul, and put in especially what interested them the most, or what seemed to them most important. After a few days the papers began to come in. I read the first one, and I read that right after the stoning of Stephen, Saul captured the Christians and tied them to his horse's tail, and then he rode around Jerusalem, the Christians running behind the horse. Then Saul got a license from the chief priests to tie the Christians on to the horse's tail and chase off to Damascus. So Saul did; and then the great light came and stopped him. I was surprised to read this, but I thought it was only the expression of one youngster's fanciful mind. But I read another paper, and another, and a whole string had that story. I was amazed. I had said nothing of the kind in class, and we surely had not read it in our Bibles. So I asked the children where in the world this story came from. Finally one said he had heard a preacher tell it that way; and he had liked that story and told it to the other children. They all liked it, and so they told it to me in their papers.

MRS. RICHARD WEAVER, daughter of Rev. E. S. Shelly, Pennsburg, Pa., and sister to Paul and Andrew Shelly, is a graduate of Bluffton College. In school last year she took a course on Audio-Visual Aids under President Ramseyer and wrote a paper, the first part of which appears in this issue. Undoubtedly, it will be of great interest to Sunday School workers and ministers.

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDS IN THE CHURCH

Mrs. Richard Weaver

Someone has said that one picture is worth ten thousand words. Whether that is true or not, there is no doubt about the fact that a child receives more knowledge through his eyes than through any of the other senses. He remembers much more of what he sees than of what he merely hears. Educators have made much of this fact and have been using audio-visual aids in the secular schools. Experiments conducted with these aids for the ear and the eye show that it is possible to increase interest, to increase the amount learned in any unit of time, and that materials learned will be remembered longer if taught by the use of suitable visual aids. If it is important for our children to learn by the best method in our public schools, it is even more important that the best methods be used in our Sunday schools and churches. In our American educational system, only a relatively small amount of time is allocated for the teaching of the truths of Christianity. If the teachings of the Sunday school and the church are to permeate into the lives of those who attend, it is very important that the most efficient means available be used to attain our goals.

The Evil of "Verbalism"

The means of communication used mostly by ministers and teachers is the use of words. Words are symbols with meaning. When a certain word is spoken, immediately the mind sets up an image of that for which this word is a symbol. So often the teacher uses words that the pupil does not understand. This results in verbalism which has been defined as: "The use of words without appreciation of the meaningful content of the concept in which they are used." To counteract this evil of verbalism, the teacher may employ visual aids.

Difficulties in Bible Teaching

There are several difficulties in Bible teaching which visual methods will help to overcome. First of all it is an ancient book dealing with a time far removed from our own time. It must be made new and living for today. The setting of the Bible is in a foreign land. Maps and pictures will help a great deal in showing the children the various customs and manners of the people in the Bible. They will clarify their problems and remove their doubts to a great extent and will help to give reality to the Bible characters. There are so many truths and ideas in the Bible that are hard for children to understand. By the use of various visual aids, these can be explained to them very satisfactorily. Some of these aids will be explained later on. It must be made clear to the children that the characters in the Bible were real, live people, who lived in real time and in real places, and did real things. They must not think of the Bible as some abstract thing that happened years and years ago and has nothing to do with life today. It must be brought down to ordinary, everyday terms for them. They must realize that through the study of the Bible we learn how to live our lives today in ways that are most pleasing to God.

The use of visual aids will not mean that other customary methods should not be used. We must remember that a visual aid is just a help to learning. Several such aids will be mentioned and analyzed in this discussion.

Opportunities at Hand

Often Sunday schools and churches think they do not have the material to carry on a program of this method of instruction. As will be seen in this discussion, in most cases there is very little material needed that is not already possessed by most Sunday schools. It is not the amount of material that one has as much as it is the use that is made of the material already on hand. This will be more clearly brought out later on.

The Field Trip

We must remember that a visual aid is only a substitute for a real experience. The more nearly it resembles the real experience the better. For this reason the field trip or excursion is one of the best aids. Perhaps this cannot be used as extensively in a church or Sunday school as it can be in a classroom in school, but, nevertheless, it holds quite a few possibilities. Especially in the city can this be made very useful. It would be a very beneficial enterprise to take a Sunday school class for a visit to some city mission to see how the people live in the slums. A service could be held in this mission and thus a double benefit would be received. Settlement houses could also be visited. If a museum is near-by it might be very profitable to visit it in order to see some old Bibles or some early Christian literature, such as the Martyrs' Mirror and other books of that nature, or some articles which come from Bible lands. Another interesting project would be to visit a synagogue and see a roll of the Law. This would make it much clearer to the pupil as to what the Jewish religion is like, and the pupil could also see more definitely in what ways it falls short of Christianity. Often some church has done especially interesting work in making a relief map or in presenting a Bible dramatization which a class might go to see. If the various churches would be visited in this manner, better cooperation among the churches of different faiths

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Orlando Schmidt, Buhler, Kansas

OCTOBER 8—"The Lord is my rock and my fortress and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust." Psalm 18:2.

Have you found the Lord that way in your greatest dangers and difficulties? Have you chosen Him to be that to you, disclaiming everything else and depending on Him alone? Those that truly love God may triumph in Him as their own, and may call upon Him with confidence. Anyone that can give such a testimony must surely have a peace that passeth all understanding in his heart.

A mighty fortress is our God,
A bulwark never failing
Our helper He, amid the flood
Of mortal ills prevailing."

OCTOBER 9—"So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." Psalm 90:12.

Here we have a prayer that is worthy of anyone's consideration. It is good for us to calculate our days, and discover how short our life really is. Our soul might be required of us if we count upon many years to come. Those who would number their days should pray for God's spirit to give them a good understanding of the time that lies ahead of them. To be wise, is to be Christian, and this is one thing to which we must apply our hearts. To remember our uncertainity of remaining here helps us to live a closer life with God.

OCTOBER 10—"For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways." Psalm 91:11.

Notice the great care that God has over His saints, in that he gives His angels charge over them. And note the extent to which this promise is made: "in all thy ways." Even where there is no apparent danger, we need God's protection, and where there is real danger we shall have it. The very thought that God's angels are surrounding you should ever keep you in harmony with His plans for you. To think that there is always a living protection around you! "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them."

OCTOBER 11—"O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness and for his wonderful works to the children of men." Psalm 107:15.

As we look around us in the world today and see so much ungodliness and sin flourishing in victorious battles, and then think of all the works that a gracious God has shown to his creation and the tender grace that he is still willing and able to give, we let the psalmist express our thought. But the world will never praise the Lord for His works if those who know Him don't do some real witnessing for Him. If you know Him will you not share that joy with others, that He might have more of the glory that He deserves.

OCTOBER 12—"It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in man." Psalm 118:8.

Although man was the greatest and best of God's creation, he could never begin to compare with his perfect and fathomless Maker. When all the efforts of man have been tried and no help is found, there is still a God who can be trusted. There is always a possibility that man will fail you, but God remains the same forever. Why not put your trust in Him immediately instead of attempting to be satisfied with worldly gain or human advice? "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not unto thine own understanding."

OCTOBER 13—"Honour the Lord with thy substance and with the firstfruits of all thine increase." Prov. 3:9.

The chief purpose or end of our creation and redemption was to honour God. We must show forth His honour and the honour we have for Him. Such honour is to be given not only with our bodies, but also with our worldly wealth. Although it is but poor substance, we must honour God with it, and then, if ever, it becomes substantial. The more our riches increase, the more we are tempted to set our hearts on the world; but the more God gives us, the more we should seek to honour Him.

OCTOBER 14—"When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him." Prov. 16:7.

God is the only one who can turn enemies into friends. What a message for the world of today! If our main purpose would be to please the Lord instead of plotting more ways of defeating the enemy, our enemies would be enemies no more. Is not this the secret for peaceful living in any Christian's life? If the image of God appears on those who seek to please Him, it will be enough to recommend to the enemies a respect for all. "Trouble and anguish have taken hold on me: yet thy commandments are my delights."

"Choose You This Day. . ."

(A True Story)

Alfred Denton (not real name) grew up in big, dirty Pittsburgh, the son of a middle-class family. They attended the Methodist Church. Alfred struggled through R. O. T. C., but pacifist convictions grew in him as he continued his studies.

With an M. A. tucked away to his credit he went to Iowa to do welfare work. Then he went to a city of ten thousand in another state where there was a good-sized Mennonite settlement.

As a government worker he could have chosen a room in the heart of the city, but no, he chose to stay with a Mennonite family a short ways out in the country. He liked the Mennonites. He attended their services. He attended a weekly meeting of their young people who met to discuss their stand of non-resistance. Although no one in the group had as much formal education as he had, he became as one of the fellowship. Gifted and pleasing in manner, his presence was much enjoyed. Months of pleasant work and fellowship passed by.

Then came stormier days. His draft board refused him a IV-E classification. Some employees in the courthouse refused to respond to his cheerful greeting. A heavy pressure settled upon his daily life. But he continued to draw strength and inspiration from the fellowship of the young people's group, of which he had become so much a part. He appealed his case to the state appeal board, but the answer was "no." Came the call for induction into the armed forces. His twin brother was already in the service. His family in Pittsburgh was against his C. O. stand. His appeal had been denied. What should he do?

His conscience permitted only one answer. He could not go into the armed forces. He could try one more chance; he could appeal to the President of the United States. He did. Letters and letters poured into Washington on his behalf, including one from his twin brother. His many friends who knew his convictions expressed their belief in his sincerity. The call for induction was postponed. Freedom of religion began to seem more real again for Alfred.

One day he received notice of a IV-E classification. The government of the United States recognized him as a sincere, religious objector even though he did not come from a historic peace church. Alfred was happy; he could be true to his convictions.

Question: What choices should be made by Mennonite young people who go into strange communities to work?—rw.

More Than Conquerors

By Herbert Fretz

> "God has not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

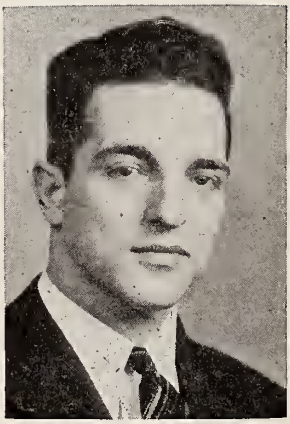
If next Sunday morning we would hear some minister speak these words, what would be our reaction? I think most Christians would agree that they express a well-chosen and pertinent message for our day.

The Apostle Paul wrote them to a young inexperienced Christian, Timothy, who faced a world similar to ours. Not only was Timothy facing such a world, but he was reacting to it in much the same way that we do. Among other things he was timid and fearful in his convictions. All too often we become timid and somewhat ashamed of our Savior and Lord in the presence of the man on the street, who laughs at religion, or our classmates, the draft board, the state, or just our friends. Paul told Timothy that he should not be ashamed of his Lord, but to be a partaker of the afflictions of the Gospel, according to the power



Herbert Fretz

Herbert Fretz, who graduated from Bluffton College this spring, is a grandson of the late Allen M. Fretz. Brother Fretz is studying for the ministry. According to information reeeived he is at present attending Princeton Theological Seminary. This summer he served as supply pastor of the Sugarcreek Mennonite Church, Sugarcreek, Ohio.

of God.

This introduces the positive aspect of Paul's words. The very essence and foundation of Christianity is the Power of God, implanted in the lives of human beings, through the sacrificial death of Jesus Christ. From this power within us springs forth our love for all men, friend or enemy. This power establishes a solid basis for a sound mind. Shakespeare's Brutus illustrated well, the man who in spite of early fears and timidity, finally stands firm on his convictions, so that even his enemy says, "This was a man." Will that be said of us as Christians?

We have seen these words from the viewpoint of Timothy. Let us now examine the experience of Paul while writing them. If we realize the precarious position of Paul, these words bear greater meaning. He was in prison and knew it was but a matter of days until his execution. These were not just words of wisdom from Paul, but words of true experience. Had not he, himself been stoned and left for dead, beaten with whips, imprisoned, and now was he not in the very hands of the enemy? Yet in spite of all this, the power of the Crucified Christ had been seen in him, through his great love for all, even for his persecution. His epistles have revealed his sound mind down through the years.

With these facts in mind, perhaps you wish to see the entire picture. If so, read the second epistle to Timothy for yourself. It will take but a few minutes.

The problem is still before young people with high ideals. Today we are facing a world which eyes us suspiciously; perhaps, tomorrow—a world of persecution. Who knows? Let us ask ourselves, "Are my present Christian beliefs and convictions real in my life, now?" Is there a difference in my life, from the one who professes no Christianity?" If we rely on our own strength, fears will come and we shall fail. But if, in simple faith, we trust alone in the sacrificial death of Jesus Christ to save us from our sins and fears, God has promised we shall become, "more than conquerors through him that loved us."

M.C.C. Representative Back From Paraguay

By Orlando Harms

Professor A E. Janzen arrived in Hillsboro early Monday morning September 3, after an absence of more than seven months most of which he spent in South America looking after the financial and spiritual needs of the Mennonite settlements in Paraguay and Brazil.

Rev. A. E. Janzen

Professor Janzen boarded the plane which took him to the United States on Sunday, September 5, at Ascuncion, Paraguay. In four days, on Thursday morning, he arrived in Miami, Florida, having covered 6,120 air miles. The route took him along the east coast of South America, and stops were made at only three places —Rio de Janeiro, Belem, and Port of Spain. After spending a day in Miami waiting for the censors to check his reports, Professor Janzen set out for Kansas arriving at Newton Monday at 2 a. m.

Progress of Colonies Good

According to Professor Janzen the Mennonite colonies in Paraguay have made very encouraging progress in the 13 years they have been there. "Economically," says Janzen, "the colonies are now self-sufficient, and the outlook for them is very good." Religiously, too, the colonies are getting along well, according to Professor Janzen.

Services are held in every village and there are plenty of preachers.

Speaking of the weather of the Chaco Professor Janzen states that a Kansan feels quite at home in it. The Chaco has winds similar to those in Kansas, though not as intense, and what would be called a breeze here is called a storm there. Thunderstorms, too, make the Kansan feel at home there, and the precipitation averages between 30 and 40 inches. One big difference, however, according to Janzen, is that the Chaco has Florida weather in winter. Snow is unknown. Trees are green the year round. Vegetation and oranges grow all year, and the cotton picking season lasts from three to four months. Only light frosts which kill banana and a few early vegetables are known. In general, vegetable gardens are raised the year round. With the mandioca, comparable to our potato, and other vegetables which grow wild the year round Professor Janzen states that a famine in the Chaco is inconceivable.

Robert Geigley Stays On

Mr. Robert Geigley who went to South America with Professor Janzen is still in Paraguay. He is stationed in Ascuncion indefinitely and is representing the legal interests of the Mennonite Central Committee, helping manage a Mennonite social center, and also working with a project which is to express the gratitude of the Mennonites to the Government of Paraguay for the liberties and the assistance it has given the colonies. Hillsboro Journal might also result. Thus, it can be seen that there are innumerable possibilities of visiting places located in the immediate vicinity of most churches. No equipment is needed in projects of this kind.

Object Lessons and Models

Another very effective aid in teaching is the use of objects and models. Let us discuss object-lessons first. The Bible abounds in illustrations of objects used in teaching certain truths. Some of the objects used in the Bible are the dove, camel, calf, bee, ant, apple, honey, hands, feet, head, eye, ear, salt, and wine. Jesus taught by means of referring to different objects when he taught by parables. Jesus always taught by using something with which the people were already familiar, and then by relating this truth to what he wanted to bring out by his object talk. Teaching by means of objects is scientific and very efficient. Objects hold the attention of children. This is very important, for the first job of the teacher is to get the attention of the children. A teacher cannot teach anything until she does have the attention of her pupils. One important thing to remember in giving object lessons to children is that objects used should be familiar to the pupils. Pupils should not be made to stretch their imagination in understanding what the object is to represent. Great care should be taken to be accurate in the description of the article and its use. Another thing to remember is that the object is only a means to an end and not the end. One must be very careful that the pupil does not think of the object as the end in itself. An illustration showing how a little girl took the object as the end in itself will show how disastrous this may prove. This girl went home from Sunday school one Sunday and told her mother that she did not think much of Jesus anymore, because he was just a pasteboard man anyway. We must be very careful not to give an impression such as that.

There are many object-lessons that are very excellent and are used very effectively. Three will be mentioned here. The first one is a lesson based on the tree. The scripture verse that could be used is Psalms 1:3—"And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water." First, we may stress that we should be straight and beautiful. Some trees are gnarled and knotty because they were not pruned. We should prune away from our lives the sin that will make it crooked and full of knots and gnarls. Secondly, we should be sound to the heart. Some trees, although they look beautiful, are rotten. Do not be a hypocrite; be what you want people to think you are. Third, we should be strong. Some trees easily blow down in storms. Do not let the wind of temptation blow you over. Fourth, we should keep growing. Every tree grows a little bit every year. Do not let trouble keep you from growing in faith and do not let hard work keep you from growing in love. Fifth, we should give help to others. All trees help in some way; they supply shade, timber, nuts, or fruit. Find your work and do it well.

This is what a "Martyrs' Mirror" looks like. The Mennonite Historical Library, North Newton, Kansas, has a number of interesting copies. Some of these contain pictures of persecution scenes. Copies are also to be found in a few of our Mennonite homes. The latest edition of this book, containing 1,152 pages may be had for $6.00.

The next two require a minimum of equipment—only a piece of paper. The first one is called "The Pilot Wheel." The paper is folded and torn in such a way that as a result one has a pilot wheel which is representative of habits which must be guided by a pilot, who is Jesus. The folding and the creasing of the paper can represent how difficult it is to form a habit, but how very hard it is to break it after it is once started. Then, to show by what means Jesus guides us and serves as our pilot, another object lesson can given by tearing and folding a piece of paper in order to represent a cross. These make very good illustrations.

Models can also be used very effectively. Models are small replicas of objects. One very excellent feature about these is that the pupil can help to make them himself, and thus he derives much more benefit from them and from the lesson they are intended to teach. In order to make a particular model, the pupil must know exactly what the original looks like. This will mean that he must study about it, and thus he will gain knowledge otherwise lost. There are many things of which models can be made. One might make a model of a Palestinian house, an oriental lamp, a scroll, and many other Biblical objects. In one particular Sunday school something very unique and attractive was carried out; this could easily be carried out in many Sunday schools. In order that their mission projects might be more meaningful to the primary children, they had a sand table which was used for this project. They covered it with white cotton to make it look like snow. The children made igloos and dolls dressed as Eskimos and placed these on the sand table. In the winter their project was to help a little Eskimo boy; with this Eskimo scene before them all the time, it meant so much more to them when they saved their pennies for this boy, especially so, since they had helped to make the scenery representing the Eskimos' land. The children really sacrificed for their little Eskimo friend. When spring came a Chinese scene was made for the sand table. There was put in this scene a winding river with other scenery typical of China. The project in the spring was the support of a Chinese family. In the summer the scene was changed to a Mexican landscape. They then supported a little Mexican girl. An attempt was made to have all their projects fit in with the season of the year that would be most logical. The very best way to teach missions to children is to make these foreign places seem very real to them; this is one way in which this can be done.

CORRESPONDENCE

WEST ZION MENNONITE CHURCH

Moundridge, Kansas

Passion Week services were held in the various churches in this community; these proved very worshipful and were well attended; the pastors exchanged pulpits during the week. On Pentecost Sunday sixteen young people received the holy rite of baptism and were added to the church. Ascension Day services were held in Continental Park, east of town. Rev. Unruh brought the message in the morning, and the congregation enjoyed a picnic dinner, recreation, and visiting in the afternoon.

Union park services were held as usual during July and August with fine sermons and uplifting musical numbers. A larger attendance would have inspired both ministers and the regular attendants. The last meeting was a musical program, and the seats were filled to capacity. Services for the opening of school were held Sunday, September 12, with a well-filled auditorium. Rev. Logan Martin of Newton brought an inspiring sermon on "Man, God's Masterpiece."

The women of the mission societies have been busy, too, during the summer. To date they have canned more than two hundred quarts of fruits and vegetables for C.P.S. camps. The sewing society made three camp packs and are sewing for a mission station in Oklahoma. The Mission Workers finished their thirty-fourth year of mission work last week. An interesting program was given with Sister P. A. Penner introducing us to Rev. Moyer's book With Christ on the Edge of the Jungle, which the society will study for a few months.

We are looking forward to entertaining the Ministers' Conference of the Western District on October 19. Rev. P. H. Richert and Rev. Unruh exchanged pulpits on September 13. Others who have visited us are: F. J. Isaac (a son of West Zion); Joseph Byler, former relief worker; Rev. Barkman of Henderson, Nebraska; Dr. L. G. Little of Wichita; Rev. Dittenger of McPherson (These last two talks were sponsored by the "Comjoinus" Sunday School Class of which Curt Siemens was teacher.); and Luke Horsch of Ontario, California.

We can say with many Christians, "The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad."

EAST SWAMP NEWS ITEMS

It is with interest that we follow the news letters from the various churches. We are always encouraged to read how the Lord is blessing His work in the various communities. We must also praise Him for what He is continuing to do here in the East. By His grace, our pastor has been able to continue a weekly half hour broadcast over WSAN, Allentown, Pa., a project undertaken last December. The letters received from listening friends are most encouraging.

During the past summer a group of consecrated members have been conducting services for colored migrants in this vicinity.

Our pastor and family have been with us now for five years, during which time there were eighty-two accessions, many of which were won to Christ through personal work. It is a blessing to see the growing attendance. It has become necessary to build an addition to the church. We hope to see it completed within the near future. On October 3, forty members will be sent forth two by two, to canvass the church community for Christ. We are praying that definite results will follow.

Rev. Burkholder is resuming his second year's work at the Reformed Episcopal Seminary, Philadelphia, Pa. His pastoral work, radio work and school work, give him very few spare moments on the side.

We are also glad to announce a forward move in the interest of Missions. Rev. and Mrs. Abraham Unruh are our first missionaries. They are working in the Kentucky mountains. We are looking forward to the day when John Boehr and several others will go forth in foreign mission work.

The following students are attending school: John Boehr, Dallas Theological Seminary; Richard Boehr, Bluffton College; Burwell Kennedy, Wheaton College; and Dorothy Landis at the Grace Bible Institute. It is our prayer that the Lord will help us all to be faithful soul winners until He comes.

BETHEL COLLEGE

Dr. J. W. Fretz, Assistant Professor of Economics now on leave of absence, spoke in chapel September 20 summarizing the work he has done in recent months under the direction of the Mennonite Central Committee. Dr. Fretz is investigating the colonizing experiences of the Mennonites and at present is spending a week in Newton to obtain additional information on Russian Mennonite colonization.

Dr. L. C. Kreider spent a few days in August visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Kreider of Wadsworth, Ohio. Dr. Kreider's son, Emil, accompanied him on the trip. Enroute they stopped at Goshen, Indiana, with Dr. Kreider's brother, Dr. Carl Kreider of the Economics Department of Goshen College.

Professor Walter Hohmann has selected sixty voices for the 1943-44 A Cappella Choir. The choir is rehearsing daily for a schedule of programs to be presented later in the season.

RELIEF

"Overseas" Cable

A cable from Relief Representatives, Sam Goering and J. D. Graber, reached the headquarters on Monday of this week. The message received contained only one word—LEAVING. The communication contained no place of origin. Since the brethren expected to reach South Africa by late August, it is rather assumed that this cable indicated they were proceeding from South Africa to India. They, with all of our relief workers, appreciate the garrison of prayer with which you may help surround them.

CIVILIAN PUBLIC SERVICE

P. R. Worker Drowned

C.P.S. has furnished its share of rude shocks. Rufus King, Director of the Puerto Rico Unit cabled the office of the Brethren Service Committee that Elmer Hartzler, Mennonite assignee, was drowned on September 12. No details of the tragedy were included.

Canned Foods Donations Legal

Under a recent ruling of the O.P.A. in Washington arrangements have been made by which C.P.S. camps may accept donations of commercially canned foods purchased with processed foods stamps by consumers. It will be necessary for the camps to report all such donations to their local ration boards, who will charge them for the point values represented at current rates. Such donations may be sent through the regular canning project channels but should be clearly labelled "Purchased Goods."

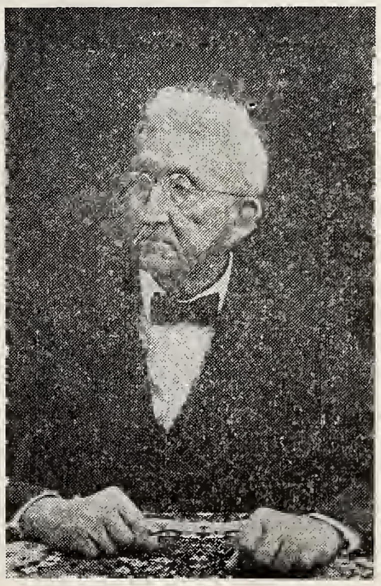
God Bless His Memory

By P. A. Penner

I. I. Bargen, student, teacher, editor, postmaster, and Christian, has gone home to be with his Lord, whom he loved and served. I call it a privilege to have known him intimately for at least sixty years. Yes, it is true that for forty years we were geographically separated, but correspondence nevertheless kept us in close contact. Though he, like many other hard-working men, has been much misunderstood, yet he could count his friends by the thousands.



I. I. Bargen

I wish to speak of him first as a student. His obituary tells of him as a student in Russia, first in the grammer school, next in Orloff, and later on in the academy in Gnadenfeld. After emigration to the United States, he worked as a day laborer for a number of years. But his thirst for an education prompted him to leave his varied occupations and enter the State Normal School in Mankato. Here is where I learned to know and deeply respect him. This young, clean-shaven man, with his elastic step, soon attracted attention because of his outstanding abilities and studious life. Though his English betrayed the foreigner, it did not take long until he was fluent and even rhetorical in his English and a dangerous opponent in debate. That this "green Dutchman," as one student dubbed him, should forge ahead, did not take well with some of his fellow students. One lady, I remember in particular—she was the daughter of the Baptist minister of Mankato—decided, come what may, Mr. Bargen would not outdistance her either in classwork or in finals. But he did outdistance her. Fortunately, she took this graciously and even became his close friend and well-wisher. Green envy on the part of many students came to the top like cream on milk when Prof. S. N. Searing, the president of the Normal School, appointed Mr. Bargen as librarian. That was the limit. Students let him feel this, but here is where Mr. Bargen showed his Christianity. He disarmed all of his jealous fellow students by his kindness, helpfulness, and humility. He enjoyed the respect of all of the professors and eventually won the respect of his enemies. During the time that I was in this school, I learned to appreciate him and his interest in me. Many an evening, when he should have been studying, he spent with me, coaching me in those subjects in which I needed coaching most. After graduation, Mr. Bargen still continued to be a student; indeed, he remained a student all his life.

Mr. Bargen As a Teacher

What made him an outstanding teacher was first, his natural ability to remember and to relay to others what he had acquired through reading and intensive study. He read much. Next, there was his keen interest in young people. He never lost this. Some people do not go along with the times but are always speaking of the "good old times." Mr. Bargen did not by any means call good what is bad, but he succeeded in seeing the other side of youth's problems. Third, Mr. Bargen had a deep conviction of the value of a thorough education. This he always advocated, if at all possible to obtain it. Whether a teacher in a parochial or public school or even as the county superintendent of schools, he was always a teacher. Those that have had the privilege to sit at his feet remember in what simple words and telling illustrations he could bring light into difficult classroom subjects. He was, moreover, a strict disciplinarian, which some of us found out much to our regret. An inherited sense of good wholesome humor, on the other hand, made him also an interesting teacher.

Mr. Bargen was an interested friend of missions, and his home was always open to itinerant visiting missionaries. His intelligent questions on missionary activities proved that he was a reader of missionary literature. Letters received from him were full of cheer and encouragement. In his death the mission has lost a warm friend. About his gifts for foreign missions only his children know.

Mr. Bargen As a Christian

Mr. Bargen believed in conversion—entire conversion. Once he said in my hearing: "If a person is converted, his horse in the barn will soon find this out." A sentence well worth pondering over. He did not get over-enthusiastic about emotionalism, fearing that this was in danger of wearing off, yet he never denounced so-called revival meetings or revivalists. A few years ago when revival meetings were in progress in his home town, he was present as much as his physical condition would permit. Criticism he occasionally felt called upon to give, but always constructive, never destructive. His Christian character was especially manifest in his life after the prolonged illness and death of his wife. I have never heard a word of complaint. It must be borne in mind, however, that all of his children helped to sweeten his life by their devotion to their father.

Though he was frequently misunderstood, yet that did not sour him because he knew that even Jesus had been misunderstood. He will be greatly missed by his children, the community, and also by the church to which he was devotedly loyal. His pastor says: "We miss him much. God bless his memory!"

"Don't Be Care-Full"

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." Phil. 4:6.

Paul did not mean to say that Christians should be flippant and unconcerned about great issues of life, far from it! But he did not say that Christians should be free from that kind of care that fills one when one makes a little god of oneself, when one turns in upon himself and with despair finds nothing there with which to overcome trouble.

No, we are not to be Christian babes that try to coax the Father to do things for us that we should do ourselves. However, on the other hand we are not to be so unwise and so sinful as to think that we can be independent of our Father, or so irreverent and disrespectful as not to think of His great desire and ability to help when we are helpless. Woe unto us when we forget that He "is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us."

Yet that is the point that we are prone to forget everytime we become filled with care. We talk of earning our daily bread, when in reality our Heavenly Father gives us our daily bread. Normally we are very much impressed with what we can and must do. We come to believe that we are very much the determining factor in what happens in our life. Therefore, is is our tendency when something very difficult confronts us in life to look at our own inadequate human resources and to be filled with care. Our habit is to turn in upon ourselves, when our habit should be to look outward and upward to our Father from whence cometh all of our strength to know and do the right. Paul suggests that it is useless and wrong to become all worked up about something, which we cannot overcome with the power and the wisdom that we already possess. He directs our look to God from whence cometh the greaer power that we need. Instead of trying to make our insufficient self the answer to the problem, we are to recognize our all-powerful Father as the Way, the Truth, and the Life as revealed in Christ."

"Is there trouble anywhere, take it to the Lord in prayer." That is the right way to deal with matters that would fill us with care. God has a program of action for every puzzling and painful situation in which we find ourselves, but we must give Him an opportunity to reveal it to us by praying and by making supplication with thanksgiving.

How needful it is to thank God when things seem darkest. It helps to restore our balance. We become impressed with the important truth that we have a lot of good things to rejoice in and that God has given them to us. We begin to see that because God has already provided for us, He will surely remain the same and continue to bestow His love upon us.

When tempted to be full of care, turn to God in prayer, give thanks, and state your trouble in the form of a request. God will take care of you.—rw.

SAID LONG AGO

"We know of no murdering, much less do we teach or permit it; for we truly believe that a murderer has neither lot nor part in the kingdom of God, Gal.5:21. O beloved sirs, how should we desire the blood of any man, since we have to die daily for man's sake? The Lord who created us knows that we seek nothing, but that we might instruct, and be a pattern to all the world, with our doctrine, life, blood and death, that they might reflect, awaken, repent and be saved, for this is the nature of pure love to pray for persecutors, to render good for evil, to love the enemy, to heap coals of fire upon the head; and let him avenge who judges rightly, Rom. 12:20."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

That Was a Week

All the days are not the same! The above week stretches from Saturday to Friday early in March. The sunrays were already felt a bit more. Occasional signs of the approaching hot season reminded what lies in wake the coming three months when the thermometer will register 116 and more in the coolest place outside. Mrs. Penner with a few female helpers started from Mauhadei across the wide Mahanadi River sandy bed. The slow buffalo cart travelling between two and three miles an hour was the only resort. Of course, over the sand we walked; through the water we waded. When all were across, the buffaloes were hitched again. I hurried ahead with the bicycle. Not far gone a load of wood attracted my attention. Wood prices are likewise affected by the war. The load was purchased, yet for a reasonable price. Persuasion always accompanies such deals. There are generally three prices: the first the suggested prices; the second the reduced price, the third the ultimate price. It requires often quite a vocabulary to arrive at the final deal.

A half mile from Beltikri a new Christian came running with uplifted hands, saying "Papaji, I have come to carry your cycle across the narrow stream, if necessary carry you too. Listen, we have gotten three persons ready for baptism, you MUST baptize them immediately!" When reaching the place, these candidates stood before me, ordinary, illiterate, but with beaming faces testifying to their new faith. Not long after Mrs. Penner was welcomed by the Christian group quite a distance from the actual place with ringing hymns. The Beltikri group is musical, each one singing his part nicely, probably not always melodiously to the ear. The service was staged, hardly giving one time to wash up. That we had done in the morning, but another one would not have been superfluous. What an unexpected experience! The remainder of the day was spent with interviews: still more candidates were contacted. "The Word runs!"

Darling Nellie quite often asks, "And then what?" Eight miles east in Ghoghra the Christian group asked for a church to be organized. The buffalo cart was gotten in readiness. Mrs. Penner made her bed on it in a Pullman fashion. All was pre-arranged. She fell asleep. Sunday morning at 1:30 the ever-faithful animals slowly drew the cart away. Not a spring under the cartbody; every chuckhole registers worse than it really is. A little after sunrise Ghoghra was reached. At sunrise I started from Beltikri on the bike. The morning service was impressive; in the afternoon under a tree the third church inside of five months in the Mauhadei area was organized. Seventeen members registered in this church, seven of them baptized not more than three weeks ago. Since no meeting place is procurable, a church building was planned on Monday morning. The landowner agreed to part with a half acre of land. In six hours the deal went through. An unprecedented speed in India. The Lord did it! Contracts with the new Christians developed for brick and roofing tiles making. The work began IMMEDIATELY! In the afternoon Mrs. Penner resumed her return trip to Beltikri. I cycled further south to contact with several Christian families, also to look up a few inquirers. By dusk both arrived at Beltikri. As soon as spied the messengers hastened to meet us on the road, shouting, "Tonight or tomorrow morning two more baptisms MUST be performed!" Tuesday morning this occurred: a young couple. That day again praises rang clearly!

In the afternoon Mrs. Penner not yet oblivious of the sensations of yesterday's trip, again perched on the cart out for Dhansir eight miles south. As usually road-directors displayed careless advices, brought us over the worst rocky road through the jungle. The liver was almost transferred to another place. Long after dark the Christian family in Dhansir welcomed us. We had with us the untiring soul-winner Kharia. Quite fatigued, he said, "Not more than two miles from here live six inquirers. Tomorrow at dawn I ask for a man to accompany me there for an investigation." (The jungle has still dangerous, wild animals). Stiff as his limbs were, he went and returned pretty soon with a thrilling report how the converts welcomed them. Kharia's face beamed with joy overflowing.

Our full program for the balance of the week pressed hard. Mrs. Penner was not yet healed from the previous day's bumps, neverthless, resumed her return trip on Wednesday morning, heading for the new camping place Begiota about ten miles northwest. When all were on the way, I went ahead on the cycle. When I neared the river at Bilaigarh, mother Desoda stood on the opposite bank with a big rooster hanging from her right hand, beckoning and calling, "Papaji, stop, with me is an old mother, whom want you to meet, she and her son want baptism. I shall cross now and introduce her to you." They waded towards me. Then Desoda asked me to shake hands with the new disciple. I inquired about that rooster, "Papaji you and Mammaji with the associates shall be fed with that under the shady trees nearby." The stomach began to cave in. When the cart arrived—although over a better road—into the grove marched the son also. At first they wanted to be baptized immediately under these beautiful trees, but soon gestured to come where our camp was the following day. This was then to be at Baglota.

After the tasty chicken meal, an inquiry was held. When the stomach is satisfied such investigation is done just as smoothly. This investigation proved that both had embraced the true faith in the Master. We then separated after prayer. Mrs. Penner headed for Baglota, whereas I cycled back to Beltikri where another couple waited for baptism. This ceremony came off in a little courtyard in front of her parents' house. What a joy! I then hastened over a miserable road to the camp eight miles west. Mrs. Penner had arrived there just a little before me.

When dismounting from my cycle I could hardly greet Mrs. Penner; a host of friends surrounded us. We had never seen the village aforetime. The next day Mrs. Penner and myself spent all forenoon getting acquainted with the villagers, among whom a number, especially two, are secret believers. They have in their possession Testaments, tracts, handbills, etc. This literature is carefully read, because they knew the contents fairly well. Idolatry is discontinued. They want to crown ther belief through baptism some day in the near future.

After finishing the midday meal Desoda with the two disciples was there. Our Indian co-workers, especially Brother Balamdas, worked with them. Early in the afternoon the mother and son were baptized in front of our tent after a short service. Their confession of faith was certainly satisfactory. Then after the good-byes these babes in Christ left the camp towards their home over twenty miles east where the family of the son resides temporarily. The family shall be brought to Beltikri for baptism at some opportune time. The husband is a mason. That evening an impressive meeting ensued in the heart of the village. The songs and messages rang through clearly; the listeners lent their unbiased attention. The undiluted Gospel was presented in the specific dialect; the Holy Spirit's brooding was unmistakably perceptible. Our innermost was overwhelmingly thrilled that sleep would not come quickly.

The next morning after our staff went on their errand, I had to mount my cycle again to return to Beltikri eight miles east to meet the six inquirers from Dhansir neighborhood. On the road the a-few-days-baptized Chaitram met me with his father-in-law. They barred the road and said, "Papaji, you cannot go any farther, stop right here, my wife and myself went to our home village proclaiming our joy in Christ. The villagers gathered, listened, the village owner stood among them even. When he beheld our joy, he remarked, 'if that religion has such a Leader, creating that happiness, I shall consider the matter more earnestly too.' The people, of course, would not eat with us, but furnished the rice and what was necessary to prepare a meal. "Papaji, believe me, we are so happy in Christ, pray that our faith shall not vanish!". At dusk I returned to Baglota, pouring out the joyous experiences to all my associates. That evening another huge meeting was staged. Thus ended the never-to-be-forgotten-red-letter-week. The next morning on Saturday March 13, the camp was broken, the campers separated for Sunday into three groups: two groups spent Sunday with Christian families, one group established inquirers in another village in their newly accepted faith. These seekers need the fellowship of some Christian leader so urgently, but in many instances these leaders are not found. The call for more leaders goes out with unabated urgency. "This is the day (week) which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it!" (Psalm 118, 24.)

TENTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, LIMA, OHIO

On Sunday, September 12, 1943, the First Mennonite Church of Lima celebrated the tenth anniversary of its existence. The work was begun under the auspices of Rev. P. A. Kliewer, then pastor of Ebenezer Church of Bluffton. The young people of that church needed an outlet for their spiritual energies. At the beginning of that year in 1933 they began to hold Christian Endeavor services on Sunday evening in a Seventh Day Adventist church nearby, the present location of the mission church. The need was also felt for the spiritual care of working girls and other Mennonites who left the rural communities to work in the city of Lima. The needed a church home.

On September of that year the first church and Sunday school services were conducted under the full-time direction of the newly called pastor, Rev. John Esau. Thirteen persons were in attendance the first Sunday morning.

The Middle District Conference took over the main financial burden of the work. Three years after its beginning, a brick basement building was erected at the cost of $5,000. It was named "First Mennonite Church."

Upon the resignation of Rev. Esau in 1938, George Dick of Henderson, Nebraska, then attending Northern Baptist Seminary of Chicago was asked by the Home Mission Board to take over the work He has also been here now for five years. At the last Middle District Conference he expressed his desire for the Home Mission Board to seek out another man. Since then he has been called to and accepted the pastorate of the Bethlehem Mennonite Church, Richey, Montana. He hopes to arrive there about October 15.

Byways of Mennonite History

By C. Henry Smith

I.—INTRODUCTION

There are those who regard the study of history as just so much time wasted and of very little practical value. History they say, deals with the past and has little to say about the present. The past can not be brought back, and so why not let it rest in oblivion. We are interested in today, and tomorrow, not in a dead yesterday, and so why waste time on that which can never be recovered.

But these people forget that the present comes out of the past. We, the heirs of the ages, owe the major part of our social culture to those gone before. Some years ago a certain writer wrote a best seller entitled Why We Behave like Human Beings in which he merely meant to suggest that all our social practices, our economic institutions, political organizations, and our religious beliefs, are all the final consummation of a long period of growth and development. And so, since we can't understand our present except in relation to the past, history becomes the most practical of all subjects of study.

This is as true of our Mennonite heritage as of any of the rest of our cultural inheritance. The fact that Menno Simons lived and labored in an obscure Dutch country village some four hundred years ago has had great significance for those of us who bear the name Mennonite. Without him there would have been no trek from Russia to Kansas for conscience sake in the early seventies of the past century; there would be no Bethel College; no Bluffton College; perhaps no C.P.S. camps; in fact we might not have been at all either in America or Europe. In view of all these facts, a knowledge, certainly of how we came to be what we are, and came to believe what we do, assumes importance of the first order.

Acquaintance too with our history adds greatly to our respect for the faith of our fathers, and it is not necessary, I am sure, to suggest that without a profound respect for the beliefs we hold, we will not be of great service to them.

Mennonites have played a much more important role in the general stream of church history than most of us think. The Mennonite church is one of the five churches that sprang out of the Reformation movement, and was the pioneer in proclaiming to the world two very fundamental principles of life that were very new four hundred years ago, but devoutly to be desired everywhere today, though not completely achieved as yet anyhere,—religious toleration and universal peace, the goal of civilized so-emotion. It is our task to find out just what it is that he has tried to portray in his picture, and how we can appreciate him and his message. When the artist ciety the world over.

The uppermost picture shows N. E. Byers teaching a philosophy class at Bluffton College, and the lower picture shows C. Henry Smith who teaches history and government. The latter is beginning in this issue a series of short, bi-weekly articles under the heading, "Byways of Mennonite History." Dr. Smith, the author of many books on Mennonite history hardly needs any introduction to the readers of The Mennonite.

It shall be my purpose in a series of brief articles to present to the readers of The Mennonite some of the high lights of Mennonite history in the hope that these glimpses into the past will help us both to understand better the present and also increase our respect for our common faith.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

J. W. Fretz

As Others See Us

Some time ago I received a letter from O. E. Baker of the United States Department of Agriculture in which he enclosed a copy of a letter he had written to the president of our Mennonite colleges after a visit there. Dr. Baker recently retired from active duty in the Department of Agriculture after thirty years of service in the Division of Farm Population and Rural Welfare. He has now become the director of a newly established Institute in Geography and Economics at the University of Maryland which is to train men and women for administrative and technical positions in foreign service after the war. The following quotations are from Dr. Baker's letter to the college president:

The Letter

The visit to the College was of deep interest to me. The occupational preference of the students whom I met at the Dormitory the evening after my lecture, at their request, and the attitudes of most of these students toward rural life again revealed to me how powerful and pervasive is our modern urban culture. When these youths go to the city, as ninety per cent of them apparently hope to do, and join other churches than the Mennonite, because there will in most cases be no Mennonite Church in the city for them to join, a question arises in my mind as to whether the traditions and values associated with the philosophy and history of the Mennonite Church will survive more than one generation . . . It gives me concern to see a rising generation so glibly turning its back on a culture which so clearly tends toward extinction of the families and of the races which accept it . . . We need a new rural culture which will combine the mechanical conveniences that science has enabled our urban culture to acquire with the system of values that the rural people as the Mennonites, have developed during hundreds of years of struggle and, if I may be permitted to add an opinion, as guided by a divine purpose."

Significance

It seems to me what Baker is saying is of utmost importance. If we do not appreciate our God-given heritage; if we refuse to hold on to it, cultivate and enrich it we shall surely lose it. In the parable of the talents Jesus taught that those having talents and not using them would surely lose those which they had. It is gratifying to note that Mennonites are everywhere sensing this fact and are seeking to move in the right direction. God sometimes uses strange means to show us the way.

Audio-Visual Aids in the Church

By Mrs. Richard Weaver

Flannel-graph

One particular aid that is being used very extensively now, and which is very good, is the flannel-graph originated by Dr. and Mrs. Edward A. Marshall. All that is needed for this is some pictures on the back of which is pasted some outing-flannel, plus a visual teaching board, which can be made quite easily and with very little work, on which to place many different backgrounds. Flannel must also be pasted on this board. The nice thing about using this flannel is that all one needs to do is to put the picture on the board and it will stay there because flannel sticks to flannel. There are many complete sets of pictures that can be bought for this purpose, but these can also be made. One of the sets available is the one that accompanies the International Sunday school lessons. As the teacher talks about the lesson, he can put these figures on the board and explain them with this remarkable visual aid. It is also a very good way to teach memory verses. For instance—THY WORD have I hid in my HEART that I might not SIN against THEE—the words in capital letters being illustrated on the flannel board. In teaching the memory verse all the symbols can be placed on the board one by one, and then after the children have repeated it several times some of the symbols can be taken away until they can repeat the verse from memory. The children probably would count it an extra privilege to be allowed to put the symbols on the board themselves. Much more could be said about the flannel-graph and its possibilities, but enough has been said to give the reader an idea as to its uses.

PART II

The Use of Flat Pictures

The use of flat pictures is so very important and extensive that a little space will be devoted to pointing out the value that can be obtained from religious art as given to us by the great artists. The artist is a genius. If he works for years on a great painting, he must have something definite to impart, some idea or puts his imagery upon canvas, it becomes a servant to all men.

When we hear or read the story of Christ in the temple at twelve years of age, nine-tenths of us think of Hoffman's picture. The artist is an intellectual interpreter. In Hunt's pictures of Christ, he not only shows a lad in the temple, but he shows the temple, the doctors with their luxury and wealth and pride of learning, the role of the law—the Alpha and Omega of their faith, the blind beggar with outstretched hands, etc. In other words, the artist had to go into much research to bring out everything accurately. The artist not only sees and understands, but he also feels. He feels the dramatic intensity of some movement in history or a story and must put it on canvas. The artist is a revealer of spiritual values. We notice in all the pictures of Christ the depth of meaning represented there. In the eyes of Cornielius' Christ we see the true spiritual nature of his temptation and ours. Zimmermann's Christ and the Fishermen shows the gracious patience of the master teacher. Keller's Daughter of Jarius shows us what love incarnate must do. The spiritual values become real to us. The artist is an ideal builder. He finds us blind and leaves us seeing. He finds us dull and gives us light; he finds us apathetic and uncovers the depths of feeling; he finds us thinking that the outside life is all there is to it, and he leaves us with a certainity that the unseen and eternal are the only realities. He has done this largely by suggestion. Some great pictures are hard for the common person to understand. It is up to the teacher to show all these characteristics in the pictures to the child. Color is an important factor in a picture. Some colors are warm, some are stimulating, some are cold. We are tuned to respond to nature's most vivid characteristic—color.

Pictures Supply Imagery

Everyone knows that a picture is especially enticing to children. It draws them like a magnet. Just how does the picture do this? One way is through its imagery—its nature and sources. One must make certain that the child can supply the necessary imagery when telling a story. He cannot get all the imagery from his environment and so he must get it through pictures. Pictures enlarge experience for little children. The important thing to remember is that these pictures make lasting impressions on the child's mind and therefore great care should be taken as to what kind of picture is shown. The picture must be large enough to be seen by all. In explaining the picture the teacher should at once go to the heart of the picture. He should introduce the hero. He should tell the story in such a way that the other personages become actors and background becomes essential. The teacher should also tell the pupil what went before the illustration in the picture and what comes afterwards. Then, at the end, he should return to the hero again.

Art and Photographs

Pictures of Christ are very excellent to show the children because it makes them realize that Christ was a man, not a myth. Since he was a man he did things and went to places just like we do; he talked and walked with men and women. These facts can be shown by two types of pictures: one type we shall have to classify as art—the work of certain nineteenth century artists like Tissot, Hunt, Siemiradski, and others; the second type as actual photographs. Actual photographs can be used to show pictures of missionaries, the leaders at mission stations, and pictures of people in other Christian service where children can see actual work of those who spread the gospel. Pictures of children in children's homes that may be supported by them are also very useful.

Art can portray human need and human sympathy. It can also bring out cooperation for the common good.

A Worship Center

One unique way to use pictures is to have a worship center as one enters the Sunday school room. This can be set up in a corner of the room with some picture of Christ and perhaps a few other pictures of his life with it. A candle on this worship center will also add to its effectiveness. Some very nice arrangement can be worked out so that it gives a very fine sense of reverance as the room is entered. It is very essential that the children enter the Sunday school with the right spirit and this helps to creat that spirit very wonderfully.

One primary class enjoyed a picture-walk. This consisted of hiding several pictures around the room. When a child found one, he would tell a story of several sentences illustrating the picture. Then, when all the pictures were found and the stories told, they were arranged in proper sequence.

There are many possibilities in the use of flat pictures. A simple standard for a picture would include accuracy of the picture, its message, its color and form, and its value for the age group for which it was intended. Really good pictures, useful for more than one occasion, should be carefully mounted, catalogued, and filed.

Addresses Wanted

Every minister in our conference ought to see to it that his name and correct address will go into the minister's list to be published in the Mennonite Year Book and the Bundesbote Kalendar of 1944. If your name is not at present in these periodicals or if you have made a change, be sure and send your name and correct address to Brother C. E. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas. New ministers should be especially mindful of this notice. If this applies to you, dear reader, won't you take pen and card and make the necessary report immediately before you forget about it.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Orlando Schmidt, Buhler, Kansas

OCTOBER 15—"But he knoweth the way that I take; when he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold." Job 23:10.

The friends of Job judged him and accused him of things that they knew not and therefore charged him of something that he was not guilty of. But God, who knew every step he had taken, would not do that. Often when we know we are in His will, others do not understand. But we should have patience, knowing that God works things together for good. Such experiences are often used to try a Christian. But they lead to greater paths of glory, for "when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him."

OCTOBER 16—"He brought me to the banqueting house, and his banner over me was love." Song of Sol. 2:4.

What a beautiful picture of a type of Christ. It was Christ who brought us into a place of pleasures and joy. It was He who opened the door and led the way. He brought us in with a banner over us, a banner in which He triumphed. The gospel has been likened unto a banner or ensign, and that which is written on this banner is love. Christ is the "Captain of our salvation" and enlists all his soldiers under the banner of love. This banner is what urges them to fight on. Because of love we were saved, and by love we should live.

OCTOBER 17—"Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy that it cannot hear." Isa. 59:1.

That same hand which offers salvation has never become weak nor has it ever been shortened. Length of time, strength of enemies, and the neglect of God's people can never cause the Lord's hand to fail. He is also as ready as ever to answer prayer. Though He has been hearing prayers throughout all the ages, there is still grace and mercy to everyone that prays. If our prayers are not answered it is not because God is weary of hearing prayer, but because we are weary of praying; it is not because His ear is heavy when we speak to Him, but because our ears are heavy when He speaks to us.

OCTOBER 18—"When the enemy shall come in like a flood the spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him." Isa. 59:19.

When God's people feel weak and helpless they can have courage because God has promised to "give a banner to them that fear him." Even when the enemy comes unexpectedly, like a flood, a man of Christ need not fear because God will fight for him. "Yea, the Almighty shall be thy defence." Notice that it is the spirit of the Lord that is doing the work—something that every Christian possesses. Since this Spirit lives within us, it is always ready to act, no matter what the circumstances are. "My defence is of God, which saveth the upright in heart."

OCTOBER 19—"But let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exercise lovingkindness, judgment, and righteousness in the earth." Jer. 9:24.

In no other knowledge are we to glory than if we understand and know God No human being will ever come to a complete knowledge of God, but everyone that takes God into his life as Lord and Saviour will be taught by the Holy Spirit to know Him better. "Let not the strong man glory in his strength." "Let not the rich man glory in his riches." We may glory in the fact that God is an all-sufficient God and that He exercises lovingkindness, judgment, and righteousness toward all.

OCTOBER 20—"No manner of hurt was found upon him because he believed in his God." Dan. 6:23.

Daniel had a real trial before him. As far as he could see it was a choice between death and serving his God. But nothing could frighten him, so he chose what would seem to many to be the darkest way at that moment. The result was that in weakness he became strong, so that what seemed to be defeat for Daniel turned out to be real glorification of his God. Those who boldly trust in God to protect them in their duty will never be made to be ashamed of their confidence in Him. "Trust thou in the Lord."

OCTOBER 21—"I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely; for mine anger is turned away from him." Hosea 14:4.

One of the most dangerous diseases that can come upon a Christian is that of backsliding. Once he has promised to be loyal, it is grievous to experience backsliding. But God has graciously promised that if backsliders will come to Him and follow His directions, they will be healed. "Return, ye backsliding children, and I will heal your backslidings." Notice also the description of the love that God hath to us. It is a cheerful willing love, a liberal and bountiful love. Whom God loves He loves freely. He loves because of His own good pleasure.

Thinking on Things of Good Report

". . . whatsoever things are of good report . . . think on these things." Two young people whom I know really put this exhortation into practice, I feel. They seem to make at least six or more expressions of appreciation in comparison to one made by others. Their words are not flattering or beside the point. They simply have been trained to have their eyes open to good points in people and circumstances, and they express their appreciation and thankfulness for the things of good report. They do it so simply, so naturally, and so heartily that the recipient is definitely encouraged.

There are Christians who think on and talk of things that are of good report. They don't overlook the things of bad report, that ought to be changed, but they succeed in taking a full-sized look at the good in others—something which is still insufficiently practiced in this world. Before they point out the holes in a piece of cloth, they marvel at texture, color, and strength. They hold up to the individual a true picture of himself—they admit his goodness as much or more than his badness.

In spite of the fact that many children take all the love and helpfulness of their parents for granted, there are those who warmly express their appreciation for the many, many times that things go right. In spite of the fact that many messages to persons in positions of responsibility carry only denunciation, there are those who have their eyes open to the good and speak words of encouragement as well as words of correction. In spite of the fact that some pastors do not always speak the truth in love, there are those who speak it with great love. In spite of the fact that some parents say mostly "no" and hardly ever "that's fine," there are those parents who bring out the best in their children by praising them for the good they do.

Praise works better than blame. Imagine a church, the members of which produced a hum of conversation as they sat down in their pews. One minister might say, "There is too much talking. Let's be quiet and worship when we come into church." Another might turn to his people in a friendly way and say, "It's a mighty fine thing for people to feel close to one another and to talk together like one big family. However, let us not forget to worship with our heavenly Father in the same hearty way when we come into His sanctuary. We need the fellowship of one another, but above all we need His intimate fellowship." Though the latter statement is not perfect, which would bring the best results?

If in youth we form the habit of thinking on things of good report, then it will be natural for us to do so when we are older. If we form this habit, then we will be much more likely to bring out the best in others than otherwise. If we practice Paul's admonition we will be much more Christlike than otherwise. ". . . whatsoever things are of good report . . . think on these things." The other comes naturally enough.—rw.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

No. 1 of Series on Christian Citizenship

THE CHRISTIAN'S RELATION TO THE STATE

I. Worship Service:

Songs: "The Lord is my shepherd," No. 62; "We Three Kings of Orient Are," No. 90. 2. Reading of Matt. 22:15-22, Luke 19:1-10; prayer, and leader's remarks. 3. Special music. 4. Offering for Foreign Missions.

II. Leader's Introduction:

There is earnest searching of the Scriptures today as to the relation of the Christian to the State. Especially pressing is this question on the attitude a Christian must take when the government through the draft law takes its citizens into military service, and inducts them into its war machine.

The Old Testament tells of many wars, and its stories and passages are often used as a source to indicate the conduct for Christians today. They use it to justify their willingness to participate in the present war as service men in the army. We all need to see very clearly that we live under the New Testament. Jesus Christ came to show us the Father, and He says: "He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father." John 14:9.

The life and the teachings of Jesus do not permit us to obey the State when the State's demand are antagonistic to the ways of living Christ taught. We are told by Him in words that are definite: "Love your enemies, pray for them that persecute you," to go the second mile willingly, to forgive others their trespasses, to love our neighbor (meaning anyone in need).

His way of living (and we are enjoined to follow him in it) emphasized his teachings. He went about "doing good." He refused to serve the Jews as their leader to rise up against the hated Roman government which oppressed them. He sought to change men's hearts, and held the value of one soul to be greater than the material gain of the whole world.

We cannot express Christ's way of living through war or in war. To kill is not an expression of love. To destroy the property of those of other nations is not to be concerned about our neighbor's good and his welfare; to coerce by cruel force is not the way to win the other for Christ-like ways of living by the ways of love and understanding and helpfulness.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

(You can get very valuable material from two excellent booklets. They are: Must Christians Fight and Christian Relationships to State and Community. They may be ordered from the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pa., for twenty cents a copy. Those in the Western District may get them from Reynold Weinbrenner, Secretary, Western District Peace Committee, for the same price.)

1. "What Does the Scripture Teach About the State?", Whom Should We Obey First, God or Caesar?", "Our Government and the Kingdom of God—Are They the Same?"

IV. For Discussion:

1. What is to be the Christian's attitude to his government in general? See Rom. 13:1-3, 8-10; I Pet. 2:13-17.

2. What means may a Christian use to make his influence felt in a democratic government?

V. Facts for Study:

The story of Zacchaeus, who was in the employ of the Roman government, illustrates in a remarkable way what will happen if Jesus gets control of the hearts of men. Here was a man who worked under government decree and exercised authority under its protection. But he was not loved and not wanted. Then he met Jesus, and a change took place in his method. He now says, "The half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have wrongfully exacted of any man, I restore four-fold." He was no longer greedy and selfish, but concerned about those in need; he was no more unfair and unjust, but desirous to even right wrongs he had done.

If Christ could enter into the hearts of men and cleanse and change them the causes for war which are largely economic would be removed. Greed which is selfish and very often causes injustice of the grossest kind would be supplanted by an attitude similar to that of Zacchaeus. The Gospel of Jesus Christ still is the cure for the ills of this world.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

THE STORIES OF FOUR GARDENS

Opening Song: "In the Garden"

Prayer:

Leader's Introduction: Some of the most important events that ever happened in the history of the world, occurred in three gardens. Then, there is a fourth garden, concerning which we have an interesting although unpleasant story. (Assign three intermediates to tell about the events in the three gardens, but choose an adult to read the story of Naboth's vineyard.)

1. The Garden of Eden—Scripture: Genesis 2:8-17, and chapters two and three for more information.
   - a. Where is this garden?
   - b. Describe it as well as you can, naming the rivers and where this place is to be found today.
   - c. Now tell what happened in this garden. See how long a list you can make.
2. Naboth's Vineyard. Scripture: I Kings 21: 1-20 and verses 27-29. (To be read or told by an adult.)
3. The Garden of Gethsemane: Scripture: John 18:1-12; Luke 22:39-53; Matthew 26:36-56. See how many events you can name that happened in this garden.
4. The Fourth Garden: Scripture: John 19:41,42; chapter 20:1-17, especially verses 11-17.

Other songs:

1. "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer" (special)
2. "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow," especially verse 2.
3. "Low In the Grave He Lay," first verse.
4. "My God and I."

Closing Prayer.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

I WILL PRAY AND READ THE BIBLE: Ps. 55:17, 119:105.

A Promise

When we say we will do these things and do them not, we have broken a promise. When we tell someone a piece of news and ask them not to repeat it within the next few days, we trust our friends to keep this promise. When we say "We will pray and read the Bible," we promise to talk and listen to what God has to say to us.

Suppose you like music, adventure or news on your radio. The radio will not give it to you until you have tuned in to the program giving you this. We have our radios to use them. It is the same with our Bibles and with prayers. We tune in to God in this manner. God cannot give if we do not come to Him to ask. We know God's promises are sure, but so many times we haven't asked him for these promises which become precious only as we make use of them.

We know that when we do not use a certain part of our body, perhaps through lameness or sickness, it becomes stiff and useless to us. It is the same with God's word. It becomes void to us if we do not know how to make use of it.

Try these few lines to the tune of "O, Master, Let me walk with Thee."

I promise Jesus I will pray
And read the Bible every day
Here at the meeting I will be
And do my duty faithfully.

All my life I'll try to do
Just what the Lord would wish me
Trusting in Christ whose power to do is given
Freely to all in earth and heaven.

The Question Bee

(1) In what ways can a Junior try to live as a Christian? (2) How and when does a Junior have to make decisions? (3) What about our speech? (4) What is the good in regular times for prayer? (5) How can we make our Bible reading most instructive? (6) When should we pray?

The Prayer List

A more sincere desire in the hearts of America to go to God, our highest authority, for more power, love, mercy, kindness toward our fellowmen. May many more Americans receive the habit of prayer in their lives, create in our homes the love to serve one master, namely Christ, and learn to always depend on God.

Dear Editor:

I am a regular subscriber to The Mennonite and am glad for the Biblical stand it takes. I am a firm believer in the doctrine of nonresistance It is gratifying to know that we still have young men that are not ashamed of that stand and have the courage in the face of ridicule and public opinion to go to C.P.S. camps and thus give a strong and clear-cut testimony against the evils of war. To me it is not only Mennonitism, but the very teachings of Christ and the apostles are involved. How thankful I am that by the power of the gospel of Christ we can be made free from hating anyone whether friend or foe and also those that are of different opinion.

Through neglect I failed to subscribe at the beginning of this year. I do not want to be without The Mennonite. I am enclosing a five dollar bill which I hope will be acceptable and bring the paper to our home for the rest of this and the next two years. You can keep the change, and it will be perfectly all right with me; a little extra won't hurt the publication work. May the Lord bless all of you in your work.

Your Brother,
(Signed) Jonas Sprunger

Woodland Mennonite Church

Warroard, Minnesota

Dear Editor and Readers,

Greetings in the name of our Lord, Jesus!

On July first Rev. August Ewert, who is pastor of the Bergfelder church at Mt. Lake, was here, showing slides of China.

The ladies' sewing circle had their annual sale, July fifth. At the August sewing club meeting it was decided to start a church library. Money was given for purchasing a cabinet and some books which were selected and ordered by Rev. Arthur Ortman. Already the library is bringing much enjoyment to those who like to read.

The first day of August we started on a trip to the southern part of the state. We traveled by bus, and as we sat in the bus listening to the conversation of the passengers, our interest centered on two gentlemen who were discussing the times as they had been and as they were. Said one to the other "When I was a young boy I lived in the country, and every Sunday we walked to Sunday school which was about two miles away. Others walked as much as three and four miles. Everybody came to the meetings, and we were a happy group together. We were happy and content. After church and Sunday school we went to visit the neighbor. We even walked as far as five miles one way and walked both ways, but it is different today. I talked with one of my neighbors, and he said they went a hundred miles in a car Sunday morning and took a picnic dinner, had a good time, and came back at night." Why did they have to go that far? The man added, "They could not get along with the neighbors." Of course, that cannot be said about you, dear friend, or can it?

While we were in southern Minnesota I met many of The Mennonite subscribers who told me that they read the articles from Warroad. The question most often asked was, "Where is Warroad?" Warroad is in the extreme northern part of Minnesota, on the Lake of the Woods. We are now twenty-three Mennonite families in this community. We always feel glad when people show an interest in these out-of-the-way places. There is always a great privilege in living in such places because of the opportunity of winning those that do not know Christ.

Publication of "Must Christians Fight?"

A new sixty-eight page booklet, Must Christians Fight?, a scriptural inquiry, has recently come off the press. The booklet is published by the Peace Section of the Mennonite Central Committee to help earnest Christians answer "fundamentalists," who "attempt to prove on scriptural grounds that it is not only right for the Christian to take part in war, but that he must do so if he is to fulfil his Christian duty."

This booklet is intended for wide distribution in the Mennonite Central Committee constituencies. Pastors should call the attention of their congregations to it. It is published at a nominal price of 20c per copy, 15c each for ten to one-hundred copies, and 10c per copy for orders of a hundred or more. Orders should be sent to the Peace Section, Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.

Inspiration from Two Small Churches

While many of our people are finding it very humiliating to stick to their Christian convictions as they face scrap drives and war bond campaigns, the members of the Woodland Mennonite Church at Warroad, Minnesota, have agreed upon a fine cooperative solution to such problems.

Ten Per cent of Each Cream Check

The church members have agreed to the suggestion of their pastor, Arthur F. Ortmann, that they instruct the local creamery to deduct 10 per cent of every cream check. The pastor collects this once each month and orders bonds through the Provident Trust Co. Since cream checks here are the main source of income and since members supplement these bond investments with money from other farm projects, the community feels that the Mennonites are helping the government and at the same time witnessing to their Christian convictions.

School Officials Impressed

Instead of collecting scrap iron and rubber the Mennonite school children in Warroad are buying peace stamps from the M.C.C. and are collecting clothing for relief. School officials here are impressed with this Christian testimony. Of course, here too, there have been expressions of hostility by a minority, but under the leadership of a fearless shepherd, the Mennonite here keep right on working, loving, and worshiping in the name of and for the sake of the Prince of Peace.

Warroad is at the southern edge of the "Lake of the Woods," just south of the Canadian border. This church was organized in 1939.

Are You Doing Your Rightful Share For C.P.S.?

A Visit to Westbrook

On September 22 I had the pleasure of visiting the Westbrook, Minnesota, community. Here forty-two members belong to the New Home Mennonite Church under the leadership (for twenty-nine years) of H. H. Rupp. Rev. John Bartel of Delft took me to this church were we held two meetings. The morning meeting was devoted to Christian education and the afternoon services were in the interest of missions. The morning and afternoon offerings totalled $127.75. And remember this was on Wednesday. These are bits of encouragement which I have found in two small churches, which by many of our people are not familiar places. —Willis Rich

Zion Mennonite Church

Donnellson, Iowa

Sunday, September 5, was the first of a number of services of interest in the church. The Sunday service marked the close of the second year course of Catechetical instruction for a class of four young people, who responded to the oral examination and were received into the membership of the church by the rite of baptism. At the same service two other persons were received into the church by letter of transfer. A class of eleven young people completed the first year course of instruction.

Holy Communion was received at the morning service on September 12. A good crowd attended.

On Sunday, September 19, occurred the ordination of Rev. Howard D. Raid into the ministry in an impressive service. Rev. Raid delivered the message at the morning worship period. The day's program continued with a family dinner for members and guests at noon. The service of ordination was held in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Our local minister, Rev. H. E. Nunemaker, as chairman, presented introductory remarks; the Rev. Leonard Metzker of Noble, Iowa, conducted the devotional part of the service; the Rev. E. A. Sommer of Pulaski, Iowa, delivered the ordination sermon; and Rev. E. S. Mullet of Wayland, Iowa, conducted the ordination. A quartett sang, "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee," and a ladies' quartette responded to the ordination prayer with an effective rendition of "Take My Life and Let It Be, Consecrated Lord to Thee."

Rev. and Mrs. Raid are returning this week to Fortuna, Missouri having accepted a call to continue the pastorate of the Mennonite Church at that place. They take with them the best wishes of this, their home church and their many friends.

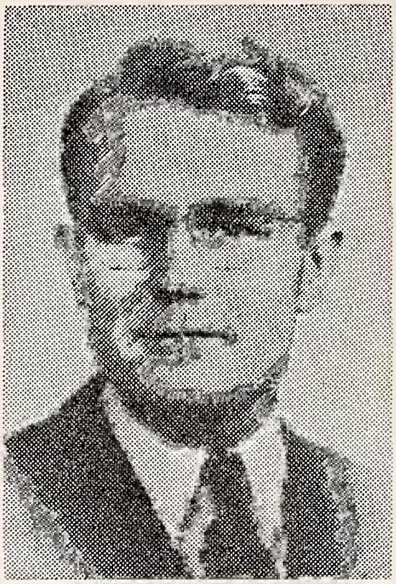
On Way to Paraguay



Dr. John R. Schmidt

Dr. and Mrs. John R. Schmidt and Dr. and Mrs. G. S. Klassen are on their way to Paraguay.. There Dr. Klassen will serve as dentist for thousands of Mennonites who have had no regular dental care in the past, while Dr. Schmidt will serve as physician and surgeon for these needy people. He will be assisted by his wife who is a registered nurse, having graduated from the Bethel Deaconess School of Nursing this past August. Brother Schmidt already has one year of service in this South American Mennonite settlement to his credit. Both of the men going there are able to talk low German. This will delight the Mennonites in Paraguay to whom the low German is dear. The two families were recently detained in their departure from Louisiana by a tropical storm. For a picture of Mrs. Schmidt, who was formerly Clara Regier, see the picture on page 9.

CIVILIAN PUBLIC SERVICE

Mennonite Central Committee Meets

The members of the Mennonite Central Committee met on September 18 in Chicago at the Mennonite Home Mission. Beside the regular members the group was composed of the regional directors of C. P. S. Some highlights of the meeting were:

(1) In regard to C. P. S. the Mennonite Central Committee decided to operate for another year on the same policies as heretofore, if Selective Service approves.

(2) Brother Fast's report revealed that the number of men in Mennonite camps has probably reached its highest and is leveling off at 3,000. Almost one-third of this number, or 916 are on maintenance projects. The need for more adequate spiritual administration was presented and discussed.

(3) A. E. Janzen, Mennonite Central Committee Commissioner to Mennonites in Paraguay and Brazil, gave a report of his recent six-months visit to South America. Brother Janzen's visit not only took care of a number of business matters for Mennonite Cenral Committee, but he also provided a spiritual ministry which resulted in a spiritual revival among our brethren in Paraguay. Brother Janzen gave account of how the Lord led in his work and how he experienced the results of the intercession of the church at home. His report was inspiring and made our hearts rise in gratitude to our heavenly Father for His blessings in the work. The Mennonite Central Committee is planning to send additional workers to our brethren after January 1, 1944.

(4) A memorial service was held for P. H. Unhuh of Goessel, Kansas, who passed away July 20. Brother Unruh represented the General Conference of Mennonites on the Mennonite Central Committee and served as vice-chairman. Henry A. Fast was elected to serve on the Committee and to act as vice-chairman for the remainder of the unexpired term.

(5) Of unusual interest was Winfield Fretz's report on his study of colonization and rehabilitation. His study will be valuable for the post-war rehabilitation of Mennonite C.P.S. men.

Regional Directors Meet

On September 17 the Regional Directors met with Brother Fast in Chicago. The group met to take care of problems necessitated by the reshuffling of responsibility. Regional directors for the various areas are: Pacific Coast—Rufus Franz; Rocky Mountain—Harry Martens; Middle West—Raymond Hartzler; Eastern U. S.—John Mosemann.

Albert Gaeddert and John Mosemann will serve as Assistant General Directors. Orie Miller as Executive Secretary, carries the responsibilities of the General Drectorship of C.P.S. J. N. —First Mennonite Church, Lehigh, Kansas: The Ladies' Mission Circle has been having its regular meetings also through the summer months for the last few years. They feel they don't have many farm women members who are too busy to attend. For a change they are meeting with the shut-in ladies or some who can never attend and also some old friends who are quite lonesome. They all have enjoyed and gained closer fellowship. Mrs. B. H. Janzen is chairman; Mrs. C. R. Duerksen, treasurer; and Mrs. Emil Weyand, secretary. The choir had a watermelon social this month at the regular choir practice. Several new members have joined. Rev. This will place valuable reading material into every church home. "The church enjoyed a visit from Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Isaac, who are touring the California churches.

Think on These Things

The following article is a condensation of the message given by Rev. Walter H. Dyck at the commencement program of the graduating class shown below. The text was based on Phil. 4:8.

When Johann Herder, the court preacher of Weimar, was breathing his last, he said, "Refresh me with a great thought." As food refreshes the body so great thoughts refresh the mind—the soul. How little time we take to really think. Like a child with toys, we must take great thoughts, turn them over, take them apart, and set them together again. It must be active, purposeful thinking.

We notice that thinking does something to people. (1) Salvation is impossible without it. God says: "Come now let us reason together," Isa. 1:18. (2) Returning to God depends upon it. The prodigal "came to himself," Lk. 15:17, that is, he thought. Peter, too, went through an intelligent act of repentance. "When he thought thereon he wept." (3) Paul experienced intelligent growth. First, he "thought as a child." Then, he "put away childish things." (4) Peter, again, "while he thought on the vision," found opportunities for service.

Thinking also reveals the person. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Christians may be intensely devoted but intelligently narrow. We are not only to "think on these things" but we are to think on whatsoever things." "Whatever" is a large term. Such things should be "true" in word, "honest" in deed, "just" toward others, "pure" toward self, "lovely" as things that are seen, and "of good report" as things usually unseen. All these are great and noble thoughts upon which we may ponder..

Sisters or nurses, wherever they labor, have the finest opportunity to study—reflect upon—human nature. If successful, they will claim every human worth for God. Whatever is praiseworthy serves as a contact for spiritual birth and growth. Deaconess work, for instance, though often judged by outward service, is the result of that which is inner and real. They may well be likened to a great French surgeon who once said that if he had only four minutes to perform an operation and if a life depended upon it, he would take at least one minute to think. As much evil is wrought by lack of thought as by evil of heart. Thoughtlessness is responsible for much that is miserable, blighted in hope, broken of heart, sad in failure, different from what God intended.

"Whatsoever things are true—honest—just—pure—lovely—of good report. If there be any virtue, and if there by any praise, think on these things." Young people, will you volunteer, as these have done, for a ministry of thoughtful Christian service. Shall we not rather "prove all things" and hold fast to that which is good"? (I Thess. 5:21)

HISTORY OF THE ZION MENNONITE CHURCH

English language in some of the classes. In 1918 the church also arranged for occasional English services. At present all services are conducted in English, except two adult classes in Sunday School. The new Mennonite Hymnary was introduced in 1941.

Looking back over a period of sixty years, it may be of interest to mention the following, who have entered missionary or ministerial service. They are Marie Dyck, later Mrs. E. Kuhlmann, entered missionary service in China in 1906; Abr. H. Regier entered the ministry in the Missionary Church in 1905; H. J. Dyck, the present pastor, was ordained to the ministry in 1905; Walter H. Dyck ordained in 1936, is now pastor of the First Mennonite Church of Beatrice, Nebraska; Paul Kuhlmann, ordained in 1936 served as missionary in China, at present Superintendent of the Oklahoma Bible Academy; and Arnold J. Regier, ordained 1940, served the Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon, 1940-1943, and is now instructor in the Mennonite Bible Academy, North Newton, Kansas.

During this period the membership has grown from 14 to 114 at present. Many have enjoyed Christian fellowship here. A number have been transferred to the Church triumphant, while others have joined other churches or denominations.

It may be said to the glory of God that this church has always maintained a missionary spirit. Beside spiritual and moral support, this church in sixty years contributed approximately $60,000 for missionary and other benevolent purposes. Of this amount about $35,000 were for foreign and $20,000 for home missions. This is not counting individual gifts which would swell this amount considerably. We confess humbly with David, I Chr. 29:14; "But Who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to offer so willingly after this sort? For all things come from Thee and of thine own have we given Thee."

To date nine of our young men have been called to the service of our country, three of which are in Civilian Public Service.

Jesus Christ, the Head of His church has watched over this local congregation; and whatever has been accomplished has been due to the strength, which He has supplied. All glory to Him. We also humbly acknowledge our failures and ask His forgiveness.

Lest We Let Them Slip

Undoubtedly we would be mightily strengthened if we could reproduce in our minds one-half or even one-third of the great Biblical truths that were offered to us in sermon, song, Sunday School, prayer, and private devotions in the past month. However, unless our spiritual life was especially deep during this time, most of them will have slipped our mind and heart. As a result we are making poor growth spiritually. Our salvation does not show up in us as it ought to.

We tend to be like a crop on a steep hillside. Being in no position to hold a considerable quantity of the showers that fall, we are again soon suffering from a lack of nourishing moisture. We must be receptive and retentive if we would make good use of the showers that fall.

Paul wrote to the Hebrews, "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." Heb. 2:1.

Because we are not so prepared that they can soak in, many spiritual truths slip away from us at the moment when they fall upon our ears. We have too little capacity to hold the showers that fall. We must see to it that our ability to retain is improved. We must practice spiritual conservation. When the soil of our heart has been terraced with a strong desire to remember, when it has been cultivated into a loose, absorbent condition by much thought on spiritual things, and when it has been cultivated according to the contours of God's will, then it is in a condition to receive and retain. Once received, spiritual showers are best utilized by the cultivation of much meditation and pondering and praying.

How much more of the sermon we would remember from one Sunday to the next if we would take time during the week to review the most helpful points in our mind. How much purer in heart and deed we could come to the close of each day if we paused more often as the hours pass to review in prayer the thoughts that we got from God's Word in the morning. The scholar in school is greatly helped by a regular reviewing of lessons. By reviewing our spiritual lessons we can fix them firmly in heart and mind so that they will not slip easily away. We need to eliminate a lot of irrelevant influences from our life and give more thought and feeling to the spiritual truths that are offered to us so abundantly.

Christians should always possess certain fundamental truths, but they need to remember much of what the Bible says if their life is to be spiritually abundant. By being receptive and by reviewing we can keep many precious truths from slipping away. —rw.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Visit Mennonite Mission in Mexico

A letter from Brother Wm. C. Voth to the family tells of his and Brother Gerald Stucky's visit to the Tarahumara Indian tribe in Mexico.

From Cuauhtemoc they went by train to Creel and the next morning by truck to the "baranca" where the Indians live. "Baranca" means canyon and this one is like the Grand Canyon in Arizona but not as wide and one cannot see to the lower depth. The road to it winds through mountains under tall beautiful pines and oaks. About half way down the canyon oranges and bananas are grown, and in the base there is tropical climate the year round.

Near this place there is a farm of about 100 acres where corn, oats, and garden vegetables are raised. Mr. Groening, who works with the Indians, would like to buy this, live there, and teach the Indians industrial work. There are about 25,000 Indians of the Tarahumara tribe. Brother Groening would like to do this with the help of the Mennonite General Conference.

On September 20, the party left by train to Terreon and Tuesday by bus to Monterey. They expected to proceed next day September 22 to Mexico City by bus. They were told that this would be a very beautiful trip of twenty-two hours.

From Mexico City they plan to go by Pan American Airways stopping at Guatamala City, San Jose, Costa Rica, and Balboa, Panama, and thence to Bogato, Colombia, in South America.

The Gift of Love

The broken pieces of my heart, I bring a garland fair O Lord,
Accept it Saviour Dear, for I come with purpose true.

What have I, a leper lad, to give to Thee O King
A suffering sinner—I depend on gifts and grace divine.

Can this garland not of joy but borne in tears
Add to Thy majesty, O King of earth and sky?

Ah yes, receive this bruised and contrite gift my Lord,
For gifts of love extol and bless Thy holy name.

The above poem was written by Vijay Narayan, a young Brahman, who was recently discharged from the Bethesda Leper Home and Hospital. He is now back in his village but writes letters to us very frequently. Vijay read the poem to the large gathering of lepers at the annual Thanksgiving Festival which is observed regularly during the Christmas week. (Sent from India by Orlando Waltner.)

The First Mennonite Church

Upland, California

The Upland congregation and community were saddened by the sudden and tragic death of one of the oldest and charter members of the church. L. M. Ledig was instantly killed Sunday afternoon, Sept. 26, when a fast mail train struck his automobile. Mr. Ledig was a prominent and well-loved member and will be missed from his accustomed place in the service. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ledig (she passed away October 12, 1941), were the donors of our fine pipe-organ which will now be highly appreciated as a cherished memorial. Their memory will live in the hearts of many.

During recent months it has been our privilege and blessing to have a number of our missionaries present at our services. Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Habegger of Busby, Montana, told of their work among the American Indians, Sunday, August 8. This was of special interest to the writer, as she had the opportunity to visit the Montana stations when her sister and brother-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Linscheid were the missionaries at Busby, Montana. Then on September 19, Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Isaac spoke at both services. All missionaries presented the various phases of their work and vividly brought all to mind, renewing interest and zeal to labor on for this most worthy cause. The mission societies of the church are constantly busy. The Women's Society meets each week to quilt; proceeds are used for missions. Comforters are priced and finished by retired members; these with used clothing are sent to Canada or the M.C.C. Fruit is canned for the local hospital or the camps. The Serving Others Circle assists in some of this work, as well as working for the local Red Cross. The Girls' Society prepares garments for migratory work. Study classes are held in all societies from time to time.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Orlando Schmidt, Buhler, Kansas

OCTOBER 22—"Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall." Prov. 16:18.

Great men such as Nebuchadnezzar, Saul, Adam, Haman, and Satan himself have born witness to this verse. Someone has given us a history of pride by saying that its beginnign was in heaven, its continuance is on earth, and its end is in hell. Any Christian should beware of becoming proud in any way for such a spirit is especially good as a stumbling block to others, and it can only result in a "fall." "In the mouth of the foolish is pride." Can one with a haughty spirit honestly glorify his God? "Woe to the crown of pride."

OCTOBER 23—"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city." Prov. 16:32.

Can you not see a picture of Jesus in this proverb? If there has ever been anyone that had reason to become angry, it was Jesus. He, the perfect, loving Son of God, was hated greatly. Yet he ruled His spirit, and remained humble and peaceful until the end. We can truly say that that was greater than a spirit of revenge or hate or anger would have been. Responding to an angry spirit in a calm and peaceful way is a defense against more trouble and hate. "Grievious words stir up anger, but a soft answer turneth away wrath."

OCTOBER 24—"Yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation." Hab. 3:18.

"My soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation." Here we have the real ground for our joy in the Lord. It is our salvation that gives us real pleasure and happiness. Since circumstances can never change that salvation, we have reason to be joyful even in our greatest distress. Such a joy is never out of place. It is especially in place in troublesome times as a witness for God. Is it not wonderful to be able to say "I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart rejoiced in all my labour."

OCTOBER 25—"Be strong, all ye people of the land, saith the Lord, and work: for I am with you, saith the Lord of Hosts." Haggai 2:4.

The Lord wants us to be strong in our work. Have you ever become weary when it seemed that there was no end to your work. There is so much of it that is unpleasant and seems to be too much for you. But the Lord says, "be strong," and he gives us all the evidence we need to back up His statement. "For I am with you." Isn't that enough to make anyone feel strong and happy? To think that the God who made the entire universe is interested in your work and promises to be with you is enough to relieve any task.

OCTOBER 26—"The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts." Haggai 2:8.

We read that "the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." Since all gold and silver as well as everything that is in the earth is the Lord's, we should consider ourselves as renting our possessions from Him. The least we can do is to honor Him by giving it back to Him. To lay up treasures here on earth is of no advantage, for "He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver; nor he that loveth abundance with increase." "By doing good with money, a man, as it were, stamps the image of God upon it, and makes it pass current for the merchandise of heaven."

OCTOBER 27—"Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." Luke 12:15

Probably one of the most neglected of the ten commandments is "Thou shalt not covet." At the bottom of all covetousness we find nothing but selfishness, a sin that is in striking contrast to the teachings of Jesus. It is no wonder that Christ warned against this sin, because our happiness and comfort do not depend on having possessions or wealth. Jesus was concerned about the inwardness of man, the condition of his soul, and its relationship to God. "Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content with such things as ye have; for he hath said, 'I will never leave thee, nor forsake the.'"

OCTOBER 28—"Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh." Matt. 24:44.

Although there is much uncertainty in time, Christ has told us definitely that He will return. Such a hope seems almost too wonderful for such an unfaithful church as we have in the world today. But the eternal grace of God goes on. If we have the promise in His Word that "Not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you," why should we not look to the future with joy and thanksgiving!

Keeping the Soul Aflame in C.P.S. Camps

Sunday Service

Sunday in a Civilian Public Service Camp is a day of real spiritual fellowship. After six days of hard work comes the seventh—a day of rest, worship, and spiritual refreshment.

This day of days is one which our boys really appreciate. For six days have they worked at their appointed tasks. Some of the work is very interesting and challenging. Other work is not so fascinating and becomes rather wearisome as the days come and go. Thus the Sabbath brings a real looked for change.

In the middle of the morning the call comes for Sunday School and worship. In various ways they gather for a brief worship service before dividing up into different classes. It is at this point in particular where I wish the home folks might join in. It is a real treat to listen to these men discuss the lesson passage. Parents and friends would really feel a spiritual lift as they observe how these boys are growing in depth and breadth and height in the things that are eternal.

It is here that one realizes afresh that these men are in C.P.S. Camp because of conscience and religious conviction. Some, of course, have not thought as clearly and as fully as others. However, most of them have done some real thinking, not only on the problems of war, but about life as a whole in its relationship to God, Christ, the world, and their fellowmen. One is impressed with the honest and wholesome way in which these men are trying to discover the will of Christ in all human relationships.

It is a most stimulating experience to listen to these men, take some passage of Scripture and really try to discover its true meaning and significance for daily living. Since they did not "spiritualize" the teaching of Jesus on the matter of the taking of life as they faced the draft, they are not interested in "watering down" any other passage either. As one listens to their penetrating discussions, one wishes that the folks back home would be interested in facing life as honestly and squarely as do the men in C.P.S.

Director or Visiting Minister Brings Message

The worship hour is usually conducted by the camp director or by a visiting minister if one is present. Visiting ministers are really warmly welcomed. The men in camp truly appreciate this spiritual fellowship and contact. It is worth more than the home folks can ever fully realize for the men to know that those at home are sufficiently concerned to come and conduct worship for them.

Prayer Fellowship Hour

Another evidence of the desire to keep the soul aflame in C.P.S. is the Wednesday evening prayer and Bible study meeting. The group is not as large as on Sunday mornings. But those who do enter into this fellowship are made aware again and again of the eternal truth of Christ that "where two or three are gathered together in My name, there will I be in the midst of them."

These meetings always open with a spirited song service, which truly creates an atmosphere for worship and prayer. Some appointed person follows by leading a discussion on prayer and all of its mystery and power. For fifteen or twenty minutes one hears a very stimulating and helpful discussion.

If a visitor happens in, he is asked to give a brief meditation on prayer or some closely related theme. Or, frequently the visitor along with others

This picture shows the chapel at Christmas time. Note the clean, orderly appearance and the beauty of the simple decorations. In the front is a lighted manger scene, and on the wall above the pulpit, encircled by a green wreath, is a picture of the Prince of Peace by Warner Sallman. What must have been the thoughts and feelings of those who worshipped here last Christmas time? Erwin Goering, a member of the Eden Church Moundridge Kansas, is director bears testimony to some genuine experience of the power of prayer, and how God answers prayer. These testimonials are varied and unique. They bespeak for these men a deep insight into the heart of Christian experience. The faith which these men express is one which all of us need to give us light and hope and courage in this darkened hour.

Intercession for Others

This part of the meeting usually closes with the men giving the names of people and the reason why they want them remembered in prayer. Then follows a series of prayers by the men as the spirit moves them, an experience long to be remembered. They express a sincerity of faith, an honesty of conviction, a depth of religious living, and an assurance that God answers prayer, that is truly uplifting to everyone present.

If we at home would gather as earnestly as do our boys in camp—if we would pray for our enemies like they pray for them—if we would constantly pray for our boys, both in C.P.S. and in the armed forces, like they pray for us and the army men, this world would be one of much more love, kindness, truth, mercy and understanding, as Christ would have us have.

Let me say again, this C.P.S. program is one which God himself has laid upon the hearts of those who planned it and continue to operate it. It has its shortcomings. We are all aware of them. But it is our prayer that this work may touch our hearts and minds and resources as it has touched theirs.

William H. Stauffer

Note: Thus far brother Stauffer has mainly visited the camps and hospital units and district conferences. From now on he plans to give more time to present the impressions of these contacts and ideals to individual churches. Rev. Stauffer has a large number of very strikingly colored still pictures which show the varied types of work done by our young men in the camps. He carries his own machine, and the message that he brings with the pictures is bound to make a deep and abiding spiritual impression.

Your cooperation in arranging for such meetings, will deepen the understanding and interest of our people in the C.P.S. camp program.

Yours in Christian Love,

CASH AND CONSCIENCE

There is one thing the Christian Church cannot stand and that is prosperity and praise. We are living in a time when she is enjoying both. It seems to me, therefore, it is a time when we should be very much on our guard.

Cash

Farmers are today getting prices for their commodities that are far above production costs and yet many feel that they are not getting enough in comparison with what other economic groups are getting. Wage earners and business men are earning from two to three times normal wages and enjoying it. When people freely get they are likely to give freely, so churches everywhere have no difficulty raising their budgets. Because the churches have been reaping the benefits of the war prosperity they have been vague or silent altogether on the ethical issues involved in accepting "war money"—or as some prefer to call it, "blood money,"—that the church members earn.

Conscience

The questions raised are difficult ones, and there is no simple answer to what is the proper thing for the individual Christian or congregation to do under the circumstances. The point I wish to raise, however, is that the whole problem has been given so little attention by official bodies of the Mennonite Church. We should have a guilty conscience, both corporate and individual, if we don't have one already. How can we glibly accept double and triple prices and wages during these bitter days when we all know very well that these excess incomes are not due to our own efforts, but are the result of war. There are many who profess to hate war but are enjoying the fruits of war in their pay checks.

Blunted Sensitivity

As individuals and as a church we are tragically demonstrating Paul's weakness (Rom. 7:15), "For what I would, that do I not; but what I hate that do I." Our spiritual sensitivity is indeed blunted and stultified if we allow our people to accept double-time pay for defense work jobs on SUNDAY, the purcase of war bonds, and the sky-rocketing prices on farm crops, and never raise an ethical question about it. Surely, we as individual Christians or as a Mennonite Church cannot escape condemnation. This is especially distressing when our Conference is $30,000 in arrears in supporting the Mennonite Central Committee in its peace witness and when no conference has seemingly given thought to a program of ministering to a bleeding and battered continent of brothers after the war. Are our calculations and conclusions going to be determined by cold cash or by a Christ-centered Christian conscience.

History of the Zion Mennonite Church, Elbing, Kansas

By H. J. Dyck

In 1876 a number of West Prussian Mennonite families, mostly from the Heubuden and Ladekop churches, settled south of Peabody in Butler County, Kansas. This group was served by Rev. Peter Dyck, one of this group of immigrants. When in 1877 the Emmaus church was organized, the families in the northern part of the settlement joined with the understanding, that in the event, additional families would locate there, they would in time organize their own church.

In 1883 this group erected a church building on the S. E. Quarter Sec. 5 in Fairmount Township. This church was dedicated to the service of God on June 10 of the same year This dedication was conducted by the Rev. Peter Dyck assisted by other ministers. The text of his sermon was Isa. 56:6-7. This sermon has been preserved and is in the possession of his oldest granddaughter.

In connection with the dedication of the church an organization was perfected which in 1888 was incorporated under the name of "Zion Church of Elbing, Kansas." Seven families, being fourteen members, constituted this congregation. Rev. and Mrs. Peter Dyck, Mr. and Mrs. Abr. Regier, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Corn. H. Regier, Mr. and Mrs. Abr. Regier Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bernh. Regier, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob W. Regier, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Janzen.

A cemetery had been started in 1878 when Peter and John Dyck, sons of Rev. and Mrs. Peter Dyck, lost their lives in Whitewater creek. This was indeed a trying experience for this settlement.

In the beginning our church was assisted by the Council of Elders of the Mennonite church of Kansas. Special mention should be made of the Elders Leonard Suderman of Emmaus and Jacob Toews of Newton.

The Zion Church participated in the activities of the Conference, joining the Kansas Conference —later called the Western District Conference—in 1883, and the General Conference in 1887.

Hardly two years was Rev. Peter Dyck privileged to serve this new congregation, when he was called to his reward on May 7, 1885. In December of the same year the church elected Cornelius H. Regier as minister and in 1890 as Elder. This latter ordination was performed by the Elder Jacob Toews of Newton. To assist Elder C. H. Regier in the ministry Jacob W. Regier was elected as minister in 1892. He served this church until his resignation in 1919 at the age of seventy.

The first church constitution was adopted in 1894, which to the present time has undergone several revisions.

Soon after the organization of the church in 1883 a Sunday School was started. At first it consisted of one class for children only. At present all participate in eleven classes. This Sunday School has maintained a good library since 1892.

A Christian Endeavor Society was organized in 1897 which meets every first Sunday of the month. A Mission Sewing Society also has functioned almost from the

Janzen Memorial School, Basna, India

The above building houses the Boys' Middle School in Basna. Generally a middle school in India includes grades five to eight. However, this school also includes the first four grades. In addition to their Biblical studies the boys are taught trades and farming. Missionary John Thiessen is in charge of this school. This school was built at a cost of about $2,000.00. The sum was given for this purpose by Mrs. Herman Janzen and children of Elbing, Kansas, in memory of their departed father.

This school was built in Basna after the one at Mauhadih had been badly damaged by a flood in 1937. Because the Mauhadih area may again be devastatingly flooded, it was deemed advisable to build a school in a safer place. The burnt tiles of the Mauhadih building could not be moved over thirty miles of nearly impassable roads. So this new school was built in Basna to the glory of God and the welfare of Indian children.

Brother and Sister Herman Janzen

Mrs. Janzen and her children still live near Elbing, Kansas, and take an active part in the activities of the Zion Mennonite Church. Brother Janzen passed to his heavenly home about five years ago.

beginning of the church, showing its interests in the different mission fields. Whenever possible a church choir has assisted in the church services and strengthened the congregational singing.

In 1917 Rev. John P. Andres, who had been a minister in the Emmaus church transferred his membership to the Zion Church, in which he served until his death in 1932.

In 1920 the church extended a call to H. J. Dyck, then assistant minister in the Swiss Mennonite Church near Whitewater. He accepted the call, serving monthly during this year, twice monthly during the next year, and assumed full duties in March, 1922. Elder C. H. Regier tendered his resignation after his eightieth birthday in 1921, having served this congregation for thirty-six years.

Until 1900 congregational singing was conducted by a "Vorsinger" using the Gesangbuch fuer Mennoniten Gemeinden, published in Danzig. Then an organ was bought to accompany the singing, playing the melodies from the Gesangbuch mit Noten. In 1902 this book was introduced. When the organ was bought, one member made a considerable contribution on condition that only men should serve as organists. This condition was observed during his lifetime. The first organists elected were Abr. H. Regier and John L. Regier.

With the growth of the congregation the first church building erected in 1883 became inadequate, having served its purpose for forty-one years. The new church was erected in 1924 in Elbing. Here the church is more centrally as well as more conveniently located. This building was dedicated on October 19, 1924.

In 1920 the Sunday School began to use the

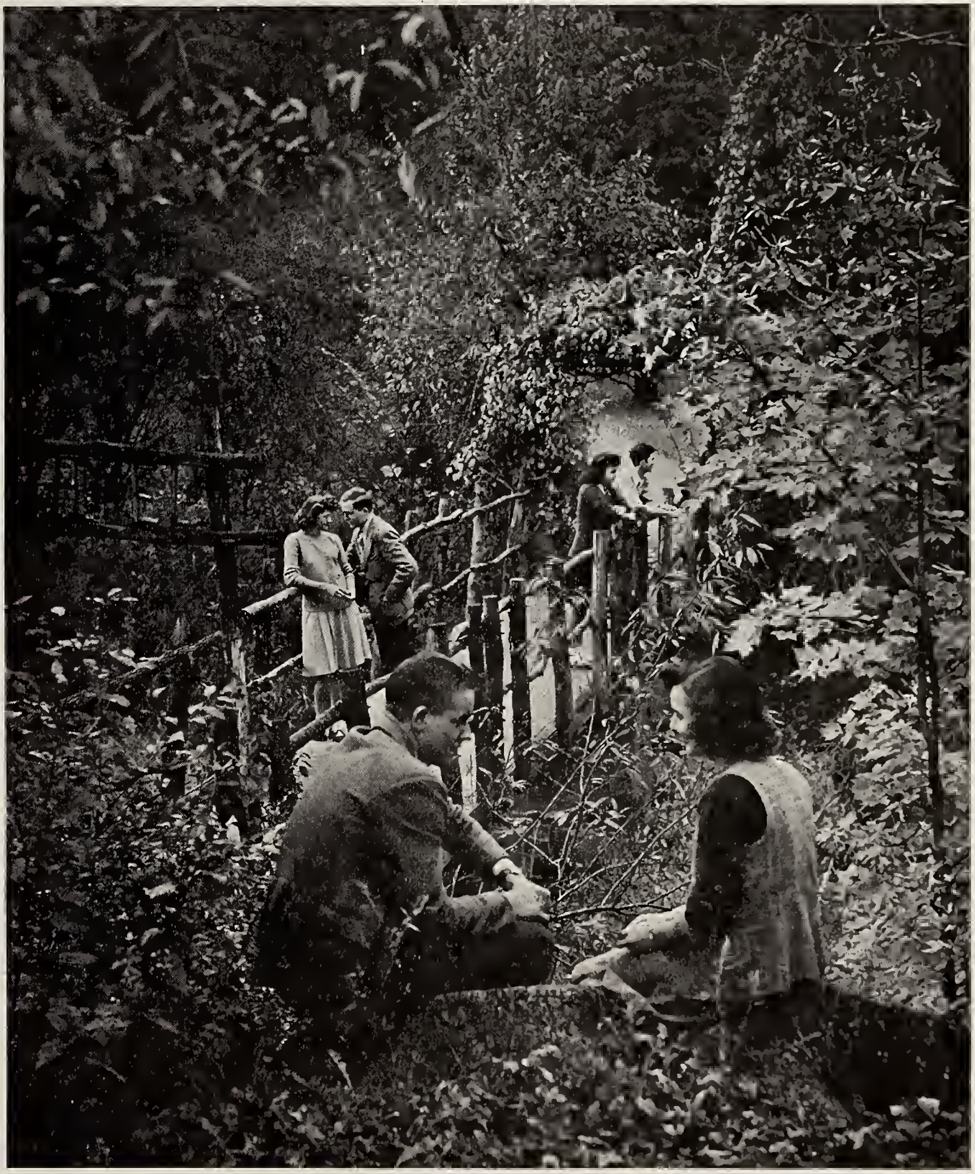
"Friendships Dear We Owe to Thee"



Young people often wonder whether a certain friendship of theirs can become a growing and lasting companionship. A minister, who has written widely for young people, offers the following checks for determining the possibilities of such a friendship: 1. You enjoy reading together. 2. You enjoy playing games together. 3. You enjoy hiking and picnics. 4. You enjoy going on trips—those that do not cost money, especially. 5. You, as a rule, bring the best out of each other. 6. When one is in an unsocial mood the other has the understanding to deal with it wholesomely. 7. You can accept suggestions from each other in good spirit. 8. You enjoy and share in private worship and with others of like mind at church. 9. You have a common interest in seeking God's will and for the fulfillment of His purpose. Undoubtedly, these points can and should be improved upon. However, they should offer a basis for helpful thought. —Photo of Bluffton College Campus

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

No. 2 of Series on Christian Citizenship

A CHRISTIAN'S RELATIONSHIP TO THE COMMUNITY

I. Worship Service 1. Songs: "Hark, Ten Thousand Harps and Voices," No. 123, "Sweet Hour of Prayer," No. 182. 2. Reading of Scripture passage, Luke 19:11-27, prayer and leader's remarks. 3. Reading "The House by the Side of the Road." 4. Offering for Home Missions.

II. Leader's Introduction:

To some extent the Christian's relation to the community will be determined by the way he handles the routine, everyday assignments of life. Influence comes not by spectacular action alone, but most of all by painstaking attention to everyday duties. Looking at the commonplace tasks in this light gives emphasis to the following bit of poetry:

The Motto You Live

"You may bring to your office and put in a frame
 A motto as fine as its paint,
But of you're a crook when you're playing the game,
 The motto won't make you a saint.
You can stick up the placards all over the wall,
 But here is the word I announce:
It isn't the motto that hangs on the wall,
 But the motto you live that counts."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks.

Use the booklet Christian Relationships to State and Community by G. F. Hershberger as reference material.

1. False and Harmful Kinds of Patriotism.
2. True Patriotism
3. Rural Life and the National Welfare.
4. Strengthening the Mennonite Rural Community.
5. Conserving Our Natural Resources.

IV. For Discussion:

1. What organizations and interests of the community should be cultivated to make the community more Christian? How?
2. In what ways can the home contribute to lift the standards of living, morally and spiritually in a community?

V. For Study:

Henry Drummond once said, "There are some men and women in whose company we are always at our best. While with them we cannot think mean thoughts or speak ungenerous words."

"Do not pray for easy lives. Pray to be stronger men. Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers. Pray for powers equal to your tasks. Then the doing of your work will be no miracle. Every day you shall wonder at yourself, at the richness of life which has come in you by the grace of God."
—Phillips Brooks

Living the Christ-Life

It is said that St. Francis of Assisi one day said to a young monk, "Brother, let us go into the town and preach." And so the gentle old man and his young companion went forth to the town, conversing as they walked. Upon reaching the town they walked along the main streets, passed through lowly valleys and down narrow lanes until they finally arrived at the monastery again.

"Father," asked the young monk, "when shall we begin to preach?" To this St. Francis replied, "My son, we have been preaching while we walked. We have been observed by our fellow-men, our behavior has been noticed, and thus we have delivered a sermon. My son, it is of no use that we walk anywhere to preach unless we preach as we walk."

VII. Community Needs:

It is often difficult in our day to see clearly what the needs of a community are. There are so many activities, life is so busy and so complex that it takes time and thought and spiritual insight to evaluate the needs. What is it that those with whom we live truly need, and what can we do that they may have it?

They need their daily bread, food, clothing, and shelter. But man does not live by bread alone—he needs companionship, friends, a home. And more than that, he needs food for his soul—a vision of God and communion with Him. To supply these needs, we will often need united effort, working together for wholesome social life and careful planning for the young, perhaps putting more emphasis on their enjoying things together than we sometimes do. We will also provide opportunities for spiritual growth such as regular Sunday worship services, conferences, retreats, peace rallies. And maybe Jesus' insistence on and persistence in meeting the needs of those who were hungry, blind, and sick should show us, too, the way we are to take to reach the hearts of men and help them find the way to the heart of God.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

A LESSON IN COURTESY

Opening Song: "Trust and Obey"

Prayer:

Leader's Introduction:

Courtesy is a Christian virtue, a very common one. And yet, most of us will have to confess that we are often the least courteous to those we love most. Are we courteous to our brothers and sisters? To our parents? Are parents always courteous to their children? Courtesy can become a habit by practicing it and making a conscious effort to improve our attitude; by asking God's forgiveness everytime we are rude; and by asking God's help day by day to be more kind, considerate, helpful and honest. (Manners Can Be Fun by A. A. Milne would provide some good source material. Most public libraries have it.)

Topics to be discussed by several Intermediates:

1. To be courteous is to be honest and sincere.

Matthew 5:37; James 5:12; Exodus 20:16. Are people who break their promises courteous? Why? Are people who say one thing and mean another courteous?

2. To be courteous is to be kind.

Gal. 6:1 and Gal. 5:22. It is easy to be kind to those who are kind to us, but how should we react when people are rude to us? What effect might this have? Discuss "patience and gentleness" mentioned in Gal. 5:22.

3. To be courteous is to be helpful.

Galatians 6:2; Gal. 6:9; Matt. 6:42,45,46,48; Isa. 41:6. These scripture passages all have good ideas on the subject. One of the finest compliments you can pay a person is to say of him or her "He (or she) is such a helpful person."

Other Suggested Songs: 1. "Help Somebody Today" 2. "Sweet are the Promises" 3. "Lord Jesus, I long to be perfectly whole."

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

MY FRIENDS: John 1:40-45

Memory Verse: "A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly, and there is a Friend that sticketh closer than a brother." Prov. 18:24.

Some have few friends; others have many. We like to be well thought of among people, but the Bible warns us that we shall be careful when all people speak well of us (Luke 6:26) because it is then perhaps that we are inclined to walk with the world and not with Christ and we are more desirous to please people than Christ.

It is better to have few friends of sterling quality than many with questionable natures.

Make your friends without compromising Christ. Can you always take Christ along with you when you are out in your crowd, if not, why not? Must you leave Christ at the door, when you go inside to places of amusement?

Do Your Friends Change? In the Lord, we have a friend who never changes. In (Mal. 3:6) the Bible says of him, "I am the Lord, I change not." Every human soul yearns for friends. We all want to be loved by someone, but we must make ourselves worthy of this love.

Be a friend to sinners, but never go with them in their sinful ways. Often our silence to their sins make them believe that we approve of what they are doing. Though Jesus ate and mingled with the sinner, he never partook of their sins; he was their friend because he loved them and wanted to save them.

We expect our friends to be loyal, unselfish, forgiving and trusted, but we dare not expect more of them than what we can be to them.

The Question Bee

(1). With whom shall we be friends? (2). Why should we be friends to the poor and needy? (3) Why do we need Christian friends? (4) Can people say this of us, "I thank my God upon every remembrance of you? (Phil. 1:3,5) (5) How do we often grieve our friends?

"Friend of the Belgian People"

Herbert Hoover was a great friend to the Belgian people. During the first world war he gave them food and help in their time of stress and need. At the close of the war, the king and queen sent for Hoover and said to him, "We would like to honor you with the highest decoration. His answer was, "We have only shared with you what we had to give. For that one does not ask honor, and he refused to accept any decoration. Then the king and queen said, "He is our very great friend," and they created for him a new order, to which he only belonged, and the title was given him, "Friend of the Belgian people."

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

Berne, Indiana

Sunday, October 3, was another eventful day in this church, in that we were privileged again to have a consecration service, this time for two of our young women members, the Misses Lillian Lehman and Marie Liechty, who expect to leave soon to do mission work in the schools of the neglected mountain regions of our own Southland. The immediate field of service is the state of Tennessee and the work is under the supervision of the Children's Bible Mission whose headquarters are at Lakeland, Florida. These girls will be the representatives of our Home Mission Board in that work and will be financially supported by the Berne Sunday School. Friends are also providing a car for these new workers, and as soon as this can be purchased they will start their work. The service was conducted by the Pastor, Dr. C. H. Suckau. Brief remarks were also made by the Sunday School Superintendent, Gordon Liechty. At the conclusion the girls sang a fitting duet.

Thus again this church is grateful to send workers out into mission service, and we are glad to note the fact that this makes four this year who have definitely given themselves for both home and foreign service. The other two are Gerald Stucky, now on an exploring expedition for a suitable site to open up work in South America, and Marguerite Sprunger now at Bethel College, who will enter into the work in South America as soon as the work there opens. We trust as the membership of this church increases, which has now reached 1,300, more and more of our fine young people will yield themselves for service in the mission fields of this and other lands.

We were recently privileged to enjoy a week's series of meetings conducted by Rev. Erland Waltner of Mt. Lake, Minnesota, under the auspices of our C. E. societies. These were well received, and we trust the benefits of these meetings will manifest themselves in yieldedness of lives to the Master's cause. The messages were most helpful and inspiring, and it rejoices one's heart to see young men stand for the true Christian faith and preach it in such a courageous manner.

PRETTY PRAIRIE MENNONITE CHURCH

Pretty Prairie, Kansas

Waldo J. Flickinger, who has been called as pastor of the Swiss Mennonite Church of Alsen, North Dakota, was ordained here at his home church on Sunday, October 3. In the morning Evangelist Theodore H. Epp spoke on "The Word of God, the Bible." The afternoon service consisted of a message by Rev. P. P. Wedel of Moundridge, speaking on "The Charge of the Prophet Jeremiah," "Have thine own Way" by a ladies' trio, and another message by Rev. Epp. The ordination was by Rev. P. P. Tschetter. Following this Waldo Flickinger gave the thirty-fourth psalm as his testimony. After the evening session was opened with song, both Mr. and Mrs. Flickinger spoke. A ladies' trio and a men's quartet furnished special numbers. Rev. Epp spoke on the "Twelve Gates of Jerusalem." Rev. P. P. Tschetter made the closing remarks. Rev. Waldo Flickinger is a former Bethel College student and a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute.

Orie Miller Visits Puerto Rico

At the time of this writing Orie O. Miller is enroute to Puerto Rico. He is scheduled to be gone for two weeks. Brother Miller plans to visit the Mennonite C.P.S. Unit at La Plata, and to study a proposal to extend the relief work there. He has asked that we pray for this work and especially that the Lord may lead in providing a return passage.

A. Warkentin Ill

We have been informed recently that A. Warkentin of North Newton, Kansas, has suffered from an attack of apoplexy. The reporter said, that Dr. Warkentin is recovering satisfactorily but will be incapacitated for several months. Dr. Warkentin in the past had served on the Mennonite Central Committee, and also on the Executive Committee as Vice Chairman. Most of us will remember seeing his name attached, as the compiler, to the Relief Notes in our church papers. We wish to express our hope for his speedy recovery.

"Please, let me help."

An interesting sidelight on motivation for relief work came to our notice recently. A C.P.S. camper, expressing his desire to do relief work, said on a questionnaire, "I once was fed by the Mennonite Central Committee. Please, let me help others in some vital need."

Workers Meet in South Africa

Delvin Kirchhofer, enroute to the Near East writes from Durban, South Africa: "Last Sunday we had the pleasure of meeting him (Robert Kreider) here at his hotel in Durban where he had arrived a few hours previous. We had a splendid visit with him and on several occasions since." The letter is dated August 10.

Enroute to Paraguay

Dr. and Mrs. Schmidt arrived in the Canal Zone September 25. A few days later, September 28, Dr. and Mrs. Klassen also arrived.

Mental Hospital Service

Following is an excerpt from a letter that came to the desk of the Director of Hospital Units: "I want you to know that we are more than grateful for the fine service rendered by the members you have assigned to the Greystone Park, Marlboro and Vineland camps." The letter came from William J. Ellis, New Jersey Commissioner for Institutions and Agencies.

Details of Hartzler Death

Further details as to the drowning of Elmer Hartzler in Puerto Rico reveal that he had gone swimming with a group in the local Guayo River. Elmer evidently got into a whirlpool in deep water and was overcome. Even though his body was recovered twenty minutes later and artificial respiration was administered no response could be secured. His body was embalmed at Borinquen and he was buried in the cemetery at Adjuntos. Brother Wilbur Nachtigal, director of the Mennonite Unit, conducted the funeral.

School for Hospital Leaders

The Training School for the leaders of mental hospital units is in full swing here at Akron at the time of this writing. Beside receiving training for the directorship of the units, the men are also becoming acquainted with the interests and concerns of the Mennonite Central Committee in their work. Dr. Lloyd Gilbert Little, Mennonite psychiatrist from Wichita, Kansas, is lecturing on "Causes and Treatment of Mental Illness." On September 29 the group will leave for Washington for further study.

Canned Food for C.P.S.

The food canned and dried by the many friends of C.P.S. will soon be reaching the camps. By October 15 all reports should be sent to the Mennonite Central Committee at Akron, and the food contributions should be at the various collection centers. Plans are being completed for the collection of the food and its shipment to the camps before the winter.

PEACE SECTION

We have the following note from Selective Service via the National Service Board:

"Selective Service advises that men who desire a IV-E classification but are put instead in I-A (H) or I-A-O (H) —H is the designation for men over 38— should not appeal the classification since the H group may never be called, and the appeal may unnecessarily burden appeal procedure.

"To protect themselves, however, from possible later charges that the conscience claim was forgotten, such registrants are advised to notify their local boards that, while they are not appealing, they wish that their conscientious objections to be continued, and that they intend to appeal if later placed in I-A or I-A-O."

OKLAHOMA BIBLE ACADEMY

October 2, 1943

We were privileged to have Rev. Wilbert Regier of the Mennonite Church of Los Angeles, California, with us on September 27. After his devotional message, he spoke to us on God's dealings with Moses as shown in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews.

Other recent visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Unruh of Gulfport, Mississippi, and Mrs. Frank Thomas of Alabama. These friends led us in our devotional meditation and gave their testimonies in word and song. We are always glad to have former students return for a visit.

On Friday evening, September 24, the first Parent-Teacher's Meeting was held. After a number of musical selections rendered by the girls' trio and the orchestra, Rev. Jantzen led in the discussions of the evening.

The student body met on Friday afternoon in order to organize a literary society. It is the purpose of this organization to offer more opportunities to the students for expression. Donald Penner, Burrton, Kansas, is chairman; Olen Unruh, Ringwood, vice-chairman; Anna Wedel, Turpin, is secretary. The program committee consists of Verna Lee Kane and Lawrence Krause of Meno, and Norman Buller of Orienta. This organization meets every other Friday for the last half hour at the close of the school day.

The practical Christian work has again been organized, and groups from the Bible department go out to a number of different country schools on Friday afternoons to conduct gospel meetings the last half hour of the school day. The program, which consists of group singing, Bible story, and memory work, is entirely in the hands of the students.

Ellis Guthrie of LaFayette, senior ministerial student at Bluffton College and President of the Bluffton Student Council, spoke on "Friendship" at the regular College church service, Sunday evening, September 26. He stressed the importance of true friendship, and concluded with several thoughts about Jesus, the greatest Friend of all.

A women's glee club has been organized at Bluffton College this year, through the efforts of Professor Russell A. Lantz, to take the place of the former Vesper choir. Scarcity of men's voices made it impossible to organize a mixed choir this year.

Rev. James E. Boren, missionary to Thailand, addressed Bluffton College students at their regular chapel service, September 23.

Edmund Zehr, of Gridley, Illinois, senior at the college, reviewed his experiences at Goshen College, Indiana, in chapel, September 24. He was a member of the reconstruction training corps preparing for service in China, located at Goshen this summer.

—Miss Lena Waltner of Bethel College is serving as President of the Kansas State Art Teachers Association.

—Rev. William B. Weaver, pastor of the Central Conference Mennonite Church at Danvers, Illinois, and former editor of The Christian Evangel, was the speaker in the Christian Life Week at Bethel College this year. Rev. Weaver spoke each morning in chapel and each evening at 8 o'clock to an appreciative faculty and student body.

—Dr. Melvin Gingerich spoke at the First Mennonite Church, Hillsboro, Sunday evening, October 3, on the subject "The Mennonites of America."

—Bethel College is venturing into a new field in community entertainment. A series of three unusually attractive numbers are being offered in the Memorial Hall Series for the low price of $1 and tax.

In addition to the Original Don Cossack Chorus, the Memorial Hall Series will include lectures by Dr. Ralph Sockman and Dr. Alfred Noyes. Dr. Sockman is a member of the World Peace Commission of the Methodist Church and the noted minister of Christ Church, New York City. Noyes is a distinguished British poet and a champion of spiritual values in contrast to material philosophies.

—Willis Rich returned to the Bethel campus October 5 after an extended trip to the churches in Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, and Montana. While in Montana, Mr. Rich gave an address to the men in the C.P.S. Camp at Terry. Mr. Rich enjoyed his visit to these outlying churches and is most appreciative of the courtesies shown him.

—First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: Recently Miss Aganetha Fast visited a few days in Aberdeen. She spoke twice on Sunday, September 19 to the First Mennonite Church, and on the following Tuesday night she showed Kodachrome slides of the China mission field. —Corr.

—Eden Mennonite Church, Inola, Oklahoma: The C.E. gave a joint program with the C.E. of the Mennonite Brethren Church on September 26. Many of our young people have gone back to school. One goes to Grace Bible Institute, one to Bethel College, two to O.B.A., and one to Biblical Seminary, New York City for the second year. Five are in high school. Two are teaching grade school. Eight boys are in the service of the government, including the two Unruh boys in the C.P.S. Sister Marie Froese, who had a stroke last week, is somewhat better. The G. J. Voth children surprised their parents upon the fortieth wedding anniversary. Two Sunday School classes and the Funk relatives were invited. After the short program a lunch was served. The correspondent reports that since coffee is no longer rationed one could have all he wanted of it along with zwieback, cheese, and cake.

—Walton Mennonite Church, Walton, Kansas: The corner-stone of our new church building is now laid. Special services were held on October 3, in the afternoon. Rev. J. M. Regier brought us an inspiring message, and Rev. Arnold Funk, President of the Western District Conference, officiated at the laying of the stone. Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman and Rev. J. E. Entz also assisted in the service. About three hundred people were present, and the offering amounted to $157.13. This went into our building fund. It was a great encouragement to know that so many people were interested in our project. Our C. E. has begun a regular letter writing project to our boys in service. Two people write letters every two weeks, and these are sent to all of the boys.

—Mennonites at Biblical Seminary, New York City: Jacob J. Entz writes, "The group of Mennonites at Biblical has increased again this year. They are: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Barkman and Lenora Friesen of Newton, (also myself from Newton) Gladys Klassen and Erna Fast from Mountain Lake, and the missionaries Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wenger and Miss Wilhelmina Kuyf. We are looking forward to a great year."

—Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas: This church is planning to have the educational director of the C.P.S. camp at Terry, Montana, with them during the latter part of October to show pictures and address them. Ruth Wedel, a member of the congregation, is nurse at this camp.—Thirty-two young people are taking catechism. This and the fact that Rev. Walter Gering visited five of his members who were all patients in the hospital at Newton at the time indicates something of the work that the pastor of a large church must do.—"Recently the trustees put in a day's work at the parsonage installing the safe which has been in the church basement for years. The safe was mounted on a concrete base and now provides safe keeping for the church books and papers."—"At a recent survey made during the Sunday School hour the ladies reported that they had over 1,500 quarts of canned fruits and vegetables ready for the C.P.S. canning project. Beans and peaches led the list. . . the final tabulation will be considerably higher.

Sam Goering Visits Mission Field in India

On October 6 Mrs. Sam Goering and son Robert received a cablegram that had been sent off in India on October 4 by Mrs. Goering's nephew, Rev. Orlando Waltner. The cablegram read, "Enjoying Uncle Sam's visit. Leaving soon." On the preceding day Mrs. Goering had received a telegram from the M.C.C. office at Akron saying that they had gotten a cablegram from Sam Goering and Brother Graber that had read, "Both well."

—The marriage of Mildred Lorraine Gerbrand to Elmer M. Ediger has been announced for October 16. The wedding will take place at Buhler, Kansas. Brother Ediger is employed in the M.C.C. as Education Director of C.P.S. camps.

—The Buhler (Kansas) Mennonite Church has already collected over 200 quarts of canned fruit for the C.P.S. camps.

—While Rev. Arthur Wenger brought the morning message at the North Fork, California, C.P.S. camp, Rev. Chris Ummel brought the message to the First Mennonite Church of Shafter. Shafter has inaugurated a week-day religious education program for its children.

—The Bethesda Mennonite Church, Henderson, Nebraska, has collected around 1,800 quarts of canned goods for C.P.S. One family gave as much as 190 quarts. The average Sunday School attendance for the third quarter was 619. The average S.S. offering was $25.89. The church gave $465.08 for C.P.S. during September.

—Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa: Rev. E. S. Mullet of Wayland will be the speaker at the Harvest Home Festival on October 17. In the afternoon the Women's Missionary Society will give the pageant, "Stewardship or Selfishness." A group of C.P.S. boys from the unit at the Mt. Pleasant State Hospital conducted the service on Sept. 26. This was greatly appreciated and was followed by a basket dinner provided by the members of the church council and the Sunday School executive committee and their families. In the evening Rev. H. E. Nunemaker spoke at the evening service of the unit at Mt. Pleasant.

—Rev. J. J. Voth visits camp: (From the Rising Tide) "He (Rev. Voth) spent a considerable amount of time studying the difficulties of the men and advising them. Boys came to him for counsel regardless of their church affiliation and spoke with him freely and openly concerning problems confronting them. When asked for his opinion regarding the future of C.P.S., his face lit up as he said that since that was in the hands of the campers, it must necessarily be bright. Rev. Voth has been a member of the Bethel College faculty since 1925, teaching industrial arts. In addition, he is serving as pastor of the Gnadenberg Mennonite Church east of Newton." Rev. Voth who visited the Colorado camps also has a son in C.P.S.

—Rev. and Mrs. John F. Schmidt, who have been in

C.P.S. work for a number of years, have left the Fort Collins Camp where Rev. Schmidt was director to go into other work. Brother Schmidt writes in a farewell article, "In the years to come I expect to meet many men who will then also see that by a way often rocky and rough they have climbed to greater heights of living on the very road that now seems to have such dull and weary stretches."

—The Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska, has canned 192 quarts for use in C.P.S. camps.

—Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church, Wichita, Kansas: "At a special congregational meeting. . . it was decided to begin with our new church building as soon as the necessary funds and materials are available. It was also decided that we build only the auditorium part of the proposed plan."

—Sisters Alice Epp and Lena Heer, who recently completed twenty-five years of deaconess service at the Mennonite Hospital, Beatrice, Nebraska, were honored with a celebration of the event on September 30. Rev. Cornelius Penner spoke in German, Rev. Albert Claassen brought the anniversary message, and Rev. Walter Dyck gave the closing talk.

Twenty-five Years of Service

On Sunday, September 26, twenty-five years had passed since Sister Helena Entz entered deaconess service in connection with the Bethel Deaconess Home at Newton, Kansas. Her childhood home was on a farm near Whitewater, Kansas, and she grew up as a member of the Emmaus church.

Sister Helena Entz

Seeing an opportunity to serve her Lord and Master in deaconess work, she entered the Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital on September 26, 1918, and took the regular course as a student nurse. She was admitted to the family of sisters on May 31, 1919. Upon completion of her training course, Sister Helena went to the Bethel Deaconess Hospital, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, on November 2, 1921, where she helped in general nursing service in the surgery, and as floor supervisor for several years. While she was stationed in Minnesota, she came home and was ordained with a group of sisters by the Rev. J. E. Entz on September 28, 1924.

Early in 1926, the Motherhouse asked her to become sister-in-charge of the Bethel Home for the Aged at Newton which was in process of construction. In faithful obedience to what she believed to be God's call to her, she served in the capacity since the institution opened its doors on May 9, 1926.

Bethel Home for Aged, Newton, Kansas

There would be few nurses indeed who would not rather apply their gifts and talents to restore the sick to health than to struggle daily with the difficult problems of an institution household whose services can only hope to make a declining path of life a bit easier for others. It is natural that this service is often not appreciated by those who find the physical restrictions and limitations of the later years a grievous burden, and there are comparatively few who pass through these infirmities with a happy heart. Sister Helena has been given strength and grace to carry her responsibilities at the Bethel Home for Aged with a willing and trustful heart for seventeen years. She has gone through much testing of faith, love, and hope.

On Saturday evening, September 25, Sister Helena's immediate family gathered with the household of the deaconess institution to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of her entrance into the deaconess service. Following the festive supper in the dining room of the hospital, a service of praise and thanksgiving to God was held in the chapel of the deaconess home. The program consisted of songs and prayers, an address by the Rev. J. E. Entz based on Isaiah 63:7, reminiscences of Sister Helena's childhood and youth cleverly presented by her sister Mrs. Walter A. Claassen of Whitewater, remarks by various sisters, an original poem by Sister Hillegonda, and instrumental music offered by students of the school of nursing. On Sunday, September 26, the real anniversary day, household members of the Bethel Home for Aged surprised Sister Helena with their tributes of love in song, flowers, and cards.

Her many friends join with The Mennonite to congratulate Sister Helena on this occasion, to thank God that He has enabled her to be in His service for twenty-five years, and to wish her God's continued blessing in her noble work.

"And let us not be weary in well doing for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not."

Only Suggesting

(The following editorial from the Evangelical Visitor is reprinted in the hope that it may be suggestive in regard to our own church papers.—rw.)

In a recent issue of the publication of a certain sister denomination there was an interesting and challenging observation on the place of the church paper. The women's organization of the church in question has established the observance each year of a "Church Paper Week." The women's organization as a whole gives itself with enthusiasm during this week to the effort to place the church paper in every church home.

The reporter observes that experience has taught "that those Christians who are informed concerning the work of the Church are most active in the cause of Christ and more liberal in their contributions to the work of His kingdom." Much importance is attached to this work of canvassing the membership for subscriptions. One writer suggests: "Side by side with our current 'digests' let us place our current church papers, for only an informed and thinking Church and one aware of the needs of her day is fit to go forward." And another suggests "Try the Experiment of Having a Church Paper in the Home for a Year."

We are convinced that what is true in this way of other church bodies is true also of our own. No home in the Brethren in Christ Church can afford to be without the Evangelical Visitor. And any member that has not enough interest to subscribe for the Visitor does not have as much interest in the church as he should have. There may be unusual cases at times where subscription to the church paper would entail a financial burden. In that case, the church would benefit by paying for a subscription to the paper for the member who is unable to pay.

However, in most cases it is not a lack of finances that causes subscriptions to lapse, but lack of interest. And the full responsibility for making the paper interesting and profitable comes back to the door step of the editor. However, the editor can publish only the materials which come to his desk, and even must elect the most profitable from among such contributions.

Our responsibility is not fully discharged with paying our subscription. We should constantly strive to make our paper the organ of true expression of our highest church interests. And we should seek to enlist the interest of every member. Any member who has not sufficient interest in the activities and concerns and programs of the church, to read the pages of the organ designed for its united expression and information, is after all not a very vitally interested member.

It is our impression that the basic fault often lies with the leaders. Too often an inexperienced lay member is designated by the District or congregation as solicitor and correspondent. Instead of the leaders taking a personal responsibility for stimulating activity along these lines and giving suggestion and guidance to the willing but untutored correspondent, they too often forget the matter entirely. We should be developing an efficient corps of trained promoters of our publications in every congregation of the church

We might also suggest emulating another sister organization, whose evangelists give special attention to placing their church paper in every home, both of the members and of new converts. This serves as a permanent link between the newcomer and the church. It insures a continuing and stimulating contact with the church at large.

Perhaps we too should sponsor a "Church Paper Week" when ministers and active lay members alike will devote themselves to the spreading of the official organ of the church. Or perhaps if we are sufficiently interested in the work of the Church we will not need such a specially designated time. A hint to the wise may be sufficient.

Things Money Can Never Replace

When families leave Mt. Lake to reside in the large cities we sometimes wonder whether they realize what they are leaving. For the experience of having more money pass through their hands they leave: 1. The fellowship of the church in which they were raised. This can seldom be duplicated or replaced. 2. The comparatively high moral standards of a well churched community. Where could you find a better place to rear your children? 3. The stabilizing influence of family ties together with the congenial neighborliness of a small town. 4. The pure fresh air of God's great out-of-doors with the opportunity of communing with Nature's God.

These are some things money can never replace. From the personal experience of living in both places it almost seems that to leave a small Christian community for a large city as a place to live is like selling one's birthright for a mess of pottage.

ON THE USE OF VIOLENCE

"And should it be the case, that one remained among us who uses violence (which is quite unknown to me), and would do that which is from the devil, my beloved sirs, know you that such an one was not of us from the beginning, and will for ever not be of us, execpt he be thoroughly converted, repent sincerely, and become one with the Spirit, doctrine and example of Christ, as the Scriptures teach."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Letters from Mexico

Tamazumchale, September 23:

It looks tropical around here. This is a sleepy looking town right in the mountains or foothills, very steep hills but beautifully green. Large oleander trees full of red flowers and many banana trees right next to the little huts on the hillside. In Chihauhau State the homes are built of abode in the country and villages. Here of stone with grass roofs. Buildings in town of Spanish design are of brick stone or adobe construction. Many of them are white or tan in color. The people are very sociable.

We went to see a Mr. Dale and his son John this afternoon. Had a very interesting talk with them. They work among the Aztec tribe here. I was impressed with the similarity of the work with what our folks did in China. Mr. Dale has been here forty years, eleven years at this place. There are Indian churches, twenty-five workers, all local Indians. Had their own school. They go singly or by two to their own people. Are sending girls to the government day school. Evidently the government is doing a good work for them and the whole movement among these Indians helping both them and the State.

Mexico City, September 25:

We had planned on taking the "Greyhound" bus Friday at 9 a. m. but it did not arrive. We waited till 3:00 p.m. Then a second class bus of another line came and we took it. Had a nice trip. It is a romantic trip winding through the mountains up for a few thousand feet, about like the trip up Mount Evans in Colorado. Just about one hundred miles of beautiful mountain scenery before it got dark. Arrived here 1:00 a. m.—seems we have the luck of arriving after midnight.

It was pleasant information we received when we went to verify the date of our departure—and saw one of the Pan-American Airways officials fill out the blank giving details about our departure. As we had stood in a long line waiting our turn and hearing remarks made to others—such as when one man wanted to go to Los Angeles and the officer told him they were booked full till November—we began to wonder whether we would be left out. When our turn came he asked a few questions, started to write then went away and talked to others in Spanish. But after a while he came back filled both our names in and gave us a duplicate slip which we are to give the taxi driver who is to call for us September 30, to take us to the airfield. So far we are assured the Lord has provided and guided us. Praise His Name!

Mexico City, September 26:

This is Sunday night and I want to write a few things of this fine day. The Lord has been good to us and led in wondrous ways. Read a chapter in Matthew (6) this morning and then a season of prayer (Brother Stucky the same) asking God to specially direct our paths today and that He should show us what He wished us to know. We saw that we would not have time for breakfast if we wanted to take in church service so we walked out to find the Methodist Church. When we came to the door we still had a half hour so thought we might look around for a restaurant. There in the door of the Methodist church stood a young Mexican, we asked him about a restaurant and also if he knew of any English service. He said, not in the M. E. church but in the same block in back side was the Union church where they had English service. So we went around and then saw a good group of children there in Sunday School. When we went in we met a young man whom we had met at Mr. Dale's home in Tamazumchale during the week.

That chance acquaintance proved to be God's method of leading us to a very fine contact. This young man was just talking with another man and introduced us to him. And that was Mr. Taylor, executive Secrtary of the Presbyterian work here. Just the man we wanted to meet and had been referred to from several people. We were indeed glad to meet him. What was more it turned out that he was just on his way home from church and he would leave soon for a few days so we would not have seen him at all if not now. Well, he was most considerate and kind. Suggested that we spend a while in an adjoining room at this time.

He told of what they were doing and what the Mexican Christians were doing. Said they were able to have good relations with the authorities and as far as the Indians were concerned there was little done for them in the Western part of the State and south of San Diego. He has a hopeful outlook.

After dinner we saw the "Floating gardens" an interesting, colorful parade of boats. There are a lot of canals built through the garden and hundreds of small row boats and some motor boats plying. The boats are flat with a top on them and a name worked out in flowers over the head of the front. A few boats especially attracted our attention. It looked like young couples on a honeymoon, each couple in one small boat sitting on chairs with a table in front of them with cold drinks etc. The boatman was rowing it and close at the side another small boat with from three to five musicians playing guitars, violins and other intruments and singing to the couple.

After that we came back to the main part of the city and went to the Presbyterian church where the best Mexican elder of that church gave a very energetic sermon on Rev. 3:20. He stressed the importance of the Word of God. There must have been a few hundred people in church. Some over twenty went to the altar after the invitation was given. There had been more in the morning—an excellent work. We spoke to Mr. Perez after the meeting. He had, of course, spoken in Spanish so I got only a few words, and yet I was surprised that I could get as many words as I did. It would not be so difficult to learn this language.

It was interesting that the church we were in today had been another church once before. Very high inside with golden altar and all.

Mexico City, September 29:

Just a word before we start on the actual "flying" trip. God willing, we expect to leave here 11:30 tomorrow.

We praise the Lord for His protection and leading so far . . . Yesterday we went to the Wycliffe Conference. That was an inspiration to see those nearly a hundred young folks together. (They work on translating the Bible into the languages of the various Indian tribes of Mexico.—M.K.V.) We had been invited by Rev. and Mrs. Norman Taylor to go along with them to the Conference group in the Taylor's station car. Had a nice drive and were so glad for the further contact with them. With us also was a Miss Taylor who had been in Guatamala many years. She said that the mission work in Guatamala is farther along than in other Central American countries.

At the Cardenez ranch where the Conference was, we had an interview with Mr. Townsend, leader of the Wycliffe group of translators. He told us of the work they did for the Indians and told us of the need among these Indians. There are still several tribes where there is no one doing mission work. He had worked in Central America before he came here eight years ago and thinks this is a much more needy field to help these Indians than any of those in Central America because much more work has been done there. Also he says they would welcome some one to come and do more permanent work among these Indians. Mr. Taylor told us they were doing three kinds of work—agriculture, Bible school work, and witnessing.

We had real full days running from place to place to get our visas fixed up. Have most of them now. Also the one for Chile which we thought we might not get. But they were most accommodating, even told us where to go to see the nicest scenes and gave us several pamphlets.

The way it looks to us now we will try and cut down on our stay in Central America.

Mail will reach us in the following places: California, Colombia, October 20-30—Guayaquil, Equador, November 1-10—Lima, Peru, November 10-15—La Paz, Bolivia, November 15-30. It will take about two weeks for mail to reach those places from the U. S. (air mail)

Editor The Mennonite:

"A Suggestion for Sunday School Teachers" is an article which produces after thoughts. Since reading this piece several days ago, I have thought of the lesson on the Call of Moses and tried to remember what had been taught in my own Sunday School days.

Not being a Sunday School teacher I can only speak of the side of one who was taught in early childhood, first by a Mennonite father and later by various teachers in Sunday Schools, churches and also through searching the Scriptures, asking the Holy Spirit to guide.

I still think the most important thing to learn from this lesson on the Call of Moses is to truly believe that God did really speak to Moses from the burning bush and that it was a fearful thing to thus stand before a living God.

Of course, Moses was afraid; suppose he had not feared? Then God could not have used him as he did. God was trying him first, as He did Abraham and all His prophets to see if he feared God. (Gen. 22:12) (Mal. 2:5) (Heb. 5:7-14)

Today I read the explanation that botanists give concerning the "manna from heaven"—spoken of in the Bible—"that it was probably lichen from trees of northern Egypt, blown by heavy winds during the night and picked up by Israelites in the morning."

How readest thou? Will there be faith on earth if the Lord Jesus does not come quickly? Very sincerely, a Reader.

Byways of Mennonite History

BY C. HENRY SMITH

Origins

The Mennonite church is an old church, dating back to the days of the Reformation, four hundred years ago. Menno Simons was a contemporary of Christopher Columbus and Martin Luther.

By the time of the Reformation, the Catholic church, which claimed to be the only true church of Christ on earth, as a result of centuries of compromise with a paganized world, had accumulated a mass of heathen doctrine and pagan practice, which differed from the simple teaching of the early apostolic church as night from day.

Among other unscriptural beliefs and practices these stand out:

I. A powerful ecclesiastical hierarchy, tax supported, headed by a worldly and often corrupt pope, who claimed not only the spiritual headship of the Christian church of Europe, but frequently engaged the ambitious kings and emperors of western Eurpoe in bloody wars for supremacy even in temporal rule.

II. Compulsory membership in this church, initiated by infant baptism, disloyalty to which, and disagreement with which in points of doctrine was punishable by death. There was no recognition of the rights of religious conscience. There was only one church, and everybody, whether saint or sinner, had to belong.

III. The Bible was a sealed book to the laity and frequently was but little read among the clergy.

IV. An elaborate machinery of salvation, including:

1. A powerful priesthood, also often corrupt and ambitious, who, because they held the keys to salvation, could thus bar the entrance of the soul of the disobedient from the portals of Heaven, thus gaining a powerful weapon of control over the lives of the members.

2. Confession, in which the priest imposes upon the confessor some good work in expiation for his sins.

3. Indulgence which even enables the sinner to pay in advance for some sin that may be committed in the future.

4. Purgatory, a half way station between Heaven and Hell, out of which the soul might be prayed if some thoughtful friend of the departed had left sufficient money with the priest for the regular performance of this service. Martin Luther was adding advance credit of ten thousand years surcease from Purgatory for every step he advanced on his knees, up the stairway of the Lateran church at the time the thought flashed throught his mind that "The Just shall live by Faith," not works,—the incident which started off the great reformation movement.

5. Real Presence. The belief that the bread and wine in the communion service was no longer just bread and wine but the actual flesh and blood of Christ, so transformed by some magical power of the priest.

6. Indelible Character. Once a priest always a priest.

7. Treasury of Merit. A surplus of good works, contributed by Jesus and the saints upon which the priest could draw to make up the deficiency of the sinner who was short of the actual amount necessary to acquire complete salvation.

8. Infant damnation, for all the children who died unbaptized.

9. Worship of the saints.

Most of this elaborate machinery was scrapped by the leaders of the Reformation churches. But they all retained one of the most unscriptural and most harmful of the whole system of the old church, the one that was the chief source of corruption of all the others—namely union of state and church. None of them were ready to go way back to the New Testament model for their example of what the new church ought to be. Saint and sinner, baptized in infancy, still were all members of a great state wide church.

A group of the young friends of Zwingli, the leader of the Reformation cause in Switzerland, became dissatisfied in the early stages of the movement when they found that their leader gave evidence that he would base his idea of the true church on the wishes of the local city council of Zurich rather than New Testament authority. After meeting together for some months in the homes of various members of the group for Bible study, these searchers after the true church decided to break completely with Zwingli, and establish a church entirely disconnected with the political authorities, and based on New Testament example, membership in which was to consist of the truly converted, and admitted into fellowship by adult baptism upon confession of faith. Because they insisted on adult baptism, thus invalidating the baptism of children they were called "Wiedertaeufer" (Rebaptizers), Anabaptists, by their enemies. This new movement spread rapidly down the Rhine, finally reaching Holland where a new leader, Menno Simons, gave his name to the faith now known as Mennonite.

These are the fundamental and distinctive principles differentiating Mennonites from the other Protestant faiths:

1. Complete separation of state and church.
2. Voluntary church membership, based on adult baptism on confession of faith.
3. Congregational church government.
4. The New Testament the sole basis of Christian belief, and the Sermon on the Mount, quite literally construed, the guide to Christian living.

5. Non-resistance. Opposition to the use of force and violence in the solution of all carnal strife, including war.

6. Opposition to the oath.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

J. W. Fretz

Rural Church Parsonages

Outside the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, in Mennonite circles, most ministers are still not paid for their pastoral services. They earn their living at some other job and do their ministerial duties free as a response to a "call." Under such circumstances the minister or ministers of a church own their own homes (if they can afford it). There is no such institution as a church-owned parsonage in most American Mennonite communities.

Buy a Small Farm

In the General Conference where a paid ministry has been generally accepted there are many small rural churches that can raise the minister's salary only with the greatest and most persistent of struggling. They have adopted the principle of a paid ministry but find it hard to follow its implications in practice. It stands to reason that small congregations of 150 or less members of moderate economic circumstance will find it a constant strain to raise even a minimum annual salary. Where church members are country people I like the idea of a minister being a country man too. Many rural pastors like the idea and would gladly move close to their meeting houses on the land if they were given encouragement to do so. Several congregations like the ones at Fortuna, Missouri, Noble, Iowa, and South Church, Freeman, South Dakota have demonstrated the wisdom of this arrangement for many years. I would like to see many more of our rural congregations follow this practice.

What It Would Mean

The purchase of a ten or twenty acre plot of ground and the erection of buildings on it for a permanent parsonage close to the meeting house would have far-reaching significance. Economically it would mean that the minister would need only about half as much cash income. He could raise most of his own food and earn an additional amount of cash through part-time attention to such activities as chickens, bees, berries, fruits, potatoes or if the minister is a skilled craftsman, it would mean following his trade. It would not be necessary for ministers to spend so much time trying to raise their salaries by encouraging more generous giving on the part of members but would enable the minister to earn his own income and be a model workman for his lay members. Putting on overalls, milking his own cows, and getting his hands dirty digging in the dirt would do more to endear him to his people and inspire confidence in him than a dozen "official" pastoral calls a year. It would break down the growing tendency to professionalize the ministry and restore it to its rightful place as a divine calling. It would permit small congregations to have ministers whereas many at the present time have none because they can't afford them. It would be witnessing ecclesiastically to our own genius as a rural church rather than imitating the pattern of the larger Protestant churches and doing it unsuccessfully.

To Erect Historical Marker

In the year 1874 sixty-two families left Kotosufka, Volhynia, Russia in search of religious liberty. Their destination was America, the new country for such who sought freedom of conscience and worship. These sixty-two families sailed on the City of Richmond and arrived in New York harbor on the 3rd of September. In October they arrived in this part of Kansas, and they together with a few families who arrived later settled in this community.

Plans have been under way for some time to commemorate their coming in some special manner. A fund has been gathered for the purpose of erecting a fitting marker in the community with the original family names and a suitable inscription engraved upon it. It is hoped that this marker can be erected some time this month. The date for the dedication has been set for October 28 with special services to be held in the forenoon and afternoon. Plan now to be there and to join in this special occasion. —From paper issued by the Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas.

To Provide for Seminary and Bible School Training

After long and careful consideration the Board of Trustees of Witmarsum Seminary and Bible School has taken steps to reopen the institution in affiliation with Bethany Biblical Seminary in Chicago. This action was taken at the annual meeting of the Board which was held at the Mennonite Bible Mission in Chicago on Tuesday, October 5.

It was decided to place two faculty men at Bethany, and to commence Seminary and Bible School training in the Fall of 1944. Representatives of Bethany Biblical Seminary met with the Board to discuss the various steps necessary for an affiliated relationship. A special committee has been charged with making the necessary arrangements.

Quench Not the Spirit

By C. H. Friesen

"Know ye not that you are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" I Cor. 3:16. Know ye not? What a precious knowledge! Yet, there are many dear children of God who would confess with those twelve disciples of Ephesus, who when asked by Paul as to whether they had received the Holy Ghost replied, "We have not so much as heard whether there is any Holy Ghost." Many of us who should be well-versed in the teachings of the Bible, "Have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat," Heb. 5:12. It is a pity that there is so much ignorance pertaining even to the essential doctrines of the Bible. For instance, how little do we know about the Holy Ghost and his office and his workings. And yet, of what tremendous importance is His work in this dispensation. The Church of Christ is inconceivable without him. Every member is indwelt by the Holy Ghost. As soon as a person passes from death to life by the creative power of God, he becomes a new creature in Christ. At the same moment he receives the Holy Ghost. Instead of being carnally (fleshly) minded, he is spiritually minded. From now on a continuous fight is on. The new life, indwelt by the Holy Ghost, has for its habitation the old, unredeemed man. "For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other."

Every true Christian is very much concerned to walk "the Jesus way." May he try ever so hard, he presently finds that he cannot walk a single step alone. It is only the dynamic power within which enables him to shine forth the light of the Lord Jesus. Only in as far as we yield to this power, will we be fashioned into the likeness of our glorious Lord Jesus Christ.

Yet how often do we suppress the driving power of the Spirit within us! When He urges us to read in the Bible, we see the headlines of the paper; they appear exceedingly interesting. We postpone it and and afterwards wonder why we do not find any pleasure in reading the Bible. The Spirit pleads with us to attend the prayer meeting. We find all kinds of excuses to stay away. By the way, hardly ever would those excuses keep us from attending worldly entertainments. The Spirit would lead us to a higher spiritual plane, but our flesh refuses. Yes, He would guide us into all truth. But how often we think that we know better. He wants us to witness for our Lord Jesus and we neglect to do so. Thus, we might continue to enumerate quenchings of the Spirit.

The Holy Spirit is endeavoring to the utmost to fashion us into the likeness of our glorious Lord Jesus, but He fails on account of our carnality. If we yielded unreservedly then the Spirit would be able to bring forth that beautiful ninefold cluster of fruit by which we would portray Christ, namely the fruits of, "Love, joy, peace longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance." Gal. 5:22, 23. None other but Spirit-wrought fruit finds acknowledgement in the sight of our Lord, Matt. 7:23. Therefore, all efforts to do good works or to live the "way of Jesus" in which the Spirit is omitted are futile. In attempting it we are not only quenching Him but also grieving Him.

Is it not a pity that children of God thus treat their best friend, who dwells within them and is endeavoring to make their bodies real temples of God? Let us with all our heart pray: "Have Thine own way, Lord! Have Thine own way! Hold o'er my being Absolute sway! Fill with Thy Spirit till all shall see Christ only. always, Living in me."

Audio-Visual Aids in the Church

By Mrs. Richard Weaver

Dramatics Offers Opportunities

There are many opportunities for audio-visual edcation in the field of dramatics. Little children as young as the third graders can benefit from dramatics. For instance, the life of Joseph can very well be acted out by them. In one church this was done, and three chairs in a semi-circle represented a pit; a patchwork quilt served for a coat, and a plain chair on a low platform stood for the pomp of Egypt. In this same church teen-age boys and girls acted out the life of Paul. On week-days one might visit the teen-age Drama Guild and see a production of "Ruth" at a mothers' and daughters' banquet. Another thing that can easily be worked out is a verse speaking choir. This could assist in church services. "The Creation" is a very excellent reading for this purpose. Another special field of dramatics that is very excellent to carry out is the dramatization of some of our great hymns. The singing of these hymns would mean twice as much if the story of how they were written were known. Some excellent books for the dramatization of hymns have been published. A new meaning would certainly be added as these hymns would be sung.

Learning Results from Dramatization

One valuable result of dramatization is that study and investigation are necessary in order to make the dramatization accurate. This will enlighten the pupils as to the costumes worn at that particular time or in that particular country, and there will have to be many questions answered in order to get everything just right. There are many educational values that come from this. Dramatics are not all "cut and dried."

Sources for Dramatics

There are many sources for dramatics. The Bible, of course, offers the most opportunities. Then there is the history of the Church and missionary activities, literature, art, and subjects from the world of nature. One of the dramas that is familiar to the Mennonite churches is the play, "Let my People Go" which portrays the story of Menno Simons and the struggle Mennonites had because of their belief in non-resistance. Through this play, many people were given a much clearer view of Mennonite history and what the Mennonite faith included. It was written by a student at Bethel College.

The materials chosen for a dramatic performance must be suited to the interests, needs, and capacities of the players. Especially, in Christian Endeavor societies, or in any society that meets in the evening and is perhaps more informal than the Sunday school or church, should something be worked out in the line of dramatics.

The Blackboard As an Aid

The blackboard offers many opportunities for an aid to teaching. Most Sunday schools have blackboards, but not all of them are put to the use they could be. Chalk talks especially attract the children. When a speaker has a piece of chalk in his hand, the attention of the audience is at once captivated. Charles Wells uses this method very effectively when he gives these talks all over America. The blackboard helps to convey a truth. It helps to fix the message in the memory of the scholars. The use of the blackboard has these four outstanding advantages: (1) It attracts the attention (2) It arouses the curiosity (3) It holds the interest to the conclusion (4) It fixes in the memory what is on the board. The blackboard should be visible from all parts of the room and anything placed on the board should be plain enough to be seen. There are three methods of outlining the material on the blackboard: namely, alliteration, acrostics, and pictures. Not everyone is an artist. Alliteration, which is the repetition of a letter or a word, and acrostics, which are words or lines the initial leters of which spell a word, are two methods that provide a medium for the teacher who cannot draw. Many fine examples of these can be found in Sunday school lesson helps. Cartoons can also be reproduced on the blackboard.

Chalk Talks

In drawing pictures for chalk talks there are five things the speaker should bear in mind: (1) The object should be familiar to the audience. (2) Pictures should be truthful and accurate. (3) It should be simple and obvious, rather than complex, according to the audience. (4) It must be logical and have a definite relation, which the audience can recognize, to the lesson to be drawn from the development of the picture, a personal application to the lives of the hearers. These are a few of the many ways in which a blackboard can be used.

Use of Maps

Another very helpful visual aid is the use of maps. One way to use a map is to have a "growing" map. This is done by the leader drawing an outline on the blackboard of the place to be discussed and then as the different cities or rivers are talked about, these are put on the map. This proves very helpful and is very informative. Paul's missionary journeys could well be explained in this manner. One could have colored lines for each different journey. Pictures of events or places could be pasted on the map where they occurred. One Sunday school used a large piece of wrapping paper tacked to a wooden base which was placed on an easel between two pews. As the various cities and places were explained, some pictures illustrating what happened there were pasted on it. Maps can be used in many ways.

Radio and Phonograph

The radio and the phonograph are audio aids that lend themselves very well to religious work. The radio has many religious broadcasts to which one may listen. One Sunday school superintendent asked one Sunday morning how many listened to certain hymn-sings and various other religious broadcasts over the radio. He was astounded with the small response he received. After that experience, he announced ahead of time what particular broadcasts would be of interest to them; to this the people responded and enjoyed the programs which were previously unknown to them.

The phonograph is coming into more popular use all the time and it is very well adapted to a worship service. Music plays a large part in the phonograph as also do Bible stories dramatized. They prove very interesting, especially to children in their homes. They could be used, perhaps, in some Christian Endeavor meeting, in stead of having talks. They are especially adapted to Junior Christian Endeavor.

One particular group of churches used the phonograph to great advantage by having music of the great masters played during the rest period in a retreat. This creates the desire in these who hear this music to listen to good music rather than some of the trash that can be heard over the radio today. The phonograph offers many possibilities in the religious field. Perhaps the choir of a church or some other musical organization could make their own records and then use these at various times.

Note: In a letter of October 5 Brother Wedel stated, "Enclosed please find the report of the contributions received by the Emergency Relief Board Treasurer during the months of August and September. I did not feel that I could well make a report covering Jnly since the books were turned over to me only on the last of August. I am not sure that every contribution will be listed here since one deposit was made at the bank of which I still have no knowledge, as to who contributed it. I hope that otherwise the report is what you wanted." The change of treasurers from Rev. Peter H. Unruh, who died, to Rev. David C. Wedel accounts for the above explanation.

These six C.P.S. "smoke-jumpers" in the lower picture are dressed in specially designed suits used in their hazardous but efficient method of fighting forest fires. The suit and equipment of each man weighs about eighty pounds and includes heavy wooden boots with ankle braces, a steel ribbed leather corset, a heavy canvas sponge-rubber padded suit, a leather helmet equipped with a strong wire mask, two coils of rope, a bully back-pack chute and a smaller chest chute, to be used in case the first one fails. Thus equipped they are ready to take off in the plane and jump onto fires that break out in those forests of Montana and Idaho where there are few or no fire trails or roads. The upper picture shows a jumper descending with his chute blossomed out against the sky. —Cut used through the courtesy of "The Protestant Voice."

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

No. 3 of Series on Christian Citizenship

A CHRISTIAN SOLDIER

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "On the Mountain Top Appearing," No. 336; "Christ for the world we sing," No. 327. 2. Reading of Rom. 13:12-14, Eph. 6:10-20. 3. Prayer Service. 4. Offering for C.P.S. work.

II. Leader's Introduction:

Jesus said to Pilate, who had asked if He were king of the Jews and what it was He had done, "My Kingdom is not of this world; if my Kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my Kingdom not from hence," John 18:36. The scripture passage in Romans 13 admonishing Christians to put on the armor of light also brings to mind the fact that Christ's kingdom is a spiritual kingdom, and so the Christian cannot use the armor of iron and steel but must needs put on the armor of light which is made of far different fabric.

Eph. 6 brings out the need for a strong armor and recommends a very all-around one which covers and protects the whole body-breast plate, shoes, shield, sword, and helmet—but again no tangible, material things are mentioned for the armor. What is mentioned is truth, righteousness, gospel of peace, faith, salvation, word of God. These are the spiritual things of which he is in need for the bringing in of the spiritual kingdom. Having them excludes not only the need for but the possibility of even using the weapons to wage war for earthly material purposes.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Civilian Public Service as an Expression of a Christian Soldier's Method of Warfare. (See booklet Christian Relationships to State and Community, Chapter 12 by G. F Hershberger.)

2. Reconstruction Work and Relief Work as another Expression of a Christian Soldier"s Method of Warfare.

3. Witnessing as a Church as Christian Soldiers for His Kingdom.

4. Proving Ourselves as Christian Soldiers in Our Daily Life.

IV. For Discussion:

1. What will we do for our country as soldiers wearing the Christian armor? 2. What are the things that a Christian cannot do?

V. For Study:

Meditation—Love

Love knows all things.
Love knows sorrow.
Love knows laughter.
Love knows endurance.
Love knows action.
Love knows hunger.
Love knows growth.
Love knows adventure.
Love knows reverence.
Love knows pride.
Love knows magnanimity.
Love contentedly suffers hardship.
Love works miracles.
Love is effervescent.
Love saturates.
Love is flexible and adaptable.

VI. Food for Thought:

IN MEMORIAM

The Bishop of Valladolid
Shot at the siege of Irun, 1936

Yes, he had tried to save the souls of men,
Nor ever looked upon it as a crime;
Nor thought to ask the grace of pardon when
He searched to find, in this, the troubled time,
Some way to change the maddened song that sings
Of bitterness, the bitterness that kills;
Some way to lift the weary, burdened wings
That have so long been foreign to the hills.
His faith reviled, they could not break its worth.
Chained in the street he did not ask to live.
The narrow span of one man's life on earth—
A breath—a sigh—yet all he has to give—
The rifles spoke. He asked for no delay,
Only the freedom of his hands to pray.

JUNIOR PROGRAM

OUR NEIGHBORS, THE INDIANS, Col. 3:11.

What is your first thought when you think of the Indian? Red Man? Wars? Beads, Snake Charmer? or what not? There are half a million Indians in the U. S scattered in good numbers throughout more than half the states.

In the latter part of the nineteenth century the U. S. government helped the Indian by putting him on reservations, that is plots of ground set aside in different states for Indians only, and the Indians were given a title to the land. Schools, churches and public buildings were erected and wise and kindly agents were appointed by the government to see that the Indian got fair treatment, but sad to say, some of our missionaries say in late years these privileges and customs of the government have changed a great deal.

Is it your idea that the Indian is a blood-thirsty savage? Under kindly treatment, he responds to education and religion, both Protestant and Catholic have carried on work among them.

Our own Rudolph Petter has done a magnificent work among the Cheyenne Indians, in translating the scriptures into their language. We have had many faithful workers among these Indian people, and they are seeing fruits of their labors among these people.

Many Indians are very bright and are strong in dependability and loyalty. They are, like white people, easy victims of liquor and gambling, and these enemies must be fought continually.

If the white man is true and fair to him, he can indeed be counted as our friend—law-abiding, patriotic and Christian. The Indian needs our help, but America must give this help in a true Christian fashion and not for any selfish gain of her own. The Indian can and must be won for Christ.

Set aside a certain Sunday and pledge your offering to help the Indian. This is a real missionary project that you would be interested in.

"Giving to God"

Roger W. Babson once said, "Note what a dollar will do:

$1 spent for lunch lasts about five hours.
$1 spent for a necktie lasts about five weeks.
$1 spent for a cap lasts about five months.
$1 spent on an automobile lasts about five years.
$1 spent on water power lasts about five generations.
$1 spent in the service of God lasts for eternity.

Then he said, "When we have a dollar let us remember its power. Let us use it to do good. Get the vision."

The Question Bee

(1.) What are some things your family might do for the American Indians? (2.) Who are our missionaries to the Indians? (3.) Where are our Indian stations? (4.) Who is your neighbor?

The Prayer List

Help us to know our neighbor and be a Christian friend to him.

Thank God that he is no respector of persons; all are worthy in his sight and deserving of a crown in heaven if they live right on earth.

"Goodness can shine from the pew as well as from the pulpit. It fits the kitchen as well as the parlor."

About Insanity

What Some People Still Believe

1. That "insanity" is either a disgrace or a mysterious affliction that cannot be prevented or cured.
2. That "insanity" is a single disease of only the most serious kind.
3. That "insanity" comes suddenly and without warning.
4. That people are helpless to prevent "insanity."
5. That emotional shock, loss of dear ones, disappointment in love, loss of money, or other misfortunes, cause "insanity."
6. That "insane asylums" are dreadful places, and that to go to one means never to come out.
7. That "insanity" is inherited.

What Science Teaches Today

1. That "insanity" includes a group of the more severe types of mental diseases. They need early medical treatment just as heart disease and no one need be ashamed of this sickness.
2. That there are many Different Kinds of mental diseases; some mild, some serious. The symptoms also are different.
3. That mental diseases Develop Gradually and display warning signs in advance.
4. That danger signals (symptoms) of an approaching breakdown can usually be recognized, and if these are given prompt medical attention the threatened mental disease can often be prevented.
5. That shock or losses may Precipitate a mental disorder, but in such cases the real Possibilities of the illness have been present for some time but unrecognized.
6. That our "asylums" now are Hospitals from which 25 to 40 percent of all patients are discharged as recovered or improved.
7. That some kinds of mental diseases have an inherited background, but a greater number seem to arise from inability to adjust to a difficult background.

OCTOBER 29—"It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not." Lam. 3:22.

If we look at life from a viewpoint which says that the evils of life overbalance the good or the happiness, we wonder how it is possible for a small child to grow up into a man without being destroyed or seriously hurt in some way. It is an even greater wonder that children of God, who live in such an unfriendly world can live a life of ease, enjoying mercies that are unlimiting. But the reason is given in His Word. It is because God's compassions never fail. "For I am the Lord. I change not; therefore ye . . . are not consumed."

OCTOBER 30—"He shall not be afraid of evil tidings: his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord." Psalm 112:7.

The word "trust" is about as characteristic of the Old Testament as the word, "faith" is of the New Testament. God's manifold promises can be read hundreds of times and yet not seem a reality. There is always one little something that man must do in order to reap the benefits. "The Lord knoweth them that trust in him." So in this verse we notice that nothing will fear us if we put our trust in the right place. This verse should be especially comforting at the present time, when bad tidings are apt to sweep people from their feet.

OCTOBER 31—"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" I Cor. 3:16.

There is not one part of our life that is not affected by the fact of such a statement. If we consider our bodies to be the House of God, how can we err? Certainly it isn't possible to sin without making use of that body in some way. We read that "If we live in the Spirit let us walk in the Spirit." Is there anything more direct and simple to understand? We are not to "grieve" the Spirit of God, so let us by faith anchor our life in such a good and perfect gift.

IN MEMORIAM

HENRY KLIEWER was born January 9, 1862, in Franzthal, South Russia, and died at Newton, Kansas, September 25, 1943. At an early age he was baptized by Rev. Dietrich Gaeddert and accepted into the Hoffnungsau Mennonite Church. He married twice; first, Marie Kliewer who passed away in 1911, second, Mrs. Gertrude Jantzen Unruh who died in 1938. In 1874 he migrated with his parents from Russia to their pioneer home near Buhler, Kansas. Soon after his first marriage he served as mission farmer to Cantonment, Oklahoma. Later he moved to Shelly, where he homesteaded near the Washita River. Several years he served as government farmer among the Arrapaho and Cheyenne Indians. At various times in his life he lived at: Valentine, Texas; Carlsbad, New Mexico; Newton and Burrton, Kansas; Susanville, California; and Newport, Washington. He was active in Sunday School work and helped organize several C. E. societies. He is survived by his children: Gerhardt M., Newton, Kansas; John C., Philadelphia, Pa.; Daniel D. and Albert A. at Lancaster, Pa.; Sam S., Tulsa, Oklahoma; Mrs. Elizabeth Winsinger and Frieda Kliewer, Lancaster, Pa.; Mrs. Martha Gamber, Scottdale, Pa.; and Mrs. Sara Fietz, Villanova, Pa. Also surviving are three step-children: Rev. P. D. Unruh, pastor of the Mennonite church at Newport, Washington, Ernest F. Unruh, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, and Mrs. Linda Mott.

ANNA SCHRAG GRABER, daughter of Peter and Maria Schrag, was born September 26, 1868, in Waldheim, Volhynia, Russia, and died October 3, 1943 at Freeman, South Dakota. In 1874 she migrated with her parents to a farm near what is now Freeman. In 1884 she was baptized by Elder Joseph Kaufman and accepted as a member of the Zion Mennonite Church. When this church later united with the Salem Church she became a member of the new church. She was married to Peter P. Graber in 1886. As a widower he brought with him two children from his first marriage. Frances, the daughter, died at the age of six. Since the father died in 1929, the son Jacob now alone is left to mourn the passing of his mother.

"The oftener you look back, the faster you don't get ahead."

ADDRESSES WANTED

Every minister in our conference ought to see to it that his name and correct address will go into the minister's list to be published in the Mennonite Year Book and the Bundesbote Kalendar of 1944. If your name is not at present in these periodicals or if you have made a change, be sure and send your name and correct address to Brother C. E. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas. New ministers should be especially mindful of this notice. If this applies to you, dear reader, won't you take pen and card and make the necessary report immediately before you forget about it.

The High School Victory Corps

As we enter into the new school year we may expect increased war pressures to be reflected in the emphasis of the high schools of the nation. A well-planned program has been launched for the preparation of high school students for activities and responsibilities directly related to the nation's war effort. Specifically, the High School Victory Corps is organized with the candidly avowed purpose of preparing students for induction into the armed forces. In other words, it is direct pre-induction training.

The opening statement in the bill itself says: "A Bill to provide for the preparation of high school students for war-time service." It is further described as being enacted, "For the purpose of improving (1) the war service pre-induction training of high-school students in mathematics, science and pre-flight aeronautics, (2) the selection of students to be prepared for war service, and (3) the physical training of such students." and again: "When the minimum draft age was 20 years, there was time for training following completion of high school. Now, with the minimum draft age approximately in correspondence with the age of completion of high school, pre-induction training between the ages of 16 and 18 is of paramount importance."

From the point of view of those who are chiefly concerned with the winning of the war, all this is undoubtedly justifiable. But when school authorities take the attitude reflected by a certain principal in Pennsylvania who said that the curriculum was to be scrapped for the duration, and the whole program was to be centered around the Victory Corps idea, it does create a most crucial problem for those who cannot support the war program.

Furthermore, many people who are nearest the development of this whole plan, have expressed a grave concern that the continuing pattern of our educational institutions is being subtly changed. It now seems probable that conscription is to continue with us indefinitely. It follows logically that military training will probably be a continuing part of the school program. To us, that is one of the gravest issues that can confront us. There are indications that some of the smaller high schools, especially those in rural sections, may not feel this war emphasis so quickly nor to the same degree as the larger city schools. However, there is little doubt that pressures will increase with time. Already, "It has been estimated that better than one-half of the high schools of the Nation have adopted the High School Victory Corps as the basic pattern for the organization of their war-time programs." according to the report of John Lund, acting National Director of the High School Victory Corps. He says further, "In several states the number of schools in which students have been enrolled as members of the Victory Corps approximates 100 per cent."

All this gives us cause for serious thought. Are we launching into a pattern militarism in America from which nations never seem able to extricate themselves when once fully established? Is this program of education being introduced into our public schools designed to subtly change the thinking of American youth into increasingly militaristic patterns? Are we running a close parallel to the tragic experience of other nations? Perhaps these questions cannot at present be fully answered. But if we are to preserve and perpetuate our basic and historic tenets of faith, it will require a renewed vigilance, a reconsecration of purpose and a redoubling of effort to stem the tide.

It is our purpose and function to give information, suggestion and guidance in relation to such issues. From all information at hand, we are convinced that there are more subtle and sinister implications in this Victory Corps than appear on the surface. We have attempted to keep currently informed concerning its development. But always one encountors the element of secretiveness which does not increase our confidence in the ulterior motives prompting the project.

Other concerned groups have been organizing alternate activities for high school young people who cannot participate in the military program. These activities are rather strongly inclined to a social emphasis with which we in turn cannot altogether cooperate. We are not yet certain of the need for a nation-wide alternate program for our own young people. Nor are we clear in our vision of how such an alternate program might function in our groups. However, we would like to urge the necessity for some one in each community to keep contacts with the school officials, informed of local developments in programs and attitudes, and in a position to give counsel and assistance to our young people.

We would further like to urge all who feel pressures developing in their high schools, to contact the Secretary of the Peace Section, giving all possible information about the situation. This should include the name of the High School, the name and address of the Principal, and a brief account of the developing conditions. We will give all possible assistance in meeting the problem.

It should be borne in mind that up to the present the High School Victory Corps is a voluntary movement. But social pressures are more effective in the attitudes of this age group than almost any other factor, including law. It will doubtless be necessary to give youth something positive in place of the thing which we disallow. There are certain emphases of the program which are not particularly objectionable, for example the stressing of more practical courses of study, and physical fitness. But when the ultimate objective is preparation for war and the instilling of war-like attitudes we cannot agree with it. Our concerns are especially roused by our feeling that one who joins the Victory Corps will find it most difficult and embarrassing, if not impossible, to take a C.O. position when called in the draft. Local Boards may not be willing to grant the sincerity of conviction of one who has voluntarily become a part of this militaristic program.

Probably the most effective preventative measure in dealing with this issue is the fuller inculcation of our peace convictions in the minds and hearts of our youth. We need to put forth even greater effort to instill in even the tenderest years the right attitudes toward these cherished ideals. The hour is already late for high school students. But we have the responsibility for doing all within our power to buttress them against the current.

—Mental patient gives impressions of C.P.S. Unit: A mental patient at Lima hospital wrote concerning the work of the C.P.S. unit there. He described the conditions at the hospital prior to the arrival of the unit. Only routine work could be done because of the shortage of help. The baseball diamond, the patients' choir, hydrotherapy and other services were abandoned. Then early in '43 a group of ten C.O.'s arrived from various C.P.S. camps.

He continues, 'I speak from personal experience as a patient—though shortly to leave— in asserting that a perceptible atmosphere of fresh morale and easing of tension all around occurred when these men took up their duties as ward and shop attendants, and outside detail men. Despite a preconceived prejudice on the part of some of the old-line attendants, I am safe in stating that the patients sensed immediately that the C.O.'s were men of good will. (After five months of working together, with a few diehard exceptions, even these grumblers have come to respect the fellows.)....

"By sustaining a high moral atmosphere and conduct, C.O.'s in mental hospitals can give the mentally ill—already suffering the cruelest of ailments—relief from 'man's inhumanity to man,' taking a further step away from the barbarism of medieval London's notorious 'Bedlam!' "

—Dr. R. S. Haury of Newton, Kansas, suffered a stroke on October 12. He will be confined to the hospital for an indefinite period of time. Dr. Haury has served as physician in Newton since 1908. Later he attended Bethel College, Kansas University, Northwestern Medical School, and Berlin University in Germany. He married Linda A. Krehbiel of Newton in 1903. Three children were born to them. Brother Haury has been very active in church and community activities.

—After serving fifteen years as pastor of the Berne Church, Dr. C. H. Suckau read his resignation to the congregation on Sunday morning, October 10, same to take effect on December 31 of this year. Since a year ago when he practically lost the sight of one eye, it has caused considerable extra strain on him to try to carry on the full study and duties required in such a pastorate. This together with the conviction that probably a change would prove beneficial to both pastor and congregation, and feeling the Lord's leading in the matter, brought about this decision. Dr. Suckau plans to take on part time work as president in the newly established Grace Bible Institute at Omaha, Nebraska.

A special business meeting of the church is called for Monday evening, October 18, for the purpose of considering the calling of a new pastor. —Corr.

In the bulletin at hand is given the name of a young man in the C.P.S. camp at North Fork, California. This church has Thursday evening Bible classes for children, young people, and adults. This church is also to be congratulated for having kept up its C.P.S. quota so far. Ramseyer spoke and stressed the opportunity and duty of the college to foster a Christian educational program, to uphold Mennonite principles, and to serve the churches and its constituency. Rev. J. N. Smucker, pastor of the local First Mennonite Church, directed the meditational period, basing his thoughts on "Come, Abide, Go," as the essentials in a Christian life. Come to Christ, abide with Him, then go to serve and do His will. Luncheon was served around the fireplace on the campus.

This project is being carried out in cooperation with the local Mennonite missionary society, as a part of the greater Mennonite Central Committee work.

A PRAYER

Lord make me an instrument of Thy peace!
Where there is hatred let me sow love;
Where there is injury, pardon;
Where there is doubt, faith;
Where there is despair, hope;
Where there is darkness, light;
Where there is sadness, joy.
O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek
To be consoled as to console;
To be understood as to understand;
To be loved as to love for
It is in giving that we receive;
It is in pardon that we are pardoned;
It is in dying that we are born to Eternal Life.

Memorial Stone to be Dedicated

In 1874 the Kotosufka Mennonite Congregation under the leadership of elder Jacob Stucky and the assistant minister Jacob D. Goering emigrated from Russia to this country. These immigrants settled in the southeastern part of McPherson County, Kansas. Their descendants are erecting a Memorial-stone four miles west of Moundridge, Kansas, to memorialize this historic event which is of great importance to them and to honor God for it. The Memorial-stone will be dedicated with special services at the Eden Mennonite Church on Thursday, October 28, 1943, beginning promptly at 10:30 a.m. and at 2:00 p.m., and at the memorial site at 11:30 a.m.

Friends are invited to attend these services. Because of food rationing no meal will be served. Those bringing their noon meal are invited to eat it in the basement of the Eden Mennonite Church where hot coffee will be served to all who desire it. It is requested that they bring drinking cups for the coffee.

William Stauffer Visiting Churches in Western District

Rev. William Stauffer, field worker of the Home Mission Board, was the main speaker at the recent Western District Conference. On October 22 he began his tour of the churches of this district. He does not go to all churches but only to certain central ones to which the members of surrounding churches are then invited. However, he will not be able to reach certain of the isolated churches on the outskirts.

Rev. J. M. Regier says of his program, "One evening he would like to show the pictures (C.P.S) and talk about the work of C.P.S., and at one meeting he would like to tell us what we might be able to do to assist our men after the war." He further says, "We trust each community will assist Brother Stauffer in getting to the next place of meeting. If an offering for C.P.S. would be taken in each community, it would be a great help in the work."

The churches listed below are to have the opportunity to hear Brother Stauffer on the following dates:

Oct. 29-30 Emmaus, Swiss, Elbing, and Gnadenberg
Oct. 31 Christian, West Zion, Hoffnungsau, Eden, Emmanuel

THE SWORD OF THE SPIRIT FOR MENNONITES

"We teach and confess that we know of no sword, nor commotion in the kingdom or church of Christ, other than the sharp sword of the Spirit, God's word, as is abundantly shown in our writings, which is sharper and more piercing than any two-edged sword, and it proceeds from the mouth of the Lord, whereby we make the father at variance against the son, and the son against the father, the mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother, and daughter-in-law against the mother-in-law. But the sword of worldly policy we leave with those to whom it is committed. Let every one be careful and not take the sword, lest he shall perish with the sword, Matt. 26: 52."—Menno Simons

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

J. W. Fretz

FARM BOYS AND GIRLS

Boys and girls who have the good fortune to be born and reared on the farm should consider it a great privilege and be thankful for it. And parents who have the opportunity to raise their children on a farm should be equally thankful for the privilege. It is unfortunate if city children grow up and never have the opportunity to spend a summer or two on a farm.

Environment

Many people believe that rural children are more healthy than city children because they have more fresh air and better food; this is true sometimes but not always because frequently studies have revealed just the opposite. This is due to the fact that city people have better medical protection and more health facilities such as clinics and hospitals. The real advantage of the country child is its more wholesome mental and moral atmosphere. No matter how wholesome the city home and family life, the city child is thrown into contact with unwholesome influences in school and community that leave indelible impressions on his tender mind. Such undesirable influences are beyond the control of an individual home, church, or even combination of agencies for good.

Responsibility

It would be unfair to give the impression that all city children are constantly subjected to conditions of moral contamination and corruption. This is not the case. Some city children grow up under a better environment than do some country children, but the odds are generally in favor of the latter. The country family is a unit. After school the farm children return to the family. There is no "leisure time problem" for the farm boys and girls. In most homes they have regular duties before and after school. They learn to accept and discharge responsibility. They find chores and errands a proper form of recreation from school room activities. They have a share in the welfare of the whole farm project, care for the baby chicks, the little pigs, a new born calf or lamb early create an interest among farm boys and girls in the larger matters of farming. And all of these things are done under the wholesome influence of the family and the stimulating environment of God's great out-of-doors. It is no wonder that educated farm youth are in demand to fill city jobs even during depression years. Farm youth tend to be more steady, dependable, persevering, hard working, thrifty, and God-fearing.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

MALCOLM WENGER TO BE ORDAINED

The Lord willing, Brother Malcolm Wenger is to be ordained as missionary to the Cheyenne Indians on Sunday, October 31, in his home church at Aberdeen, Idaho. To save traveling expenses the Board has asked Rev. Phil. A. Wedel, the local pastor, to officiate in behalf of the Board. He is the Secretary of the General Conference.

The Lord has heard our prayers for a new missionary who is willing to learn this hard language. May all mission friends remember the ordination in their prayers and also the strenuous language work.

TRIALS IN A MISSION HOSPITAL

Champa, C. P., India
Jan. 27, 1943

Dr. P. H. Richert,
Route 2,
Newton, Kansas

Dear Dr. Richert,

Greetings with Josh. 1:9: "Be strong and of good courage, Be not afraid neither be thou dismayed, for the Lord, thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." This is the verse that has become very helpful to me since last September when I was given charge of the hospital here in Champa. At that time, the task which was given to me seemed tremendous. For one reason, it is naturally better for a hospital to be in charge of a doctor. And for the second reason, it was my first task as a full-fledged missionary. But this verse has often given me strength, and I know God is still speaking to us in this manner today.

The hospital here has gone through its times of trial and testing during the past year. For one thing we have had a frequent change of doctors. As one nurse put it, "I have worked here less than a year now, and I have worked under seven different doctors." This is not easy for the staff, and I am afraid it has left its mark. However, since October 4, 1942, we have had a new Indian doctor on the staff, who, we think, will stay with us for a while. He is very conscientious in his work, and the patients seem to be satisfied. We have not had the drop in patients which often comes with a change of doctors. Every two or three months Dr. Dester comes and spends a week here in order to check up on things and help us out. We are very grateful for his help.

We have had a couple disciplinary problems on our hands since our coming. We have had to dismiss one nurse due to immorality. And just this last week, on the recommendation of the missionaries and the church council, I have had to dismiss one of our compounders and his wife, who was one of our nurses. This couple has caused heartaches before, and now when their family relations again seemed to be a detriment to the Christian cause, it seemed best to put them off duty for awhile. This has left the hospital short of workers, but we are hoping to find new ones. We have already hired a new compounder. Always when these problems come up, we pray that God may use us to help make these lives new and different.

For four or five weeks in November and December I had an evangelist come to the hospital here every afternoon to tell the people about Christ. Most of our patients talk a dialect which is quite different from the Hindi which we learned, therefore very few of the patients understand my speech. And so I felt it wise to have someone come who could tell the people about Christ in their own language. This evangelist is now on tour, so at present he does not come. At times too the Bible women come. Every morning we have devotions for the patients and we hope thereby to be a witness for Christ.

Sincerely, Mrs. Harold Ratzlaff

TEACHER NONPAREIL

By Alvin Buhr

(The following article is an eulogy of H. H. Ewert, who was for many years an outstanding Mennonite teacher in Canada. The eulogy was written in 1942 by Alvin Buhr of Morden, Manitoba, who was then a student in the University of Manitoba. Brother Buhr is now in one of the Canadian camps corresponding to the C.P.S. camps in the United States.)

When still in the primary grades, I entertained the wish to do my high school work under Mr. E., the principal of a boarding-school. My father had been a student of Mr. E.'s, and often told me of the greatness of this truly great man. I came to worship him even before I came under his direct influence.

At the age of thirteen my hopes were realized. A small boy in knickerbockers, who was automatically dubbed "Schrimp," I took my first lectures from this much-used man. I was always slightly in awe of him. His massive forehead and jutting brows, his large, kindly, understanding eyes which relieved the stern dignity of his strong features, and his powerful, imposing physique combined to create a symphony of strength—physical, mental, and spiritual. At the time, I was governed largely by sense-impressions; I felt that he was great, but having had few educators to compare him with, I wes not in a position to realize that he was outstanding.

He died that year; but not so his influence. His greatness has grown upon me, and now, more than ever before, I realize that he was the finest teacher I have ever had. His influence is still with me. The memory of this "man who wrought" is one of my greatest inspirations. Sometimes, when I feel like saying: "What's the use of trying?", I think of Mr. E., and "carry on." Why?

I think the answer lies in the fact that his was a completely integrated personality. In him mind and matter had coordinated to create a unified whole; his exterior embodied and expressed his inner make-up. Always, even after his eightieth birthday he was meticulously neat about everything: his clothes, his appearance, and his work. When he spoke, every consonant received the proper stress; never would he fail to pronounce properly and enunciate a word. His writing was beautifully neat and even. Never, that I know of, was he late for an appointment. Certain of the opinions he held were definitely not popular, but he had a reason for everything he believed, and, as a result, men who did not share his views, respected him. He "lived up to the light that he had" Order, was as necessary to him as breathing. Rarely would he lose his temper, but when he did, it was usually due to some disorder, a failure on somebody's part to come up to the high standard he expected of thinking beings. He demanded a lot of others, but more of himself. Never have I heard that he wasted a moment. He taught school until Christmas, marked all the examination papers, filed and cleared all his records, and then, just before New Year's, died. Perpetual motion and emotion characterized him—emotion, in the sense that, whatever he did, he did with fiery enthusiasm. There was nothing phlegmatic and easy-going about him. A strong sense of justice was also an outstanding trait of his; he did what he considered right under any and every circumstance, and if later he realized that his judgment had been wrong, he was man enough to confess and correct his mistake. Whenever he talked informally or taught us, we felt that he had large reserves to fall back on. He would not mince words; whatever passed over his lips was carefully weighed beforehand. Never have I even dared to think that I could ask him a question which he would not be able to answer. We had confidence in his ability to tell and make clear to us anything we felt uncertain about. He was a man who lived for something, had a purpose, and kept it in view without consideration of his selfish interests. He refused offers to become a college and university professor; he gave up his inspectorship of schools—all this in order that he might work with high school students and by contagion impart to them some of the fiery, self-less enthusiasm emanating from his own dynamic personality.

He accomplished his purpose! Many young men and women are now trying to live as whole-heartedly for others as he did. Hundreds of them became teachers, and every one when Mr. E. is referred to bows inwardly before this good, great man, whose fine Christian character has forever been impressed upon him or her as an ideal! Apart of the inscription on Pestalozzi's tomb-stone might well have been engraved on Mr. E.'s memorial:

"Everything for others,—nothing for himself!"

With the C.O.'s in British Columbia, Canada

By Paul L. Storms

(A.S.W. camps in Canada are like C.P.S. camps in U.S.A. See issue of September 21 for preceding article)

The "Bull Cook"

This name has puzzled some. One thing is certain, the bull cook generally has not the haziest idea about cooking. Yet he is quite a distinguished man around camp and known for his many services. His position calls for much criticism from the boys at times, who vow they would do better if thy had his job. He does the chore work such as sweeping and scrubbing the cabin floors, filling the coal oil and gas lamps, splitting and taking in the wood, keeping the washhouse and toilets clean, keeping the yard in shape, et cetera.

Speaking about wood reminds us that we always have the best for kitchen use, giving a steady even heat. The wood is brought into camp by truck, having first been split by hammer and wedge into large blocks, while still in the woods.

Do you wonder why the bull cook came by his unusual name? We understand in logging camps it was necessary to have a big husky man, strong as a bull, about camp to keep law and order, as when men got drunk. But in our camps; such a man is not needed, rather, on the contrary, the bull cook is often one not robust enough for heavy work of the bush and of the every-which-way-you-look scenery in British Columbia, after the novelty of new picturesque country has worn off. Besides the moderate climate with cool nights for ideal rest, the glorious scenery of this Pacific Coast province was perhaps the first thing that struck us favorably when we first made our appearance as conscientious objectors from Ontario and the prairies, over a year ago.

Some camps are located in very beautiful spots beside placid lakes or murmuring streams, sheltered by shady evergreen trees, and nestled at the foot of one or more towering mountains with year-around snow-clad summits. But other of our camps are simply pitched in logged-off areas, where charred stumps greet one on all sides. In this country you simply cannot look anywhere without seeing a mountain. We work with these formidable things hemming us in on all sides. Often we can go for miles along our forestry roads with not a house, car, or any other sign evident to show any human occupation. Wild life abounds and deer are very plentiful.

48-Hour Work Week

Rising bell in the Forestry A. S. W. Camps is at 6:30, breakfast at 7, report for work at 7:30, arrive at work by truck at 8. A half or three-quarters hour is given at noon for lunch, when the boys gather around a bonfire and toast their sandwiches, except when the weather is too hot for a fire, or fire hazard does not warrant making one. Those working near the camp eat in the mess hall at noon. Each lunch box is equipped with a thermos, the boys having packed their own lunches before going to work in the morning. The campees strike off work at 4:30 and arrive back in camp at 5, get cleaned up for supper at 5:15. Lights must go out at 10:30. These hours may vary slightly. A 48-hour work week is followed. Exceptions are made during fire season when, in the case of a stiff fire, the boys are apt to be out at all hours.

Leisure Time

Many of the boys pursue their former occupation in camp, while some adapt themselves to an entirely new hobby. One enthusiast recently fixed some twenty watches in two weeks' time, and his customers were not only pleased with the satisfactory work done but with the low price. Another makes pastel and oil paintings of Canadian scenery, which he sells in nice wooden frames for only $1.85 complete.

Then there are carpenters who have made all kinds of things as children's kitchen sets, cupboards, cedar chests, medicine chests, chairs, mottoes, picture frames, and fancy articles. Generally speaking, their tools are very limited. We think of those who made sail boats to float from one camp to another across the lake, also carved canoes out of logs.

One or more barbers ply their trade in every camp and charge the big sum of ten cents a cut. They have plenty of heads to practice on! As a rule someone acts as washerwoman and does laundry, too, even starches! But most boys do their own, laboring over a scrub board or working a vacumatic plunger, unless the camp is fortunate enough to have a washing machine, when the boys are able to save their clothes up for a month and do a full night's task of unappreciated work.

Until film rationing, photography and picture developing were favorite hobbies. Then we have the book worms and the students who read and study in most of their leisure time, while lovers write anywhere from two to twenty pages either once, twice or as in some cases, seven times a week to the only girl in the world for them. One fellow who kept account of all postage spent during his first year in British Columbia makes it $23.39, averaging 6.4 cent per day!

The chief sports which the boys enjoy are swimming, boating, fishing, volley ball, ping pong, horse shoe, hiking, and mountain climbing.

A. S. W. Supervision

There is considerable organization in the B. C. Forest Service, in fact, it is highly organized and it is difficult to explain the jurisdiction of each official. At the head of the service is C. D. Orchard, Chief Forester, who has appointed H. J. Hodgins, superintendent over all A. S. W. men, assisted by H. C. Mc Williams. The following lines of responsibility serve as a general rule when it is a matter of anything in connection with the conscientious objectors.

(a) Provisions for registration, pay, timekeeping, dispatching, accounting, shelter, sanitation, camp equipment, commissary, rations, discipline, leave, transportation, communication, medical services, first aid, entertainment, all off-hour pursuits: Chief Forester to Superintendent of A. S. W., to Supervisors of A.S.W., to Camp Foreman.

(b) Education and training of A. S. W. in forest fire detection, suppression, and in forest protection equipment: Chief Forester to District Forester to Training Chief to Camp Foreman.

(c) Distribution and equipment of forces with reference to fire hazard: Chief Forester to District Forester.

(d) Emergencies. Fire detection and suppression alerts resulting from Fire Days, raid warnings and forest fires reported: Local Forest Officer to Camp Foreman.

(e) Work other than above, Chief Forester to District Forester.

At present there are three supervisors to which all camp foreman are responsible. Foremen in the G. T Camps on the mainland are responsible to Supervisor D. M. MacKenzie. Foremen in the "C" Camps, southern section of Vancouver Island, to Supervisor George Silburn. Foremen in the "Q" Camps, northern section of Vancouver Island, to Supervisor Robert Murray. Organization within the camp itself is Foreman to Sub-foreman or Instructor, to Straw Boss to Campees.

145 Fires Fought

The Forestry Branch gives the following brief summary of accomplishments of A.S.W. men from May to December, 1942:

(1) Six thousand two hundred and sixty-six mandays spent fire-fighting on 145 fires.

(2) Two hundred and fifty-nine thousand four hundred snags felled over 24,500 acres of logged-off land.

(3) Sixteen miles of new road slashed and graded; 57 miles of old logging railroad grade converted to truck-trails; 44 miles of existing road improved; 64 miles of road maintained, required 21 miles of ditching, 134 culverts, and 8 small bridges.

(4) Ten miles of new trail cut and 12 miles of old trail improved.

(5) Twenty-eight miles of telephone-line constructed.

(6) Four hundred and twenty-five thousand seedlings planted on 660 acres of logged-over and fire-proofed land.

In regard to the above, it will be noted that snag-falling and road-construction form the greater proportion of the project work. In this respect snag-falling and opening up of logged-over lands with truck-trails are most essential improvements in the fire-proofing of such areas. Over much of the area on which snag-falling has been carried out, present plans call for reforestration involving planting of some 7,000,000 seedlings in the spring of 1943. (this quota was not quite reached because of damage incurred by frost in lifting the trees)

It is also pointed out that road-construction undertaken on several of the projects was at the express request of National Defence authorities and constituted rights-of-way considered of primary military importance to Coast defence as well as forest-protection.

Conscientious Objectors engaged in spring reforestration near Campbell Lake on Vancouver Island insure forests for succeeding generations. The planting is taking place in logged-off, British Columbia areas, amongst charred stumps and debris, with the men working in crews of fifteen, plus straw boss and pack or stake man. They plant in rows six feet apart. In one hand a canvas bag is carried. This holds the trees, one or two hundred at a time. They are two-year old seedlings and come from either the Forestry Nursery at Quinsam or Green Timbers. In the other hand a mattock is used to make the hole, the tree is inserted, and ground shoved in and pressed firmly with the toe of the boot. This operation must be performed with care to insure growth of the tree. No more than 50 per cent germination can be expected as a rule, because of various existing conditions. The crews work steadily in order to plant the required allotment during the specified time alloted for forestration. Each man is able to plant from 900 to 1200 trees in an eight-hour day.

Helmut Neufeld, Conchie choir master at a Vancouver Mennonite Church, was packman and stakeman for a planting crew of A. S. W. men at Camp Q 3, Campbell River, on Vancouver Island. In the picture on the left he has 4,500 Douglas Fir trees tied up in bundles of a hundred each, strapped to his back by aid of packboard, and he will heel these in upfield, at places most suited from which the crews can draw when needed for planting. On the right Helmut is shown carrying the crew's lunch boxes from the place where the Conchies started working that morning to a point near where they are expected to be planting at dinner time. He has fifteen lunch kits on his back and carries two in his hand, while with the other hand designates a point of interest to strawboss, Peter Wolfe, of Yarrow, British Columbia. The hatchet is used in staking. Six-foot cedar stakes mark the ninety foot strips of planting every hundred feet or so.

Conversions in Camps

"God has been very faithful in manifesting His presence in the various religious activities of the camps," reports Rev. Edward Gilmore, Brethren in Christ minister from Ontario, who has labored among the boys faithfully for six months, returning east in August, 1943.

"It is quite common to have hands raised for prayer and several men testify to having been definitely converted. One elderly man, sixty-four years of age (an outside logging company watchman) was saved and delivered from his tobacco, and is now a strong "Conchie" too. Many testimonies tell of God having revealed the need of a more definite spiritual experience and a greater evangelistic emphasis.

"Several young men are looking forward to future services in the foreign fields, and we are sure that God is going to find many consecrated servants for His cause and kingdom from these various camp groups.

. Will you continue to pray, Christian friends, that the revival which has started in our midst might continue to spread until many in our camps be genuinely born again and energized with a new power and testimony that will leave a profound godly influence upon the lost and perishing about us? We cannot emphasize too much the importance of your prayers on our behalf nor can we thank you too much for what you are doing in this way. Although you be many

By Esther Wiens, Chicago, Illinois

NOVEMBER 1—"The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God." Ps. 14:1a

Mr. Worldly Wise: What concrete evidence have you that there is a God? Perhaps I would believe on Him if He sent some document to us.

Mr. Friendly Christian: Friend, He has done just that. This document has been preserved for several thousand years and has even been translated into our language.

Mr. Worldly Wise: I suppose you refer to the Bible. Well—Say, I'd believe on Him if He would make a personal appearance.

Mr. Friendly Christian: Did you never hear of Jesus, the Son of God, who healed the blind, cleansed the lepers, and raised the dead? Some believed, it is true. Others accounted for His power by saying it came from Satan. "Convince a man against his will, and he is of the same opinion still."

NOVEMBER 2—"But without faith it is impossible to please Him: for He that cometh to God must believe that He is." Heb. 11:6a

One day as I thought about God, I came to a "dead end" in my reasoning. And, out of the mental fog came this phrase like a flash For without faith it is impossible to please Him. Faith is the door to the spiritual life. The natural man says "Seeing is believing." God says "Believe, and you'll see." I am convinced of that fact that you and I will see plenty if, and when we believe Him.

NOVEMBER 3—"For by grace are ye saved through faith." Eph. 2:8a

We said, yesterday, that we entered into spiritual life by faith. Now, what more fair standard could God have selected. Would degree of perfection have been a better standard, or intellectual understanding, or financial contributions one made for a good cause, or possibly the amount of suffering one endured? Would any of these standards have been fair to all age groups and class levels? But the way of faith? It can be entered into by wise and simple, by the child and the mature man, by the bum and the wealthy man. The only difficulty is, people ought to know about it, and the Christian Church has failed to get the word around.

NOVEMBER 4—"But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God."

There sat the aged John, bending over his manuscript, the quill resting in his hand. What a pleasure it had been to see sin and suffering depart as Jesus spoke peace to the sinners, and healing to the sick. And again, how boldly Jesus had condemned current religious practices. A cloud covered the face of the aged disciple as he thought of the days of darkness which fell suddenly upon the little group, the day on which the Lamb of God was slain. But He arose! The disciple's face lit up as this glorious thought took possession of Him. Many other wonders did Jesus, but he must close.

NOVEMBER 5—"And that believing ye might have life through His name." John 20:31b.

Bishop Hopkins, of Derry, calls faith the marriage bond between Christ and the believer, and because of this bond, He can rightly assume the guilt of the sinner, who in the meanwhile enjoys the standing of a child of God. Another beautiful figure of our union with Christ is that of the vine and the branches, as found in John 15. The vine and the branches are not separate entities. "And as the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me."

NOVEMBER 6—"What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?" Ps. 8:4

United with Christ. Those were mere words to me as I read them. Let me repeat them so that they will enter into my consciousness. United with Christ. O holy Father, when I consider the heavens, the work of Thy hand, when I consider the person of Christ in His love and purity, and when I consider mankind, myself, I cry out "What is man, that Thou art mindful of him?"

NOVEMBER 7—"Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Matt. 11:28

We are weary, and our burdens are heavy. Parents are concerned about their sons who are away from home. Wives are concerned about their husbands who are across the ocean. Some of the young people are disgusted with life. Of what value is life anyway? The C.O. is discouraged because his position is not generally appreciated. In the stillness of the House of God our confidence in God is strengthened, enduring values are brought to our attention, and our problems are reduced to their normal size, and our hearts rise in thankfulness as we sing

Praise God from whom all blessings flow
Praise Him, all creatures here below;
Praise Him above, ye heavenly host;
Praise Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.
Amen

many miles from us, the potentiality of your sacrificial prayer life will work wonders on our behalf, and someone will be converted from the error of his ways, some soul will be saved from death, someone will be strengthened in the faith to live a better Christian life, and someone will share the glories of heaven —all because you prayed.

News From Canada

Following are some quotations taken from letters received from the Canadian Y. P. Representative, J. C. Schmidt:

"Greetings in the name of our precious Saviour Jesus Christ! It has been some time since I sent in my last report as representative of our Canadian Mennonite Youth. The Lord has abundantly blessed us according to His many promises, and we unite with Psalmist David, 'Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised; and his greatness is unsearchable.'

"Our Canadian Mennonite people are scattered over a very large area. Many small settlements have sprung up farther North. Consequently, many of these people are without Christian services, without Sunday Schools, and in some places without secular schools. This is a large field that has to be looked after. Our youth organization has realized this need, and during the last few years we have sent out workers to the different districts to teach summer vacation Bible school to the children . . . Over a thousand children were reached this way. Our workers visit the homes of the children as well, and thus the gospel is brought into hundreds of homes. In many districts, the youth gathered for evening services. This work is proving a great blessing to these communities and serves to establish a unity among our Mennonite Youth."

Buy Rosthern Experimental Farm

"We have a special project with which we are working at this time. Namely, the purchasing of the Rosthern Experimental Farm. (Previously owned by the Government.) This farm includes one section of land, six large buildings, a number of smaller buildings, an orchard, gardens, lawns, hedges, etc. We feel that it is very essential to have a place for an Orphan Home, Bible School, Retreats, and a site where our youth activities could be centralized. This farm is ideal for such activities.

"We make an appeal to the Young People's Union of the five districts of the United States to unite with us in prayer concerning this project. We also petition financial aid in this behalf."

Enough funds have been gathered from the Saskatchewan district to make an initial payment on the farm of five thousand dollars, and the government has advised them to take possession. They want to pay the balance by January 1, but will need our help. Several districts have responded. The Pacific District has designated one hundred dollars for this project; the Eastern District is making this a special project for their Fall Rally to be held on November 14. The end of the year is not far off, therefore the time to act is NOW, if you wish to have a share in this worthy enterprise. Any contributions from individual societies will be appreciated and may be sent to the General Conference Y. P. treasurer.

"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

"There is gold left in the hills for the man who dares to dig it."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

COUNTING THE COST

Opening Song: "Give of your best to the Master"

Prayer:

Introductory Remarks by the Leader:

Everything that is worthwhile costs something. Food, clothing, shelter, and all material goods cost money, labor, time, energy, and effort. Education costs money, time, diligence, effort. Friendship costs something, too. You have to be a friend if you would have a friend. Some things cost patience. Many people are not able to pay this price. To achieve the highest values often cost suffering and sacrifice. Our topic is "What Does it Cost to Be a Real Follower of Jesus?"

Topics:

1. What did it cost Paul? II Cor. 11:23-28. II Cor. 12:9, 10. Notice how gladly he paid the price. Try to find other scripture passages which tell of Paul's suffering and find out how he died.

2. What did it cost the Twelve Apostles? Mark 3:14-15; John 15:18; John 16:1-6. A Bible encyclopedia will tell you what happened to the Twelve, fact or tradition.

3. What did it cost our forefathers? John 16:33; I Peter 3:14-17. Ask your minister to help you find books on Mennonite history (There are several by Dr. C. Henry Smith). Also inquire of some of the great-grandmothers and great-grandfathers or other old people of your church. A good suggestion would be to invite one of your aged friends to discuss this topic, or to invite your minister or some other adult.

4. What does it cost us? Matt. 10:38, 39; 5:10, 11. Find out the reasons for Civilian Public Service camps. Why was C.P.S. started? Who goes to these camps? What are some sacrifices these boys must make? Do Christians suffer for their convictions in your own town or community?

Closing Songs: "Will your Anchor Hold?" "More love to Thee."

Prayer:

What They See

The movies today are a veritable school for crime. Such is the conclusion reached and statement made in the book Our Movie Made Children. This book is the result of a careful analysis of the films by scientific men with unbiased motives, extending through hundreds of films and involving four year's work and thousands of dollars of expense. Dr. Dale in a careful analysis of 115 pictures chosen at random, arrived at some fascinating figures according to this book. Regarding crime he has this to say: The heroes are alone responsible for 13 good sound murders, the villians and villainesses for 30. Altogether, some 54 murders are committed to say nothing of 59 cases of mere assault and battery. Thirty-six holdups are portrayed and 21 kidnappings, and numerous other crimes. Forty-three crimes are attempted and 406 are actually committed, making a total of 449. All of this in 115 pictures.

Furthermore, crime is not made unattractive but rather attractive, encouraging young people to enter criminal ways. They are made so attractive that they tend to make crime alluring and criminalty outstanding and distinguished. The criminals in these films are found to be portrayed by the most attractive and best known stars of the day. Furthermore, 33 per cent of the heroes, 44 per cent of the heroines, 54 per cent of the villians and 63 per cent of the villainesses in these 115 pictures are pictured as either wealthy or ultra-wealthy. They live a happy and a care-free life; they drink and dance the night away, at their own sweet pleasure, not satisfied to wear ordinary clothes and eat ordinary food and not content with the steady round of moral, intelligent, quiet life. Eighty characters are given as "occupation unknown" or "illegal occupations" with bootleggers, smugglers, thieves, bandits, blackmailers, prostitutes, etc.

As to drinking, of the 115 pictures, 66 per cent show it and 43 per cent exhibit intoxication; 78 per cent of these pictures contain liquor situations. We are told of the characters of these plays so carefully investigated, 87½ per cent smoke. Dr. Dale further found that in 22 pictures, out of 115, illicit love appears as the goal of 35 of the leading characters, including heroes and heroines.

What happens to these criminals in the movies? Does crime pay? It does on the silver screen, referring again to Our Movie Made Children. A detailed analysis of a group of forty pictures in which no less than 57 criminals committed 62 crimes, 3 of the 57 criminals were arrested and held; 4 were arrested but released; another four, after being arrested escaped; 7 were arrested and legally punished. Then we are told that 24 criminals were punished by extra-legal methods or people taking the law into their own hands. Do we want the young people of America taught that out of every 57 criminals, only 7 are punished by law? Or would we wish them to take the punishment of evil doers into their own private hands by shooting or lynching? Does America want the heroes of their children to be murderers, kidnappers, thieves, embezzlers, house-breakers?

In another group of 22 prominent pictures shown all over America, 35 leading characters, heroes and heroines sought illicit love, sought fornication and adultery. Would such pictures have any bearing upon the minds of those who spend hours in viewing them? It is without the shadow of a doubt that such pictures do continually have their effect in setting the moral standard of our young people.

TITHING

(Written for the Mission Study Circle of the First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, by Mrs. G. A. Linscheid.)

The practice of paying tithes is very ancient. Already in Gen. 14:20 we find that Abraham gave tithes to Melchizedec, King of Salem, upon his return from the expedition against Chedolaomer and the four kings in confederacy with him. Abraham gave him the tithe of all the booty he had taken from the enemy. Jacob imitated the piety of his grandfather when he vowed to the Lord the tithes of all the substance he might acquire in Mesopotamia, Gen. 28:22. Moses ordained all the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's. It is holy unto the Lord, Leviticus 27:30-32. Tithes were paid to God as a sign of homage and gratitude, thus Abraham giving tithe of the spoil to Melchizedec was a token that he owed his victory and success to God, and when tithes were kept back from the priests, the Lord complained that He was robbed, Mal. 3:8. So the paying of the tithe was an honoring of God.

Even heathen peoples bring offerings to their false Gods and idols. How much more should the children of God give of their substance to the Lord! Dr. D. W. Kurtz on the subject of stewardship says, "The things in our possession do not belong to us, they are the Lord's and we are the stewards. The earth is the Lord's, the gold is the Lord's and the cattle on a thousand hills. We brought nothing into the world and we can take nothing with us into the next. We are stewards of God's substance. He demands tithes and offerings and if we do not bring them into his store-house we rob God. Jesus did not destroy the law and the prophets. He came to bring them to their fullness by going the second mile by the law of love."

Tithe means the tenth part of anything, so at least that much of our means should belong to the Lord. Some claim we are really not giving of our own until we give over and above the tenth, for that much is the Lord's by right. We are admonished that one-tenth of our substance and one-seventh of our time belongs to the Lord. Another injunction is for us to lay by as the Lord has prospered us.

What should be our motive in giving? Some may give just from a business standpoint to win patronage, some may give only upon an emotional urge —opening up their purse strings when their emotion is aroused, some may give from a purely selfish motive to receive honor or recognition, still others may be sentimental givers, others may be systematic in their giving but give such a small portion of their means that they fall far short of the tenth. The true givers are those that give as good stewards of the means entrusted to them, that is contributing freely, systematically, regularly and sacrificially. Such contribute in the manner mentioned to carry on the Lord's work because they have given themselves to the Lord and the motive to all their gifts is expressed thus: "The love of God constraineth us."

Whenever tithing has been adopted and carried out in groups or congregations it has worked wonders. We would be surprised at the results if all Christians would try it. Such that have tried it testify that they had: adequately paid pastors, renovated buildings, improved S. S. equipment, disappearing missionary debts, more missionaries, no bake sales or begging talks, self respect, enthusiasm, hope, victory, etc.

Stewardship is a prominent subject in our Bible. Quoting Dr. D. W. Kurtz again he says, "One-sixth of the entire Bible deals with property, money and giving. There is ten times as much Scripture on the subject of giving and stewardship as there is on baptism or the Lord's supper. Yet we hold very strenuously to these important doctrines and have neglected the duty, grace and the blessing of giving. The result of this neglect is now bearing fruit: missionary deficits, struggling colleges, paralyzed churches, disloyal church members, disillusioned speculators and soured saints. The love of money is the root of all evil, and the neglect of giving the Lord's money for the kingdom is the root of most of our problems in the church." Further he says: "The real tragedy of the whole matter is this: if we rob God we rob ourselves. The laws of the spirit are just as exacting as the laws of nature. God is not to be sneered at, for whatsoever we sow that shall we also reap. The lack of spiritual power is due to this neglect. The conditions of spiritual power are complete self-giving, real loyalty, genuine devotion to Christ and his cause, a love and honesty that gives to God what we owe and a love so great that we go the second mile in giving. How can anyone be Christ-like and allow selfishness and greed and indifference to Christ's Church

Parents and young people, remember that 77 million Americans attend picture shows every week. Twenty-eight million of them are adolescent boys and girls and 11 million of them are under 13 years of age. They spend on the average 2 hours a week with attention glued both through sight and hearing to the lessons that the movies teach. The stars are their heroes and heroines; movie plays are their instruction about life. Their characters are developed by what they see and hear in the theatre. Heroes are shown as rich people who need not work for an honest living. They live without conventional and respectable hours and without virtuous and commendable habits. They make crime, debauchery and prostitution attractive. All in all, they are anti-Christian and definitely immoral in their teaching. How can any Christian be content to attend or have his children attend and be put under the influence of this wickedness? Pictures that exalt fallen women and adulterous men and hold them up to admiration and emulation are not of the Spirit. They are of Satan, of the flesh and not of the Spirit. Christians should and cannot have any part or lot in such sin.

—From The Christian Leader

dominate his life? Giving is the test of our sincerity. If we do not obey, our professions are mere hypocrisy. If we love me ye will keep my commandments."

Mal. 3:8-10 is a real challenge to us, and what a promise if we take up the challenge! And has God ever failed in the promises to his children? We are often ready to take up business ventures without an assurance of success--and here where the Lord, who has never failed us, gives us such a challenge and promise we are so reticent to take Him at his word! The promise is "Bring the whole tithe, then I will pour out the blessing." We must respond before the richness of blessing is possible. May we be found faithful even in this, for our Lord and Master says, what we have done unto the least of these his brethren we have done it unto him, and according as we do this, shall our reward be at the judgment. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

INTERDENOMINATIONAL BIBLE CONFERENCE

A very successful Bible Conference was held at Compass, Saskatchewan, Canada, July 11-18 under the joint direction of the pastors of the local Mennonite Brethren, Conference Mennonite, and Christian and Missionary Alliance churches of the Meadow Lake area.

The opening day took the form of a Sunday School convention in which seven Sunday Schools participated. During the seven days following we met three times daily for sessions of Bible study, missionary, and evangelistic messages. These resulted in the edification and salvation of many precious souls.

Visiting speakers who ministered to us under the annointing of the Holy Spirit were: Rev. J. J. Esau of Bluffton, Ohio, U. S. A., Rev. Henry Epp of Waldhein, Saskatchewan, Rev. Murray W. Downey of Canadian Bible Institute, Regina, Sasketchewan, Rev. Isaac Epp of Aberdeen, Sasketchewan, and Mr. Stanley Collie, missionary to our North American Indians at Buffalo Narrows, Saskatchewan. Through the ministry of Brother Collie our responsibility regarding this long neglected field right at our very door step was vitally impressed upon us with the result that definite steps were taken to make this a project of our Conference.

The ministry in song and art of Mr. and Mrs. Selwyn Neale of Regina, Saskatchewan, too proved a real blessing throughout the Conference. Our hearts go out in praise to our God and Father who so signally blessed during these days. We are believing Him for even greater things in our Conference of 1944 should Jesus tarry. —Rev. William J. Nish, Sec.

OKLAHOMA CONVENTION

The Zoar Mennonite Church, Goltry, Oklahoma, was host to the convention on October 16 and 17. A large tent accommodated the great number of participants.

The brethren J. J. Esau, Bluffton, Ohio, and H. P. Fast, Orienta, Oklahoma, gave inspirational messages. Rev. Henry Hege of Corn, Oklahoma, and president of the convention, gave the convention sermon on Saturday. That afternoon Rev. H. P. Fast, the convention speaker, spoke on "I would Be True in Thought and Speech." Rev. Esau spoke on "Home Missions" and Rev. H. P. Fast on "I Would Be True to My Calling" at the women's missionary program on Saturday evening. Sunday morning Brother Fast spoke on "I Would Be True to God."

Choirs, a men's chorus, quartets, and duets took part in the song festival on Sunday afternoon. After their selections Rev. J. J. Esau spoke on foreign missions. After the service a number came to the altar to consecrate definitely their lives to the Lord.

Walter H. Foth, Cordell, served as chairman of the young people's meeting which was held on Sunday evening. Rev. Noah Unruh, Cordell gave a theme on "I Would Be True to My Church," and

Rev. J. W. Jantzen, Meno, led the testimony meeting. During this time two Ozark workers of the "Go Ye Mission" gave their testimonies.

At the business meeting, Rev. H. P. Fast was elected president and Ernest Voth, Orienta, as secretary for the coming year.

EMMAUS MENNONITE CHURCH

Whitewater, Kansas

During the past two months Brother Kaufman's messages on Sunday morning have been on the Apostle's Creed. Three times each year, in the months of February, June, and October, we gather to commemorate the Last Supper. Last Sunday, October 10, Brother Kaufman preached a preparatory message from Eph. 4:30-32. Earlier on the same morning Brother Kaufman and a men's quartet went to the prison camp near Peabody to bring a German service to the prisoners of war over there.

On September 15, Mrs. P. A. Penner of Newton, spoke to the women during the first meeting of the Missionary Society. In the evening Dr. Penner showed us the beautiful films of their work among the lepers in India. Both the afternoon and evening messages were inspirational and challenging. On October 6, the Women's Mission Society met for active work, which this year will consist mostly of sewing for relief. We have as officers a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, a cutting committee, and a book committee which repairs worn books in the church library.

The choir is having difficulty in finding a leader, they are waiting to begin practicing for the annual Christmas and Easter programs.

The C. E. has been having interesting variety in their programs. Besides the annual picnic with a special speaker, a program by the neighboring Grace Hill Society, the mission program which included reports sent in from some of our members who are in Christian service at distant points, there was one program in charge of all the Wiebes here and one by the T's—Thiessen, Thierstein, and Toews. A new project of the C. E. is dividing our membership into groups of seventeen, each person writing to a designated young man who is in camp or service.

PULASKI MENNONITE CHURCH

Pulaski, Iowa

The church correspondent finds it easier to get at his job when there has been recently in his local church an occasion out of the ordinary. Thus, it should not be difficult for us to assemble a brief report on what has probably been the most outstanding event in our church within the memory of our middle-aged members, at least so as measured by the general public interest.

Dr. J. E. Hartzler, of Goshen, Indiana, and of the Hartford Seminary at Hartford, Connecticut, has just closed in this community a week of preaching service which opened October 3 with his appearance as guest speaker at the country-wide World Communion observance at our county seat town of Bloomfield and continued through the week until Sunday, October 10, with special nightly meetings at our church southwest of Pulaski. Through the help of Rev. E. A Sommer, our pastor, the county committee was able to arrange for Dr. Hartzler's stop at Bloomfield, and we in turn were enabled to arrange for the service at the Church. Eight hundred persons heard Dr. Hartzler in the large high school gymnasium at Bloomfield, and capacity houses followed him through the week here until the closing night when by borrowing some two hundred chairs from the Pulaski high school, our local church was able to seat the four hundred who came for the sermon, "Why Be a Christian."

Weather and road conditions for the meetings were nearly perfect, and people came from the neighboring towns and from a wide area of the country. In spite of travel restrictions there were one hundred from Bloomfield on the closing night, as estimated by one of it's ministers, and many of these had attended through the week, finding it possible to make the round trip of some twenty-four miles nightly by the systematic sharing of cars and seeing to it that each car was loaded. And this took place without a "union" campaign or special effort in behalf of outside support. The people who heard the sermon on "Making Ready" at Bloomfield were hungry for more. It was a week of the broad, intellectual gospel as differing from the emotional gospel and there was a like response. We shared our pews with many who had not been in our church or any other for years but who were our most attentive and regular listeners. And so we feel that something has happened, and that the Christian stature of us all has been increased even beyond our ability to measure just now.

From Pulaski, Dr. Hartzler went to Wayland for four days, then on into Canada, preaching and lecturing on his present schedule which is now drawn until next June.

Our meeting-house is being painted on the outside, and some repair work and redecorating will likely be done. New carpets are in place on the rostrum and in the aisles, and it is the hope and plan that all may be in order when the Middle District Conference convenes at Pulaski next year. Under present conditions and circumstances not many of us were able to go to Ohio for this year's session, but we hope the Ohio brethren may come to Iowa next year, stopping here enroute to the triennial session of the General Conference in Kansas at that time. —V.E.S.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

Wadsworth, Ohio

The ladies of the Mennonite Christian Service organization not only continued quilting and sewing garments for European relief but also canned tomatoes for a nearby convalescent home for the aged.

The donations of the annual harvest home Sunday, October 3, consisted mainly of canned fruits and vegetables and non-perishable fruits and vegetables. These donations were given to Bluffton College.

The congregation has had the privilege of hearing a series of six sermons on, "Our Mennonite Heritage," "What Mennonites Share With Other Denominations," "Mutual Aid and Brotherhood," "Unique and Original Contributions of Mennonites," "Sacramental Simplicity on Communion Sunday," "The Mennonite Conception of Evangelism and Nurture" and lastly "Our Heritage: Faith and Works United."

Our pastor has opened a series of broadcasts on station RAKW, Akron, 1590 on the dial, every Sunday morning at 9:15 a. m. It will be of interest to readers of The Mennonite that this station can be heard in forty-one states. At present the program "Chapel of the Air" has been sponsored solely by the First Mennonite Church at Wadsworth with great enthusiasm and liberal contributions.

The officials of the church have indicated that the objective is to maintain the "Chapel of the Air" for an indefinite period, even though it is on an experimental basis for thirteen weeks. The pastor welcomes suggestions and comments for this new project.

A full house attended the first of a new series of evening services, October 10. These will continue biweekly until Easter. The evening program consists of a study of the "Life of Christ" in motion pictures along with appropriate scripture, a sermonette by the pastor, and song.

Rev. G. T. Soldner of Bluffton Ohio, a former minister of the Mennonite Church at Sterling, now united with the Wadsworth Church, was called to Sterling to conduct the funeral services of Samuel Graber, 85, assisted by Rev. Smucker.

Dr. J. C. Meyers, a Western Reserve University professor, spoke on "Christ's Attitude in the Past—War World," Sunday morning, Oct. 24. He is of the Sterling Mennonite Community and still maintains his church membership at the Pleasant Hill, Mennonite Church, Sterling, Ohio.—Corr.,Goldie Wurgler

Alsen, North Dakota

Greetings with I Cor. 15:58, Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord."

How much we need to be stedfast and immovable at the present time and abounding in the work of the Lord. In our day, it seems, there is much work carried on by the church and said to be done unto the Lord, yet men do all the planning. God is left out of all the plans. After all plans are made God is sometimes asked to bless the work. Thus the labour is often in vain. Might Jesus really have the pre-eminence in our lives!

God again blessed us with material blessings. The crops were very good. We had one hail storm which did quite a little damage at places. A few fields where the grain had not been cut were a total loss, but that which was in shocks gave a fair yield. So we have much reason to give thanks to the giver of all good and perfect gifts.

When we made mention of the different brethren who had visited our church in our last report, Brother Plett from South Dakota was omitted. We are sorry, but the impassable roads made it impossible for most of the members from the country to attend the service, but his message was much appreciated by those who had the privilege of hearing his speech, October 10, will no doubt be long remembered by us, since our new pastor Brother Waldo J. Flickinger was installed by Brother J. J. Regier of Freeman, South Dakota. We had prayed much in regard to getting a pastor, and many others prayed with us. And we believe that God has answered our prayers. Now let us continue to pray for Brother and Sister Flickinger that God may be able to use them and the congregation too, to His honor and glory.

We also had our harvest festival on the same day, and Brother Regier brought us a message in the evening, so we were richly blessed the whole day. The other three Mennonite congregations of this community had been invited to spend the day with us, and they all accepted. So we had the privilege of having six ministers on the platform which is unusual for us. The four local ministers all spoke a few words of welcome to Brother Flickinger.

RELIEF

India in Great Need

John Rich, American Friends Service Committee Commissioner to China, recently returned to this country by way of India. He has reported a great need in India caused by hurricane and flood of unprecedented fury and extent. Thousands are homeless and starving. He urges the Mennonite Central Committee to keep India on the front page of their relief program. The Relief Director at Akron has cabled India asking for cabled information so that the Mennonite Central Committee can proceed to act intelligently.

War Prisoners Relief

The Mennonite Central Committee has prepared 3,000 twenty-page booklets of Christmas songs for distribution among German prisoners in this country and Canada. Last year a small quantity was published and distributed in sheet form, and a number of letters were received from camp officials as well as from prisoners expressing appreciation for the gesture. This book contains a legend indicating the Mennonite Central Committee as donor.

Letter from Kreider

Robert Kreider, Mennonite member of the China Unit in Durban, South Africa, writes of his feelings about the curtailment of the plans to do relief work in China:

"This has been a jarring blow to us. But even more of a blow it must be to those at home who have worked for months on this project, who have invested thousands of dollars in the program. Not all for naught. Again and again we have thought of the men in camp—men who have been living, hoping, and praying that the day might come when they could go forth to do relief work. The promise of foreign work had deep meaning for their camp period. Now that promise has been blackened out for another year or two. The conviction has been growing on me that should we return to the States, we have an obligation to go back to the camps to be identified with the commonplace aspects of the program—digging ditches, planting trees, going on fire duty. We perhaps can share in finding the deepest values, the finest testimony in the most simple of daily duties."

Draft of Pre-Pearl Harbor Fathers

The drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers began officially October 1. Draft deferment will now be made on the basis of occupation rather than dependency. It is estimated that this move will affect the status of 446,000 fathers by January 1, 1944.

Patriotic Organizations and the C.O.

At the recent National Convention of the American Legion, in Omaha, Nebraska, approximately forty resolutions relating to the conscientious objector were presented by the various sub-conventions. Only one resolution was approved. It "urged that C.P.S. men be administered with greater strictness."

At a similar convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, nineteen resolutions were presented and two were approved. One advised Congress to make certain that C.P.S. men receive no pay and the other urged that C.P.S. men be "not treated any more favorable than men in the armed forces."

Shall We Provide a Bible Story Book?

The Board of Education of our General Conference has the responsibility of supplying lesson materials for our Sunday Schools. At present our conference offers no material for the primary department. The Board feels that we should have a Bible story book for this department. It wonders whether our ministers, Sunday School teachers, and superintendents agree as to the need for such a book, and if so, what kind.

In visiting a number of our churches, I found the primary teachers using a large variety of materials. None seemed to be entirely satisfied with the present set-up. Practically all had suggestions about improvements that could be made in the material used.

Our teachers of primary (5 to 9) pupils and our Sunday School superintendents have acquired through experience a mass of impressions. The undersigned would be very happy to have these impressions shared with him.

Some questions that you might answer from your experience are: 1. Should this book for very young pupils consist of Old or New Testament stories? 2. Should the book have three sections, each one devoted to the reading ability of the grades represented? 3. What has been your experience in the use of available Bible story books? 4. Could our primary teachers tell stories out of the Bible without the use of any other materials? 5. Do you favor the use of uniform lessons for primary groups? 6. Is a picture roll and the Bible sufficient material? 7. Do you feel that you need better training rather than different materials? 8. Should we use the primary materials put out by the "Old" Mennonites? 9. What is the best primary material that you know of? 10. What should be our aims in the teaching of primary children?

Your suggestions will receive a warm welcome.

WORLD PEACE

November 7 is World Peace Sunday. None of us can tell whether Christ will establish world peace in our time. This we can know, however, that the peace of Christ's kingdom is not the result of using tanks, bombers, battleships, and bayonets. The millions of lives lost in the world's bloody clashing of swords throughout the centuries has not brought world peace, and never will. It is Christ's spirit that brings peace. We can kill a man or we can conquer a man with force, but that will not put Christ's spirit into him. And without it he remains warlike, for that is the nature of sin.

Christ calls us to use the sword of the Spirit which begets the spirit of Christ instead of the sword of violence which only begets more violence. How true are we as peacemakers to our opportunities? Are we at sweet peace with those in our homes, in our community, and in our church? Do we bring out Christ's spirit in others, or do we make them warlike? Do we hold out to the world Christ's method of dealing with sinful men or Satan's method? Are we going all-out for God and his method of bringing peace to men? These are some questions to ponder for World Peace Sunday.—rw.

SPEAK OUT FOR JESUS

"You talk about your business,
Your bonds and stocks and gold;
And in all worldly matters
You are so brave and bold.
But why are you so silent
About salvation's plan?
Why don't you speak for Jesus,
And speak out like a man?

"You talk about the weather,
And the crops of corn and wheat;
You speak of friends and neighbors
That pass along the street;
You call yourself a Christian,
And like the gospel plan—
Then why not speak for Jesus,
And speak out like a man?

"Are you ashamed of Jesus
The story of the cross,
To lower His pure banner
And let it suffer loss?
Have you forgot His suffering?
Or did He die in vain?
If not, then live for Jesus,
And speak out like a man."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

TOUR TO CHRISTIAN VILLAGES IN BASNA AREA

We had very much wished to go out and visit the neighboring villages where our brethren with their families live. During a local holiday of six days, when all the students went to a camp, we the normal school students with our teacher went out to these villages.

We are very often told by the evangelists that the Christian brethren in small villages are very much encouraged when they meet some friends from the mother church. We wanted to give them encouragement, so that they may not feel lonely and may also be in contact with the mother church through our visit. We are sure they have received strength to live a Christian life, though some are very few in number when compared with the non-Christians of their village. It was also very encouraging to us, who are being trained to serve our Lord Jesus in these villages, especially when we saw in two places four and two people confessing our Lord Jesus as their saviour.

We also wanted to see and get acquainted with the homes from which our students came. We have been very much benefited by this trip. We have come to know that we should devise plans and methods of dealing with the students, taking their homes into consideration. We must educate them in such a way that they may not feel like foreigners when they go back to their homes after school.

We are glad to declare that we had no trouble and no sickness throughout our tour, though sometimes we walked about twelve to fifteen miles a day. We thank God very much for His guidance.

—Samuel Stephen

Instructor in Normal Department, Jansen Memorial School, Jagdishpure

P.S. Our brother Samuel Stephen is a young man who has grown up in our own church area, and has had his primary and part of his secondary education with us. He went to higher schools and teachers' training school and is now with us again instructing others. His mother tongue is Hindi. The above is a brief account of our Normal Department students with their teacher in fifteen villages where they visited Christians. —John Thiessen, Principal

FEAR IN THE ORIENT

With most people in the Orient sickness is the result of a curse, or somebody has cast an evil eye on the victim. Most diseases have some deity as a chief controller so it is believed. The wife and mother in one of our spiritually weak Christian homes was down with smallpox. The whole affair was kept a secret. By the time we found out about it the poor woman was absolutely covered with the pox, and it seemed too late for any help. I reprimanded the brother for trying to hide this trouble. He dodged here and there, but gave me no answer as to why he had not even informed us, let alone going to the hospital which was only a quarter of a mile away. I was suspicious that some underlying fear had kept the brother from revealing the condition of his wife. So I asked here and there about the "why" of the brother's behavior. Little by little I found out that the fear was this, namely that if he would reveal his wife's condition and go for medicine, then the smallpox goddess would be offended and she would come and kill the whole family. So the wife and mother of the home had to die a pitiful and miserable death because fear kept all help away.

THE SECOND BEATITUDE

By Erland Waltner

"Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted." Matt. 5:4.

If this beatitude is separated from the others it remains a hopeless paradox. How can the mourners of the earth be called the truly happy ones? Did Jesus confuse tears with mirth? Could He not distinguish sadness from gladness?

This beatitude cannot have a universal application. Jesus is not speaking of all who mourn. Many shed tears of self-pity but Jesus is not speaking of them. Others mourn over the disappointments of life but Jesus is not thinking primarily of them. To whom then does this beatitude refer?

To be understood this second beatitude must be linked with the first. Jesus is speaking of the mourners who are "poor in spirit." He has in mind those who humbly acknowledge their spiritual poverty, their sin and incompetence, and who mourn because of it. Jesus is here speaking of the true penitent who sheds tears in a godly sorrow for sin.

Happy is the penitent who mourns for sin. He it is who accepts the Kingdom and who thus receives the comfort of the Holy Spirit. To comfort means to strengthen. The penitent who acknowledges his failure and is truly sorry for it shall be strengthened by the Holy Spirit. To him will be given "a diadem for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness."

What Are We Doing to Prevent Another War?

By Russell L. Mast

This is a question which needs to be asked even now in a time of war. If it is true that to wage war, preparation must be made in advance, how much more is it true that we need to prepare in advance for the peace which is to follow the war? The close of the last war found the world woefully unprepared for peace, and consequently the seeds of another world conflict were sown. Today we are reaping the fruits of that blunder. Tragically enough, there are signs that again the forces of selfishness and narrow nationalism will seek to outflank any movement for a just peace and a world order that can have some degree of permanence.

Today the nations of the world are in a moment of great decision. The fate of another generation of young men and women is being determined. The weal and woe of the future is involved in the decisions which are made today, by the "conquering" nations. Surely on a question so vital and so significant God cannot be totally disinterested. Indeed, one cannot conceive of any area of life or human relationship which is outside the pale of God's redemptive purpose. If this is true, then God has a "purpose", a "will" for the nations of the world. It is for those who have found fellowship with God through Christ to help the world to know and understand this will. This means that Christians who are also citizens in a democracy should insist on certain definite principles to govern all postwar planning.

We know from a study of history that certain policies which nations may adopt inevitably lead to war. Other policies make for peace and international understanding. If God has a redemptive purpose for all of life, does it not follow that it is God's will that the nations shall adopt those policies which make for peace?

It can, nevertheless, be truthfully said that Jesus in his ministry never concerned himself about those wider national policies. He did not even condemn the Roman empire. However, let us not draw the wrong conclusions from this fact. It was not his purpose to make that specific application in his brief ministry of three years. His purpose was rather to plant seeds, to reveal once and for all the redeeming love of God, and to make it available in human hearts. Then, as that love caught hold of human lives it would act as a leavening influence on the whole of life, permeating every human relationship.

Jesus made provision for this task. John's gospel records these words: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." These "greater works" are made possible through the power of the Holy Spirit. As the love of God touches more hearts, as new occasions arise bringing new tasks, it is the Holy Spirit which will guide those who are spiritually attuned to God. Jesus, then, expected us to carry on under the power of his spirit.

As an illustration of this point let us look at the question of slavery. Surely it was the will of God that slavery should be abolished in America. Yet neither Jesus nor Paul tried to abolish it in their day. The reason is that they merely laid the foundation for it. The time was not ripe; the fullness of time had not arrived. It was up to a later generation of Christians who, under the guidance of the spirit, engaged in these "greater works." Who can say that it was not the Holy Spirit which guided men like Henry Ward Beecher and Phillips Brooks to say that not only was it wrong to have slaves, but that the whole system of slavery was wrong? The fullness of time had come and they spoke for God.

Surely the time has come again for the church to speak the decisive word to the nations of the world. Let the church seek to mould the opinions of men rather than be moulded by them. This does not mean that the church, as such, should get into politics. It does mean, however, that individual Christians will formulate their views of national and world politics on the basis of God's will as revealed in Christ, which, in a word, is love. Too often Christians who claim fellowship with Christ formulate their opinions on national and world politics on the basis of party loyalty or vested interest, rather than on the basis of their loyalty to Christ. Let it be said emphatically that there is no area of life today where the specific Christian witness should not be expressed.

Regardless of what the Christians of the world do, there will be postwar planning. But the future peace of the world depends on the type of planning which takes place. Some policies have within them the seeds of another world conflict; others have the seeds of order and good will. The Christian's love for Christ and his hatred for war should be so intense that he will stretch every nerve to get the world to adopt policies which most nearly conform to the pattern of the Kingdom. It is not enough to say, "I will not take up a gun and kill." The imperative of love is so great that it will not leave the Christian at ease by simply refusing to fight. But it will make him say, "I will do everything possible to prevent war itself." Whether the world will actually adopt a more Christian way is not the immediate question. (Though it is inexcusable pessimism to say it would not.) Nevertheless, the Christian duty is clear and unwavering, namely: to express the specific Christian witness in every area of life.

Here, then, are some aspects of the specific Christian witness which should find their way into the political framework of the postwar world. We have space only to mention them.

1. There is the absolute necessity of repentance from wrongdoing. No nation comes to the peace table with clean hands. Going back to a pre-war "normalcy" is suicide. Only a complete turning about will do. This includes victors and vanquished alike.

2. Furthermore, there is the absolute sovereignty of God. No nation is absolutely sovereign. No nation can rightfully assume the role of supremacy or dominance. Therefore, let the nations of the world reduce some of their sovereignty for the sake of the common good.

3. Again, there is the teaching of the stewardship of material possessions. All that we have in the way of wealth and property and natural resources is not our own to exploit for selfish purposes. These are the gifts of God and as such shall be used in such a way as will bring glory and honor to Him and be of service to all mankind. A world cannot live at peace which is half overfed and half underfed.

4. Finally, there is the world wide fellowship in Christ. This involves the international fellowship of prayer, the extension of Christian missions, and evangelism. As men are won to the spirit of Christ, they will be drawn closer to each other. This asserts the fundamental unity of mankind. Politically, it will mean that there must be some world organization to implement that unity.

The Christian imperative of love should disturb us mightily these days. It should jar us from our indifference. For the world needs the Christian witness. But what if the Christians are silent?

Guarding Our Youth

What might Our Churches Do to Guard Our Youth Against the Various Propaganda and Temptations of the Day?

By J. E. Kaufman

"Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity." These are the words of an older man writing to a younger. Paul's life had been a great and fruitful adventure. Out of his ripe experience he writes to young Timothy, he commands him, he encourages him, "Let no man despise thy youth!"

Our churches today might well voice this same thought. It is still true that the greatest asset of the nation as well as the church is her children and young people. They are the hope of the future. For that reason our churches should be greatly concerned to guard them from false propaganda and temptations of life. How may this be accomplished? Propaganda may be either false or good. Today we are confronted with an abundance of war propaganda which is false because lying and deception are the methods used to accomplish the end in view. With this definition let us proceed with the thought of our responsibility as churches to youth. What might our churches do to guard them against the various propaganda and temptations of the day?

First and foremost, aquaint youth with Christ, present to them the Christian way of life in all of its phases. In this let us remember that the one supreme essential in the equipment of one who would acquaint another with Christ is bed-rock sincerity. It is very essential that we adults have convictions and that youth be not in doubt as to our faith and beliefs, that we can say with Paul "I know him whom I have believed," and that we are striving to the best of our ability to live up to the ideal to which we are calling our young people. In that spirit let us present the living Christ who had such a reverence for personality, such a belief in the positive value and possible contribution of all types and conditions of men, to youth that they too absorb the wonderful spirit of His life which in turn permeates every relationship of their lives. In some such way as this, Christ becomes not merely a historical personality but a protent personal force in our character, conduct, and career which affects everything that a person thinks, feels, says or does. Whenever we accomplish this conciousness in our youth we have guarded them in many ways from temptations and propaganda. Yes, when youth can say with Paul "I have been crucified with Christ, yet I live, and yet no longer I but Christ liveth in me," we have won a great battle.

In the second place, to guard youth against propaganda and temptations let us aquaint them with a well-rounded church program. One of the most revealing parts of a physician's diagnosis of a patient is taking his temperature. What is the spiritual temperature of our church program? There are many ways in which it may be revealed even though not so easily discernible as by the swift reading of a thermometer. One is by the spirit of cooperation of the whole group, by the warm friendly interest for all. A well-rounded program, a statesman-life policy in a church takes full account of the interests of the children and young people as well as of adults. Are churches today not apt, perhaps unconsciously, to take the attitude that young people lack experience and wisdom and hence are not so valuable in the work of the church? Let us beware of that! In these distressing times we ought to be extremely sympathetic with youth. They do not need destructive criticism; they need counsel and friendship, and the church should be the place where they feel free to turn to with their problems and heart-aches. The church should be the rallying point for their finest enthusiasms, the guardian of their ideals, the strength and stay of their growing Christian character. Young and old should live together harmoniously. There should be no duplication and on the other hand, the full needs of all groups should be provided for.

Another way to take the temperature of our group is to study the emphasis of your program. It is a mistake for a church to limit its thought to the worship service only, although that is most important. We cannot speak of professional life, of home life, of social life as though it were separated from a person's Christian life. All phases must receive proper emphasis. What about the social life the church provides for its young people? Does it offer wholesome recreation in place of questionable amusements? To neglect to provide opportunities for wholesome play and social life is detrimental to the proper well-rounded development of young people.

Social life is a natural and proper expression of life, young, and old. All phases of life ought to be touched by Christian influence, and all be so directed as to make their contribution to the development of a normal, symmetrical, and well-rounded Christian life, and to the establishment and growth of the kingdom of God. The social life of the church should be utilized toward the achieving of the purpose of the church. That purpose, as we have seen, is to make all more Christ-like. So then the social life of the church has relation to the church's entire plan, and should be so directed as a part of that plan that it may in some measure help in usefulness and service. This gives the social life of the church a positive meaning, instead of the negative one and is well worth emphasizing in a well-rounded church program, especially since it is often neglected.

In the third place to guard youth from propaganda and temptations we must acquaint youth with truth. Present to them opportunities to fill themselves with the spirit of truth and love by a study of the Bible and of the lives of great Christians of all ages. Likewise a study of the history and principles of our denomination is very essential for we build on the foundations laid down by those who have gone before. It is vitally important that our young people attend our denominational schools, read our conference papers, and literature, use our Sunday school quarterlies not affected by war propaganda, take part in our retreats and young peoples' conferences. What more valuable thing can young people gather than friendships with other like-minded young people and adults with great books, with great characters of history, with Jesus Christ. In this day of propaganda to arouse international prejudices, rivalries, hatreds, distrusts, class group antagonisms, it is the special duty of the church to foster larger quests of understanding and friendly relationships of brotherly love, kindness, peace, unity, and good-will, to teach the truth about other nations and peoples, to acquaint youth with ideals of justice and righteousness so that they may discriminate the truth from the false and the good from the evil.

It seems to me there is about the attitude of young people a belief that the ultimate values in life are not gold and silver, but truth and goodness and the chance to serve. Let us use them, for the church needs youth with its vigor and enterprise, its crusading zeal, it's enthusiastic loyalties, and its gay, adventurous spirit. On the other hand youth certainly needs the church, a growing church, a challenging church, a Christian church, to guard them in this age of sensational movies, untruthful newspapers, high pressure advertising, and hectic pleasure seeking.

In conclusion, a well coordinated program of bringing youth to Christ, challenging them with a well-rounded church program of sacrificial service, and filling them with the spirit of truth and love is in my opinion the way to successfully combat propaganda and to guard youth against the temptations of the day.

Audio-Visual Aids in the Church

By Mrs. Richard Weaver

Part III

So far the visual aids discussed have been of the unprojected type. We shall now discuss projected pictures.

The Reflected Picture

One type of projected picture is the reflected picture. This is shown by means of an instrument called a reflectoscope or opaque projector. It is possible to project any flat picture on a screen. This means of projection has the advantage of making it possible to project almost any suitable picture without the expense of having slides made. There is danger of ruining the picture because of the heat generated by the projector lamp unless the projector has a cooling fan. This type of machine is quite expensive. The better machines, equipped with fans, cost about $100.00.

The Common Glass Slide

Everyone is familiar with the common glass slide. When placed in a slide projector, called a stereopticon, it throws a picture on the screen. A slide consists of two pieces of glass which are bound together by tape. The usual size of these slides is 3¼ by 4 inches. Slides are a very effective means of teaching in religious education. It provides something for the creative student to do. He can make his own slides, and in order to make them accurate and authentic, research must be done and the pupil will get much benefit and knowledge from this study. After he has obtained the proper glass for the slides, he can dip this into a solution of gelatin and then draw what he wishes to present in India ink, or he can obtain etched glass, which is simply a plain piece of glass roughened on one side with acid so that one can draw or write on this with pencil, colored pencils, or ink.

The Cellophane Slide

Another type of slide is the cellophane slide. In this type one can type material on the cellophane and then place it between two pieces of glass and project it. This is a handy method of projecting a song that may not be in the hymn book or anything else that should be typed. One can also write on cellophane.

The photographic slides are also frequently used. They are prepared from the negative of a picture. They can be either black-and-white or colored. A really good amateur photographer can make them, and the number and variety which can be purchased or rented is almost unlimited. Missionaries usually use the slide projector in showing their pictures taken in the foreign country. All churches are familiar with this.

The New Small Slide

A type of slide which is coming rapidly into greater use is the small slide, two inches square. These slides are less expensive than the larger size, color is available at reasonable cost, the amateur can take his own pictures with relatively simple equipment, and the projectors are cheaper and more easily transported. The slides, in full color, may be purchased at fifty cents each. A wide variety of subjects is available, including historic spots of Biblical significance, Bible scenes, and copies of the great religious art masterpieces. If one wants to make his own pictures, perhaps illustrating a mission project, conditions in a part of a city needing mission work, a church school or hospital, or a conference or young people's gathering, the procedure is relatively simple. A candid ,or 35mm. still camera is used Colored film is purchased, the most common type being Kodachrome. When the pictures have been taken the film is sent to the company, where it is processed and returned as slides made up ready to show. Suitable projectors for small group showings can be purchased for twenty-five dollars, more powerful machines for larger groups for fifty to sixty dollars.

Also obtainable on 35mm. width film is what is known as film strip, or sometimes called picturol. Each strip contains from twenty to fifty pictures, which are comparable to those which can be secured on individual slides. This is perhaps the cheapest source of projection material. Projectors can be secured which can be used with either the film strip or the 2 x 2 slide.

Motion Pictures

We now come to the motion picture. This has the advantage over the still pictures in that it depicts motion. Motion pictures have the power to take people back in history and to recreate for them the life and people of any time in so far as we can now recover it. The Bible is the greatest subject in the world for presentation in motion picures. A picture need not be elaborate, but it should be good, true, and beautiful. Great care must be taken as to just what kind of picture is shown because motion pictures have a tenacious hold on the memory. Some of the pictures that are very excellent are: "I am the Way," "The King of Kings," "Episodes on the Life of St. Paul," and many others which interpret the message of the Bible· There are also motion pictures that portray the work of the church, lives of church leaders, and events in the history of the church, life problems, life situations, and Christian conduct in everyday life. Missionaries use this means quite frequently in showing life in the foreign field. A good motion picture will build ethical attention and a religious feeling toward life.

Silent film or sound film can be used. There are some advantages in using the silent film. One is the expense. It costs only about half as much as the sound film. The rental costs of silent and sound subjects run in about the same proportion. Silent projectors are also considerably less expensive than sound machines. The silent film is widely adaptable to various grade levels and numerous subjects fields. It can be presented from different angles to the various age groups because of the explanation that is necessary in presenting a silent film. On the other hand the sound film has the advantage of combining the hearing and the seeing and thus makes it more real to the person seeing the film. Furthermore, many of the newest and best films are made only in the sound version.

Different procedures can be used in showing these films. The leader, before showing the film, should pre-view it. A film should never be shown that has not been seen before the showing of it before an audience. Especially, is this true in showing one in a church. There are some advantages in this; one is that the leader can prepare a set of questions for discussion after the group showing if he pre-views it. Just before showing the picture, the theme of the film should be introduced with a few comments and one or two questions may be asked, the answers to which are to be found in the picture. Another method to be used is to have a committee of young people pre-view the film before the meeting in order to choose special phases of the subject on which they wish to report and to prepare for a panel discussion after the film. This shares responsibility, builds background for the meeting, and sets the discussion levels in the realm of the pupils' interests. As soon as the motion picture projector is seen in the church auditorium, or wherever the picture is to be shown, there will be an interest created. It is then up to the church to show something worthwhile.

The Religious Film Association

The fact that churches are recognizing the value of films as an aid is shown by the organizing of the Religious Film Association on March 26, 1942. This is incorporated as a non-profit organization in New York by sixteen church agencies representing nearly 122,000 local churches and it has a total Sunday school enrollment of about fifteen million. This association evaluates moving and still films suitable for church use and arranges for their distribution to its members. It also voices the opinions of church bodies as to what type of new films should be made and will attempt to stimulate their production. It provides for an educational program to help church workers learn effective techniques in the use of visual aids. It issues a catalog under their respective imprints. The catalog lists more than 250 motion pictures in addition to films strips and Kodachrome slides suitable for church use. The films are listed according to subject matter under such headings as "The Bible and Bible lands," "The Christian Life," "Missionary Education," and "Our Social Order." These listings include both sound and silent film.

For all types of projection work, room darkening and a good screen are important. There is no screen or projector which will show good pictures in daylight.

Whether one of these aids or all of them are chosen to be used by a church, it must be remembered that these are only aids to learning. They should be used with great care and in whatever way the material that is going to be presented can be presented in the best manner—that method should be used. It is hoped that some new ideas were given here, and that some church program may be enriched through the stimulus of this article.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Esther Wiens, Chicago, Illinois

NOVEMBER 8—"I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee." Jer. 31:3.

Was not the creation of man an expression of God's love? And, beginning with Adam, God loved man, and sought to have fellowship with him. We know little about Enoch, except that he walked with God. Abraham was by no means a perfect man, yet he trusted in God, and God was his friend. Moses was another man who loved God, and one whom God loved. David learned to trust in God as a shepherd boy. God loved him, and promised to establish his throne forever. At times when God had turned against the Children of Israel because of their sins, when individuals turned to Him in repentence and trusted in God, He became their friend and loved them. Elijah, Daniel and Jeremiah were beloved of God. Though the great host of people did not realize it, God loved them.

NOVEMBER 9—"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son." John 3:16.

In order to silence forever those who might question the love of God, He sent His Son. The little children came to our Master gladly, and He blessed them. On another occasion, as the sun was sinking in the west at the close of a busy day, they brought the sick to Jesus, and He healed them. See Him at the close of His ministry, just outside of Jerusalem, weeping, not in self-pity because of the inevitable, but in pity for His people who were even now rejecting their deliverer. John, scanning the path that Jesus had walked, saw that it formed a word and that word was LOVE.

NOVEMBER 10—Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us." I John 4:10.

Not many people have responded to the love of God. But you and I have. I think our devotion to the cause in which we believe looks rather weak when it is compared to some of the feats of heroism of which we read in the newspapers, of boys in the armed forces, whose buddies have been killed, and who insist on getting another lick at the enemy. I am not condoning their actions, but I do admire their devotion to a cause. Ought we not show an equal devotion to Christ, who gave His life for us? We have given Him a bit; let us give Him our best. If we have given Him our best, let us continue to give Him our best.

NOVEMBER 11—"We love Him, because He first loved us." I John 4:19.

Perhaps it would be more true to our experience if the verse read, "We ought to love Him, because He first loved us." To be perfectly honest with myself, I must say that I lack love for Christ. Might not this be due to the fact that we do not strengthen the bond between us and God by frequent contact? It is not by chance that Paul had such a great love for Christ, for He was Paul's constant, and often only companion. He could sincerely say, "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

NOVEMBER 12—Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought to love one another." I John 4:11.

Now that you have read the Scripture verse for today's consideration, you don't feel like reading further, because you already know everything I could possibly say on the subject of brotherly love. You've taught Sunday School lessons on the subject, you've given talks in young people's meetings on it, and even preached sermons on the subject. Does it necessarily follow that you and I are living lives of honesty, cooperation, kindness, and self-control? How can we expect others to take our teaching seriously, when we do not take it seriously ourselves? "Thou that teachest another, teachest thou not thyself?" "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

NOVEMBER 13—"And this commandment have we from Him, That he who loveth God love his brother also." I John 4:21.

During the days of religious intolerance, the early Mennonites stood for religious liberty. Most of us have been enjoying the blessing of religious liberty all of our lives. Now, religious liberty does not only mean religious liberty for me and those who agree with me. It means religious liberty for those who choose to disagree with me as well. If we cannot win those who disagree with us to our point of view, we can in a spirit of Christian love agree to disagree.

NOVEMBER 14—"The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." Mark 2:27.

During the week we had our daily devotions. However, if we had them in the morning, we were so rushed that we could not enter into fellowship with God as we would like. If we had them at night, we were so tired that we found it difficult to concentrate. But today we can really take time to commune with God. We are brought into the very presence of God as we worship in His House. And, as the love of God thrills us and fills us, our hands stretch out in love to Christians who have worshiped together with us, and to all others whom our lives touch.

BLACK-OUT

Cora M. Baer

Peggy put another smear of scarlet lipstick on her already over-done lips. The Van Hornes were gone and she was all alone in the large house where she was employed as a maid. It was fun sitting by her mistress's dressing table helping herself to her various make-up paraphernalia. Next came her eyes. She didn't know just exactly how to go about it, but some minutes later the face that was reflected from the mirror certainly was striking, to say the least, even if all the natural charm it possessed was gone.

Peggy was plainly delighted. "Won't Jack be thrilled when he comes this evening," she said aloud, "—or is it Hugh? I've forgotten. I do believe I have a date with both. Here's hoping they won't both get here at once. I'll go with the one who comes first. Hope it is Jack. He's more fun."

Suddenly she grew sober. "My, I hope Dad and Mother don't stop to take me along to Prayer Meeting. I wouldn't want them to catch me like this. Wouldn't they make a fuss," she added disrespectfully. Her serious mood passed quickly, however, as she twisted and flounced before the mirror.

"Now I'm ready," she said, glancing at the clock. "He should soon be here; it's nine o'clock."

She went down into the spacious living room to wait, and because the evening was warm she opened the window just back of the chair on which she was sitting. She always did feel more or less frightened to be alone in the big house which contained so many valuable things. She began to pace the floor restlessly, somehow it worried her about Jack and Hugh. She knew neither of the boys well enough to guess how they might react in such a situation. And it seemed she could not throw this off with her usual nonchalant, reckless air.

Then suddenly the air became vibrant with the long-drawn wail of the air-raid siren. There was something so weird and terrifying about the continued shrieking of the siren that Peggy was weak with fright, as she mechanically made her way through the large house to be assured that all the lights were out. These trial black-outs always did make her nervous, and now, tonight of all nights, the Van Hornes had to be away. The friendly street lights were still shining bravely, then suddenly, as if a thick, black curtain had been drawn, everything was submerged in blackness.

"I must make certain that the front door is locked," said Peggy as she made her way cautiously down the dark stairway. Oh, but it was dark! How she hated black-outs. There was nothing to do but sit still, and wait, and think. And those were three things Peggy did not like—sit still, and wait, and think! And more especially did she hate the darkness because thinking alone in the darkness usually called forth serious, sober thoughts. She knew her accusing conscience would not make pleasant company tonight.

Finally she reached the front door and turned the night lock. Then to her terror she found she was not alone, for she heard voices on the front porch. She felt suddenly weak and panicky. She remembered rumors of robberies during black-outs. They were unmistakably the low, husky voices of men—no doubt robbers. For some time she stood there petrified with fear, then suddenly she made a dash for the stairway. In the darkness she knocked over a vase and the long hall reverberated with the crash. She concluded that she could only succeed in making more noise if she tried to move far, and, finding herself by the arm chair by the open window, she dropped into its huge depth. Covering her face, she tried to make herself as small as possible. She thought of praying, but she was conscious that she had not kept on praying terms with God. Her accusing conscience afforded her miserable company, while outside—so near that she imagined she could almost feel their breath—went on the sound of voices—those terrible voices.

At length her heart ceased its violent throbbing sufficiently, so that the droning of masculine voices began to take on form, and she sat up alert as she heard her name mentioned. Then a new cold fear began to gnaw at her heart. She did not realize that in the surprise black-outs, Jack and Hugh, who were both approaching the Van Horne mansion, had taken refuge on the spacious porch, awaiting the all-clear siren. That is, she did not realize until she heard Jack's jolly voice saying, "Poor kid, I wonder if Peggy is in that black place alone."

"Peggy?" Hugh's voice took form, "Do you know her, too?"

"I guess I do. I have a date with her tonight."

The girl inside held her breath, waiting for a response. How would Hugh take this piece of information? If she expected a loud protest she was disappointed, for Hugh was silent while Jack continued,

"She's quite a kid. Sometimes I wonder why I date her, but I guess just to fill in sometimes. She's so loud and rude."

The girl inside felt her face flush with anger and chagrin. So that is why the boys had dates with her—when they couldn't get anyone else! Her terror left her as the new emotion of anger took possession of her.

"I feel rather sorry for the girl," Hugh's voice sounded more earnest than usual; "she thinks she's popular—she doesn't realize that the fellows grow tired of the way she forces herself on them. I certainly was disappointed in her. She comes from a different sort of a home than do most of the girls we are acquainted with. And I expected her to be different. That's why I made her acquaintance, because I was just about fed up with the loud, silly girls one bumps up with every day. Of all the girls I've ever been with, I've not seen one so altogether lacking in respect for her parents. I venture to say her parents are in prayer meeting tonight."

"Whew," whistled Jack incredulously, "they'd better pray for their Peggy."

"Perhaps they are," replied Hugh soberly. "Perhaps that is why we are talking things over like this. I came over tonight at her urgent invitation to take her to the movie. She told me with her silly titter that she really shouldn't go to the movie. Her parents would have a fit if they knew it. They want her to be a Christian light!

"Light, indeed," commented Jack dryly. "She reflects about as much light as this dark street."

"The more I thought it over," continued Hugh, "the more disinclined I felt about taking her to a movie. I came over to tell her that if she wanted to go to a show she would have to pick on another fellow. I lost my mother so long ago that I scarcely remember, and how I wish I might have had a mother to teach me the danger in some of these things. I'm not a saint, but I don't think it's right to lead a girl like Peggy on, even if she practically forces herself on a fellow."

Peggy's eye make-up was getting badly streaked as the angry tears that welled up in her eyes were followed by genuine tears of shame.

"And I came over to take her to the skating rink, at her skillful planning. I thought it would pass an otherwise dull evening, for time isn't dull with Peggy even though it may be awfully tiresome."

"Must be she gets her dates mixed," commented Hugh wryly. "She certainly lacks sincerity. She acted as though I was the only man in the universe. I wasn't greatly impressed by it, however."

"And I am positively the only boy she ever cared for," said Jack laughingly.

"There, if I'm not mistaken, that's the all-clear siren. Now we can move on," he added as the sound of whistles rent the stillness.

"And not see Peggy?" said Hugh teasingly.

"She may prefer the movie to skating," from Jack.

"It might be best for her to go to bed early," retorted Hugh as their retreating footsteps could be heard on the porch.

Peggy waited until she knew they must be out by the street, then she turned on the hall light and fled to her own room. She was no longer angry, but so thoroughly ashamed that she wanted to be locked in her own room when the Van Hornes returned.

There in solitude she shed bitter tears. As she thought of the heartaches she was causing her parents, she broke forth afresh with weeping. She suddenly saw herself as others saw her, and her life looked like an absolute blackout. Then somehow out of the darkness and shame came these words to her consciousness, "That was the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

Sincerely penitent she prayed, "O Father take away this awful darkness of sin, and let the beauty of the Christ life shine through me."

And as she cried out in faith, the deep darkness of spiritual blackout gave way to the glorious light of Christ.

Special Project for Fall Rally

Eastern District C. E. Union

To our C. E. Societies:

It has been the custom for several years to have a special project for our Fall Rally. A special plea for prayer and financial aid has come to us from the CANADIAN YOUTH ORGANIZATION. Their last few retreats have been held at the government owned Rosthern Experimental Farm, which includes one section of land, six large buildings, a number of smaller buildings, an orchard, gardens, etc. There is a great need in Canada to have a definite youth center, and this they feel would be an ideal place for it, also for establishing an orphan home, for having Bible school, and other similar activities.

Mr. J. C. Schmidt, their Y. P. representative, outlined this type of work to the Minister of Agriculture and expressed their desire to purchase the farm and he was willing to recommend its sale. The cost is estimated to be about twenty thousand dollars, and they want to make the largest possible payment on it by the end of the year. Thus, they need our help, and at the recent Eastern District executive meeting it was decided to accept this as our special project. We are hoping each society will want to have a share in this enterprise.

The FALL RALLY will be held at Souderton on Sunday afternoon, November 14. Part of the program will be the receiving of the funds for this project—each society will be called upon to present their contribution, be it large or small—and a short dedicatory service will follow. Therefore,

PLEASE REMEMBER

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

No. 1 of Series on Home Life and Family Ties

HAPPY HOMES MUST BE PLANNED

I. Worship Service: 1. Songs: "O Happy Home," No. 358, "Happy The Home," No. 361, 2. Reading of Luke 2:40-52, prayer, and leader's remarks. 3. Talks on "Good Mothers" and "Fine Fathers." 4. Offering for Relief work.

II. Leader's Introduction:

There is no better place for a person to find friends or the life companion than in the church. There is no better environment for wholesome opportunity to think together, to sing together, to see something of the inner life of each other than through the channels of church life. Being together in the same church services, in S. S., in C. E. and other church activities assures of a common interest in the spiritual things. The first step in planning for a happy home is the choice of the right life companion. This should be done carefully and prayerfully. Friends and our life companions help to mold our lives. The test of friendship is whether it enlarges your life, widens your sympathies, helps you to want to do the very best that is in you. No friendship is complete without the satisfaction there is in spiritual communion. Someone who meets these tests of friendship would have qualities which would make him or her a fit life companion.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. The founding of the first home, Gen. 2:18, 24.
2. What caused unhappiness in Jacob's home? Gen. 37:1-36.
3. Jesus and his relation to his home, Luke 2: 40, 51.
4. The home of Mary, Martha, and Lazarus—its fine qualities, Luke 10:38-42.

IV. For Discussion:

1. What traits of character help to make the home happy?
2. How can we plan to make our homes happy?
3. What part can work play in making the home happy? Social life?

V. Facts for Study:

Many a young couple has felt as they started out in life together that they would have a happy home. Despite difficulties which they did not foresee many have achieved a happy home. This kind of a home does not just happen. It takes diligent, day by day work to build it. The love for each other expressed in many little ways, the unkind, rash words left unspoken, the willingness to forgive one another, and to make allowances for little annoying habits the other one has are all parts needed for building the happy home. Working together and reading the same things is helpful, also association with friends, and a genuine interest in community affairs. Going to church together regularly and helping in the work of the church will also go a long way in bringing about happiness in the home.

VI. Illustrations:

"Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee"

A little girl had been told many times by a childless old couple that if she would come and live with them, they would get her everything she wanted, a pony and cart, a piano, and the like. One day when they had been particularly urgent her father, with whom she was riding, said: "Don't you think you had better go with them?" The little girl looked up at him in alarm and cried, "Why, Father, don't you want me?" "Yes," he replied, "but I can't give you very much, and they will give you everything nice." "But I wouldn't have you!" she said as she snuggled up to him.

"A Friend Loveth at All Times"

A man went into a flower shop the other day, and selected a few flowers, saying, "They are my wife's favorites." The young lady expressed sympathy at the illness of his wife. "Ill!" he exclaimed. "My wife is as well as you are, thank you." The assistant apologized, saying, "I beg your pardon for my mistake, but to tell you the truth, husbands don't usually buy flowers for their wives unless the wives are ill or dead." It is a poor, foolish thoughtlessness which leaves the expression of love until the day of sickness or death.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Songs:

"Give of Your Best to the Master,"
"Rise up, O Men of God,"
"Where Cross the Crowded Ways,"
"In Christ There Is No East or West."

Scripture Lesson: Matt. 5:13-16.

Twenty-five years ago the world rejoiced when the Armistice was signed. A peace in which God was completely omitted has again created a world dilemma. When the world puts its faith in nothing but iron and gold—when it fears everything but God—is it surprising? Hate and destruction are not God's way. Great empires are not His goal. His kingdom lies within the hearts of men. Luke 4:18 tells us how Jesus spent His time. Today there are people who are binding up wounds, healing the broken hearts, weeping with the sorrowing, suffering and sharing with the oppressed.

The Carpenter of Galilee
Comes down the street again,
In every land, in every age,
He still is building men.

He serves his country best
Who lives pure life and doeth righteous deed,
And walks straight paths however other stray,
And leaves his sons, as uttermost bequest,
A stainless record which all men may read:
This is the better way.

Things to think about:

1. How may I serve God and my country best?
2. How may our religion be "a thing of selfish ecstacy?"
3. Where does the good Samaritan way begin? How far can it reach?
4. Discuss "Nationalism is the greatest enemy to peace."
5. How can we help build "a world fraternity"?

Lord, let not my religion be
A thing of selfish ecstacy;
But something warm with tender care
And fellowship which I can share.
Let me not walk the other side
Of trouble's highway long and wide;
Make me a Good Samaritan,
And neighbor unto evry man.

Who is the patriot?
He who lights the torch
From hill to hill
Or he who kindles on the heights
The beacon of a world's good-will?

Who is the patriot?
He who sends a boastful
Challenge o'er the sea
Or he who sows the world with friends
And reaps a world-fraternity?

Who is the patriot?
It is he who knows no
Boundary, race, or creed;
Whose nation is humanity, whose countrymen
All souls in need.

Closing Prayer:

If I can make a burden less,
If I can aid one in distress,
If I can spread more happiness,
Lord, show me how.

SHALL WE COMPLAIN?

Do you often complain of rationing and present-day living conditions? Read what Menno Simons had to say about his times:

"He who purchased me with the Blood of His love, and called me, who am unworthy, to His service, knows me and knows that I seek not wealth, nor possessions, nor luxury, nor ease, but only the praise of the Lord, my salvation, and the salvation of many souls. For this I, my poor, feeble wife and children have for eighteen years endured extreme anxiety, oppression, affliction, misery and persecution, and at this period of my life have been compelled everywhere to live in fear and seclusion; yea, when ministers repose on easy beds and downy pillows, we generally have to hide ourselves in secluded corners. . . . In short, whilst they are gloriously rewarded for their services with large incomes and easy times, our recompense and portion must be fire, sword and death."

Relief Notes

News From Middle East Commissioners

A telegram dated October 13, from Yoder and Kirchhofer reports their safe arrival at Jerusalem. They are continuing to investigate areas in need of relief work.

Returns from Puerto Rico

Returning from Puerto Rico, Orie O. Miller reports that the Mennonite Unit at La Plata is off to a good start. This island has a population of almost two million, and is one of the most densely settled areas in the world. Poverty and disease are prevalent and there are many opportunites to meet both physical and spiritual needs.

Puerto Rico Need

Wilbur Nachtigall, Director of the Mennonite Unit at La Plata, gives a vivid description of the needs of Puerto Rico in a recent letter:

"When poverty drives life to its shabbiest and then saps from it the very bare necessities, there is little about it that is attractive. It is hard to realize that these people are so poor in a country that God has made so rich with beauty and natural attractiveness.... The jungles of squalid shelters in the slums of the cities, the under-nourished babies playing with pigs on the front doorsteps, the beggars with disease-ravaged bodies in every city plaza,—these attest the fact of the island's many social and economic ills.

"Under such conditions of poverty, caused by overpopulation, lack of nourishing food; with ramshackled homes built of scrap lumber, tin, and palm leaves; with screens so rare as to be an oddity; with sewage disposal left to the rain in many instances; with water supplies polluted, is it little wonder that there is disease and sickness. Persons weakened by intestinal parasites and malaria are very susceptible to tuberculosis, pneumonia, and influenza. Venereal diseases are higher in San Juan than any other place in the world; malaria rates are high along the coast; in rural areas very many children are infected by hookworm.

"I wonder, are not conditions of poverty such as these a badge of shame to a civilization that condones their existence? I wonder, too, how we as a church have neglected Puerto Rico, and how we have failed to include it in our missionary and benevolent endeavors?"

Nonresistant Relief Organization Meets

C. L. Graber, Mennonite Central Committee Relief Director, attended the meeting of the Nonresistant Relief Organization at Kitchener, Ontario, October 13. The monthly support of clothing and funds for England and India will continue. This organization together with the Mennonite Central Committee is waiting for reports from commissioners in these areas to guide them in possible expansion of relief efforts. Nonresistant Relief Organization, together with the Mennonite Central Relief Committee of Western Canada, and the Canadian Mennonite Relief Committee co-operate with the Mennonite Central Committee in a program of relief.

Arrive in Argentina

The Klassens and Schmidts enroute to Paraguay have safely arrived in Buenos Aires, a recent letter reports.

C.P.S. Camps

Meeting with Selective Service

On Thursday evening, October 14, representatives of the church agencies met with General Hershey and other Selective Service officials to discuss the proposals for C.P.S. in 1944.

Changing C.P.S.

It seems quite certain that transfers in C.P.S. in the months of October and November will affect 800 men. Many of the moves will affect the west coast, fire-fighting camps. Of the 500 to be moved in October, the Mennonite Central Committee has provision to place 250 of its men in mental hospitals.

C.P.S. men planting potatoes at the Hagerstown, Maryland, project. A good many of the camps raise a large amount of foodstuffs, but it takes a great deal of food to feed men who do hard, physical work.

Other types of state institutions as well as farm units will receive additional men.

Relief Training Unit

C.P.S. No. 85, Howard, Rhode Island, is also to become a center for relief training. In order to accomodate men interested in relief work, this unit will receive an additional twenty men. The men will devote their spare time to relief training similar to the unit at Ypsilanti, Michigan.

Hagerstown Project Approved

A project for the study and practice of farm and community life has been approved for one of the Hagerstown Units. This project will be conducted for a period of four months beginning January 1, and will accomodate about thirty men. The purpose of the unit is to train men who are eager to be of service in a rural community. Beside the usual work of soil conservation, the unit will observe how to maintain and strengthen a rural Christian community.

Peace Section

Peace Churches in Canada

The Annual Conference of the Historic Peace Churches (in Canada) met at Waterloo, Ontario, October 14. At this meeting a number of the western churches of Canada made application for membership and were accepted. The Military Problems Committee report contained a number of significant items:

(1) The Home Defence Course in Canadian High Schools has caused a lot of concern. The Minister of Education, however, has promised a consideration if a problem of conscience arises.

(2) The Department of War Service has refused to change the Order in Council that bars C. O's of of military age from attending universities unless they take basic training.

(3) A recent Order in Council has been established whereby a C. O. can be enlisted in a noncombatant capacity with units of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps and the Canadian Dental Corps. Such services do not require the bearing of arms, but shall be subject to military law.

(4) The total amount subscribed for non-interest bearing certificates and for Victory Loan Bonds with a sticker attached (designating the use of the funds for relief work) is $2,042,985.00. (This provision in Canada is similar to the Civilian Bond provision in United States.)

Tracts: Their Use in Mennonite Circles

By Walter A. Gering

My discussion shall be in the form of a preliminary report on a project which has been undertaken by the Evangelism Committee of the General Conference and which we hope shall become a helpful project for the ministers of our Conference. Several months ago the members of the committee were challenged by the dire lack of appropriate literature and helps which ministers might use in the daily course of their activities, literature which would be inexpensive, yet inspirational and to the point in its appeal, literature which in a few words might express the great fundamental truths of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ in an attractive challenging manner, literature which the pastor in his daily rounds in the average Mennonite community might use effectively in strengthening the work of the church. As members of the Committee we felt the need of such literature in the various phases of pastoral work. Let me illustrate just a few of the needs which presented themselves.

First, the work of the catechetical instruction class. Every pastor will admit that the catechetical instruction class lies heavily upon his heart. This class presents an opportunity such as no other class or contact ever presents, for those who enter such a class do so with the full consciousness that they are there for the purpose of making an eternal covenant with their Saviour, culminating in the Holy rite of baptism and membership in the church. Such a class is an opportunity for the pastor, yet contact with fellow ministers has revealed that most of us find ourselves at a loss often as to how this responsibility shall be fulfilled. We have the Word of God and our catechism booklets, yet often we feel the need of other helps which might in a simple form assist in making clear the way of salvation, the great fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith and the responsibilities of church membership. Part of our catechetical instruction involves the teaching of our own Mennonite position and history. Where can literature be found which might be used effectively in leading the way in such instruction?

Then there is the work of pastoral visitation. A great part of pastoral visitation is taken up with those who are ill. Some of them, of course, are too ill to do any reading. But many are confined to the sick room for days, even weeks with little to occupy them but their own thoughts. Time hangs heavy upon their hands; they become discouraged and perplexed. Many a patient has been grateful for bits of inspirational, devotional literature which has reached the bedside: some great poem, words of comfort, illustrations of God's faithfulness, etc. The pastor can be of tremendous help by supplying such literature. But where can such be found?

Not all visitation work is confined to those who are physically sick. There are those who need guidance because of spiritual illness: doubts, fears, and confusion confronts them and they seek a ray of light. Sometime ago a father approached his pastor with the appeal "I want you to come over to visit us—I am confused in my own mind and want to talk it over with you." The pastor can be of help with his own words and by suggesting passages of Holy Writ. But often literature upon the particular problem left in the hands of the inquirer may summarize in a few words that which the minister has said. Where can such literature be found?

Then there are those in pastoral work who are bereaved because of death which has taken a loved one from their side. How often we as ministers feel completely at loss as to what to say; our words seem so weak and helpless. In such a time a good tract or pamphlet may serve well. Just the other day a mother left alone through death expressed her deepest gratitude for a poem she received in her dark hour from a friend. That illustration might be repeated countless times.

Catechetical instruction classes—pastoral work—then there is the field of the home. Young people need guidance in the establishment of a home in these days as seldom before: problems of friendship, courtship, the marriage service, the building of a home all are vital questions which young people ponder as

Non-Resident Church Members.

It is not un-common for our churches to have a membership roll of which 10 to 15 percent are non-resident members. Some marry into another rural, Mennonite community, but retain their membership in the home church. Some move to towns and cities where there is either a church of our own conference or of some other Mennonite branch, but they keep their membership in the church which baptized them. Some move to places where there is no Mennonite church but where there are other Mennonites. Some move to where there are no Mennonites at all.

Dangers of Non-resident Membership

"Belonging" to the home church but living somewhere else usually results in not definitely belonging anywhere. Belonging to the "home church" often gives a sense of false security. To be listed on a church roll is not far as important as being an active, serving, growing member of the body of Christ wherever one is. Those who do not become members of a church where they live are often tempted to be lax in church and Sunday School attendance, in giving for the work of God's kingdom, and in fellowshipping with other consecrated Christians. Furthermore, they usually miss out on regular, intimate pastoral care. Since they belong to no church where they live, most or all of the ministers of the place do not feel constrained to care for them as though they were one of their flock. Even though the minister may want to, it is very difficult for Him to make any intimate approaches in spiritual matters for he has to face the separating wall of membership elsewhere. The home minister, on the other hand, is occupied with the needs of his resident members and finds it difficult to give them pastoral care through the mails.

What Can Be Done

Whenever a family moves to some community where there is a Mennonite church, the pastor of the home church can urge that family to affiliate with the church in the new community just as soon as possible. Our pastors have been slow to do this, possibly, because they feared giving the impression that a non-resident family was no longer welcome on the roll of the home church. Our people must be taught to understand that the pastor is promoting their welfare when he urges them to join another church in the place to which they have moved. The same holds true where a member marries into another Mennonite community.

If families move to a place where there is no church of our conference but where there is one of another Mennonite branch, they might well be urged to affiliate themselves with that. Surely, we Mennonites ought not to be too far apart for that. To my mind comes a General Conference family which attends an "Old" Mennonite church with much profit. When Mennonites refuse to make such a choice and join another denomination instead, they are not exactly paying a very high tribute to Mennonitism. If there is no Mennonite church, but there are Mennonites and they do not live too far apart, they might well meet together in some home or other place for fellowship, worship, and promotion of the work of our conference.

In case families move to a place where there are no Mennonites at all, they can be urged to become associate members with some church, while retaining their membership in the Mennonite Church. In this case the home pastor can send them the home church bulletin regularly, he can make a pastoral call upon them by a carefully written letter, he can urge the church to supply the non-resident members with The Mennonite or the Bundesbote and the Junior Messenger for the juniors in the family and such as the Mennonites and Their Heritage booklets. Those who are away are in very great need of such aids to the spiritual life. The pastor can invite the non-resident members to send short messages for the bulletin. Non-resident members can be mentioned by name at the prayer-meeting. They can be sent pictures of church groups, Sunday School picnics, etc. All this takes time, effort, and planning, but it is something that can be done. The non-resident members in turn can send their contributions for various causes directly to the home church treasurer, and they can speak for our understanding of the gospel wherever they are and thereby be missionaries.

Soon our churches will again publish their year books. Perhaps, some of our pastors will want to help their non-resident members find a new and definite church home before that time. In case of those who will want to keep their membership, he may want to arrange for regular, intimate contact by means of letter, bulletin, prayer, church papers, and other literature. Members who have left the flock need much more care than they have generally gotten. Maybe there should never be a cause for them to leave for far-away places, but that is another subject.—rw.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

MISSIONS DURING THESE STRENUOUS TIMES

By S. T. Moyer

I was riding along on a passenger train with my friend Sydney, secretary of his mission. He was expecting a fellow-worker to come onto the train as we were nearing the railway station. He showed me the mission station as the train came to the outskirts of the town. "How many members do you have here?" I asked him. "None," he said, in his unvarnished way of speaking. "How long has this work been opened?" "Well", he replied, "it had been held by some Swedish group since twenty-five years back, until we took it over about a dozen years ago." We went to a junction point, where we left our friend. On the new train I asked him how many members he had in his church in J—. Again I received the same reply, "None." At our final destination there had been a work going on in the name of Christ since 1916 by this same mission. Again I asked, "How many converts do you have coming in from the non-Christians?" As far as I could learn, during the last decade they had had just about NONE. I quizzed my friend Sydney concerning their churches in three or four or five other places, and always got the same monotonous, laconic reply, "We have work there, but no converts."

I was amazed. It is unthinkable to me that any missionary effort should be so devoid of fruits. Sydney represented a church that has spread its work rapidly over India. They boast of about twenty-two mission stations. These people are deeply sincere. They believe in the Bible from cover to cover. The blood of Jesus Christ, the work of the Holy Spirit, Christ's coming again, the Spirit's manifestation in Pentacostal power—these were some of their chief teachings. They could not be accused of basing their work on a sterile modernism. And yet with twenty-two stations opened in India, they were practically devoid of results. And they had invited me into their midst to tell them how to get them! And doubtless some good Mennonite money has gone through their channels to help open these twenty-two stations.

My amazement was not allayed when I returned to Janjgir, and one of our local boys, a high school student, reported to me that he had attended one of their evangelistic meetings in the city of J—. "How often did you go?" I asked. "Oh, I went two or three time." "How many people attended?" I again asked? His reply dumbfounded me, "There were only thirteen there, and I was one of the thirteen."

The churches I have known in India are filled at all times of the year, except from January to Easter, when we have had from two on up to six groups out on evangelistic tours, and many of the leading members out working elsewhere earning a livelihood, away from their fields. Two hundred, three hundred, and even four hundred are the audiences I am acquainted with in my work in India for ordinary services. And yet here in J—, with a special speaker, they had only thirteen, and perhaps a rough check up of the ten out of the twenty-two churches concerning which I inquired with their mission secretary could reveal a membership almost nil.

I went to a neighboring city. My hostess was a most engaging sort of a personality. Two years ago she and her husband were the center of energetic, evangelistic efforts. Off fifty miles to the north they have two stations famous for the strength of the church and the fervor of the evangelistic work in the surrounding areas. "Did you and your husband get out during this cold season touring?" I asked. "No, we just did not seem to be able to manage it. The strenuous times in which we live seem to have kept us at home." Of converts in, they had nothing to report. They had none this last year. After the conversation ran on a bit, I asked concerning the stations to the north. "What is the report from them? Have Mr. and Mrs. R. been out?" "No. There is nothing to report there. They too seem not to have been out with two stations on their hands." Again I was dismayed and dumbfounded.

That night I took my train home. I found a member of a third mission on the crowded train bound for Calcutta. Again our talk fell to evangelism and the work of Christ in making disciples. The young man, almost without my asking any questions and not in any spirit of fault finding began to mention one missionary after another, and not a single one had been out this last season. "She wanted to get out, but she is getting old, and somehow could not get out." "He had fully planned on going out on evangelistic campaigns, but he had a couple of relief building projects on his hands and he could not make it." "He was expecting to go, but he got sick and could not." "I am just waiting for the time when I can try my own ideas, but I was tied up with our local schools which have fallen into our hands, and my wife and I could not get out." Thus his story ran. Then of his own accord this fine, young, promising missionary began telling his heartache and headaches over his Indian co-workers, evangelists and teachers. One man refused to go. Another has this excuse. Another's wife had a baby. etc, etc.

On top of these three experiences with three different missions, all within six weeks period of time, I came back to my own mission. Convinced as we are that there are diversities of ministrations, but the same Lord, and that there are diversities of workings, but the same God. Convinced as we are that our concern must cover the whole man, body, mind, and soul, medical, educational and evangelistic. Convinced as we are that there nevertheless must be primacy of value, and that nothing is efficacious without the blood of Jesus Christ to cleanse from all sin, and the power of the risen and living Lord to enable us to walk in this sin-cleansed state, the fullness of hope in Jesus Christ . . .

YET, I am safe in saying, I believe, that every last missionary man, regardless of his special work, has been out in evangelistic work during the past few months, and that many many or most of our missionary women have also gone out. In spite of the strenuous times in which we live, with hard times, relief, tight money, the scramble for food and supplies, reorganizational plans, added emphasis upon leadership production, what not, I wonder whether we have ever had a greater year in evangelism than what we had during the early part of 1943. "The King's business requireth haste."

What is the war doing to missions? It might swamp them, and might swamp us. But it has not yet swamped us. The living Christ IS vindicating His power. Read the results in India Calling, Vol. IV, No. 2, spring issue 1943. "Like a mighty army, Moves the Church of God" in your field in India. The other day I could count and list eight new evidences of the quickening power in the Janjgir work. One of these is a new zeal for soul winning in evidence amongst two of our Indian leaders.

I just cannot understand the report of my young friend when he complained of the spirit of his Indian co-workers. The following letter is just one of a dozen I received these past four months. They come in, because I cannot be everywhere at once. I must spend some time on the station, being the only man there. I must spend some with with other gospel teams elsewhere. I must spend some time with the local church, writing letters to the U.S.A., and keeping financial records. So when I cannot be with all my teams everywhere, letters like this come in. If I had the men and women and money and the soul, and physical energy, I would have a dozen gospel teams perennially in the field. To be with each one would be an impossibility. The following is a typical or average letter which comes in.

"Dear Sahibji:

Please accept the "Salaams" from all workers in the Sukli Camp. First of all, you should know that by the mercy of God we are well and happy. No one is sick. God is giving us much help, and is daily giving us new strength and power by which with great joy we are able to serve Him.

We thank God that He sent us to Sukli, that the Sukli people with great joy are keenly interested to hear the word of God by our efforts. The village indeed is large, and the workers indeed are very few. Our night meetings are in two places, one amongst the Hindus, the other amongst the outcastes. For this reason we have need for oil at night. We cannot buy coy dung cakes nor wood. So we kindly ask that without fail you send a cart with fuel tomorrow morning."

This letter was written during the hot season, when folks at home fear to leave home because of the heat. Note that three times the writer speaks of "joy" or "happy." Thankfulness is there. That village is the second away from Janjgir. The writer of the letter walked in from that village early Sunday morning for Mothers' Day services, stayed over the noonday blaze of May-time heat in India, and later in the afternoon walked back through the blazing heat so as to be there for the evening meetings. Again the next day, Monday, she walked in with her baby, to be present for the marriage of one of their young comrades, who had taken unto himself a wife.

Policy Regarding Cases of Dependency of Men in C.P.S.

Mennonite Central Committee

The M. C. C. has become increasingly aware of a growing dependency problem confronting men in C.P.S. Young men have generally found it possible to make provision for dependents for a term of a year, but they are finding it increasingly difficult there after to provide adequately for the needs of a dependent wife and child or of ailing parents. Under stress of such difficult circumstances involving the well-being of their loved ones, some young men have felt compelled to ask for transfer to non-combatant service in the army.

The further drafting of fathers is bound to increase the dependency problem. Some of these fathers facing induction may out of sheer economic necessity feel compelled to ask for service in the military forces because that provides some measure of support for their loved ones. It is obvious that some assurance need to be given to young men, both those in camps and those about to be inducted, that the M.C.C. and its constituent groups stand ready to help them find a satisfactory answer to their dependency problems and that thus they need not decide questions of conscience on the basis of economic necessity.

In order to take care of the dependency problem the M.C.C. passed the following resolution on May 30, 1942:

"It is our conviction that it is the responsibility of the church to provide aid for needy dependents of men in C.P.S. camps who cannot be cared for by their families, and that assurance should be given to men facing the draft that the church will provide for this need to the utmost of its ability. We believe that this is primarily a responsibility of the local congregation and the general body to which it belongs.

"The function of the M.C.C. in this matter should be to see that all cases of need are brought to the attention of the proper church officials and cared for and to provide for cases which cannot be cared for otherwise . . ."

The M.C.C. in this resolution tried to follow what was generally regarded as good, sound, Mennonite practice and in harmony with the scriptural admonition to "bear one another's burdens." The M.C.C. still believes this to be good, sound practice. The September 18, 1943, meeting of the M.C.C., to which all of its representatives were invited, recommended that a statement be sent to its constituent groups explaining the M.C.C. policy and suggesting ways in which this problem might satisfactorily be handled. Below is given a picture of the way in which the M.C.C. believes this dependency problem would ordinarily find a happy solution in Mennonite circles.

1. The local church would make certain that every young man in its membership who is subject to the draft or already in camp knows what provisions there are for the care of dependents. If he faces serious difficulties he is invited to discuss them freely with leaders of his church or to write to the M.C.C. office if he prefers.

2. Mennonite young men facing induction generally earnestly try to provide for their loved ones themselves, either by helping them secure employment or by other methods. Such self-reliant effort should be encouraged and given assistance.

3. In Mennonite circles parents and family groups generally would be quick to sense needs that might worry a drafted young man and just as quick to come to his assistance. They generally find great satisfaction in providing for members of their own group. Together with the young man and his dependents they seek to find some service for dependents that will safeguard both their self-respect and that of the young man involved and will give both the satisfying feeling that they are earning the cost of their maintenance, if not more. Where employment of dependents is impossible because of health conditions other solutions would be found that would respect the feelings of those being assisted.

4. The local church, without waiting for a dependency problem to be dropped in its lap, would be alert to discover whether any young men subject to the draft, about to be inducted, or already in camp were or had been able to make satisfactory provision for the care of dependent loved ones. If not, it would immediately seek to discover whether the man's family group wished and was able to take care of the dependents satisfactorily without too heavy a burden to themselves. Every member should know that the church is organized to offer effective assistance in making satisfactory and necessary provision for dependents. The church in its efforts would again try:

(1) To assist the family group if and where necessary, either by helping to find useful work and a place to live for dependents or by providing some supplementary monthly allowance for their maintenance.

(2) To provide opportunity for self-help to dependents in cooperation with the young man.

(3) To discover other ways of caring for dependents where health or other conditions prevent useful employment.

All such efforts should be carried on with a sensitive regard for the feelings of those involved and with a genuine Christian concern for their well-being.

5. Normally local churches, where conditions make it impossible or difficult for them to meet the needs of dependents of men in service, would report this fact to their larger conference organization. These conference organizations through their relief committees generally are ready to supplement the efforts of the young man or of his family group or of the church by making such contributions of service or money as may be needed or desired.

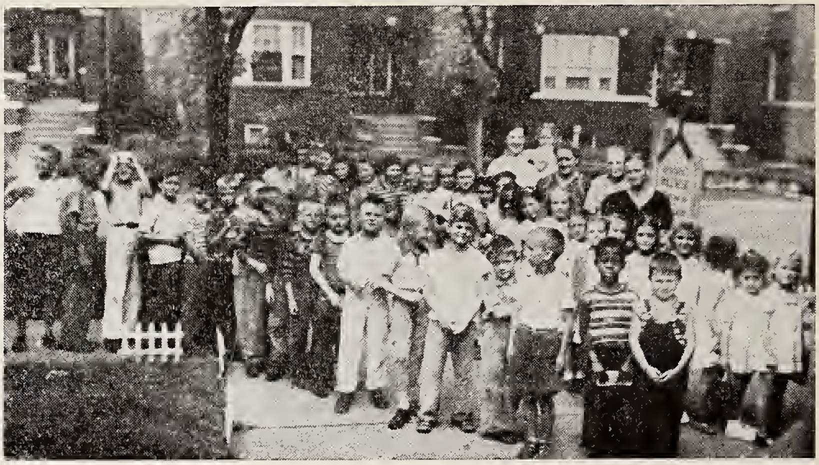
6. The M.C.C. stands ready to cooperate with the young man, his family group, his church, and his conference in every effort to provide satisfactorily for the needs of dependents. It encourages gainful employment of dependents wherever possible. Where this is not possible it is able to assist with funds which interested friends have made available through contributions. It will be glad to help wherever possible in saving the young man or his family from unnecessary embarrassment in trying to provide for their own dependents.

7. It should be emphasized that the young man or his family or his friends or his church should feel entirely free to write their concern to the M.C.C. office whenever they so desire.

8. The M.C.C. would follow in general a similar procedure in trying to give assistance to non-Mennonite C.P.S. men in our camps with their dependency problems. It would want to serve them in the same spirit in which Christ would want us to serve them.

Our Mission in Southwest Chicago

Mennonite Bible Mission, 4221 South Rockwell Street



Children of Southwest Chicago stand outside the doors of the Mennonite Bible Mission, ready to enter and begin the activities of Bible school. The woman holding the child is Mrs. John T. Neufeld. Mrs. Neufeld grew up in this mission since her parents, Brother and Sister A. F. Wiens, carried on the work. Mrs. Wiens is shown standing between the other two women. Five of her daughters are the wives of ministers or missionaries. They are: Mrs. John T. Neufeld, Mrs. John Thiessen of India, Mrs. August Ewert of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, (now home on furlough as a missionary to China.) Mrs. Henry A. Toews of North Newton, Kansas, (Brother and Sister Toews have served as missionaries in Africa and plan to return) and Mrs. George Dick, now of Bloomfield, Montana, and formerly of Lima, Ohio. Sara and Esther, two younger daughters at home, have had Bible school, seminary, and other training. Sara serves as choir director and organist in the mission. Esther, who serves as teacher in the mission, is contributing the devotional messages for this month.

Herewith is the picture, showing the improvements in the interior of our mission. The workers and members of the mission can rejoice in two forward steps in the history of the work here.

The first of these was the purchase of the mission property by the Mission Board. This has been consummated, and the property deed is now in the name of the Conference. This step insures the permanency of the work and is also a definite check on the nature of the work that will be carried on in the future.

The second step was the improvement of the interior of the chapel. This was undertaken by the members here. They have within the last two years put in new pulpit furniture, new pews, and a new Inlaid Linoleum floor at a total cost of about one-thousand dollars.

The arrangement of the pulpit furniture is not just a new idea but represents the nature of the Christian Church. In the center is the plain wooden cross, representing and pointing to the central fact in the Christian faith. In the front of the platform stand the pulpit and the flower altar. These two pieces of furniture represent the two functions of the Christian Church. The pulpit is for and is symbolical of the true function of the church, that of preaching the gospel; and the flower altar is symbolical of that other function of the church which is often forgotten, namely, the preparation of the Bride of Christ for the coming of the

This picture shows the chapel of the Mennonite Bible Mission. It will seat a hundred people comfortably. Spread around it are classrooms. Mrs. Wiens and her daughters live on the second floor. Here there is also a guest room and a classroom. It was here that the Witmarsum Seminary Board recently met and was hospitably entertained.

Lord. We constantly strive that we may not only gather new members for the Kingdom of God but that old members may be perfected, purified, prepared for Christ.

The mission was opened here in 1917 by Rev. and Mrs. Wiens. During the twenty-five years of its history over one thousand children have been enrolled in the Sunday school. About one hundred souls have been baptized. Two members are now in foreign mission work. Quite a number of former members are engaged in church work in other churches. A large number of people owe their salvation to the fact that this church ministered to them in the hour of their affliction and close of life.

The mission has a friendly relationship with the other Protestant churches of the community. None of them are within a half a mile, so that there is any overlapping of territory. The nature or spirit of the work as carried on has also been a very healthy factor and an encouragement to the other churches. While the mission has received a good allowance from the Home Mission Board, which is greatly appreciated, it has also taught its members to give. The total contribution by the local church for the year of 1942 was $1,771.20, an average of over $26 per member. $332.81 of this was for mission purposes other than local church expenses here.

While other churches of this community have had a change of pastors almost every few years this church has had only two pastors in twenty-five years. This is a home by the side of the road where comfort and salvation are offered to the passerby. Our Vacation Bible school is twenty years old. It was one of the first to be held in Chicago and has continued regularly.

Our Vacation Bible School

This summer Bible School was a record school in several ways. It was the longest term of summer Bible school held here. We have always had from three to five weeks of Bible school. This summer the school was held for six weeks, with four days a week. The total enrollment was seventy-five, and the average attendance was fifty. Each session consisted of one hour of Bible school and one hour of handwork and play. Each child thus received twenty-four hours of Christian education during the summer, or in other words at least one-third as much as he or she receives during one year of church.

It was also a record school in that twenty-two pupils were perfect for the entire six weeks and ten more for five weeks.

The expenses of the school were borne by the fund received from the Stock Yards Community Council. The children, however, gave their daily offering for relief purposes. This amounted to $48 (Sent to Mennonite relief). This again was a record for offerings taken during vacation Bible school. Eight teachers and helpers gave their time and effort to the work.

The Mennonite Bible Mission from the outside. The two-story, wooden structure is without a basement. The mission owns two lots. On one of them, removed from the street and north of the mission building, is the home of Brother Neufeld. Neighboring children come to play in the yard in front of the house. The community is densely settled.

Outing—Rain—Songs

One of the great experiences of the Bible school was the experience at the outing when it rained. Every week-end we went to some park or forest reserve. One day it rained while we were out on a hike. We sought the nearest park shelter and there crowded into one end of an already over-crowded space. The groups in the shelter were partly wet and very low in spirits. Our children started singing as if spontaneous combustion had set in. The songs that had been learned at the Bible school came out just as easy as the usual popular songs came out. For over an hour people in that shelter enjoyed the singing of the children: Later the rain stopped and the hikes were resumed. On the way home in the street car the rain started again and so did the singing. —John T. Neufeld

PROFESSIONAL PREACHING

A sailor on shore between two whaling expeditions was taken by a friend to hear an eloquent preacher. After the service the friend said, "Well, what do you think of that for a sermon! Wasn't it fine?"

"Yes," said the sailor, "it was shipmade: the masts just high enough; the sails and the rigging all right; but I did not see any harpoons: When a vessel goes on a whaling voyage, the great thing is to get whales, but they do not come because you have a fine ship; you must go after them and harpoon them. Souls are caught in the same way."

Paul preached "first of all . . . that Christ died for our sins." I Cor. 15:3. The first and foremost purpose in preaching is to bring sinners to the Saviour.—Pentecostal Evangel

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Esther Wiens, Chicago, Illinois

NOVEMBER 15 "And they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus." Acts 4:13

Yesterday we were in the Mount with Christ, and breathed some of the breath of heaven. But today the voice of duty calls us downward to toil and to be mixed with the throng. Yet into these relationships we will bring a purity of thought and action so that it will be obvious to our associates that we have been fellowshiping with the source of all that is good and holy and beautiful.

NOVEMBER 16—"And who is my neighbor?" Luke 10:29

Today it is not one man who has been stripped of his clothing, and wounded, and left half-dead, but it is thousands of children, women and men, and aged people who have been stripped of their clothing, and who have been left to die from wounds or from starvation. Some of our lives have not been struck by the tragedy which has struck so many lives, except perhaps that it has increased our incomes. Can we walk by this host of suffering humanity, sighing in pity, perhaps, but not seeking to be of real assistance to them?

NOVEMBER 17—"Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Matt. 25:40

In a day when greed and hatred are killing each other, how thankful we ought to be that our Mennonite youth have the opportunity to appeal for constructive work. We appreciate to some extent the sacrifice you C.O.'s have made to give expression to your faith. We pray that you may be given increasingly better opportunities to exemplify the love of Christ as you seek to serve mankind.

NOVEMBER 18—"For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same?" Matt. 5:46

It is one thing to serve when it is appreciated, it is quite another thing to serve, when it is not understood or appreciated. One day, during the pre-prohibition days, father was accosted by a man whom he recognized as an enemy of the mission. The half-drunken man delivered several well aimed blows at my father's face, breaking his nose. Again, mother tells of inviting a mother to our church services. The woman pointed to her dog and said, "the dog can go, but I will not." God had called my parents to do city mission work, and discouraging incidents would not deter them.

NOVEMBER 19—"Do all to the glory of God." I Cor. 10:31

Serving Christ is not limited to one or two spheres of service. The homemaker can serve Christ as she influences the lives of her children for good. The office worker can diffuse the spirit of Christ in a non-Christian environment. The Christian teacher can be a great influence for good, and for Christ. The medical profession, which received such an impetus from the life and attitude of Christ, is the natural environment of one who seeks to serve Christ. The eighty-six-year-old creator of the Hershey Chocolate millions was asked what period in a man's life he considered to be the most productive. He simply said, "Now." We can serve Christ "Now."

NOVEMBER 20—"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." Eccles. 9:10

We look at others who have succeeded in some field of work, and think how we could glorify God if we were in that position. Wishful thinking is an outlet for emotions, but it accomplishes nothing. If we will constantly put that energy into action we will begin to experience the success which we envied in others. Rev. Leroy Mitchel, pastor of a negro church in Chicago, in his droll way pointed out that it was George Washington Carver's ability to concentrate on a peanut which brought such benefits to the Southland.

NOVEMBER 21—"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord." Ps. 122:1

This morning, as the church bells are ringing, doors are opening as groups of parents and children and young people come to church. In the meanwhile, in other towns and cities, other groups of worshipers are walking to other churches. Among these worshipers today, are a host of Christians who are giving expression to the Christian's urge to serve, by teaching in the Sunday School.

NOVEMBER 22—"For a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." Luke 12:15

Summer has passed, even the warmth of Indian Summer is over. And we cannot heat our homes too much because we must conserve fuel. Thankful? It was a cold November day in 1615, when the Mayflower entered Cod Harbour. The exploring party of Pilgrims, their clothes frozen by ocean spray, found the new country bleak and uninviting. But they were not seeking comfort and ease; they came for religious liberty. Several weeks later, they landed on Plymouth Rock. There they knelt, thanking God for having led them safely to this new country.

The Students of Today

*By Stanley F. Hostetter

In surveying the chief characteristics of the students on our campus this year, one first notices a seriousness which, I believe has been unknown to students of the past. Perhaps this is because our community and our nation have become more serious-minded, and this national attitude is reflected in our campus life. At any rate, it has been good for the students to become more serious-minded. The tragedy of it is that it took war to do it. Education alone is not enough; for where it is an education having destructive motives behind it, where it sacrifices truth to nationalism, where it tragically resolves itself into an education for death and institutionalizes murder, then it becomes one of the most detrimental functions of society. But education, linked to the Christian ideals and having, therefore, a constructive purpose behind it, is the most important thing in which our young people today can be engaged. It is in this important task of learning and preparing for the actual living of Christian ideals in which our students today are putting increased energies and higher purpose. There is no place in college for the traditional four-year loaf made of father's dough, for no sincere Christian and no true American will, by frittering time away uselessly or by engaging in minor deeds of mischief, shirk his responsibility of preparing for an active participation in a better world.

Because of the national pressure to be doing more and more rather than less and less, and more important, because the students of today are actually desiring to have a part in keeping our world free and in helping to make our own nation more Christian, our college students have been devoting their time to a more rigid and thorough study and learning program than probably ever before and this means going beyond class assignments. If this were not the case, you would all be justified in feeling keen disappointment in the youth of today, but I am happy that I can report that the trend is definitely towards an installation of more serious purpose and greater determinism in our study effort.

Of course, the morale of the college has dropped somewhat because of the war and the present conditions. Lincoln Hall, our boys' dormitory, should be filled. Bluffton College needs the fellows, and the students who are here need them. We certainly do miss the fellows who have been called to service elsewhere, but melancholy and gloom have not invaded our campus and there is little chance that they will. Decreased enrollment means increased responsibilities and effort for the present student body if the college functions are to be carried on. There just isn't time to be gloomy. The Student Christian Association has been organized to meet the program of extra-curricular activities under wartime limitations. The spirit and morale of the students has been much heightened by the different devotional and recreational groups on the campus, so much so that low morale is not a problem here and the student body, as a whole, is a cheerful and congenial group, which is an achievement in itself for these days.

Although we lack numbers this year, the students who are here are of very high calibre. College students are always a more or less select group, but never as much as in these days. Students who go to college today are there because they really want an education and they want it bad enough to sacrifice high-paying jobs and other wealthy opportunities in their home communities. The value of an education is only as great as the amount of effort put into it, and the majority of the students are here to work diligently and earnestly. The students are not handicapped by decreased enrollment as much as they are benefitted by their own increased efforts and the increased efforts of the faculty. The students who are getting their Christian college education during this crisis will be among the finest examples of Christian college training which have ever been released into society. So may our student body continue to be a group with the courage, the faith, and the experimental mind needed for useful lives of service to humanity—here and abroad.

A Call for Nurses

The hospitals on the west coast are all in great need of nurses and young women to help. This is also true of the Salem Deaconess Hospital, a Mennonite institution. We are in very great need of nurses. The wages are good. A common nurse receives $150.00 per month.

We also have need of diet kitchen girls and tray girls. Their wages are $85.00 per month to start, with an increase after they have worked a little while.

Are there not young women in our Mennonite churches who would like to come west and help us in an institution where they can be a blessing? Any nurses or young women who are willing to come and help, please, write at once to the Salem Deaconess Hospital, Salem, Oregon, or to the undersigned.

Sincerely,
J. M. Franz, Secretary

HEROES OF MISSIONS — Acts 16:19-35; Romans 10:9-15

The Cobbler with a Vision

A long time ago, there lived a cobbler in England. He was different from other cobblers, because while he was working at his bench, his mind was traveling all around the world. On the wall was a map which he had made from pieces of wrapping paper. This map showed the far-away places he had thought of while at work. On the map, too, were clippings he had found of the people and places and their needs in this far off land. As a boy, this cobbler, William Carey, loved to hear stories about people who lived on the other side of the world. He told his playmates the stories of these people. Another thing William Carey kept near him as he worked was his Bible. Often he looked on the passage, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature." The words "go ye" seemed to ring in his ears as his hammer tapped on his bench. Finally at a big meeting, he told the many people and preachers what he had been thinking of, and how they needed some one to go and tell the gospel story to the lost multitudes. The people would not listen to Carey. The disappointed cobbler went home, but he could not forget the two little words, "Go ye." One day he preached a sermon at another meeting. This time his text was "Expect great things from God; attempt great things for God!" The result of this sermon was that people decided it was time to obey Jesus' command. They formed a missionary band and raised enough money to send a missionary, and the one they chose was William Carey, to India. Because of the vision of a cobbler, India was given the gospel.

The Faithfulness of Livingstone

One of the greatest missionaries of all times was David Livingstone, who went to Africa when it was a wild, dangerous country. He traveled through forests and swamps, over lakes and rivers, where there were no roads, to reach African tribes and give them the gospel. For some time Livingstone was lost to the world, for many months he was not heard from, and the world thought him dead. The editor of the New York Herald asked Stanley to go to Africa to find Livingstone. It was a long and dangerous undertaking. Stanley found he had a hard task, and the savages tried to kill him and his men. They were almost ready to give up when one day they found him; he was just a skeleton; he had suffered from African fever. Stanley gave him of his food and new clothes, and Livingstone often said to Stanley "You have brought me new life." After six months Stanley returned home. He begged Livingstone to go with him, but he could not bear to leave the people for whom he had come to Africa to tell the story of Jesus. So he stayed in spite of his sickness, hardships, and loneliness. About a year later he died, still faithful to his duty and his African friends.

Robert Moffat

Another pioneer missionary to the large and dark continent of Africa. He did a great work among the savage tribes north of Cape Colony. His friends told him he would never return alive. But he managed to make friends with the chief, and little by little, the gospel touched the heart of the fierce chief, and he accepted Jesus Christ. Through Moffat, the Lord worked miracles.

The Question Bee

1. What are some things a Christian family might do in their own community? 2. What do you know about (a) Judson, (b) Schweitzer (c) Morrison (d) Brainerd? 3. How can juniors be missionaries? 4. Who is your favorite missionary hero?

The Prayer List

Pray that God will keep the doors open into the heathen lands, and the hearts of men and women willing to sacrifice and forsake comforts and friends, and give of our means that souls shall be lifted out of darkness into heavenly light.

Tracts: Their Use in Mennonite Circles

life goes on. There are many books and magazines of course which may be suggested for study courses. But there is a need for short, pointed statements on vital issues which may be placed into the hands of those looking toward the marriage service. When the young couple comes to the pastor's home to talk over the wedding plans why not hand them a bit of literature as they leave which gives helpful suggestions on what constitutes a Christian wedding service and a sound foundation for the establishment of a home? Good—but where is there such literature to be found?

With the establishment of a home there soon follows the problem of the little one entering the home. Every mother as she holds in her arms her first-born dreams of the future and also solemnly weighs the new responsibility. As the pastor calls in the home at such an occasion, why not leave some worthwhile leaflet or booklet of Christian appeal and challenge?

The strengthening of the home ties is a vital part of the pastor's responsibilities. As a Committee we have felt the need for available literature which might support the work of the pastor.

There are the boys in service, some of them in the regular service, others in C.P.S. camps. Once a month there goes out a letter to these boys by the pastor of the home church. In it he seeks to encourage and strengthen them in their faith. They become discouraged, troubled in heart and mind, and a few words from the home church mean much. But often the pastor feels himself at a loss as to how to help them. Many a young man in the service has been helped by some little leaflet or booklet enclosed in the pastoral letter, same devotional word of encouragement, some short collection of Divine promises or illustrations of God's faithfulness.

Then there is the field of guidance of youth in its problems. There are countless children in every congregation who are the church of the next generation. They are the most fertile field of the church—open-minded, tenderhearted, and responsive to the gospel. Yet how little contact the pastor has with them. During the worship hour the sermon is largely directed toward the adult group. In the S. S. hour they are in the hands of others. How can the pastor gain an entrance into their lives? Often a little booklet directed toward children may be left in the home in their hands when leaving after an evening's visit or on other occasions.

As time moves on children become young people and their problems increase with the years. Where can the pastor find literature which deals intelligently and in a Christian manner upon such problems as the choice of a life work, the Christian use of leisure time, stewardship, the Word of God, prayer, missions, and other youth problems?

Last, but by no means least, may we mention the problem of contacting those in the community who are not Christians. Seeking the lost is a definite responsibility which every pastor needs to recognize. In every community there are those who are not saved. They have never accepted Christ and are outside the church. How can the pastor effectively reach them? Is there any literature which might be available for such work?

These are but a few of the fields of pastoral work which the Committee on Evangelism has been considering: evangelism in its truest sense does not merely concern itself with the conversion of the lost from unbelief to faith; that is involved to be sure, but true evangelism concerns itself also with the deepening of the inner life once it is begun in faith. With that thought in mind the committee has been considering the whole of Christian living as its field of interest.

The longer we have studied the various phases of the Christian life the more convinced we have become that there are limitless possibilities in the use of simple, scriptural tracts, and leaflets. After several months of study into the use of such tracts and leaflets in the past, the possibilities of the present hour, we have launched out upon a venture which we hope shall become helpful in our conference work.

In order to make the results of our efforts available to our fellow pastors we are engaged in the following activities:

I. We are gathering all material available in regard to tracts and pamphlets now on the market.

There are large numbers of publishers and societies which have spent years in developing different types of literature. We have already contacted a goodly number of these and secured sample copies of their publications. These sample copies are now in our files and we hope to add many more from various sources not yet contacted. Also we hope to add new publications as they come off the press. We have made contacts whereby such new publications will be secured.

II. We are endeavoring to classify each tract or booklet under its proper heading.

By way of illustration we might say that we already have tracts or booklets under the following headings: Devotional Poetry, Youth Problems, Prayer, Catechism Helps, Salvation, Missions, Bible, Religions, Second Coming, Marriage, Home Building, Church, Servicemen, Stewardship, Sick-Shut-ins, Deeper Life Mennonitism, Sunday Observance, Evangelism, Children.

III. We are attempting to evaluate each tract and pamphlet as to its worth for our own Mennonite constituency.

There are many publications on the market. Many of them are good—others are such as we cannot use effectively. With that thought in mind we shall attempt to evaluate each publication as it comes to our files according to the following standard:

1. Is it scriptural in its presentation?
2. Is it attractive in appearance?
3. Is it interestingly written and convincing?
4. Is its subject matter a vital issue of life?
5. Is it consistent with our Mennonite faith?

IV. We hope to make available to the ministers of the conference worthwhile publications through some central agency.

If possible we hope to place into the hands of pastors a sample packet of publications usable for various needs and adapted to our own people; as well as an order blank containing the names and price of each publication. These might then be ordered through the central agency.

V. We hope to encourage the production of original tracts and booklets on the part of our fellow pastors which may supplement publications already on the market. There is an open field along many lines. Much material is available along the line of appeal to the unsaved. We are especially interested in literature for the deepening of Christian life. Only a limited amount of material is on the market at the present time. Here is an opportunity for original contributions; here is a field for constructive work.

The above five points outline the project in which the Committee is now engaged. A good beginning has been made in the gathering of material and we hope to devote added time to this project in the closing months of this year. We place this matter of the use of tracts and pamphlets in our Mennonite circles before the Conference with the prayer that ministers may seriously study the possibilities and include the purchase of such materials in their yearly budgets.

MENNONITE CHURCH

Greetings to all with I Cor. 15:57, "But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

We have experienced a very dry summer. But God has blessed our fields and we have had a fair hay crop, also good gardens. In June we had a wedding that of Miss Mary Ann Woelk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Woelk to Don Lockhart of St. John. The young couple is living at St. John. In July we enjoyed the visit of Rev. Habegger. One evening he showed pictures of the work in Montana. On October 18 and 19 we had Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Isaac with us. We were greatly blessed and encouraged to do more for missions through these visits. Eldon Unruh, son of Rev. P. D. Unruh was home from Los Angeles Bible Institute for the summer, and filled the pulpit two Sunday mornings. He returned to Bible Institute this fall and accompanying him were Misses Linda and Susie Woelk and Marie Peters; they were all first-year students.

We enjoyed greatly Rev. Unruh's report of the Pacific District Conference. Emil Dalke, son of J. P. Dalke was called for service in September. He is a non-combatant stationed in Texas. We had baptismal services in June when seven young people were received into the fellowship of the church. In September nine more were added to the church by letter.

MYSTERIES OF GOD

I have been reading a splendid little book, (which I shall discuss at greater length in a subsequent review) that contained the following thrilling passage. The passage is taken from a letter written by a farmer to the author of the book. The writer of this letter was brought up "in the woods," lived on the farm all his life and had practically no education. Listen to the depth, enthusiasm, and eloquence of this man's words:

A Farmer Speaks

"As you say, too many people confound farming, with that sordid, selfish, money-getting game, called 'business,' whereas, the farmer's position is administrative, being in a way a dispensed of the 'Mysteries of God,' for they are mysteries. Every apple is a mystery and every potato is a mystery, and every ear of corn is a mystery, and every pound of butter is a mystery, and when a 'farmer' is not able to understand these things he is out of place. The farmer uses the soil and the rains and the snows and the frosts and the winds and the sun; these are also the implements of the Almighty, the only tools He uses. . . ."

More Expression

There would probably be little disagreement on the part of most Christian farmers with this particular farmer's words and yet how few Christian farmers take the time to express similar thoughts. They may feel the thrill and the beauty and the mystery of the creations of God with which they daily work and which they plant, nurture, harvest, buy, and sell, but most farmers never give expression to these feelings. It generally remains for the poet, the dreamer, the idealist to give expression to these beauties and mysteries of God. The average farmer refuses to put his feelings into words in the form of a poem or an essay, or a composition of any kind, even if he has the talent, because he feels it would be too sentimental and too effeminite a thing for a farmer to do. Farming, he thinks, must be confined to manual labor not to the literary arts.

Enrichment of Farm Life

Yet how much greater joy and satisfaction there would be in the life of the farmer and in the life of his whole family if he and they would more frequently take time to examine the "Mysteries of God," discuss these mysteries and give expression to them in word and song. This would remove the farmer from the timid and backward class in which he is all too often placed, and in which he all too often places himself, and it would truly put him in the position of being an administrator whose business would be to dispense the "Mysteries of God."

EASTERN DISTRICT MENNONITE CONFERENCE

The Twenty-sixth Annual Meeting of the Mennonite Brotherhood and Fall Rally of the Women's Missionary Societies was held in the Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, October 23, with afternoon and evening sessions. Mr. Ely Fretz, president of the Brotherhood was in charge of the men's meeting. The main feature of the afternoon was a panel discussion on the subject "What is the Future of the Doctrine of Non-resistance in the Mennonite Church," discussed by a group of C.P.S. boys, led by Mr. Quintus Leatherman. This was very interesting and thought-provoking. While the men were meeting in the church auditorium, the Women's Missionary Societies were holding their meeting in the Sunday School room with Mrs. Howard G. Nyce, Vice President, as chairman. They had a brief panel discussion on phases of our societies' work as follows: "Pension Fund" by Miss Catherine Niswander, "Sewing" by Mrs. Jacob R. Fretz and "Program Planning" by Miss Huldah Myers. Mrs. Joseph N. Byler of Akron, Pa., delivered the address. In the evening, there was a joint-meeting in charge of Mr. Ely Fretz. Dr. Harvey R. Bauman had charge of the devotions. Musical selections were rendered by a quartet of C.P.S. boys from Akron, Pa., and the Springfield Chorus. Mr. Joseph N. Byler of the Mennonite Central Committee delivered the address of the evening.

The message of the evening was presented by the Rev. Russell L. Mast, pastor of the Deep Run Mennonite Church, on the theme "Education and Religion." This was a very well prepared and timely message. A general discussion followed.

—Butterfield Mennonite Church, Butterfield, Minnesota: During the past summer our church had a young people's rally. Rev. Theo Epp of Lincoln was the main speaker. Twelve people were baptized; seven were immersed; five sprinkled. Ten joined the church. Our pastor, Rev. Albert Schultz, has resigned and is giving his full time to the Grace Bible School. Our church has called Rev. Ben Nickel to serve as pastor. He and his family came here the first week of November. Our mission circle also carried on the C.P.S. canning project. Farmers are very busy now picking corn. October was a beautiful month.—Church Secretary.

—In reading Der Bote, a Mennonite paper published at Rosthern, Saskatchewan, I came upon a news item that mentioned the erection of a new "Versammlungshaus." Somehow the term "meetinghouse" seems to come more naturally to our Canadian brethren than to us. In looking over some very old cuts recently I found upon them descriptions which used the term "meetinghouse" for what we ordinarily term "church." How has this change in terminology come about?

—The new Junior quarterly was recently recommended for use in the Sunday Schools of the Western District. The recommendation was passed by the conference.

OUR HOME MISSION WORK

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary of the Home Mission Board

SASKATOON, SASKATCHEWAN

Our Church Services

The first Mennonite church in this city is located at 123-4th Avenue, North. The location of the church is quite central and within walking distance of the street car. It is surrounded by emerald, green lawns, which are bordered by colorful flowers. The interior of the church was repainted this summer and is now a dazzling white. Then, too, the floors, both upstairs and in the basement, have been varnished.

The Sunday School commences at ten o'clock with eighty-five pupils in attendance. I consider it my privilege and duty to act as superintendent of the Sunday School. This is not due to the lack of capable teachers, but because I think it important to become acquainted with the children, the future members of our church, as early as possible. The morning worship begins at eleven, music being supplied by the choir or by the children's choir. Due to the fact that I am the only minister here and the rareness of guest preachers I have to speak daily at least. The evening service alternates with Christian Endeavor. According to their circumstances some people attend service in the morning, others in the evening, and still others both. As a whole the attendance is good. On Pentecost our church membership was increased by the baptism of fourteen young people and the acceptance of three others as members.

The Pleasant Hill Mission

For those who live on the city outskirts we have the Pleasant Hill Mission. Those attending services here are mostly Old Colonists. In the Sunday School we have forty-five children. Since many of these people are practically illiterate, the field requires much attention, patience, and endurance. The meetings commence here at three o'clock in the afternoon. Three teachers teach the children, and I teach the Bible class and conduct the singing. Once a month our church choir assists at the service.

Visitations

The personal work through house visitations plays an important part in winning souls. This is especially true in our city where the people are scattered and so easily tempted and influenced by different elements. It is my ambition to visit each family at least three times a year. Lately a number of families have moved here. Some find their way to our church while others must be looked up first. It is very tiresome and strenuous work to find the latter.

Hospital visitations play an extremely important part in my weekly routine. The sick treasure the comfort received and thus many blessed contacts are made. About a thousand visitations are made every year. I consider it a special privilege to comfort the afflicted and as Paul says "Weep with those who weep." In this way many lasting friendships have been established. Often I have been called during the night by the hospital officials at the patient's request.

The Girls' Home

The number of Mennonite girls working in the city has decreased considerably due to the fact of a shortage of workers at home. Then too, the economic conditions have improved materially, and the parents depend less on the girls' incomes. Most of the girls are no longer employed in domestic work but have found work in stores, hospitals, offices, etc. Our weekly meetings which have been continued as in previous years, are appreciated by the girls. Of the fourteen young people baptized on Pentecost this year nine were girls working in the city. The Girls' Home has always cooperated with the congregation to its fullest extent.

Work in Mennonite Settlements

It has been my privilege to assist other churches. Since 1939 when Rev. Jacob Wiens, Herschel, passed away, I have served at five different points of the Ebenfeld Church. Besides preaching the gospel, I have baptized and served the Holy Communion. On the first of August I ordained Rev. C. J. Warkentin as Elder of the church and Brother J. J. Wiens as Deacon, thus relinquishing my duties there. The congregation now has eight ministers and the work progresses satisfactorily. I ordained three other ministers in the Nordheim Congregation, as yet an Elder has not been elected there, and I will have to continue to assist in the church work at Dundurn, Hanley, and Clavet. All in all I delivered thirty-one sermons in other churches. This outside work has only cost me four Sundays away from home and on these days the Saskatoon congregation was served by guest ministers.

Visitors

In spite of the rareness of guest preachers we had some distinguished visitors who passed through our city on the way to the retreat at Rosthern and the conference at Langham. It was our privilege to have Dr. P. A. Penner, Evangelist J. J. Esau, Rev. J. M. Regier, Rev. Walter Dyck, Rev. D. H. Koop and Dr. J. W. Fretz, by whom we were richly blessed.

Our manysided work, growing from year to year, requires more and more attention. This strenuous work has been accomplished only by the cooperation of my whole family, without which I would not have been able to do justice to this work.

OUR HOME MISSION WORK

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

Introducing New Workers

Rev. Herman Wiebe, is the new pastor of Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon. His address is 5215 N. E. 23rd Avenue, Portland, Oregon. He started his work here October 1.

Rev. Arnold A. Fast, 84 Greenwood Avenue, Toronto, Ontario, is the new leader of the Mennonite group of that city. He started his work September 12. Recently the group elected a church board, although the congregation is not organized as such.

Rev. I. I. Friesen, 864 Downing Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, is the new pastor of the Bethel Mennonite Mission since August 1. Rev. Benjamin Ewert was for about five years the leader of this mission.

Rev. Charles B. Dirks, Codette, Saskatchewan, had been a part-time worker in the past and since August 15 he has given full time to mission work.

May the Lord touch many hearts to remember these and the older workers regularly in prayer before the throne of Grace.

We are grateful to all who have supported the work so regularly in gifts and interest.

Yours for many souls,
—A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary

HERBERT MENNONITE CHURCH

Herbert, Saskatchewan

"The Lord hath done great things for us; wherof we are glad," Ps. 126:3.

Many indeed were the blessings the Lord bestowed upon us during the summer. Here are a few:

For the greater part the health has been good throughout the summer, although there always are the less fortunate. Among the sick at present is the Rev. Jacob H. Berg who is critically ill in the Herbert Hospital.

God has also spoken earnestly to us through the death of several of our members. The harvest was fairly good with the exception of a few hail strips. The weather being very good, the threshing has now all been completed.

But praise be unto God who has "Blessed us with all spiritual blessings in Christ Jesus."

Last spring we instructed a class of thirteen young people who were then baptized upon the confession of their faith in Christ Jesus.

It was our privilege this summer to have a young people's retreat in the southern part of the province. About sixty attended. God graciously supplied our material needs, good weather, and plenty to eat. He also supplied us with speakers who had a message from the Lord. The main speakers were, the Rev. J. J. Esau, Bluffton, Ohio; the Rev. Dan Toavs, Wolf Point, Montana, and the Rev. John G. Rempel, Rosthern, Saskatchewan. A few others were with us part of the time.

Following the retreat we had our fifth annual Children's Camp. The attendance, biggest in our history was about 130. Here too, we saw the wonderful working of God's grace in the saving of souls and the edification of Christians.

The Rev. and Mrs. Dan Toavs were the main workers at the camp with Miss Gertrude Friesen from Waldheim, Saskatchewan, the writer of this report, and Rev. W. L. Rempel of Success, Saskatchewan as additional workers. Some of the young people who stayed with us for the camp assisted with evening and morning devotions.

The retreat camp was sponsored by the Mennonite Churches of Herbert and Swift Current, while people as far north as Eyebrow and Tugaske took part.

Attendance at our church services and Sunday School have been in the increase lately. There are still many who do not attend. Help us to pray for them.

The Lord hath done great things for us; may we be inspired by his Grace and attempt great things for him.

WHITEWATER, MANITOBA

"I can do all things through Christ which strengthened me," Philippians 4:13.

As a worker in the Sunday School, it is a great pleasure for me to have this opportunity of entering into your homes through this paper and giving you a little of what is being done in the Sunday School here.

I personally consider it a great privilege to be working as a teacher in the Sunday School. Although I have been teaching only a short time, I have experienced the blessing that lies in the work of bringing the stories of the Bible to the children and telling them of the great need of a Saviour in their life.

About sixty children, ranging from four to fifteen years, visit the Sunday School as regularly as possible throughout the year. These we have divided into two classes, the older ones being one class, taught by Jacob Engbrecht, and the younger ones are my class.

It might be of interest to some to know by which course or Bible story book we go. We go according to a Bible verse booklet, given out for the churches by the "General Conference of the Mennonites in Canada." In this booklet we find the title of a Bible story and a Bible verse for each Sunday of the year. Included in the booklet are also a number of little songs to learn and sing with the children, so that in all it makes a very nice booklet, not only for the teachers but also for the children, for it enables those that are able to read, to study the story for each Sunday, and also the Bible verse.

We had the summer Bible school in the basement of our church, and we had about forty children visiting the school regularly. We opened our school every morning with a short devotional period and prayer. Every day the children were told both an Old and New Testament story. The older ones read a few verses in the Bible each day and answered questions concerning the Bible stories. We also had a singing period with the children every day. This work was found very satisfactory.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

Chicago, Illinois

On October 1, 1943, this church held a homecoming dinner and program in honor of its twenty-five years of service since the dedication of the building on September 22, 1918, 73rd and Laflin Streets. A dinner was served to 145 present and former friends and workers of the Church. This was followed by a program in the auditorium. Special music was furnished by local talent, and several guest speakers brought us some interesting and inspiring messages. The speakers were: Miss Catherine Niswander of Philadelphia, the first mission worker to come here to this field; Mrs. Jane Entz Claassen of Whitewater, Kansas, who succeeded her; Rev. Wright Van Plew of Elmhurst, Illinois, a young man from this church now in full time Christian service; and Rev. A. H. Leaman of Chicago, former pastor of the church. Letters and telegrams of greetings received from absentee friends were read to the congregation. Miss Niswander and Mrs. Claassen remained with us for several days and spoke again on Sunday at the morning and evening services.

On March 5, 1914, the Mission Board of the General Conference opened a city rescue mission at 727 W. 63rd Street. Rev. W. W. Miller was called as superintendent and Miss Niswander as assistant of this mission work. Then on April 22, 1915, the work was transferred to 7110 S. Ashland Avenue, and it was changed to an extension of Sunday School and church work. Two years later it was moved to larger quarters at 7205 S. Ashland, where it continued to grow and prosper to such an extent that it was necessary to seek larger facilities. So in the summer of 1918 the present brick building was erected.

In April of 1919 Rev. Miller left the city, but was called back in October of 1920. Rev. W. S. Shelly served as pastor for several months and Rev. J. F. Balzer served as supply until Rev. Miller returned. When Rev. Miller returned, the work was organized into a church and members were received. Rev. and Mrs. Miller left the city in 1923 and Rev. M. M. Lehmann came to be pastor of the Church for four years. He was followed by Rev. Clyde Rhea who served here for six years. During his ministry the work was further organized and a constitution was adopted.

In 1927 the Mission Board opened a mission in Portland, Oregon. Miss Niswander was chosen for that work. So after thirteen years of faithful and loving service she left Chicago. Jane Entz from Whitewater, Kansas was called to fill this vacancy. She served here as assistant for nearly three years.

In March of 1934 Rev. Rhea resigned and Rev. A. H. Leaman became pastor and continued his ministry to the summer of 1940, when the present pastor, Rev. E. A. Albrecht, came to minister here.

Through the years the pastors have been assisted by a host of faithful members and workers in the church. As we remember the past we thank God for His blessings, but our hope lies in the present and in the future.

BETHEL MENNONITE CHURCH

Winton, California

We can say, "of his fulness have all we received and grace for grace" John 1:16. Yes, the apostle Paul says it is through grace we are saved and by God's grace we are what we are.

As we think of the work here we feel we have not been doing much, and it has not increased as we would like to see it, although we have prayed much for it.

We had special meetings of three and four days at a time. These were conducted by Rev. Homer Leisy of Dallas, Oregon, and by Rev. and Mrs. Arnold Regier of Portland, Oregon. They were a blessing to us and we were all revived and strengthened by their messages. Rev. Habegger told us of the work among the Indians, and the missionaries, Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Issac, were with us two evenings lately.

We are a young church only two years old with a membership of about fifty, consisting of about twenty families.

We conducted a catechism class of five and six young people. One young girl was baptized and taken into the church, also her parents and four other persons.

One young girl attended the retreat the whole week at Lake Sequoia. A few others attended a few days. The retreat is usually held in the busy season when the peaches are harvested here. Since there is a scarcity of help not so many attended as would have liked to. We have our Sunday School at 10 a. m. and preaching at 11 o'clock. Every two weeks we have Christian Endeavor, and during the summer months we had union services with the other Mennonite churches here, with a good attendance.

My wife and I with five other teachers from the other churches conducted a daily vacation Bible school with an enrollment of eighty-nine. The classes were held in the Presbyterian Church.

For three months during the summer our church quartet and I gave a program over the Merced radio station. In the fall we may broadcast again.

Pray for us that we may all be faithful workers and servants for the Lord and be ready when he calls one or the other.

CALVARY MENNONITE CHURCH

Mechanic Grove, Pa.

We greet you in Jesus' name and with Ps. 69:30, "I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving."

Worship services continue on the Lord's Day. However, some phases of activity had to be disbanded. The young people's class meetings held in homes monthly were discontinued the beginning of the year.

The young people's meetings continue to be held the second, and last Sunday of each month.

In April we observed our Spring Communion service. At that time four children were consecrated.

At the beginning of the year a request was made to the Board for painting all buildings of the worker's home. The Board offered to pay for the paint and pay some remuneration for the work. However, the matter was brought to the attention of our people and consequently, the church almost unanimously voted to take care of this undertaking. One member in particular is cause for rejoicing for the very liberal contributions. This work is now nearly completed, being done by the writer.

Last July our church cooperated in a community daily vacation Bible school.

On August 22, our church held their annual service at the Home of the Aged, at Frederick, Pa. The Ladies Missionary Society has provided canned goods for the Home, perhaps, ten dozen quarts. Also in November the Society plans to observe their annual meeting. Miss Elizabeth Foth of New York has been invited as guest speaker.

The Lord willing, I hope to attend the thirty-fifth anniversary of the Smith Corner Congregation, our former parish, on October 17, and also conduct a week of services.

REV. J. J. ESAU'S INSPIRING MESSAGES

We wish to make a humble contribution to the "Fall Mission Number" to show our gratitude for the pleasant surprise the Conference gave us this summer. For many years things had run in our community without any great interruptions. The services at both places, the school and the Bethel Church, were conducted as usual. The Sunday School work was pretty much the same. Suddenly our papers announced a visitor, Rev. J. J. Esau of Bluffton, Ohio, "physically blind but not spiritually." And so we found it too.

Full of life and meaning were the wonderful interpretations he gave us of the word of God. He came to us as a living Christian, straight forward, loving, strictly keeping time and setting many other examples. And above all, it touched our hearts when we saw how a blind man struggles to show us how useful he can make himself. He sawed wood with the buck saw, separated the cream, and did other jobs for us. We are a corrupt world to cast aside if not openly, so in mind, the physically handicapped as inferior. There's a lesson for us Christians. Jesus taught us more than compassion, that is, to treat others as our equal.

Brother Esau came to stay for more than a month in our large province. He traveled hundreds of miles on rough roads, made friends of many strangers, got used to new surroundings, and was more than a thousand miles from home. It was hard, yet he had a dear aim or purpose—to serve in Christ's name.

We wish to give a hearty thanks to all those who have been connected with that kindly surprise. We also hope and pray to God not to forget us in the future.

OUR FOREIGN MISSION WORK

P. H. Richert, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board

ARIZONA JUBILEE MISSION NUMBER

"In the day of Atonement . . . ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and it shall be a Jubilee unto you." Lev. 25:9,10.

This text prescribed a jubilee celebration every fiftieth year in Israel. That shows that we are entirely in agreement with God's plans for his people, when we also celebrate such jubilee years. Our mission has had one such jubilee before, namely in memory of the founding of the Cheyenne mission, 1891.

If any people today have a right to apply this text to their work, it is the missionaries and their supporters, because the whole divine jubilee idea is based on the Atonement, as the above text shows. It was on the "Day of Atonement" that this jubilee was to be celebrated. The whole mission work is also based on the atonement, as Paul, the greatest missionary, clearly understood and testified, when he wrote to the Corinthians in I Cor. 2:2, 'I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ, and him crucified." And in II Corinthians he repeats this truth in other words, "We are embassadors of Christ . . . and beseech you, be ye Oraibi, Arizona, I will try to do so. I am not an reconciled to God."

Our mission has also stood on this basis from beginning till now, and all our missionaries have cried out loud and long; "Be ye reconciled to God." The same is true of their helpers. The last appeal of Frank Jenkins to his people, the Hopis, a short time before he died, was, "Be ye reconciled," and Sister (Schirmer) Baumgartner writes that she can still hear him cry out this appeal.

But how is such a jubilee to be celebrated? To Israel Moses gave the instruction, "Then shalt thou send abroad the loud trumpet . . . throughout all your land."

This mission number is to help serve as such a loud trumpet.

REMINISCENCES AND COMPARISONS

By Frieda Regier Entz

Upon request of Rev. P. H. Richert, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, to write some "reminiscences and comparisons" of the mission work at Oraibi ,Arizona, I will try to do so. I am not an "expert writer" as I told Rev. Richert, but since he did not want to let me off, I hope the readers will take "things as they are."

It was a great joy for me to be present at the fiftieth jubilee of the mission work on the Hopi field, which was celebrated October 4, in the chapel at Oraiba, Arizona. My parents, Henry R. and Martha Moser Voth began the work here at Oraibi fifty years ago! Fifty years! How long that span of time seems when I consider what all has happened during this period; then again it seems "but as yesterday when it is past." What memories pass through one's mind when one thinks back to that time fifty years ago! Although I was but a child then, still I remember many things very clearly! Then too, my parents kept diaries during those years and I found many things therein which are especially interesting to me, and which have helped to refresh my memory on the things of the past.

On July 10, 1893, my parents and I said good-by to our loved ones here in Kansas and boarded the train which was to take us into an unknown country, into entirely new surroundings! We did not know when we would see our loved ones again and to me, the child, it seemed as though we might be going to the end of the world! Of course, it wasn't as bad as that, and we had a very interesting trip, especially through the mountainous parts of Colorado and New Mexico! On the fourteenth of July we arrived safely at Holbrook, Arizona, our temporary destination, with thankful hearts toward God who had brought us safely thus far. Here in Holbrook we had to wait till the "Mail Stage" went to Keam's Canyon. In it we would have opportunity to go the eighty miles overland. From there on to the Hopi Indian Reservation, thirty-five miles further, we had to go by wagon. There was a Government Boarding School for Indians at Keam's Canyon, and if I remember correctly, the "Mail Stage" drove out there once a week, or possibly twice. Today going to "Hopi-land" is by far an easier task. You board the train here at Newton at about 1:30 p. m., arrive at Winslow, Arizona, about 4 o'clock the next afternoon. (This of course, barring the lateness of trains of today). Then about three to four hours overland per auto and presto! you are in Oraibi. But we are speaking of the time fifty years ago. We had to wait in Holbrook till the eighteenth of July when the "Mail Stage" took us along on its trip to Keam's Canyon. It was an interesting, though rather tedious trip. We travelled all that day and the whole night accompanied by a terrific Arizona sandstorm, and arrived safely at Keam's Canyon the next forenoon (the nineteenth) at about 10 o'clock, where we were very hospitably received. Here at Keam's Canyon we remained till the third of August. My father drove out to the Hopi Indians a few times with Mr. P. Stauffer to find some place for us to live. Mr. Stauffer was a Mennonite, if I am not mistaken, from the church at Donnellson, Iowa. He had been working among the Hopis under the government for some time and it was really Mr. Stauffer who had interested our mission board in work among the Hopis, and so had really brought the Mennonite mission work to these people! On the third of August, towards evening, we left Keam's Canyon with Mr. Stauffer and drove as far as Walpi, the first mesa, where we spent the night, and the next day, August 4, towards evening, we arrived at our new home, Oraibi! From quite a distance we had noticed a large group of Indians waiting for us at the house where we were to live! When we got off the wagon, they welcomed us and shook hands in a very friendly way, spoke to us in a kindly way, although we understood nothing except perhaps a few words of English scattered in between, but at any rate we felt that they were friendly towards us and seemed to be glad that we had come. That, of course, made us feel a lot better and easier!

But there were not only Indians who welcomed us; there was also one white man among the group —he was Mr. Russell, the school teacher of the local government day school for the Oraibi children; carrying his little daughter on his arm, he welcomed us warmly and kindly invited us to their house for supper! What that meant for us under the circumstances, cannot be told in words! We went with him and met the very friendly Mrs. Russell and their two other daughters who were about my age. My, what it meant to me to know that I would not be entirely without companions in this "out of the world" place as I had supposed I would be, words cannot express. Of course, we immediately became inseparable friends and the happy times which we little girls spent together are to me even today as a benediction! Doesn't the good Shepherd take care of His little ones in many wonderful ways?

This is how the Oraibi mission station appeared in the early years. The people on the picture are: Rev. H. R. Voth and son Albert C. Voth, daughters Frieda E. Voth (the tall girl, now Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz) and Esther M. Voth (small girl) who is now Mrs. P. E. Frantz of Wichita, Kansas.

The first task, of course, was to unpack and try and get settled. This was not such an easy job either for where should we put our things, since there was no cupboard or closet or shelves of any kind in the little Indian house where we were to live till the mission house would be built! There was no one around there, who did this kind of work and nothing of the kind could be bought far and wide. So my good father had to get busy and make these things himself, and he did a good job! How fortunate for him that he had learned carpenter work from his father in Russia, for because of this he was able to make many different articles without which it would have been hard for us to get along! It was not long till our plain, little Indian house began to look real cozy and homelike! Mother writes in her diary under the date of August 11: "It is beginning to look a little more homelike in our small, plain house. We feel real happy to have our own little home, even if it is only very plain. We are very thankful to God for our little home!"

As to the Hopi language, there was nothing printed or written. As far as I remember, only Mr. Stauffer was able to speak some Hopi and it was he who started my parents off in learning the language. He had even given them some lessons in Hopi before we came to Oraibi, when we were in Keam's Canyon. My parents went to work at once to learn this difficult language. They would copy words and sentences and memorize them. Then too, there were usually Indians about who, when they noticed that we wanted to learn their language, were very eager to act as "language teachers" and in this way quite a bit of the language was learned. At that time there were not many Hopis who could speak English, and it was absolutely necessary to learn the Hopi language. Today it is quite different! How surprised I was during my recent visit there, to note how many Hopis, even of the older ones, could speak English fluently and well, although one could notice that they, even the younger ones, preferred their own Hopi language. Today they also have very efficient interpreters, which we did not have fifty years ago; so my parents learned the language under many difficulties and I, childlike, picked it up quite easily!

But my father soon discovered that the Hopi language was lacking very much in biblical expressions, such as sin, heaven, forgiveness, redemption etc. It seemed too, that the few Hopis who could speak English could not help him much along these lines. So my father began to attend and study their secret religious ceremonies, hoping that here he might be able to find those words and expressions that he was looking for. It was very surprising that the Indians were so willing to admit him to their secret ceremonies, for up to that time no white man had ever been permitted to attend them. I am sure it was God's hand that was guiding, for He knew the reason for this whole thing! After some time, my father found that what he had hoped for, in many instances, proved to be true. He found that here in the secret ceremonies many words and expressions were used that were not used in the common, everyday language. I still remember numerous instances when father came home one of those ceremonies that he said to mother with joy written all over his face: "Today, I found the word for "————" or "Today, I believe, I found the word for '————,' " whatever that word was. I do not remember them, but they were some of those words for which he had been seeking, like sin, forgiveness, and many others. Studying these ceremonies also helped him to acquire their common, everyday language more readily. It wasn't so easy to study these secret ceremonies, for so many of them were conducted during the night as well as during the day and consequently he would have to get up at all hours of the night and go there, or stay there the entire night. He often came home with a very severe headache, since the ceremonies were always conducted in the "kiwas" (underground rooms,) and much "ceremonial" smoking made the air quite "thick." But a missionary must be willing to bring sacrifices in more than one way! During the study of these ceremonies many opportunities also arose in which father could direct the minds of the Hopis to the living and true God who is not worshiped through idols, "prayersticks," or ceremonies, but to whom we may come personally at any time and worship Him and He is always willing to hear us! And they always had listened very attentively. One day, my father was watching an old priest getting his old idols ready for a ceremony. The arms and legs had fallen off since the priest had last used them, and now he had to put them together and get them ready for the ceremony. Here too my father directed the old priest to our living God, whom we did not first have to set together before we could worship Him, but who is always there, ready to listen to His children when they come to Him. This old priest later became a very staunch Christian. I found this thought in one of my father's diaries: "I consider this also as missionary work, when one can penetrate into the old heathen ways and undermine the old prejudices and superstitions." To him, besides the other reasons which I have given, for studying their ceremonies, it was also a victory for the gospel, if the heathen folk permitted a missionary to attend and study their secret ceremonies.

Many sick people came for medicine and as father had studied some medicine, he was able with God's help, to be of assistance to many. When he gave them medicine, he would tell them that they should pray to the great and living God to bless the medicine. It was a little over a month after we came, that a man who was ill, came for medicine. Father gave him some and four days later, early in the morning—we were barely up—here comes the same man again bringing with him a sack of roasting ears and green beans which he wanted to present to us out of thankfulness that the medicine had cured him. We were quite thrilled by such gratitude! Today this is all different too. Twice a week a doctor from the Keam's Canyon government hospital comes out to the government school at Oraibi, and any Hopi who needs a doctor's advice can come and see him—all gratis!

Another great change that I noticed, and no doubt the most important one, was in regard to the church life. Fifty years ago there was, of course, no sign of a church! Soon after we had come to Oraibi, my parents and Mr. and Mrs. Russell (the government school teachers) organized a Sunday School for the Hopi children and any one else who wanted to come, in the government school building. Sometimes we had a good attendance, but numerous notations in the diaries also say: "We came to Sunday school, but there were only a very few there," or "there was no one present." Especially, was this the case when there was a dance on, or some other doings in the village; then, of course, in spite of all invitations and coaxing, no one came! (I wonder if we Christian white people, at least some of us, don't act in a similar way, sometimes?) We also went to the village, Oraibi, on Sunday afternoon and held street meetings. Father took one of the Sunday school picture rolls along (same as are still being used today in our Sunday schools). He would hang it upon a peg or something on some wall of a house outdoors. We would start to sing, and pretty soon we had quite a large group of children about us; also grownups would join them. Father would explain the picture to them; we would sing some more songs and father prayed. Then sometimes we would go on a few streets farther and repeat the whole thing. If father could find some person who could speak English and was willing to interpret for him, he was glad, especially before he himself knew much of the language. Usually after this street meeting we would go into one of the "kiwas," (underground rooms,) where on winter afternoons the men would assemble and busy themselves with weaving, spinning, sewing, knitting or doing nothing, etc. Here too, father would hang his picture roll upon the wall, we would sing a few songs, and then father explained the picture and prayed. Usually the men assembled here were very attentive, but sometimes they would also begin to discuss things, and quite lively debates followed. At one quite large meeting after the Bible story had been told etc., one of the leading men said that there were two things which we insisted were true that he could not believe: (1) That the earth revolves and (2.) that the dead would rise! Father has quite an interesting writeup in one of his diaries upon the discussion and debate which followed, but the Indian who started the discussion was unwilling to be convinced, while some of the others seemed to be more inclined to believe the things which father told them! How different all of this is today! There it stands, the little white, friendly chapel inviting the Hopis through the glad ringing of the bell, to come to church! The bell is rung one-half hour before services or Sunday school begins. Then when it is time to begin, the bell is rung again, and then, look! See them come—the Hopi Christians and their children! (Sometimes some of the non-Christians also come). There they come dressed nice and cleaned, combed nicely, (I had to look especially at the children and think of how the children of fifty years ago looked, their hair standing in all directions or hanging down into their eyes, so that they could hardly see. Yes, how different now! They come in sit down quietly, and reverently, (of course, there is a little squirming among the children, but not as bad as I have seen it in white Christian churches)! And when they sing! My, that is wonderful. Old and young join in—English or Hopi—and they sing! How the angels in heaven must rejoice to hear these people, who were once heathen, sing these Christian songs! And the higher the notes, the better they seem to like it! The Hopis love music and Brother and Sister Suderman have certainly done great things in this little Oraibi church with the special talent of music with which God has endowed both of them—they have certainly used it to the Glory of God!

The new meetinghouse at Oraibi, Arizona. To Brother John Suderman goes the credit for building it.

Another thing which surprised me so pleasantly was the way in which these Hopi Christians, men and women, pray; of course mostly in their own language. One can learn a lot from them in this respect. During the whole week there was a morning worship hour, led by Brother P. H. Richert, and preceding this hour there was always a prayer meeting. These prayer meetings were led by Hopi Christians, (with one or two exceptions). I was surprised at the ease and capability with which they led these prayer meetings, as though it were an everyday affair with them! It seemed to me as though I went from one surprise into the other during my visit there!

First of all, of course, the honor and glory for all these wonderful changes goes to God, the eternal Father. Then, in the secnod place, I think, much credit is due to the faithful, untiring efforts of Brother and Sister Suderman who under many difficulties have with the help of God built up this little church at Oraibi of about forty Hopi Christians. It is very hard for the Hopis to become Christians, to break with their old heathen ways and customs in which, it is a pity to say, they are very much encouraged by certain government people and officials! They are afraid to step out and take a stand for Christ! They certainly need our prayers, yes, our united prayers, so that the Evil One who for so many years has held them in bondage, at last may be conquered! This has been one of his citadels for so many, many years, and he does not give it up easily as he has shown during all of these fifty years!

The visit here in Hopi-land for me was simply wonderful! And I thank the Lord for the privilege of being here. I want to quote as a close some words which again and again passed through my mind. Matt. 21:42b: "This is the Lord's doing and it is marvelous in our eyes." Yes, it is the "Lord's doing" and if we pray unitedly for this difficult field, He will do still greater and more marvellous things, of this I am convinced. Therefore, "Pray without ceasing!"

THE NEED OF THE HOUR

By John and Mabel Suderman

"He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him." John 3:36

"Behold, now is the accepted time; Behold, now is the day of salvation." II Cor. 6:2.

None of us will deny the fact that the nations of this world are engaged in the greatest battle the world has ever seen. Yet one wonders, are we all aware of the spiritual battle of God's people against Satan, the arch-enemy of our souls? Are we fully aware of the ever-increasing intensity of this battle?

When in that great court room of God in Romans I to III God announces the verdict that all are lost, how dare any of us speak against God and say, "Surely God will have a place in heaven for the man who is faithful in his heathen ceremonies, or in his respective philosophy of life etc? When God, from the beginning of the Bible to the end, reveals to us that there is no salvation without the shed blood of Jesus Christ and no justification without His resurrection, how dare any of us be such thieves and robbers as to think, or even to suggest, any other way into the eternal presence of God? O, how we need to deeply search our own hearts and lives and to ask ourselves, "What are we doing about the untold lost millions of this world?"

And how subtle the devil is in repeating his attempts to bring in that damnable lie that the Lake of Fire, Eternal Punishment, is not everlasting, is not non-ending! Our hearts ache as we pen these lines. And to hear a heathen man tell us, "We have been told by some one that there will be a place in heaven for us even though we do not accept Jesus Christ here" cuts to one's very soul! O, that men would read and accept our Lord's own solemn account of the rich man and Lazarus!

One of the greatest and most successful of Satan's devices in Hopiland is that of procrastination. God's Word gives us no Gospel for tomorrow. He says, "Today," "Now," "This is the day," "Come now." One of the Hopi Christian men was troubled because some Hopis to whom he had preached, had used the saved thief on the cross as an example for themselves, saying, "We want to wait till on our deathbed and then accept Christ." He had tried to warn them, but they had only responded. "Does not your missionary say that the thief on the cross, was saved in his dying hours?" So this Christian came asking, "What can I say to them when they talk to me like that?" To this the missionary answered, "Did you tell them about the second thief on the cross who did not accept Christ and hence is lost for eternity?" This to him seemed a striking message and he was pleased that his attention had been called to this solemn fact.

Therefore, dear Mission friends, let us stir ourselves anew unto this urgent task of preaching the blessed Gospel of Jesus Christ to every lost soul within our reach, to pray for the missionary and the unsaved in heathen lands, and to send out more laborers into our Lord's harvest field.

Yours for the salvation of the Hopis
John and Mabel Suderman

THE HOPI MISSION FIELD IN ARIZONA

Hopiland

By John and Mabel Suderman

The Hopi Indian Reservation is in the northeastern part of Arizona, in the midst of an arid desert and is surrounded by the Navajo Reservation. It includes 2863 square miles of sandy wastes, rocky mesas, and canyons and has an altitude ranging from 4000 to over 7000 feet. The climate is healthful. The winters are usually cold, the thermometer occasionally dropping below zero, with much snow in some localities. The heat of summer is moderated by the high altitude, the nights being cool. The rainy season comes chiefly in the months of July, August and September. From Winslow the nearest point on the railroad, the distance to Oraibi is seventy-eight miles over rough desert roads. Formerly it took several days to make the trip going by horse or mule and camping outdoors one or two nights. Now it is made in two or three hours with a good automobile. Many interesting sights entertain the traveler along the way. The road crosses the Painted Desert, with its many colored rocks, sands, and volcanic deposits, and the red mesas which tower 400 feet or more above the desert floor. (A mesa is a high tableland rising from the desert with perpendicular walls or cliffs, making approach to the top difficult, and in some cases impossible.)

The Hopis live in the southern half of the reservation. They live in six main villages. The Hopi houses are built of stone. Instead of cement, they use adobe for mortar. Most of their houses have flat roofs. In earlier days the homes were built close together and often two and three stories high. They used to climb to the upper stories with ladders, but today most of the houses have rock steps leading up. Most of the newer houses are built with wooden floors instead of stone or adobe, with large windows, and other conveniences of the white man's house.

Within the courts are found kivas, of which each village usually has several. The kiva is an underground, excavated room, about twelve by twenty feet, the walls extending a foot or more above the ground. It is completely roofed over with the exception of a small opening which permits entrance by means of a ladder. Here the religious ceremonies are performed as well as the initiations and other activities of the various clans. At other times the kiva becomes the man's workshop or loafing place.

Social and Domestic Life

The Hopis have no distinctive social life, but in their leisure hours they visit, gossip, tell stories and traditions. Following the ceremonial dances, or on other occasions, such as marriage, there is considerable feasting and dancing.

Their domestic life is simple. The father is nominally the head of the house and he provides for the necessities of life. The mother, however, has more actual control over the children, and to her belongs the house and its contents, except his personel effects, such as saddle, harness, etc. The crops in the field belong to the man, but after they are harvested and stored in the house they belong to her and permission must be granted before they can be used. The women are almost always busy. They grind the corn, make baskets or pottery; and formerly built their own houses with the help of other women.

Hopi parents are very fond of their children, and welcome the girl babies as warmly as their brothers. Some of the babies are still tied upon their cradle from birth and spend the first six months on it. Afterwards they often ride on the mother's back or that of a little sister, securely fastened in place with a shawl.

The aged parents are more .or less neglected, except in Christian homes, as the children consider them a burden when they can work no longer. In some places however, even this is changing and the old people are receiving better care.

Native Religion and Traditions

The Hopi religion is a mixture of the religions of various tribes. They believe in supernatural beings, or spirits, good and bad, in the immortality of the soul, a future life in the underworld, the great hereafter, future punishment, salvation by character, and transmigration of the soul. The principal religious ceremonies are designed to produce rain. The ceremonies in the kiva are performed by the priests and certain members of the clan which is conducting that particular ceremony.

The religious traditions go back to the beginning of mankind, the creation and have, of course, the Hopi point of view. They have a story of the flood and the dispersion. They point out to us the similarity between their traditions and the Old Testament stories and say that it is the same or as good as the Christian's. But when the missionary reminds them that they have no Jesus, no Saviour, they are forced to admit it. With the coming of the white man, and the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the religious life of these people has changed radically. They practice their ceremonies and their dances, but fewer have really a sincere faith in their old religion.

History of the Mission Personnel

The attention of the General Conference was first directed to the Hopi Indians in 1890, by Mr. Peter Staufer, who was employed in the Government Indian Service, at Keams Canyon, Arizona. He had previously been employed in the mission work in Oklahoma, among the Arapaho Indians. No mission work had been done among the Hopis up to this time since the Spanish priests were driven away in the seventeenth century.

Two years later Rev. C. Krehbiel, President of the Mission Board, and Missionary H. R. Voth of Oklahoma, visited Hopiland. In the following year Rev. Voth was sent out to begin the mission work among the Hopis.

The work was more difficult than that in which Rev. Voth had been before because of the great isolation from the conveniences of civilization. Then there was the difficulty of securing help and material for building operations. There was also the intrenchment of the Indians in their own beliefs and ceremonies in which they had continued uninterruptedly for centuries.

Before the Gospel message could be given to these people, the missionary had to learn their language. This was accomplished with the greatest difficulty, as there were no text books, no written language, no teachers. It had to be done by asking questions, and listening to conversation. The Hopis were loathe to teach the missionary those words and terms that would convey the meaning and message of another religion which should supplant their own. The beginning was made with the help of Mr. Staufer who had gathered a small vocabulary in his contact with the Indians. It required several years of hard work to get the language well enough to be able to preach.

The missionary and his wife took every opportunity to win the confidence of the Indians, showing them kindness, visiting them in their homes, caring for the sick, in short trying to live the Christ life before them. The Indians responded by returning the missionary's visits with interest, and listening attentively, to the preaching of the gospel. Brother Voth built a mission house on the desert, about two miles from the foot of the Oraibi mesa, employing such Indian help as he could find. Some years later a chapel was built on the mesa about a quarter mile from Oraibi.

Brother and Sister Voth carried on this pioneer work alone for about eight years, amid difficulties and under great strain, until their health was impaired. In May 1901, the Lord called Sister Voth home, and her body lies buried in the sands of the Oraibi desert, a precious "grain of wheat." Brother Voth, in poor health and burdened with the care of his small children, remained on the field another year, and then turned the work over to Rev. J. B. Epp, who had come in 1901. The latter worked until 1903 when Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Frey were sent by the Mission Board. Brother Epp then returned to New York to complete his mission studies which had been interrupted when he was called to relieve Brother Voth. In two years he returned to Oraibi with his wife, and resumed the work while Brother and Sister Frey went to Moencopi. Brother Epp continued in charge of the work at Oraibi until Sister Epp's health broke down in 1911, and it was necessary for them to leave the field at once. Sister Epp was called to her heavenly home a year later.

By this time several new workers had arrived on the field. Miss Mary Schirmer came in 1906, and Rev. John R. Duerksen in 1911. Mr. C. J. Frey who had been on the mission field for some time to assist in the building projects, was ordained to the work in 1912 and took charge of the Oraibi station. In 1914 Brother Frey was taken very ill and soon went to be with the Lord. The Oraibi station then fell to the care of Brother and Sister Duerksen who had charge of it until they moved to Hotevilla in October 1919. Hotevilla is seven miles distant from Oraibi, and the work there had been begun by Sister Schirmer with the assistance of Brother Duerksen who built a chapel and a mission house near the village. Sister Schirmer resigned in August, 1919, and the work in both Hotevilla and Bacavi was left to Brother Duerksen's care.

Again the mission board sent new workers to Oraibi. Rev. and Mrs. Karl Friesen took charge in October 1919, with the assistance of Otto Lomavitu, a native helper and interpreter. After more than six years of faithful work, Brother and Sister Friesen found it necessary to leave the field, resigning in June 1926, on account of poor health which no doubt was due to the high altitude and the extremely dry atmosphere.

Mission work in Moencopi was begun by the Women's National Indian Association. About 1904 they offered to relinquish their field in favor of our Mission at Oraibi, and the work was taken over by Brother and Sister J. B. Frey in 1905. During the first year or two the missionary's time was occupied in erecting the mission house and the chapel, which are in close contact with the Indian village, being separated from it by less than fifty rods. Brother and Sister Frey worked alone except for short visits from friends or new workers. In 1915 Miss Caroline Burkhalter came. She remained there in the work until 1922, and then resigned to be married and to enter another field of Christian service.

One of the first native helpers in the Hopi Mission was Frank Jenkins who assisted Brother Frey in the translation work at Moencopi, and also gave promise of becoming effective personal worker and preacher to his own people. The Lord called him home in the winter of 1918 during the influenza epidemic, after he had served Him but a few years. In the summer of 1922 a Hopi couple, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Johnson were appointed to assist Brother Frey. They have both had training for Christian work.

Another phase of mission work was taken up early in the Mission's history, namely caring for Hopi orphan children. The first orphans, two little girls, were cared for by Mrs. Gates, a mission friend who was not in the employ of the Mission Board. Brother and Sister Epp took an orphan girl into their home. Other orphans were received from time to time and were cared for in the home of one missionary or another. We must mention also Sister Elizabeth Schmidt, from the Tabor church near Newton, who had charge of a small orphanage until the children left for school at other places. Since the beginning of this work a number of orphans have died. Three boys and one young woman are now taking their part in life with the rest of the people.

After Brother and Sister Karl Friesen left in 1926, the Oraibi Station continued in the charge of Fred A. Johnson until 1930. In November 1930, Rev. and Mrs. John P. Suderman came to take charge of the station at Oraibi. Brother and Sister Fred Johnson then went to Moencopi because Brother Frey had resigned. Sister Mary Schirmer was called back to Hotevilla when Brother and Sister Duerksen left on furlough. In 1934 Daniel Schirmer, a Hopi orphan boy, who was raised by Miss Mary Schirmer entered the work there as a native helper. When in 1936 he married Amy Talas from Oraibi, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Schirmer took charge. In the fall of ——— Fred A. Johnson was ordained to the gospel ministry. Upon the advice of physicians, Brother and Sister Suderman are preparing to take a short leave which the Mission Board has granted them. Brother and Sister Waldo E. Harder arrived a few days ago to take charge of the work at Oraibi during that time.

Translations

Much has been done along the line of translation work. Rev. Voth and Rev. Epp have done a great mass of preparatory work. Later the Brethren Frey and Duerksen have translated Scripture passages, with the help of K. T. Johnson, Frank Jenkins and Otto Lemavitu. At present there are available for the Hopis a Bible History (printed in 1916) the Epistle to the Romans, chapter 1 to 8 (1917) a short Bible Study of Catechism (1923), and the four gospels. Besides this there are typewritten copies of Acts and all the Epistles of the New Testament in the hands of all the missionaries. In 1931 the Mennonite Board in conjunction with the Baptist Board printed a Hopi Song book with 128 Hopi songs written by the Hopi Christians and missionaries. A few of these are translated from the English and the German.

Various Phases of Mission Work

The Mission work among the Hopis is purely evangelistic in character, for the reason that the government takes care of their educational, medical and industrial needs. The services for the Christians consist of Sunday School and preaching services on Sundays, midweek prayer meetings, and one evening a week of Bible Study. The services are in over half the cases conducted in the English language, with services for the older ones interpreted by a Hopi. There are only a few Christians who do not understand the English. At the Oraibi High School the missionary is permitted to enter the dormitory to teach Bible one evening a week.

Since many unsaved do not come to church services, nor to any other services to hear the Word of God, the missionary must bring the message to them either by open air preaching or by house visitation. House visitation is probably the best method of reaching the Hopis. They are usually friendly to the missionary. Once a week the missionary's wife has a sewing class for the women where they sew patches together for a quilt top. This is a splendid opportunity to preach the gospel to them. An intensive evangelistic campaign is carried on every fall. Bible Study classes are held for the native Christians. The natives then have charge of the street meetings and house to house gospel work.

In knowledge of Scripture, as also in Christian living, the majority manifest definite growth. This is shown by their faithfulness to Christian duties, their regular attendance at the various Christian services, and by their willingness to witness to their own people both at the street meetings and in private conversation.

The Missionary and His Family

The climate offers no serious difficulties to the missionaries, except that the altitude sometimes brings ill effects, and it is necessary for them to spend some time occasionally in a lower altitude. The difficulty of securing a suitable education on the reservation for the missionary's children forms a big problem, and cannot be satisfactorily solved so long as the number of white children in each mission locality is small. Private instruction in the home by the missionary's wife, and occasionally a year or two of public school for the white children, is the usual course, until the children can attend high school or college away from home. The missionary and his family live an isolated life, shut in with the Hopis by the surrounding desert, in the midst of the homeland, and yet apparently in a foreign country with the sound of a foreign language in their ears. Nevertheless, by the way of the Throne they are close to the home friends and the churches." (Staufer.)

A BRIEF SKETCH OF OUR ARIZONA MISSION FROM 1893-1943

By P. H. Richert

As most of the Lord's doings, His leading us to this field had a small beginning, humanly speaking. But when we think of the developments that pointed the way for us, we see that even our government was set in motion to get our first missionaries away from Darlington, Oklahoma, to explore this new field.

"It so happened," we say, that at this time, a few years before we began the work here, the government opened the Cheyenne and Arapahoe reservation to settlement by whites. This made certain changes necessary in our mission work, which made it possible to spare some of the older workers in Oklahoma. Besides, already in 1890 the government had taken one of our mission workers (a farmer) from Oklahoma to Arizona into the government Indian service for the Hopis at Keams Canyon. Although not a missionary, he had a missionary heart, and called the attention of our Board to the urgent need of a missionary among the neglected Hopis on a part of this reservation. On the east part of this field the Baptists already did some work, but only through interpreters.

So in 1892 the president of the Board, C. Krehbiel, and missionary H. R. Voth were sent to Hopiland to investigate the needs and possibilities for mission work. They were so impressed with the needs of the field, that they were convinced that the Lord called us to open a mission there.

When they came home and reported to the churches about it, enough money was pledged by the churches to make a beginning, and missionary Voth was appointed as the pioneer missionary. This was done at a Mission Board meeting held in my father's house, since he was a member of the Board at that time. This was in the spring of 1893. This meeting of the Board in our home made quite an impression upon me, so that some felt for a while that I should go there as a missionary. But poor health in the family prevented this.

From the very beginning, the work was difficult in many ways. It was seventy-five miles from the nearest railroad station, and the roads were bad and sandy. Lumber had to be hauled with horses and wagon from Flagstaff one-hundred miles away. At one time they needed nine days for the trip, and used twenty horses to get two loads of lumber the last part of the trip. The missionary had to build the house himself, while the family lived in a rented Hopi house. While he built the house and the Hopis would visit him at his work, he had paper and pencil at his side to note down new words, which he heard from them. So he slowly built up the beginning of a knowledge of the language. The first question he learned was "Pam hin Matchiwa?" How is this named?

While there were two factions among the Hopis, one friendly and one not, most of them could not forget the treatment of the Spanish conquerers of two-hundred years ago, which in many cases was very unfair and un-Christian, although they brought along Catholic priests to do mission work. With this prejudice against the whites both the missionary and the government had to contend, and had to overcome it slowly by love and friendship.

One great difficulty in building that station was the digging of a well in the sand. Several wells had to be dug, and the one that was usable, was soon flooded by a heavy rain which filled the big wash. Even the government well was destroyed. The barn had to be moved, being in danger of collapsing if another such rain would come.

Concerning the fruit of the work Brother Voth writes in a sketch of the work: "One of the priests, for years the head man of one of the secret orders, began to show real interest in the gospel near the end of ten years of work. He had already resigned from his office, and soon after I had to leave the field, expressed the desire to be baptized, not in the church, but in the missionaries' home. But a little later he was willing to come to church and be baptized.

In 1901 Mrs. Voth died and had to be laid to rest in the sandy grave near the station. She left a little daughter behind, besides three other children Frieda, Albert, and Esther. The departure of Mrs. Voth soon made it necessary for Missionary Voth to leave the field and come to Kansas with his children.

In 1901 Brother J. B. Epp came to take his place. His sister Ida came along with him. He continued to put the language into writing, which missionary Voth had begun. One year they worked together on this. In 1902 he went to school again, and Brother and Sister J. B. Frey took his place. In 1905 Brother Epp came back with his wife, Nettie Harms, and remained on the field till 1911. His wife died in 1912 in Los Angeles while they were on furlough. So he also had to leave the field in 1915.

The first baptism took place at Oraibi in 1904, while Brother J. B. Frey was still there. It was Lillie Talawenka. Brother Frey describes this baptism somewhat at length, not only because it was the first, but also because it shows the courage which it took to take this step.

In 1906 Mary Schirmer entered the work and was stationed at Hotevilla. She adopted Dan Schirmer, who is now her successor there.

In 1911 Brother and Sister J. R. Duerksen were sent there until 1914, when Brother C. J. Frey died, who had served a few years as farmer and then as missionary at Oraibi. The Duerksens served till 1931.

In 1915 sister Carolina Burkhalter entered the work and remained till 1922.

In 1919 Brother and Sister Karl Friesen were sent to Oraibi and remained till 1926, when poor heath caused them to resign.

Elizabeth Schmidt served in the small orphanage from 1911 till 1939.

For some months Rev. H. P. Peters served as substitute for Brother and Sister Suderman.

Brother Frank Jenkins served as native helpers for a few years, beginning 1918.

Brother and Sister F. A. Johnson have served since 1922, mostly in Moen Copi.

Brother and Sister Dan Schirmer have served since 1937 at Hotevilla. He began in 1935.

Other helpers were Elisabeth Ruth Qoyawayma, Minnie Jenkins, Bessie Sahwnoesi, and Coin Humiwentiwa.

Translation work has been done by the missionaries J. B. Epp, J. B. Frey, and J. R. Duerksen, who did most of it. The native helpers, Frank Jenkins, K. T. Johnson, Otto Lomavitu.

The present missionaries, Brother and Sister J. P. Suderman, have been on the field since 1930 which makes now 13 years.

The Lord has blessed their work visibly. At one time sixteen souls could be added to the church in one year. They have a strong hold on the Hopis. Through much singing of the Gospel they influence both young and old, especially the young. It is an inspiration to hear the children sing and the parents pray. They have deserved a vacation, which they expect to take this winter.

The following translations have been made: Bible History (Old and New Testament), 1916—printed; Romans (chapters 1-8), 1917—printed; Grammar and "Conversation;" The four Gospels (in print, 1926; the whole New Testament, except a part of Romans and Revelation (in manuscript); a song book (translations and originals) 1918 and reprint 1925; a Catechism, 1923; a Hopi Primer for learning to read.

AT ORAIBI

(By Miss Mary Wedel, Galva, Kansas)

"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen. Matt. 28:19-20.

What a joy it has been for me to have had the opportunity to live and work together with just such messengers, whom God has sent out into his vineyard to the Hopi Indians in Arizona. I had the privilege to assist Rev. and Mrs. John P. Suderman in teaching vacation Bible School to the Hopi children. It is our prayer that the seed which has been sown in these hearts may grow and multiply that many may have been led to Jesus Christ. We had the privilege of teaching two hundred ninety-seven Hopi children from the age of two years and up. We had a dear old Indian grandmother eighty years old, of upper Oraibi in whose home we conducted the Bible School. She gladly gave us permission to use her home for this purpose, for which the Lord will certainly bless her. She attended the classes every day. We taught vacation Bible school at four different stations. First at Bacabi and Hotevilla together with Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Schirmer; second, at Moen Copi together with Rev. and Mrs. Fred Johnson; third, at Lower Oraibi and lastly at Upper Oraibi, which is the most primitive of all the Indian villages, although it is the oldest continuously inhabited village of the U. S. I received many blessings from this work.

The life of our missionaries at Oraibi although difficult is characterized by a deep well grounded faith and prayer life. They love their work and Hopi Christians often told me that they loved their missionaries and they show they do too, by their prayers, for they do not fail to thank the Lord for the missionaries.

The Lord has blessed the Hopi Christians at Oraibi with a very nice meeting house. They have also a fine basement. I had the privilege of being there when they whitewashed these walls. They were happy at their work. I rejoiced to worship together with our Hopi brethren. Several Sunday School classes meet here; the junior boys' class room partition walls have been made of cardboard boxes and the Hopi women have whitewashed the walls making a very nice, cozy and clean little classroom, which is heated by a little topsy stove. The adult class and two others meet in the main auditorium, and the junior girls' class meets upstairs. The Hopis take active part in Sunday School classes. Not only Christians come to Sunday School but many children from the non-Christian homes. They love to come to Church to sing the songs and choruses. They have both an organ and a piano in their church. Rev. and Mrs. Suderman, both being able to play, they use both instruments which the Hopis enjoy very much. And how the Hopis do sing! I marveled at their singing. There was life, joy and meaning in their song; they sing from the heart. We all felt closer to our Savior when we sang those lovely hymns of praise and adoration. After a time of singing like this, a very impressive devotional service was conducted. One of the Indian Christians drives twenty miles with team and wagon, and gets there on time every Sunday morning to the Oraibi church because he liked the impressive devotional service. After the devotional services Rev. Suderman delivered very inspirational messages.

In the afternoon a Sunday School is conducted on the upper mesa in Puhumana's home since the old mesa chapel has burned down. As I paused at the ruins of the old Chapel, I couldn't help but stand and gaze and wonder why the Lord's House was laid in ruins, but we do not understand. We can only pray to God that it may be restored.

Each Wednesday night regardless of weather they gather in church for prayer meeting. Rev. and Mrs. Suderman have done a good job of stressing reverence for prayer. What a joy it is to be amongst them in their hour of sincere prayer as shown by their expression of sincerity and often weeping. We had an especially impressive prayer meeting at the time when Timothy Lomaritu, a young Hopi Christian gentleman, who was home on a sick leave following an emergency appendectomy; he is a soldier from a camp in Alabama. At the prayer meeting he requested the prayers of his home Church that he might be strengthened to witness for Christ among the many scorners and scoffers of His name. We thank the Lord for such a faith in just a young life. Mrs. Suderman usually conducted a Bible story class for the young people on prayer meeting night. This is a very valuable teaching of the Bible stories to these young people to strengthen them in their faith. At these prayer meetings I could sense the showers of blessings pouring forth from the windows of heaven from prayer and the various Bible stories.

Rev. and Mrs. Suderman also conducted street meetings at each village alternately every Sunday afternoon. Rev. Suderman played the folding organ and Mrs. Suderman and the accompaning Christians joined in singing songs of invitation to Christ, to the unsaved who would sit in their doorways with backs turned toward us, or else make an excuse to work outside in order to come out to listen. They seem to desire the Word but Satan works so powerfully amongst them that they reject the salvation of Christ. At the last street meeting I attended the last Sunday I was at Oraibi even the Chief's wife with one of her grandchildren on her back was facing us and listening. Many were standing on their pueblo roofs, hearing the words of the messengers.

Evangelistic services were held every Sunday night at 7:30 p.m. Singing of songs and choruses for about thirty minutes followed by an English sermon without the interpreter.

Besides all these services a prayer day is conducted once a month at different stations each month, where all the Christians at Oraibi and the neighboring missions came together for prayer for the salvation of the unsaved and for the continuance and growth of faith in the Christians. A luncheon was served in the basement and continued prayer meetings in the afternoon.

I had the privilege of being with Mrs. Suderman visiting forty different Indian homes. We visited both Christian and non-Christian homes. What a different atmosphere in the homes of Christians. One afternoon we visited the Chief's home and his workshop. He was half-dressed, and was making war shields, bows and arrows, and Kachina dolls for tourists to buy. The words he spoke definitely revealed heathendom. Next we stepped into the home of Tom Mootska, whose whole family are Christians. There Tom, the father, with the open family Bible, reading from the book of Isaiah; his family sitting around him, the mother sitting on a sheep skin with a two year old grand child, Rachael Jan, sitting on her lap, being trained in scripture from early youth, what a contrasting picture.

The Lord has wondrously sent out fishers of men from our Mennonite group. Let us not fail in our intercessory prayer for our missionaries and others that the gospel of Jesus Christ and Him Crucified may not cease to go on, but pray for more laborers, pray and encourage our young people that more will be willing to say, "What wilt Thou have me to do?" or "Here am I, send me!" For the harvest truly is great but the laborers are few.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS OF HOPI LAND

As we turn from well traveled highway and from cities with their alluring lights upon a common winding dirt road one naturally wonders what lies ahead. The rough indescribable miles of "washboardy" roads, the waste stretches of barren desert on either side, the beautiful mountain peaks in the distance, the clear crisp air, the colorful rocks on the sides of the ever heightening mesas, an occasional group of small underfed Indian ponies or a lone burro, a herd of sheep and goats and their longhaired, brown-skinned Indian shepherd sitting on his horse with two or three dogs lying nearby, a small patch of an acre or two of corn with some beans nearby, all of which point to the fact that there lies here a civilization and culture utterly different from what we have been acquainted with heretofore.

From the crest of a hill the village comes into view. The crooked streets and paths, the small, low, flat-roofed houses made of stone and adobe mortar, the season's corn crop drying in front of the door (for it is harvest time), the pieces of mutton drying on a wire above the door, an old woman with long grey hair treading out her beans, while another in the back of her house is grinding flour between two stones much like they did in the days of Christ's ministry, or a group of women comes running together with their babies on their backs for someone has brought in some peppers for market (flour, corn, and basket sticks are brought in exchange), and the dirty unkempt children playing in the streets make one to realize that there are souls. These other things are but outward, they pass with time, but souls are immortal.

As we meet them they are friendly and genial, much like any group of our own race. Yet beneath the outward expressions one senses the feeling of oppression, the sadness of despair, the hardening effects of sin, and the evidences of sinfulness and shame stand out all too clear. But in contrast to this, at the edge of the village stands the beautiful white church with its bell tolling out the call to worship. When they have gathered our hearts are thrilled at their singing of praises to Christ, their Redeemer. But our hearts leap for joy when they sang to us, "There's a welcome here . . . a Christian welcome here." No, we were not alone. Here were those of like precious faith, redeemed by the blood, cleansed from sin, with hope and peace in their hearts. Yes, there is a difference; there's power, transforming power, in the blood. The willingness to speak out for the Lord and to pray in public, pouring out their hearts to God in either Hopi or English and the keen discernment of spiritual truth give indication of spiritual stability and growth.

But what about those who haven't experienced this as yet? They live on and on in their darkness, and then they die. Have they not heard? Some have, but, Christian friend, how long did you hear the Gospel before trusting your soul to the Saviour, with the added advantage of a Christian home and Christian training? The bonds of Satan are so strong, the old pagan concepts rooted so deeply, and the love of sin so intense that they must hear again and again, and just a little at a time.

We in ourselves are powerless, but the Gospel of Christ is still "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." Pray that its power may be present for conviction, salvation, and sanctification. Pray for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Pray for Hopi souls before it is too late.

INDIA ANNUAL COMPOSITE OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE MENNONITE MISSION

April 1, 1942, to March 31, 1943

Dear Brethren:

For an introduction let serve I Cor. 3:11, because He is the foundation of every phase in missionary and other Christian work; then Heb. 13:8, because HE has been from all eternity and will be in all eternity beyond all human calculation.

I

BEGINNING

This beginning was aired quite extensively last year, therefore the details shall be omitted here now since no material changes have occurred.

II

FIELD

A—Approximate area in square miles	8,000
B—Approximate population, because exact figures not procurable.	1,002,000
C—Approximate villages and towns (no large cities)	2,950

There are found Christians in 146 villages. This certainly is only a small percentage, all the villages taken into consideration. The Christian community runs up to 4,275 out of which there are 2,613 regular members of our churches besides 78 Christians who have not until now joined our churches.

There are now some 52,000 persons allotted to each missionary. There are 19 missionaries on the field. Some 13,000 come to each evangelistic worker, and nearly 400 to each church member. A wide field lies before us. Would it not be for the reliable promises of the Word, one's courage would undoubtedly fail!

III

WORKING STAFF

A—European missionaries (all except one, U.S.A. citizens)

B—Indian helpers	Men	Women	Totals
a Evangelistic	19	13	32
b Educational	19	13	32
c Medical	35	26	61
d Institutional	5	10	15
e Industrial	5	2	7
Total number of Indian Staff	147	74	191

"Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that He will send labourers into HIS harvest!" There is the absolute necessity today to have the experience of Isa. 6, ending with eighth verse "Here am I; send me!" "Wherever He leads me, I shall follow!"

In certain areas there is an awakening; nearly all over the listeners willingly lend their ears to the gospel; the acceptance of that for their personal use, is quite another case.

IV

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY

A—Organized churches (Leper church included)	27.
B—Members of our churches (There occurred 254 baptisms)	2,613.
C—Christians, not yet members of our churches	78
D—Unbaptized children	1,584
Total of entire Christian community	4,275

(An increase in these 12 months of 539)

V

Industrial work is pursued along farming (rice, peanuts, orchards), dairy is starting a little, also poultry, gardening, weaving, a printing press has been set up; for the beginning is doing well. Smithery, carpentry. Most of these enterprises are still in infancy. Efforts are made to make the constituencies believe that labor is an honor.

O—Financial:
a Monthly church dues (out of 64 pice 2 flow into this treasury; one half is taken for church expenses, one fourth goes to the Indian church Home Mission field; one fourth to the pastor fund.	Rs. 3,061
b Sunday morning offerings	Rs. 1,212
c Special offerings	Rs. 1,274
d Sunday School offerings	Rs. 391
From the church angle.	Rs. 5,938

According to 326½ rate of exchange amounts to nearly $1,820. Indescribable poverty; failure of crops caused the total to recede from that what it was in the previous report. However, then we had 15 months, now only 12.

e Evangelistic—sale of literature	Rs. 257
f Educational in grants and fees, etc. (Grants are from government)	3,425
g Institutional and industrial	1,046
h Medical—sales of medicine, fees, etc.	13,551
	Rs. 18,279

This amount flows back into the mission fund account, therefore the budget can be reduced that much. Most of this amount does not appear in the budget.

The influx into the churches was somewhat reduced in the Jagdeeshpur area for some reason or other. There has come about a change. For a number of years mainly out of one caste came the converts; this began to cause the other castes to think that only the one caste was singled out to enter the church. Now work is done successfully among the various castes. The Mauhadei area has opened up that in these past 12 months 48 souls could be baptized with some 80 enquirers residing in some 20 villages. Whether these 80 or more will all turn ultimately into the church, the future has to reveal. Four churches could be organized in Tal Deori, Beltikri, Ghoghra, Manakoni. At Tal Deoria and Ghoghra mud wall churches are under construction, the other two places have abandoned mission school houses to serve as churches now. The mission area has 65 different castes. There are mainly two languages spoken; Hindi and Ariya.

In midst of the internal political rumours of unrest, war impressions are felt very perceptibly. The work continues undisturbed. This is construed to the special grace from God. This should be thought of with special gratitude to the Almighty. The missionary staff feels very perceptibly that its number has been reduced, and shouldering of more responsibilities cannot be prevented. The Lord, however, has most wonderfully kept up health, strength, etc. "As thy days so shall thy strength be!" The Lord is working with us as in the early days of the church.

NOT FORGOTTEN

Tonight I can't forget the sixty-five lepers who begged for admission into our home. Please affect deeply when the hands are folded and the head is bowed. When a leper adds to that getting down on his knees and finally lying prostrate on the ground, one feels guilty about something in offering a refusal. And when sixty-five lepers do that at one time the hand feels empty, the mind is bewildered, and the heart pounds violently.

On the faces of the lepers I could read stories that don't belong in bed-time story books. The marked, drawn, and resigned faces of the older lepers told their stories most effectively. Occasional tear-drops punctuated each sentence clearly. "There was a time when we had a home. We had friends; we had good clothes, we had plenty of food. We had something to live for. We had—we had—we had. Now we don't have. Please, admit us and let us die in peace." Their argument was clear, concise, and convincing. I believed them. I knew that I should admit them. That I couldn't haunts me tonight.

But it was the appeal of the young people that left me most uncomfortable. I was surrounded by youth of twelve to twenty-four years that doesn't smile or laugh. It was so unnatural and unreal. Still there was nothing fictitious here. This was drama from real life. There was a tense silence as they waited for the word that would admit them. I found myself stalling for time. I wanted to postpone disappointing them. My words, "I sympathize with you" sounded hollow. The young faces merely talked louder. I could sense the feeling of apprehension. Their young faces of anxious hope contrasted sharply with the resigned faces of the older people. Their young spirits had not yet bowed in defeat.

I pointed to the six young people and four older ones to be admitted. We had room for that many only. After a long while the remaining fifty-five slowly and silently turned away one by one. The heads were bowed. Their tired bodies looked even more weary now as they turned the corner in the road that hid them from my view. And so they left but not entirely—I have a picture of them. It is a picture of a desperate need that has not been met. It is indelibly impressed upon my mind. And tonight I find myself viewing and reviewing the scenes in my mind as though it were a movie film flashing its pictures on the screen again and again.

GOD'S WILL AND YOUR PRAYERS

By S. T. Moyer

The other day I found it. For years I felt assured that if anything was according to the will of God, that then it was merely a matter of persistent prayer and sacrificial application to the task until victory was assured according to that will. And now comes this verse supporting this assurance.

"This in the CONFIDENCE we have in Him, that if we ask ANYTHING according to HIS WILL, HE HEARETH us; and if we know that He heareth us, WHATSOEVER we ask, we know that we HAVE THE PETITION that we desire of him." I John 5:14,15.

Our Christian supporters in America! Now very quickly can we forget the response you gave to our pleadings half a dozen years ago that you pray for the work in the Basna Area. God answered. Harvest came. Not very soon can we forget the response you gave during our furlough. God seemed to have been in our plans also, and sent us back, to arrive just before the outbreak of the war.

But now, cannot we plead with you to support us even more valiantly in prayer for in gathering in the Janjgir area, where we are now stationed? His name be praised for the labors and fruitage of the years at Janjgir, and thrice praised. But it cannot be His will that only one church exist in one among 400 villages, and that more than a hundred thousand live and die a Christless life? Surely, it is His will that they come to a saving knowledge through faith and baptism in the name of Christ. The times are propitious. God moved world forces to get Mary to go to Bethlehem, that Christ might be born there. Cannot He be moving India today, that Christ may be born in the hearts of hundreds of thousands in areas where ingathering has not set in?

If you are convinced with me that it is HIS WILL that thousands accept Jesus Christ as their Saviour in baptism in our area during this our term of service, please, covenant with me to pray according to I John 5: 14,15.

SEVEN MILLION INDIANS

By Gerald Stucky

Sometime ago a Mennonite missionary in Mexico found an Indian sitting beside a hole in a field. Wondering why the Indian should be thus idly sitting, he walked over to the man and asked him what he was doing. The Indian replied that he was working. This reply amazed the inquirer, for it was apparent that the Indian was doing nothing but sitting. So, he repeated his question. The Indian replied, "I'm working. Don't be stupid." The worker, now being thoroughly puzzled by the Indian's reply, asked him to explain. The Indian replied, "White man is very stupid. He goes hunting for two or three days, walks all over trying to catch animal. White man gets all worn out. Indian not so stupid. Indian see animal go into this hole. Indian knows animal must soon come out of hole again for it has nothing to eat or drink down there. When animal comes out—Indian will catch."

The Indian composes 30 per cent of Mexico's population of 19,000,000 people. About 60 per cent are of mixed blood. Until the recent entry of the Wycliffe Translators, most of the Indian tribes were without a gospel witness. Among mestizo (people of mixed blood) there are still many towns and villages where there is no evangelical work in progress. The people are hungry for the gospel truth and light, and many are turning to Christ for salvation. In a downtown church of a large Mexican city we heard a native pastor give a simple gospel message on the text in Revelation 3:20.. He had scarcely finished his message when about two dozen people almost spontaneously walked to the front of the church as an indication of their desire for salvation. The pastor told us that the people are coming for salvation in a continuous procession.

Thousands will come if someone will bring them the light. This challenge is for the people of our generation—there is great opportunity across the border.—October 5, 1943

LETTER FROM W. C. VOTH

(Written to his family)

Medellin, Colombia
October 20, 1943

Dear Ones at Home:

We have been in Medellin since Sunday, October 17 . . . It was a very nice flight of two and one-half hours. As we came over the mountains and got the first sight of this valley and the city of Medellin, it was a very beautiful sight indeed. There are some twenty or more Catholic church spires in this city and on the mountain side just before we came to the city there was a large statue of Christ in white.

The Clarks with whom we are staying are of the Presbyterian Mission—used to be in Korea one term and also a year in Manchuria. Met two other families, Dr. Clark and Dick Baird who also were in Japan. The Bairds are going to the northern part of Colombia where there is a country district of some 8,000 in the country where there is no "Church." There is a language school here.

Friday, October 22: We left Medellin on Thursday morning on a long and tiresome bus trip. Started at twenty of four and then over the mountains we went. About 6:00 we changed to a car for the next stretch and arrived at Armenia at 7:30. Here is where we are at this time and expect to leave again at 6:30 tomorrow morning, first to Ibague Presbyterian Mission and in the afternoon on from there by train to Bogota.

Here as Armenia the Christian and Missionary Alliance have a good Bible School with about 60 students. They have about 32 missionaries with come on furlough. It seems this country is pretty well taken care of except the southwest where the climate is very bad and population very thin. Then there are a few pockets where more work could be done, in Huila, Caccata and along north.

The climate here is quite different than I had anticipated. At these altitudes—Medellin 5,000 Bogota 8,500—it is damp and chilly in the rainy season, which is most of the time. Last Tuesday I caught a cold and while I got over that part, it left me somewhat upset. But I praise the Lord that He has helped in that again too . . . I sure appreciate that you children have been praying so faithfully for us. Keep it up; I am sure the Lord will answer. . . .

P. S. Thought I ought to mention that we met a Mr. Zook here who has been in South America many years. He said he came from Virginia from the Mennonites there. Then there is another missionary, Rev. Bauman who comes from Canada from the Brethren Mennonites. Rev. Prentice is the chairman. We had very nice fellowship and visit with all of these here.

Bogota, Colombia. October 24. Arrived here last night—another full day of hard travel. I felt fairly tired, so today being Sunday, decided to stay in bed. I felt pretty weak and found out that I had a temperature above normal. We are staying with Dr. and Mrs. Seel, Executive Secretary for the Presbyterian Mission here, and we decided to consult a doctor at our earliest convenience. He was able to get a doctor this afternoon, and the doctor says that it is an attack of malaria. So he has prescribed some medicine for it and advises that I should rest several days. I hope and pray that the Lord, may give strength again before long.

I expect to begin taking vitamin pills. Soon I expect to have new vim, vigor and vitality—so don't worry.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

"In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Jesus Christ concerning you." I Thess. 5:18.

Singing praises to God is one way of giving thanks to Him. So a lively song service is a good beginning for a Thanksgiving program. Here are a number of suggested songs—all in the Mennonite Hymnary.

Praise Him! Praise Him! No. 438.
This is My Father's World No. 48.
For the Beauty of the Earth, No. 51.
We Praise Thee O God! No. 437.
We plough the Fields and Scatter, No. 375.

The following poems express some additional ways of giving thanks. In what ways can be shown our sincere gratitude for the many blessings which we enjoy? What is "thanks-living?" (These poems may be assigned to different people.) Name blessings listed.

Thanksgiving

For all things beautiful, and good, and true;
For things that seemed not good yet turned to good;
For all the sweet compulsions of Thy will
That chastened, tried, and wrought us to Thy shape;
For things unnumbered that we take of right,
And value first when they are withheld;
For light and air; sweet sense of sound and smell;
For ears to hear the heavenly harmonies;
For eyes to see the unseen in the seen;
For vision of the Worker in the work;
For hearts to apprehend Thee everywhere;
We thank Thee, Lord.

Dear Lord, we give Thee thanks today
For all the blessings that we know,
Kneeling with grateful hearts, the way
The pilgrims knelt, long years ago.

We take so little time to pray:
Forgive us that we careless grow.
Dear Lord, we give Thee thanks today—
"Praise Him from whom all blessings flow."

Whate'er the future may bestow
Give us, O Lord, the strength to say
Through cloud and sunshine, weal and woe,
"Dear Lord, we give Thee thanks today."

Gratitude

For sunlit hours and visions clear,
For all remembered faces dear,
For comrades of a single day,
Who sent us stronger on our way,
For friends that shared the year's long road,
And bore with us the common load,
For hours that levied heavy tolls,
But brought us nearer to our goals,
For insights won through toil and tears,
We thank the Keeper of our years.

Were thanks with every gift expressed,
Each day would be Thanksgiving;
Were gratitude its very best,
Each life would be thanks-living.

Discussion:
Some things for which I am thankful:
A Christian home which also provides the necessities of life.
A healthy body.
Educational privileges—friendship of students and teachers.
A Christian religion, etc.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

GOOD CITIZENS ARE THANKFUL Ps. 92: 1-8

Memory Verse—"In every thing give thanks for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." I Thess. 5:18.

The Habit of Thanksgiving

It is good to create the "Thankful habit." A thankful heart is the only happy heart. Just to be grateful is not enough, but we must give expression of it. For anything and everything give thanks. Be on the lookout for the mercies and kindness of God and you will be thankful always. Better lose count in enumerating your blessings, than lose your blessings in telling over your troubles. As God daily "loadeth us with benefits," our thanks should ascend daily to him. We should never partake of a meal without giving thanks.

Thankful for Friends

How kind are our friends? How grateful to God we should be for them! Let us not accept their kindnesses and favors without telling them we appreciate them.

Thankful for the Common Things of Life

For the sunshine and shadow, for home and loved ones, for life and health, give daily thanks. What if the sun would not shine or dawn should not come one day. Why did God give us the night for rest? The very constancy of God's blessings sometimes seems to kill our gratitude, whereas the wonderful thing about the mercies of God is that they are fresh every morning, and new every evening.

"I Give Humble Thanks"

"For every blessing Thou dost send,
For every kind and loyal friend,
For all that's good in word or deed,
For prompt supply of all my need
For gift of health along life's way.
For strength to work from day to day
I give Thee humble thanks!

"For hands that help and words that cheer,
For listening ears Thy voice to hear,
For yielded tongue Thy love to talk,
For willing feet Thy paths to walk,
For open eyes Thy word to read,
For loving heart Thy will to heed,
I give Thee humble thanks!"

"The Days of Preparation."

Reader: With flaming sword, cherubim guarded the entrance to the Garden of Eden, and to the tree of life. For man's first sin had been committed, and Adam and Eve, the parents of the human race, had been driven out of Paradise into the sin-cursed world.

Reading Choir: Genesis 3:15. And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing.

And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee, and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed.

Reader: Zachariah 6:13 and 9:9. Even he shall build the temple of the Lord; and he shall bear the glory and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and he shall be a priest upon his throne: and the counsel of peace shall be between them both. Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy King cometh unto thee.

Reading Choir: Isaiah 40:1-5. Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, saith your God.

Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, and her iniquity pardoned, for she has received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins.

The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God.

Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low, and the crooked shall be make straight and the rough places plain.

And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

HOW FAR TO BETHLEHEM?

"How far is it to Bethlehem town?"
Just over the Jerusalem hills adown,
Past lovely Rachel's white-domed tomb—
Sweet shrine of motherhood's young doom.

It isn't far to Bethlehem town—
Just over the dusty roads adown,
Past Wise Men's well, still offering
Cool draughts from welcome wayside springs;
Past shepherds with their flutes of reed
That charm the woolly sheep they lead;
Past boys with kites on hill-tops flying,
And soon you're there where Bethlehem's lying,
Sunned white and sweet on olived slopes,
Gold-lighted still with Judah's hopes.
And so we find the Shepherd's field
The plain that gave rich Boaz yield;
And look where Herod's villa stood.
We thrill that earthly parenthood
Could foster Christ who was all-good;
And thrill that Bethlehem town today
Looks down on Christian homes that pray.
It isn't far to Bethlehem town!
It's anywhere that Christ comes down
And finds in people's friendly face
A welcome and abiding-place.
The road to Bethlehem runs right through
The homes of folks like me and you.

By Madeleine Sweeny Miller

Reader: Rev. 5:13, Isaiah 9:6. Unto him that sitteth on the throne and unto the Lamb be the blessing, and the honor and the glory and the dominion for ever and ever.

W. C. Voth Ill With Typhus

A few days ago the following telegram arrived from Bogota, Colombo, South America, where Gerald Stucky and W. C. Voth now are.

"The doctor recommends Voth's return. Advise, send substitute, letter follows. Gerald B. Stucky."
Voth-Stucky

This information is published with the request for intercession for Brother Voth's recovery. Although Brother Voth is sick with typhus he is expected to recover. If he has to return, as the doctor, then Brother Stucky may have to proceed alone for the trip, unless we soon find another partner for him. Continue to pray for all concerned. The last report is that Brother Voth is improving. —P. H. Richert

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE FELLOWSHIP, NEW YORK CITY

On October 7, the first Mennonite fellowship meeting was held. Everyone present contributed to the program. Each one in turn informed the the group who they were, what they were doing, their prospective plans, and some challenges and needs of the Mennonites.

Every district of the General Conference was represented. There are about seventy Mennonites in New York and vicinity. An interesting schedule of Mennonite speakers is being made for the year. If any one knows of some Mennonites in this area that the fellowship committee has probably not contacted, notify the fellowship secretary, Jacob J. Enz, 235 E. 49th St., New York (17), N. Y.

Items of Interest

We had the privilege of having Dr. P. A. Penner speak to the Biblical Seminary student body in our Thursday morning assembly (October 21). He told of the leper work in India. Among other things, he said that there were three phases of importance in the work—soup, soap, and salvation—the later being by far the most essential and needful.

Friday evening, through the arrangement of Brother and Sister Wenger, a group of seventeen Mennonites had an Indian dinner together at the Ceylon restaurant. By the piquant remarks made by Brother Penner, our guest of honor, as well as by the Wengers, one would assume that they had quite an "at home feeling" among the hot, spicy, foreign tasting dishes. However, all of us enjoyed the fellowship and every phase of the exotic meal and are convinced that missionaries in India can thrive on Indian dishes without too much complaining.

BURRTON MENNONITE CHURCH
Burrton, Kansas

Happy in their service and meeting the approval of the congregation successfully, are Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Epp, our newly elected ministers. We are back to mid-week prayer meetings and choir practice with great anticipations. The recent visit of Rev. and Mrs. Lubin Janzen and the O. B. A. trio with their gospel message did our hearts good. The Women's Missionary Society gathered eighty-three guarts of canned fruits and vegetables for the C. P. S. camps. The society is now working on a Thanksgiving play and several other projects. We are looking forward to the fellowship next week with Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Penner.

The congregation has made plans for the ordination of Rev. Epp as Elder in the near future.—Corr.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH
Aberdeen, Idaho

Brother Malcolm Wenger was ordained as missionary to the Cheyenne Indians on October 31, in his home church at Aberdeen, Idaho.

Promptly at 10:45, by the strains of soft organ music, the pastor, Rev. Phil A. Wedel, and Brother Malcohm Wenger advanced down the aisle. The church choir immediately followed in procession.

The audience, standing, joined in singing the doxology. This was followed by the Lord's Prayer and the singing of the "Gloria Patri." The congregational singing consisted of two hymns: "All Hail the Power" and "Rescue the Perishing."

The scripture texts read were selections from St. John 21:21-25 and Acts 1: 15-26.

Rev. Wedel, preaching on Rom. 10:13-15 especially emphasized such points as "how shall they hear without a preacher?" and "how shall they preach, except they be sent?"

After prayer by the pastor the official ordination was performed. The request of the Foreign Mission Board that Brother Malcolm Wenger be ordained as missionary was read. After Brother Wenger had made the required confession and vow he knelt and with the laying on of hands and prayer of consecration, the ceremony of ordination was concluded.

Missionary Malcolm Wenger then gave his testmony.

Following the above-mentioned service a fellowship dinner was served by the ladies of the church.

At this occasion the following were called upon and gave short talks: Carl Wenger, Dr. Frank L. Harms Mrs. Mabel H. Arms, Miss Esther Baer, Ed Moser, Waldo Friesen, Mrs. Henry D. Becker, and H. C. Wiebe.

For the events of the day we were happy to have Miss Esther Baer, of Wisner, Nebraska, with us. Miss Baer is the fiancee of Missionary Malcolm Wenger.—H. C. Wiebe, Corr.

THE BETHEL MENNONITE CHURCH
Mountain Lake, Minnesota

Our church experienced a real blessing last Sunday, when we celebrated our annual harvest festival.

The Reverend S. P. Andersen, a Baptist minister, was our special speaker and gave us two wonderful sermons full of food for thought. Besides that we had a surprise treat in the presence of Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Isaac. After wishing and hoping for their coming we had about given up hope. But the Lord enjoys to give His children good surprises sometimes, and He did this time in bringing the Missionary Isaacs just in time for this most important event in our church year.

We had wanted just such an opportunity for a farewell for them before they left for India, and after Rev. Andersen's evening message we did hear from both of them and also voiced our appreciation and wishes for God's blessing on their journey.

Bethel Church is Mrs. Isaac's home church which made us feel doubly grateful to God for allowing us a visit from them. We love them and it will not be hard to pray for them as they go on their dangerous but urgent mission for the King.

Rev. Andersen said in one of his messages, "We should spend fifteen minutes each day in Moscow," by which he meant that we should pray for the men in conference there over world affairs. He had given us a vivid picture of the power of prayer and of what has been accomplished by it in many world crises. "In times of crisis God's people have always done something about it," he said, and reminded us of Hezekiah spreading the letter before the Lord, of other men of the Bible interceding for their people, and of present day cases of God's answers to prayer. It was a great encouragement to some of us who tended to think of the present world crisis as too big a subject for our prayers.

The Hundred Percent Subscription Plan

At the session of the General Conference in 1941, the Publication Board recommended the adoption of a plan whereby subscribers to our conference papers, the Bundesbote and The Mennonite, might obtain one or both of these papers at a reduction of 50 cents from the regular renewal price. This plan was adopted by the General Conference and heartily recommended to the churches.

Briefly stated this plan is as follows: Any church, affiliated with the General Conference, which will provide one or both of these papers for each family on the church-roll, and assume responsibility for the payment of these subscriptions, can have the paper (or papers) at 50 cents less per year than the regular renewal price.

In order to clarify this plan and to answer questions that may arise in regard to it, we wish to make the following statements:

1. This plan applies to all conference churches regardless of size or location.

2. Any family or individual member of a church adopting this plan may have one or both conference papers at this special rate.

3. This plan may be put into operation at any time, although it is most convenient to have the subscriptions begin with the first of the year.

4. In order to obtain this reduced rate the plan must be made 100 per cent effective, that is, one paper must be provided for every family on the church-roll. Exceptions may be made only if the address of a family is unknown or if the paper is refused. This includes absentee members.

5. The church must make itself responsible for the payment of the amount due for subscriptions each year. Failure to do this voids the plan. The reason for this provision is that the Publication Board, due to this low subscription rate, cannot afford to risk losses that might result from nonpayment of subscriptions. Annual payment of the amount due for subscriptions should be made as early in the year as possible.

6. How about subscriptions which have been paid in advance? In such a case the church will receive full credit for whatever the advance payment may be. In case a subscription is in arrears at the time when the 100 percent plan is adopted, the respective subscriber is held responsible for the payment of such arrears. Delinquents will be reported to the church.

7. To inaugurate the 100 percent plan and to make it function effectively, it is necessary (1) that the church approve of the plan, and (2) that the work of handling this matter be delegated to an organization of the church or to a responsible committee or individual appointed by the church for this purpose. Past experience has shown that this is important. In several instances certain well-meaning individuals in the church have tried to "put over" this plan without authorization from the church, and in each case the attempt has failed.

8. Each church is put on its own honor as to whether the names of subscribers reported represent 100 percent of the families on the church-roll, due allowance having been made for such exceptions as are mentioned in point four.

In conclusion we wish to say that a number of churches have already adopted the 100 percent plan and find it working satisfactorily. And as a result one or both of our conference papers have found entrance into many homes which otherwise would not have them. What this means, as far as interest in and support of our conference activities is concerned, is difficult to estimate. Interest in and support of these activities is based largely on intelligent and adequate information, and the best source of such information are our conference periodicals.

Let us hope and pray and help that many more of our conference churches may take up this plan. For further information regarding this plan please see or write to the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas

EDEN CHURCH GOES 100 PERCENT

The large Eden Church near Moundridge, Kansas, has adopted the 100 Percent Subscription Plan. It is the eighteenth church to adopt this plan. Thus far it is also the largest church to adopt this plan, its membership being 795. Because of this action one of our church papers will come into each of the three hundred or so homes represented in this church.

We Thank Thee for These Thy Gifts

We have many, many blessings for which to be thankful. However, as members of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America let us not forget to be thankful for some blessings not formerly ours.

During the last World War many of our young men who were C.O.'s underwent severe persecution. How they must have wished that there might be more reverence for freedom of conscience and a more systematic plan for handling all C.O.'s.

Surely, God heard the prayers of these and others, and today we have Civilian Public Service. Our young men can work with forest, soil, and souls. They have their own church-directoed educational and religious programs. What a blessing God has given us! We can show our thankfulness by the support of C.P.S.

Furthermore, we have reason to be thankful that there are such men like Dr. H. A. Fast and others, who at the sacrifice of home life, etc., have carried on this new undertaking. Lest we forget, let us be thankful for those who initiated this program in times when we as a people still largely continued in our usual routine of living.

Let us be thankful for the privilege of Civilian Bonds. In the last war it was more difficult to have a "conscience void of offense towards God and man" in this matter.

Let us be thankful for the new headquarters of our conference. For many years our conference has been homeless. Now it has a headquarters which is well on the way towards becoming a very helpful and efficient conference work center.

Let us be thankful for a re-emphasis upon the importance of educating our own high school youth in our own schools. In the hectic twenties and thirties we had largely lost sight of this necessity. Let us be thankful for a new insight into the importance of rural life and our whole heritage.

We could go on counting our conference blessings one by one. Let us not be unmindful of them in this Thanksgiving season.—rw.

Fall Opportunities

The fall months of the year afford good opportunities for evangelistic undertakings. The heavy work of the year is done and people have more leisure to think about the important things of life.

1. At this time the pastor and his church people might undertake to make a survey of the community to bring clearly before them facts on who in the community does not confess Jesus as Lord and Saviour.

2. At this time the pastor will find his church people have time to go with him on errands of visitation evangelism. When the pastor goes out to speak to people about their relationship to Christ the Redeemer and to encourage them to surrender their lives to Him, he will find a lay companion in this work a fine support and inspiration—to say nothing of what the experience will mean to the lay companion.

3. The fall of the year is also a fine time to set aside a week for special evangelistic enterprises by the laity of the church. Under the guidance of the pastor lay people might go out in twos to encourage non-Christians to give their lives to Christ and join the church. Good tracts and helpful literature could be distributed to those who might be helped by them. Every church should observe at least one such week of evangelism, a year, and perhaps two, one in the fall and one in the spring.

The command of our Lord Jesus Christ is as valid today as it ever was, "Go ye therefore and make disciples of all nations . . ." Matt. 28:19. "Come now," "Go out quickly and bring in," "Constrain them to come in"—Luke 14:17, 21, 23. "You do not test the resources of God until you try the impossible."

The Evangelism Committee

We Thank Thee Lord

For gainful hours of pain and loss,
For strength that grew beneath the cross,
For gold refined and freed from dross,
We thank Thee, Lord.

For hours o'erlived with bated breath,
For victory in the fight with death,
For answered prayers that strengthened faith,
We thank Thee, Lord.

For ties Thou has not torn apart,
For glimpses of Thee as Thou art,
For "the bright weather of our heart,"
We thank Thee, Lord.

And oh, for mercies numberless,
In perils we but dimly guess.
For succor in our soul's distress,
We thank Thee, Lord.

We have no words, and little wit,
To frame such thoughts as may befit
Thy grace, and yet—Thou knowest it—
We thank Thee, Lord.

As children sometimes suddenly
Run grateful to a father's knee,
We dimly feel our debt to Thee,
We thank Thee, Lord.

LETTER FROM W. C. VOTH

(Written before he became ill.)

Christobal, Canal Zone
October 12, 1943
To Mr. R. R. Gregory
American Bible Society

Dear Folks:

This letter I am writing from beautiful Panama where large palm trees stand tall and majestic near my window. Last night was one of those dreamland, gorgeous, moonlight nights, and one had to think of the extravagant beauty that God has poured out over this world at so many spots. Then one wonders again and again why it is that there must be so much strife and destruction among men who are supposed to be the crown of God's creation. As I was meditating about the flood of silvery moonlight and the gentle breeze that swayed the palm leaves there arose in my heart an (almost) involuntary prayer that the Holy Spirit of our great and merciful God might sweep the human race in a mighty flood of his cleansing power and create in all our human hearts a forgiving and loving spirit, that the agony of human suffering might once more be alleviated.

I am sure your thoughts are with us many times and so I want to send you this word before we go on into the real South. On the whole we have had a real good trip. It is just a month today since we crossed the border from El Paso into Mexico. There was only one thing that I did not like. That was that at the border the customs officer kept some of my books and my notebook back. He said I should let him have my forwarding address and he would sure send it on to me, but to this date I have not received anything. I had all my addresses of the places we want to visit in South America in that notebook. By this time though, I have ascertained a number of them from other folks along the way. And Brother Stucky was able to keep his, so it will not make too much difference. Well, those are some of the things that put spice into a trip of this kind.

We had heard there was a good deal of trouble in getting out of some of these places since travel was so congested. Somehow the Lord has undertaken for us, and then too the worst of the season for travel for this year I suppose is over. We have had no hitch anywhere so far. We are now here in the bottleneck of travel, that is, here in the canal zone, and it might be that we cannot get out when we ought to, but we have our reservations for the 16th.

We took our first airplane flight—a new experience—from Mexico City to Guatamala City. From there to Quezeltanango to Santa Maria by bus over winding mountain roads. Saw from about a mile and a half distance the Santa Maria volcano which has built up a new cone on the side of the old mountain. This cone they say has "grown" about 3,000 feet the last 30 years. There is much rain in these parts during the rainy season so that nearly every day in the afternoon it rains, and at this altitude it is quite cool. That is one thing that surprised me that all along here, even here at the canal, it is not hotter. The ocean breeze cools it off.

We did not feel that it was necessary for us to stop in Honduras and El Salvador, so we had only about fifteen minutes stop at each of those places as we flew through. Our next stop was in Nicaragua. There too, the missions are pretty well represented. Then we came to Costa Rica where the Strachons work; they have a good Bible Institute here for Latin America, and, we feel, are doing good work. Their orphanage with some 60 happy lovely children was an inspiring place to see. Nestled on the side of high hills it was so nice and clean with beautiful

W. C. Voth, Much Improved

The Foreign Mission Board has received the very good news that Brother W. C. Voth is much improved. In fact, the message stated that the doctor has given permission for Rev. Voth to continue on his tour of South American countries when sufficiently recovered. His friends indeed rejoice in this message from Bogota, Columbia, South America, and hope that Brother Voth will recover to continue his journey with his companion, Brother Gerald Stucky. The latter has been attending Brother Voth during his illness of typhus fever.

lawns and flowers. Not the least was the impression of the Christian management; it all looked like a large happy family. The Lord is doing wondrous things for His children where there is love and devotion to Him.

As we were getting ready to leave San Jose, Costa Rica, we felt that we should separate our paths for a little while. We had heard of further "witness needs" in part of the interior of Panama, so to save time Brother Stucky went to David, Panama, by plane and from there through the country by bus to see some of the places there. I went on by plane to Panama City so as to get in touch with some of the Missionaries there and at Cristobal (the other end of the Canal) and to see about our further traveling route. I was very happy to contact Brother R. R. Gregory of the American Bible House at Christobal. He is well informed about the work in Central America and in Colombia. We expect to leave here October 16, the Lord leading, for Columbia.

With the exception of a few little upsets in Mexico where both of us for a few days felt the impact of a changed climate, we have remained in good health for which we praise the Lord. We feel that all along the Lord has been very gracious to us and has removed obstacles and led on the way. We hope that this finds all of you well and that the Lord may bless each of you. We do want to thank you for your continued intercessory prayer for this undertaking in the Lord's work. We feel very keenly the need of your prayers and His guidance that we might know His will.

With Sincerest Greetings,
Yours for Christ,
Wm. C. Voth

HOME MISSION WORK AND THE PRINTED PAGE

God knows, and we know also, how necessary it is to look for our lost brothers and sisters, not only in heathendom, but in Christendom as well, and to strengthen them who are followers of Jesus Christ. These times demand so much of everyone of us that no one can remain idle. We must all do our bit for Jesus Christ.

As for us here in Waterloo, Ontario, we carry on as usual with our Sunday services and church activities in general. The crowds at our meetings grow larger and larger from week to week. Old and new faces are in evidence, and this year we have welcomed into the membership of our church, seven by baptism, and some by letter, but I do not know how many as I am not the statistician of our church, and my memory is not of the best.

Our C. E. (Jugendverein) is at work trying hard to offer our young people clean, wholesome, and useful entertainment along with the necessary spiritual guidance in life. Our choirs are singing their beautiful songs and our missionary societies are busy. The Sunday School is teaching and guiding our young ones to Him who loves and protects them.

The C. E. has the special duty to weave and to strengthen the home ties between the church and our (about) twenty-six young men in service of king and country here and abroad. Many have their farm leaves now. Where they will go when these postponements expire, we do not know. May they bear witness for Him wherever they are and whatsoever they do.

I have issued a wall calendar for 1943. I had my manuscript ready for 1944 also, but the printers were so burdened with other work that they could not do the printing for me. So the calendar for 1944 will not appear.

Instead I shall again send out my by-weekly short sermons "Briefe an Unser Volk." If someone feels like helping me financially to have these printed and mailed, I will be glad to receive his contribution.

But I can send the "Briefe" to no one who does not himself want them. Many are put in an awkward position if they receive literature in the German language, and if they get them they get annoyed instead of being attracted to the Lord. Therefore note, if any person wants the Briefe he or she must write me so over his or her own signature.

My latest in the field of literature is a booklet for Christmas, Erzahlungen aus der Mennonitengeschichte, mimeographed, as the printers seemingly have better things to do than print my writings. This booklet is intended to sugar the history lessons a little for our young students, and to make it easier for boys and girls to learn something about our forefathers and their struggles for the privilege to live according to their faith.

Will you pray for me and help me?

And I cannot let this opportunity go by without expressing my sincere gratitude toward the Home Mission Board and the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America for the splendid support, financially and otherwise, which they are giving me.

—Jacob H. Janzen, Waterloo, Ontario, Canada

Byways of Mennonite History

By C. Henry Smith

Menno Simons

Menno Simons was born in Witmarsum, a little village in northwestern Holland, in the year 1496, just four years after Columbus discovered America. He was educated for the priesthood, and served both a neighboring village and his home town for some years. As a priest, Menno says, he lived the life of his class—an easy-going, carefree life, assuming the burdens of his priestly office rather lightheartedly, as a matter of course. Like his associates in all but one very important respect—he was blessed with an open mind and a tender conscience. Knowledge of the scriptures was not one of the essentials in the training of the priesthood in those days. The Bible to Menno was a sealed book in his early life. But coming into contact somehow with the religious thought of the Reformation movement, he did not hesitate to test his faith with the scriptures, nor to follow his changing convictions when he discovered he had been in error.

The road to his conversion began with his study of the Bible. This study finally convinced him that his church held unscriptural views on many of the fundamentals of the Christian faith—infant baptism, the real presence, compulsory membership, among many others. To be convinced was to act, not suddenly, nor impulsively, but after some years of serious Bible study, with many a conflict between his conscience and his love of ease. He officially withdrew from the Catholic church in 1536 to cast his lot with the despised Anabaptists, whose teaching has found its way to this part of Holland from Switzerland, and who he was convinced had rediscovered the true New Testament church. A little later he was ordained to the ministry by Obbe Phillips, and became one of the prominent leaders of the whole movement throughout Holland and Northern Germany.

By joining the Anabaptists, who had already been outlawed by the imperial authorities, Menno shut the door on a brilliant career in the Catholic church, a life of ease and pleasure, and deliberately chose instead a life of uncertainty, misery, and poverty, constantly threatened with imprisonment, persecution, and death, but at the same time, too, a life of loyalty to his convictions, and great service to his fellowmen, and peace with God. Without in the least belittling the services to religious progress of men like Luther and Calvin, it must be kept in mind, when comparing their choice with that of Menno Simons, that they made no personal sacrifice in the work they undertook. They never left the church; they rather transformed its machinery and remained at the head of it. They never renounced fat salaries and positions of ease; they were never despised by their neighbors and countrymen, but on the contrary were highly honored by rulers both state and church. Menno Simons, on the other hand, deliberately chose the way of the Cross. For the rest of his days he remained an outcast, and with his wife and children wandered on the face of the earth, a reward upon his head. Even those who dared give him and his family food and shelter paid for their kindness with their lives.

Menno did not confine his efforts in behalf of his faith to preaching and evangelization, but he also was a voluminous writer vigorously defending his beliefs. These writings were collected soon after his death and frequently published in Holland, Germany, and finally in America. From his written works we learn that he was not a philosopher or medieval theologian. Unlike Calvin and Melanchton and the other theological doctors of the state churches, who leaned heavily upon the philosophical abstractions of a medieval and outgrown scholasticism as a basis for their religious faith, and mentioning the scriptures only slightly, Menno, on the other hand, rests his foundations for religion entirely upon the Scriptures, mainly the New Testament, interspersing his writings with copious scripture references. He was a Biblicist, not a theologian.

He insisted, too, that the Christian life was more than a mere set of orthodox religious opinions, and that true faith must function and bear fruit in purer living, a combination not so well known and practised in the state church system.

"I know of a certainty," he says, "that a proud, haughty man, whoever he may be, is no Christian; neither is an avaricious man, or a drunken, intemperate man, or an unchaste, lustful man, or a wrangling envious, or disobedient idolatrous man, or a false, lying, or an unfaithful thievish man, or a defaming, backbitting man, or a bloodthirsty, unmerciful, revengeful man, a Christian, even if he were baptized a hundred times and kept the Lord's supper daily; for it is not the ordinances or rites such as baptism, and the supper, but a true Christian faith with its unblamable good fruits of which the ordinances testify, that makes the true Christian, and has the promise of life."

Menno Simons, it will thus be seen, was not the founder of the church now known as Mennonite, but one of the foremost leaders, after whom the Anapabtist church of which he became a member was named. The name Menist, was first used by Countess Anna of East Friesland, in 1544, to distinguish the peaceful Anabaptists of her realm, who followed Menno's leadership, from some of the fanatical elements of the movement still found in her territory. The name, with its later modifications Mennonit and Mennonite, was finally adopted by most of such Anabaptists as survived the early persecutions throughout Holland, Germany and finally Switzerland as well as America.

C.P.S. Camps

New Hospital Units Open

The shifting of additional groups of C.P.S. men from camps to mental hospitals has begun. The latest state mental hospitals to be approved are located at Kalamazoo, Michigan, and at Winnebago, Wisconsin. A Training School at Union Grove, Wisconsin has also been approved. The filling of these units will bring the number of Mennonite men in mental hositals up to 748.

To date C.P.S. men in Mennonite camps have contributed $5,289.01 to War Sufferers Relief. Most of this contribution was made possible through voluntary frugal meals and Sunday School and church offerings.

A number of camps have also participated in a project to raise funds for Greek famine victims. By the voluntary omission of one meal $330.00 was raised by camps from all agencies.

Rio La Plata

"Rio La Plata," is the name of the news letter published by the Mennonite Unit at La Plata. The first issue has appeared for the month of November and contains a general introduction to the camp and its activities.

Camp Briefs

Orono, Maine, State Agricultural Unit is the latest C.P.S. Camp to open. The unit will consist of eight dairy herd testers and seven agricultural college workers.

A project in Artificial Breeding has also been approved for C.P.S. men. The initial project will start with two men and will be in Pennsylvania under the Department of Agriculture.

More than 150 applications have been received from C.P.S. men who desire to participate in the Rural Life and Community School, to be set up at Hagerstown, Maryland, on January 1.

Harold Martin, the director of Polk County Unit, Florida, gives an interesting account of public relations in Florida. "One American Legion member criticized the Health Department for using conscientious objectors for privy building because he thought they were trying to humiliate them, not knowing that we considered it work of utmost national importance."

National War Fund

Succeeding the recent Third War Bond Drive, a national drive, titled National War Fund, is being conducted by a number of war relief organizations such as United States Service Organization, United China Relief, Greek War Sufferers Relief and many others. The drive will probably be promoted widely during the month of November.

The Mennonite Central Committee as a relief agency is also endeavoring to bring help to war sufferers as opportunity presents itself. Several of the countries that are being served by relief organizations cooperating in the National War Fund, are also being served by the Mennonite Central Committee. In a few instances the Mennonite Central Committee has contributed designated funds through several of the organizations. Members in Mennonite constituencies are encouraged to give through their usual channels, and anyone desiring to contribute to National War Fund above their usual contributions will want to designate one of the participating agencies whose work is least related to the war effort. Funds may be designated for any one of the organizations cooperating in the drive.

AN EXPLANATION

During the week of October 16 to 22, a special seminar was held at Pendel Hill near Philadelphia. Participating in it were a number of groups who are interested in peace problems. The theme of the conference was "Coercion, Conscription, and Disarmament." The Secretary of the Peace Section of the Mennonite Central Committee was in attendance at most of the sessions. Esko Loewen and Irvin Horst, who are on detached service at the Akron Office, also attended a part of the sessions

To the Pastors of The Western District Conference

At the last session of the Western District Conference the resolutions committee drew up the following resolution: Resolved, that we ask the ministers of the Western District Conference to send a copy of the conference minutes to all the boys in service. Will each pastor please inform the secretary not later than December 1, 1943, as to the number of extra copies needed for this purpose.

H. E. Miller, Sec., Deer Creek, Oklahoma.

during the latter part of the week.

While the purpose of the conference was to a certain extent variant from our basic Mennonite approach, we felt that the exchange of viewpoints, ideals, and purposes did have a wholesome and stimulating effect. It was not the purpose of the conference to attempt to reach an agreement on policy nor on procedure, but only to study the problems which are common to all of us. It is rather generally agreed that there will be tremendous pressure, constantly increasing, in the direction of making the conscription pattern a permanent thing in America. To cope adequately with this threat will require all the energy of each of us.

The correspondents of the public newspapers were present in most of these sessions, uninvited. Unfortunately some of their interpretations were by no means a fair reflection of the thinking and discussion of the group. As is so often true, they were more interested in getting something sensational than in portraying the actual picture. Some of our people may have read some of these reports in the public press. We are making this brief statement in order to quiet any possible misgivings which might arise from outside sources.

Signed: Jesse W. Hoover Sec. of Peace Section Mennonite Central Committee

I Thank Thee

I thank Thee, Lord, for favors past,
For blessings great and small;
My thanks rise up in praise to Thee,
Dear Lord, who givest all.

I thank Thee, Lord, for future things,
For what I shall receive,
For greater blessings are in store
If I will but believe.

And if what comes be sorrow sore.
If grief tear at my heart,
I thank Thee, Lord, that Thy great love
Will also be my part.

Or if the days to come be fair,
Lord may my thanks be shown,
By giving unto those in need,
Some blessing I have known.

Whate're it be the future holds,
Whate'er Thy will decree,
Do make me duly thankful Lord,
And let me live for Thee.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By J. Winfield Fretz

THE MENNONITE FAMILY TREE

A large chart eight feet long and three feet wide showing all the branches of Mennonites in their historical relationship and chronological development is before me. It is a most interesting thing to look at and something that stimulates the imagination. Anyone deeply interested in the Mennonite Church looking at this chart of the Mennonite family cannot help asking how so many branches of the church got started and why they still continue to operate in such relative isolation and independence.

Contrary to what many people think, not all the branches in the church were the result of quarrels and open schisms. A considerable number of the smaller branches were due to migrations from one country or locality to another in which there was no established church or conference similar to the one from which the migrants came. An independent church was then started and certain habits and customs developed which may have been different by the time other migrants came into the same area. Very often also a particularly strong-willed leader led a small group of followers away from another group because of some particular point on which there was a point of contention.

Theological or Sociological Differences

An examination of the teachings of each one of the branches of Mennonites reveals that the differences are not theological but chiefly sociological. It is in most cases not a matter of difference of opinion on the nature of God, Christ, The Holy Spirit, baptism, communion, marriage or other doctrinal matters but rather a matter of a difference of emphasis on particular ways of expressing these beliefs. All branches of Mennonites believe in God as a Father of Love, as Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior, in the power of the Holy Spirit, that Jesus Christ died to save all men, that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and the infallible rule and guide of the Christian, in baptism upon confession of faith, in the resurrection and eternal life, in the return of Christ as Lord, in a final day of judgment, in the peace teachings of Jesus and the New Testament, in the simple life and non-conformity for the true believer in Christ.

Now is the Time to Begin

The point at which the breaks came and at which it is now often impossible to heal the breaches is that each groups thinks its particular points of emphasis and its interpretation and customs are normal and "right." Each group is willing to join with any other group providing the "other group" will make all the concessions and give up all those customs and points of belief which differ. In the true Christian family there must be forbearance, and forgiveness in order that there may be harmony. If the Mennonite family tree is to grow strong at the trunk and prevent the many branches from breaking the trunk apart, it will be necessary soon to do some pruning and grafting. Perhaps the General Conference should take the initiative in making concessions and forbearing for the sake of greater harmony and unity.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Esther Wiens, Chicago, Illinois

NOVEMBER 23—"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee; because he trusteth in Thee." Isa. 26:3

We hardly feel in the mood for Thanksgiving. Many of our sons, our brothers, and our husbands will not be able to come home this year. Oh! the longings and heartaches for the times which were. But we have committed our loved ones into the care of God, who loves them too. And, because we trust in God we can be free from worry and have peace within.

NOVEMBER 24—"Give us this day our daily bread." Matt. 6:11

Today, as perhaps it has never been before, people in different parts of the world are crying, "Give us bread, give us something to eat." This cry arises from people in the ice-locked country of Finland, from shivering people in Poland, and other conquered countries, from hollow-eyed and sunken chested children in Greece, as well as from starving people in far off India. In the meanwhile, from our kitchens come the aroma of mince pie and pumpkin pie baking in the oven, of roasting fowl. Our cupboards and refrigerators are filled with tasty dishes which will make up the Thanksgiving dinner. We want to thank God as never before for His gift of food.

NOVEMBER 25—"He abideth faithful; He cannot deny Himself." IITim. 2:13.

Several years ago, our lives seemed secure, and in many cases monotonous, if you please. You young men planned your lives, and with a reasonable degree of certainty, expected to fulfill those plans. But many of those plans have been brushed aside. Life itself is uncertain.

Change and decay in all around I see;
O Thou, who changest not, abide with me.

NOVEMBER 26—"What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?" Ps. 116:12

What blessings, you ask? The blessing of a Christian heritage, the blessing of a Christian home, the comforts of life, the blessing of a democratic government, of religious liberty, the blessing of the knowledge of a loving God, the blessing of becoming children of God through faith in Christ. These are blessings of God. We are enjoying these blessings. However, you know as well as I, that multitudes of people are not enjoying them. Does not the manliness or the womanliness stir within us, so that we say, let me give to others as I have received?

NOVEMBER 27—"For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his servants, and delivered unto them his goods." Matt. 25:14

Our Master, too, has gone to a Far Country, and delivered unto us His goods, and given us certain talents. In certain circles it might be profitable to emphasize the ability to make money, and to use it for the kingdom of God. However, there is a reservoir of wealth, which is within our reach, which we have not adequately developed. I refer to the wealth found in the intellects of our Mennonite youth. But does not James say that we should ask wisdom from God? True. Jesus also instructs us to pray to God for our daily bread. This latter instruction does not prevent us from plowing the fields or from working in an office. We have as much an obligation to develop this talent as we have to develop any other, so that we might better serve Christ through Mennonitism.

NOVEMBER 28—"Thy will be done." Matt. 26:42b

O, Jesus, when we realize the agony which Thou dids't suffer as thou dids't pray this prayer, we feel unworthy to repeat these words, because we are so unlike Thee in purpose and in devotion. May thy love fill us, and reach out to those whom we serve this day. May we in all of our activities do Thy will this day, and in all the days of our life, that Jesus may be glorified. Amen.

NOVEMBER 29—"I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." Gal. 2:20

Augustine of Hippo said, "For Thou has created us unto Thyself, and our heart find no rest until it rests in Thee." We are filling the place which God intended us to fill when we live in fellowship with God and in union with Christ. Though pleasure is not the goal of the Christian life, yet when we live in the right relationship with God it does result in peace in our minds, and a pleasure and joy within us. We throw the skeletons out of the closets of our minds, worries concerning past sins, worries concerning the future, worries concerning eternity. It gives purpose to life, it gives dignity to man. And then there is actual pleasure in our relationship and fellowship with God and with fellow Christians.

NOVEMBER 30—"I go to prepare a place for you." John 14:2

I frankly think that the Christian life is worthwhile, discounting all of the benefits which will come to us in eternity. Yet, beside the blessings which come to us with the Christian life in our life on earth, we have the assurance that in eternity we will be in closer fellowship with God and serve Him continually. "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

Help the Mennonite Young People in Canada

By J. Winfield Fretz

In the youth section of the October 26 issue of The Mennonite was a picture and a brief article about the Experimental farm at Rosthern, Saskatchewan, that was purchased by the Canadian Young People recently. It was my privilege to visit this farm on August 25 and to talk with Henry Friesen, one of the members of the executive committee promoting this project.

Doing Good Work

I want to say that our brothers and sisters of the faith across the border to the north deserve our generous support and they need our wholehearted encouragement. As a result of the tri-annual Gen. Conf. sessions held in Saskatoon in 1938 the Saskatchewan Young People organized a youth society. They were encouraged to do this by Rev. Olin Krehbiel, then the Young People's Society President. Since then they have been holding annual retreats on the farm now purchased and as a result of the inspiration and instructions received at the retreats, young people went into the outlying districts to conduct summer Bible schools for two, four, and six weeks. In 1937 Henry Friesen was the first young person to conduct a summer Bible school; during the past summer there were forty-two young people from Northern Saskatchewan who did this work. They hope to have four retreats on the farm next year and to increase the number of young people who will go out to spread the gospel and to serve for Christ.

The Farm

The farm that has been purchased was neglected by the Dominion Government for the past several years; yet the Government was not willing to sell it to a private party for commercial purposes. Some of the Mennonite young people with vision saw the possibilities in this place and consulted the Governmental agents. After making it clear to the Government for what the farm would be used, they were given an attractive offer and have now made the initial down payment. The farm is a mile southwest of Rosthern, a small town of about 1,100 people. The farm has 640 acres of which 160 acres are in orchard, groves and yard, 160 for pasture and hayland and the remaining 320 in fertile farming land. The buildings are modern and in good state of repair. There are five dwelling houses, two quite large and suited for dormitory purposes. All of them have hard wood floors, running water, and electricity. This is something most Saskatchewan farms do not have. There is a large and fully equipped dairy barn with stanchions for twenty-four cows, a large horse barn with room for twenty horses, large hog barns, chicken houses and brooder houses equipped with stoves, machine sheds; a fine large granary with a variety of grain bins and an inside elevator, an ample supply of well water, a large cattle corral, and tightly fenced pasture run-ways. The buildings alone cost far more than the cost of the entire farm.

The People Behind It

The committee in charge of this project has not decided fully what the farm and land shall be used for. It may be that a number of projects can be developed simultaneously. It is a privilege for us to help in this project. Every dollar we give will be in reality a dollar and ten cents because of the favorable rate of exchange. The Mennonite Youth Society of Saskatchewan has seized a real opportunity and faced a Christian challenge. They deserve the congratulations and the support of the whole Mennonite Young People's Society in America. The Committee is composed of J. C. Schmidt, a Bible School teacher of Rosthern, Saskatchwan; Isaac Epp of Walthan, Saskatchewan, a public school teacher; Henry Friesen, a farmer of Rosthern; Rev. J. J. Thiessen of Saskatoon and Rev. Isaac Derksen, Herbert, Saskatchewan.

"When we worry, we don't trust. When we trust, we don't worry."

YOUTH CONFERENCE

The young people of the First Mennonite Church of Newton, Kansas, are extending an invitation to young people of all the surrounding Mennonite Churches to attend a Youth Conference Friday, November 26, at 8 p.m. Rev. Clyde H. Dirks of Hutchinson will be the special speaker.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

No. 2 in Series on Home Life and Family Ties
THE STRENGTHENING OF FAMILY TIES

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "One is kind above all others," No. 447, "When we walk with the Lord," No. 486. 2. Reading of Ruth 1:19-22. 3. A period of song. 4. Offering for some C.E. project.

II. Leader's Introduction and Facts for Study:

Family ties are precious. They need to be strengthened. In our Mennonite homes, the marriage relationship has always been regarded as permanent. The marriage vows have often been exchanged in the House of God, or at larger smaller festive occasions, celebrated in a fitting Christian way. For the homes of both the bride and the groom it has been an event of great importance; the community has taken an interest; many churches have had the laudable custom of announcing the coming marriage and making the establishment of the new home a matter of public prayer. A tie made under such circumstances is not easily severed.

Children in the home strengthen family ties. Their helplessness, their joyous prattle, their interesting development, their loving ways, their affection for father and mother bind the family closer together. The father will work gladly to provide for the needs of wife and children, feeling rewarded by the welcome of the home; the mother will treasure the love of those she calls her own and give of her best to build the home. The children will feel secure within its fold, and make it their haven as well as their castle.

Working together, having common interests, also strengthens family ties. That is one reason why farming and living in rural communities is of such advantage. It offers opportunity for working and living together. It saves the members of the family from the necessity of eating breakfast and often other meals at different hours, and different members of the same family going off to different places of work, seeing nothing of each other during the day, and each living in a different sphere of interest. In the evening there are not the common experiences behind them, nor for the next day the common interests to unite them in the feeling of belonging together as in the case with life and work on the farm.

Family gatherings also add their bit to strengthen family ties. The two or three holidays that used to be observed at Christmas, Easter, and Pentecost, plus family get-to-gethers on Thanksgiving Day and some Sundays of the year have contributed perhaps more than just a little share to the family life of our people. What children did not relish going first holiday to the grandparents on one side, and second holiday to those on the other side. And this happened three times each year. Then the "butchering days" where the clan laid in the meat supply for the year, plus other times when help was given to each other as occasion called for, developed a strong family feeling.

To strengthen these ties in our more complicated ways of living will take extra time and effort. Perhaps, a deliberate planning to read together, to sing together, to do something together, to reserve the Sunday afternoon for being together will be helpful. Going to church and S.S. together can still be done, as it has been done in the past. Thoughtful gifts and the sharing of the day's happenings, too, are valuable. The time and effort made to strengthen the family life will bring worthy rewards.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Relation between parents and children, Eph. 6:1-4.
2. Timothy, a worthy son, II Tim. 1:5.
3. The mother of Samuel, I Sam. 1:27, 2:18,19.
4. The father of Isaac, Gen. 22:1-19.

IV. For Discussion:

1. What traits of character make a good parent?
2. What traits of character make a good son or daughter?
3. How will the family altar help to strengthen family ties?

V. Food for Thought:

Strength for the day, and grace for the trial are needed for a happy family life.

"God has not promised skies always blue,
Flower-strewn pathways all our lives through.
God has not promised sun without rain,
Joy without sorrow, peace without pain.

But God has promised strength for the day,
Rest after labor, light for the way;
Grace for the trial, help from above,
Unfailing patience, undying love."

TABOR MENNONITE CHURCH
Newton, Kansas

The Wednesday evening classes have been started again for the winter months. Rev. P. H. Richert teaches the class in "Mennonites and Their Heritage" and a Sunday School teachers' class. H. B. Schmidt also teaches two classes: "Bible Study for Young People" and "Training for Service." The fifth class is the "mixed choir," directed by Nola Schmidt.

The attendance at such an evening of spiritual betterment stirs one's heart.

Our church has installed a loudspeaker to improve the worship service. One speaker has been installed in the room for mothers with small children. This room has a large double window towards the pulpit. With these windows closed it provides a good place for the training of small children without disturbing the worship service. Fourteen of our boys are in C.P.S. and ten in the armed forces. One of the ten has received a medical discharge. Two sets of C.P.S. pictures have been shown by the Brethren William Stauffer and Rev. John Voth.—Corr.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH
Geary, Oklahoma

The First Mennonite Church of Geary was host Sunday, November 7, to Mr. and Mrs. John Zweiacher and nearly 150 of their family and friends on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary. A basket dinner was served in the basement following Rev. H. N. Harder's special service on "The Pillars of the Home."

Helping the elder Zweiachers to celebrate their fifty years of married life were six of the ten children, twelve of the twenty-one grand-children, and the only great-grandchild, and a large number of out-of-town guests.

In the program that followed the dinner, Rev. Harder read two poems written for the occasion by Mrs. Helena Burckhalter of Berne, Indiana, Mrs. Zweiacher's sister, and by Mrs. Hilda Zweiacher Nice of El Reno, Mr. Zweiacher's niece. Recitations were given by many of the children of the Sunday School, and many of the old German songs were sung which Mr. Zweicher had first learned in his native Switzerland.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Zweiacher and their families present were: Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Zweiacher of Oklahoma City, J. W., Davy, and Cecelia Kay; Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Zweiacher of Tulsa, Geraldine and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Zweiache and Judith Ann; Mr. and Mrs. Enos Zweiacher of Geary, Clifton, Elizabeth, Eleanor, Norman and Robert; Mr. and Mrs. Harly Zweiacher and Harold; Mr. Howalt Zweiacher; Mr. and Mrs. Burton Barney and Sherril June.

MENNONITE FELLOWSHIP DISCUSSES EVANGELISM

There were twenty-one Mennonites, representative of various groups, who gathered Wednesday evening, November 3, in the reception room of the Biblical Seminary in New York to discuss "The Place of Evangelism in Our Mennonite Churches."

Missionary Paul Wenger introduced the topic for discussion in a short talk. He raised such questions as the aim of evangelism, its relation to education, and the reason for lack of zeal and indifference to it. He said that native converts on the field were sometimes used more than missionaries in winning new converts, mainly because of their contagious joy in their salvation. What could we as a fellowship do to stimulate evangelism? Should there be a place in our church papers for the subject? How can we plan to reach those not regularly contacted by the church? Miss Wilhelmina Kuyf led the group in a discussion of some of these questions.

The Fellowship plans to meet every first Wednesday of the month at the Seminary. Those who attend the meetings feel that they fill a real need in their lives—that a fellowship with those of like faith and convictions. If any of the readers know of Mennonites in or near New York who perhaps do not know of these meetings, will you send the name and address to Jacob J. Enz, 235 East 49th Street, New York 17, N. Y.

Those present at the meeting were Dr. E. E. Miller, President of Goshen College, John Fretz, Lansdale, Pa., Walter Temple, Allentown, Pa., Mrs. J. Westrich, Long Island (formerly of Berne, Ind.), Mrs. Dora Quiring, N. Y. C., Paul Shelly, Union Theological Seminary (formerly Bally, Pa.), Mr. Willard Rosenberger, N. Y. C. (formerly Quakertown, Pa.), Miss Elizabeh Foth, Brooklyn, and Miss Mary Klassen, Brooklyn, (formerly Hillsboro, Kansas).

The Mennonite students at Biblical Seminary who were all present are: Rev. and Mrs. Paul A. Wenger, Aberdeen, Idaho; Wilhelmina Kuyf, Philadelphia, Leonore Friesen, Newton, Kansas, Jacob J. Enz, Newton, Kansas, Erna Fast and Gladys Klassen of Mt. Lake, Minn., Addison Eastman, Carlstadt, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Behnken, Detroit, Mich., Mr. Paul Barkman, Henderson, Neb., and Mrs. Paul Barkman, Hillsboro, Kansas.

RELIEF NOTES

Funds and Workers to India

At the recent meeting of the Mennonite Central Committee it was decided to act upon the recommendations received from Graber and Goering relative to the famine in Bengal and other parts of India. Additional funds will be sent from both United States and Canada, and the executive secretary is proceeding to secure two men workers, one of which will be a doctor. C. L. Graber, Director of the Relief Section, has gone to Washington to confer with the State Department concerning passports and transportation.

New Workers for Paraguay

An announcement was made at the M.C.C. meeting that three new workers for Paraguay have been appointed and will leave as soon after January 1, 1944, as possible. The workers appointed are Mr. and Mrs. Willard Smith of Goshen, Indiana, and Sara Histand of Doylestown, Pa. Brother Smith has been instructor of history at Goshen College. He says that he was not drafted in World War I and does not have draft status in World War II, and he feels that he owes a period of service to the Church. All three workers have been appointed for a term of two years.

Relief . . . A World in Need

"Relief . . . A World in Need!" is the caption appearing on the new M.C.C. Relief Bulletin. The bulletin will appear in the churches sometime before Thanksgiving. It sketches the present relief activities of the M.C.C. and outlines prospective areas in need of relief.

M.C.C. Handbook

The latest M.C.C. publication to come off the press is the Committee Handbook. The Handbook contains information and material on the origin and history of the M.C.C., and also outlines the program of the Committee. It is especially designed as a guide for M.C.C. workers. It contains principles and policies which have guided the Committee as a servant of the Church in a suffering world.

Training for Relief and Reconstruction

Subsequent to the discontinuance of the 101 relief workers' training project of the past summer, the Mennonite Central Committee proceeded with plans for gathering together in specially approved work projects assignees from C.P.S. who are definitely committed to engage in relief and reconstruction service as soon as the opportunity offers. Projects enabling this specialized relief workers' training have been set up at Ypsilanti Michigan State Hospital, Polk County, Florida, Health and Sanitation Unit; Duke University Hospital, Durham, North Carolina; Alexian Brothers Hospital, Chicago, Illinois; and Howard, Rhode Island, State Hospital. Consideration of other similar units are in process. At Ypsilanti, Michigan there is opportunity for a small training unit of prospective women relief workers. There are five enrollees in this unit now. The Mennonite Central Committee is ready to expand this to a unit of ten. Anyone interested in this training and service at Ypsilanti can write for details either to Prof. Carl Kreider, Goshen College, Goshen, Indiana, (who is in charge of relief training at Ypsilanti) or to the Mennonite Central Committee, Akron, Pennsylvania.

—Orie O. Miller

Report from India

Brethren Goering and Graber, relief commissioners to China, have cabled report of famine conditions in Bengal, India, and recommended increasing M.C.C. monthly relief sendings and the sending of two relief workers. The previously organized Mennonite Committee in India is beginning work in this area at once.

Home for Doctor Schmidt

A recent letter from Vernon Schmidt and Robert Geigley in Paraguay, relates that the colonists there are building a house for Dr. Schmidt adjacent to the hospital at Philadelphia, Fernheim Colony. The house will probably be completed by the time Dr. Schmidt arrives in Paraguay.

Another Worker to Puerto Rico

N. Paul Stucky, Moundridge, Kansas, at present a camper at Ypsilanti, Michigan, and a member of the 101 relief workers' training unit, is the most recent worker to be assigned to the Mennonite Unit at La Plata, Puerto Rico. Stucky will help in the hospital as laboratory assistant.

Christmas Gifts to Internees

American Friends Service Committee is planning to sent Christmas gifts to their relief workers interned in Baden Baden, Germany, through their representative in Geneva, Switzerland. Through this channel the Mennonite relief workers interned there, Lois Gunden and Henry Buller and wife, will also receive Christmas cheer.

Clothing for Relief

The clothing depot at Ephrata is steadily accumulating and packing relief clothing against the day when there will be opportunity to meet the unlimited need. Early this morning C.P.S. assignees at the Akron office assisted in the storing of two truck loads of bales and boxes.

This past spring the peace churches in United States sent a shipment of clothing to North America which included 14,000 articles from the Mennonite Central Committee. We now have word of its arrival and distribution.

Records show that during the months of September and October almost 10,000 pounds of clothing were received at the clothing depot. The Mennonite Central Committee encourages the contribution of clothing throughout the winter months. Anyone passing through Lancaster County should visit the clothing depot. Mrs. M. C. Lehman, who is in charge of the depot, will be eager to explain how the clothing is sorted, conditioned, tagged, and packed for shipment.

Song Books for German War Prisoners

Mennonite Central Committee has arranged for the printing of 25,000 Christmas song books to be distributed among German war prisoners in United States and Canada, instead of 3,000 as a former note in this section reported. Last year 3,000 devotional booklets were distributed.

Sam Goering Arrives Safely

After voyaging thousands of miles in the air, on the ocean, and by rail Brother Sam Goering arrived safely in Kunming, China. Kunming is the southern provincial capital and the China end of the Burma Road. The cable said that both Brother Goering and Brother Graber were well and that they intended to proceed on to Chungking the next day, going over land. Mrs. Sam Goering stated that it is about three hundred miles from Kunming to Chungking. The latter is the provisional capital of China, and is a city swarming with destitute refugees. It is from this point that our M.C.C. relief commissioners are expected to establish relief activities.

New Cutting Room

By Mrs. J. S. Schultz

The Ohio cutting room has now been opened for relief sewing. Many of the sewing and missionary societies have for many years ordered cut garments from the Pennsylvania and Iowa cutting rooms and have then sewed them and sent them to Akron to be sent abroad. Since the postage on such orders ran into considerable money for those organizations which were far from either of these places, and since both cutting rooms had more work than they could do, there seemed to be a definite need for another somewhere in Ohio. After considering the work involved and the expense of setting up a project like this, the women from the Ebenezer and First Church Bluffton, and the Grace church and St. John, Pandora, decided to work unitedly on this relief work.

It has taken many months of planning and they have encountered many difficulties, but they have cut hundreds of garments now and are ready of fill orders for any society that wishes to order cut garments. Bluffton College has given a room for this purpose which is well heated and lighted and equipped with two long tables and fine roomy shelves which the brotherhood and one of the Sunday School classes have paid for. The Relief Board has purchased a second-hand electric cutter which is in fine condition and are putting this at the disposal of the cutting committee for relief work.

The cutting committee which consists of two women from each of the four above-mentioned churches has purchased four hundred dollars worth of material such as outing flannels, ginghams, chambrays, and prints. They have selected patterns for simple dresses, pajamas, shirts, layettes, hoods, mittens, etcs., and they will send out cut garments on exactly the same basis as these other cutting rooms do.

—Mennonite students in the Beatrice, Nebraska, high school conduct their own drive. The students have set out to purchase a $25.00 civilian bond to be donated to the M.C.C. for relief work. Each student is expected to contribute not less than fifty cents. This action is an alternative to the usual kind of drive conducted in our high schools. The Mennonite students have gotten the approval of the principal for this kind of action. The high school will receive credit for the amount of this bond. (Will others report similar examples of loyalty to our peace teachings? Editor)

—The Mountain Lake, Minnesota, Bible school expresses its appreciation for many financial gifts received in the form of bonds.

—Wayland Mennonite Church, Wayland, Iowa: Many people turned out to hear Dr. J. E. Hartzler, our speaker for the special services this fall. The Dorcas Society and different Sunday School classes are doing relief sewing. Mrs. Magdelena Schlatter Glandon, sixty-nine, was laid to rest November 9. A group of women met at the Methodist Church on November 11 to observe World Community Day. Balloting returns showed a unanimous vote for United States' participation in a world oranization to maintain peace, and for continued rationing after the war if necessary. In October our farmers gathered a bountiful soybean and corn harvest.—Mrs. C.K.S.

—Rev. George Stoneback is to be installed as pastor of the Fairfield Mennonite Church on November 28. Rev. Russell L. Mast will be in charge of the service.

—John B. Graber, ministerial student at Bethel College, will be united in marriage with Dorothy Leona Krehbiel on November 25 in their home community at Pretty Prairie, Kansas.

—Brother Donovan Smucker recently preached a sermon on, "Four Figures for the Experience of Mankind: the Pocketbook, the Roller-Coaster, the Escalator, and The Cross."

—First Mennonite Church, Geary, Oklahoma: The church is now putting out an attractive bulletin. The mimeograph machine was purchased by the Sunday School of which Mrs. E. R. Lehman is teacher. Mr. Lehman purchased the printing material.

—The Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska, enjoyed a visit from a group of young men from the Lincoln C.P.S. unit on November 14. They participated in our morning communion service, visited in the various homes, and in the evening gave us a splendid song service and told us something about their work. We were happy to have these fine young men in our midst and hope that they may soon be able to come again.—W.C.A. Corr.

Dr. J. E. Hartzler, who for the past eight years has been connected with the Hartford Theological Seminary, Hartford, Connecticut, in the department of Systematics as Professor of Philosophy and Christian Doctrine, has begun his service as interim pastor of the Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa. He will continue his teaching at Hartford along with his work at Souderton.

—The First Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, took up an offering of $415.00 on their harvest thanksgiving and mission festival on November 14. Despite snowbound roads, the services were comparatively well-attended. Brother Alvin Fast conducted evening services for this church recently.

—Before me lies the last issue of the Eden Chronicles. This issue contains five mimeographed pages. It reveals that the Walter Gering, pastor of the Eden Mennonite Church, knows a good deal about his congregation which is one of the largest in the General Conference, the membership being 795. Two pages are used to give the main church events of the year. Over a page is used to list all men in service and their addresses. This list reveals an encouraging attitude towards our peace stand with thirty-five boys in C.P.S. and seven in the armed forces. Among his many duties the pastor made 209 sick calls, visited three C.P.S. camps, conducted three series of evangelistic meetings, performed twenty-two weddings, and attended a Biblical school for five weeks in the summer. The total of subscribers to our church papers is listed as ninety-eight, or about one-third of the families listed. Fifty-three receive the Bundesbote and fifty-nine The Mennonite. The interesting membership analysis shows a total of 299 families. In the case of forty-nine families either the husband or wife is not a member. There are twenty-five widows and eight widowers. There are 375 male members and 420 women members. A total of 507 members live within a seven-mile radius of the meetinghouse. Sixty-nine are outside of the state. Some information gathered last fall showed that about three hundred children and young people of the church would attend some school and that twenty-four members would be engaged in the teaching profession. These statistics listed the name and classification of those who would attend school. (The material containing these statistics is being placed in the Mennonite Historical Library.)

—"The Practice of Medicine of Our Mennonites in the Chaco of Paraguay" is the title of an interesting and informative leaflet just off the press. It is written by Dr. John R. Schmidt and is published by the Literature Committee of the Women's Missionary Association of the General Conference. Copies may be secured from the literature secretary, Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa.

—Brother Arnold A. Epp, who is serving the Burrton (Kansas) Mennonite Church, is to be ordained as Elder on November 28.

—Rev. Lester Hostetler conducted special services for the First Mennonite Church, Hillsboro, Kansas, from Novmber 14 to 19.

—Walton Mennonite Church, Walton, Kansas: The women of the church have organized a mission society. Mrs. Gerhard Friesen was at the meeting to tell them about different mission societies and how they worked. The women were asked to bring tea towels and material for applique work for the next meeting.

—Erwin Goering, director of the Camino, California, C.P.S. camp, stopped recently at the editor's office and shared with him interesting insights into our C.P.S. program. Besides directing the main camp, Brother Goering has to look after from two to nine side-camps, depending upon the season of the year.

—Brother A. W. Geigley, formerly pastor of the Fairfield (Pa.) Mennonite Church has been voted the honor of "pastor emeritus."

—The Bethel Mennonite Church, Perkasie, Pa., recently had seven nights of revival. Donald Keith of Montreal, Quebec, was the speaker. On Saturday night, which was young people's night, the Blooming Glen Mennonite Girls' Chorus of seventeen voices sang.

—George Neufeld, mission candidate for the African field under the General Conference Home Mission Board and now studying at Bethel College, recently brought the evening message to the First Mennonite Church, Newton.

—Eden Mennonite Church, Inola, Oklahoma: Louise Heinricks and Ella Janzen, "Go Ye" Ozark mission workers visited this church November 7. They report that nine hundred children have been reached and are now memorizing Bible verses, a Bible having been promised them if a certain number of verses is memorized in a certain time. They were also permitted to enter into a negro deaf, dumb, and blind school with 150 children. Also these are memorizing Bible verses upon the same promise made to the others. Miss Henricks asked, "Do you know how much a Bible will cost for a deaf, dumb, and blind?" The workers work on and on sowing the seed. Pray for this work is their plea.

BETHEL COLLEGE

Paul Goering a last year's junior from Moundridge talked in chapel November 9. He expressed a deep appreciation for his experience in Civilian Public Service. He is being transferred to Rhode Island where he will work in a mental hospital.

Paul Albrecht, editor of last year's Graymaroon, was a campus visitor this past week. He too has been assigned to work in a Rhode Island mental hospital where he will continue his studies in preparation for foreign relief service. Mr. Albrecht addressed the Peace Study Group Wednesday night, November 10.

Debate is the only intercollegiate activity of Bethel College this year. Students out for debate are meeting two evenings a week for study of the International Police question. The first practice debate of the season was held November 15 when Ralph Bargen and Carl Stucky upheld the affirmative of the question against the negative team of Paul Andres and Charles Kimball. Ralph Bargen and Charles Kimball were on the Newton High School team which last year won the state tournament. This year's women's team consists of Laurine Quiring and Catherine Clegg. Miss Clegg last year won first prize in the Kansas Intercollegiate Anti-tobacco Oratorical Contest. Dr. Melvin Gingerich is coach of debate and oratory.

The college recently purchased a camera to be used by the annual staff, the publicity department, and the visual education department. It is a Burke and James press camera, equipped with a F:3.5 Zeiss Tessar lens, a rapid Compur shutter, a Kalart coupled range finder, and a Sol flashgun.

The Student Volunteers meet each Tuesday evening for Bible study. Recent topics and speakers have included: "Is the Bible the Word of God", by Jake Friesen; "Is Jesus the Son of God?" by Verney Unruh; and "Are We the Children of God?" by Abe Wiebe.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Many students and faculty met in the Bluffton college chapel, at noon, Wednesday, November 11 for a period of meditation. Rev. J. A. Weed, pastor of the local Methodist church, gave a brief challenge for peace. Those present missed the regular noon day meal voluntarily, contributing the cost of the meal to a fund for Mennonite Central Committee Relief work. Students of the Peace and Service Commission of the Student Christian Association recently spent an evening working in the relief clothing room for the M.C.C.

"Wings Over Jordan," chorus heard over the radio on Sunday mornings, will give a concert in Bluffton, Friday evening, December 3, through auspices of the Bluffton College Department of Music. The concert will be given in the local high school gymnasium.

Mrs. Waldo Diller of Bluffton, contributed a number of books to the Bluffton College library recently. Such gifts are greatly appreciated.

Professor J. P. Klassen, instructor in art and German at Bluffton college, is instructing a group of interested persons in Lima, in the Russian language.

EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE NOTES

The Twenty-Sixth Annual Meeting of the Orphanage Society of the Eastern District Conference was held in Grace Church, Lansdale, November 13. The projects adopted for 1944 are as follows; Orphan in India, $30.00; Community Children's Home in Quakertown, $150.00; India Relief $100.00 and to the Emergency Relief for China Relief $50.00. The officers elected for the next year are; President, Mrs. Adelaide Temple of the Germantown Church; Vice President, Mrs. Ward Shelly of the Springfield Church; Secretary, Mrs. Norman Wismer of the Deep Run Church and Mrs. Jacob R. Fretz of the Lansdale Church was re-elected Treasurer.

Grace Church, Lansdale—40 young men are in the Service of the Country. This is a very high average for a congregation of this size. The original debt of the Church was $15,500.00 and now has been reduced to $2,750.00. This is a wonderful record when we realize that the Church is only in existence for about thirteen years and started as a mission.

Fairfield Mennonite Church—We appreciate the cooperation of the Rev. George S. Stoneback, pastor, who is sending the bulletins to the Conference Correspondent. Five young people of the church are enrolled in the District Leadership Training School. Rev. Russell L. Mast, Vice President of the Eastern District Conference, will preach the sermon and give the charge to the congregation and to the pastor at the installation service, November 28. The installation service will include a recognition of Brother Geigley as pastor of the congregation for many years. Rev. Mast will speak at the union vesper service in the evening.

First Church, Philadelphia—Mrs. Walter Dick was the speaker at the missionary society meeting held at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Plenert, November 9. The Church observed Church School Sunday on November 14. The purpose was to have each class present with the teacher of the respective classes.

Second Church, Philadelphia—Rev. Delbert E. Welty, pastor of the Memorial Mennonite Church, Altoona, was the guest speaker for the special services held in the church, November 10 to 12 inclusive.

Bethel Church, Perkasie—The revival services held November 7 to 13 were very well attended. Herbert Fretz assisted in the services on Saturday evening and also had charge of the service Sunday morning.

Springfield—Rev. Donald Keith of Montreal Quebec was the evangelist for special services in the church. Rev. Ward W. Shelly is pastor of the church.

Eden Church, Schwenksville—The communion offering was over $546.00. This is the highest it has been in years. The pulpit chairs, a gift of Lt. I. Curtis Alderfer, have recently arrived, almost five months after the day ordered. Rev. Swartz addressed the Ministers Conference at Bluffton College, on the subject of "Evangelism" on November 17.

Deep Run, Bedminster—The total amount of canned goods from this church for C.P.S. amounted to 221 quarts. The C. E. Society held a special program on Sunday afternoon, November 7. Rev. Dillingham, a colored minister from Philadelphia, was the speaker. The C.P.S. offering on October 31, amounted to $253.27. Dr. Harvey R. Bauman, returned medical missionary to India, occupied the pulpit Sunday morning, November 28 in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Russell L. Mast, who was in charge of the installation service of the Rev. George S. Stoneback, pastor of the Fairfield Mennonite Church, Fairfield, Pa.

—Howard G. Nyce, Conf. Corr.

—Splendid co-operation was shown in the C. P. S. canning project by the Freeman, South Dakota communities. Eleven churches participated in this project. A total number of 4,963 quarts of canned goods 113 lbs. of dried food, 135 lbs. of dressed chicken, and many bushels of raw vegetables and other foods were donated. Two trucks took all this food to the C. P. S. camp at Hill City, South Dakota. The total weight of all the food transported was over 23,500 lbs. $443.00 were contributed to cover expenses of jars, sugar, transportation, etc. The balance was given to the camp as a cash donation.—Mrs. E. P. Graber, Freeman, South Dakota.

—First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Isaac, missionaries to India, paid their first visit to Aberdeen, Idaho. Both spoke to the First Mennonite Church Sunday morning and evening, October 24. Mrs. Isaac has an extraordinary gift of relating experiences that occurred during their ministry on the mission field. Rev. Isaac also speaks impressively of the importance of carrying on mission activities in India. Their visit was deeply appreciated.

Leaders of Tomorrow

(Missionary Experiences)

Acts 1:8

It was my privilege to visit several of the C.P.S. camps in Canada and in the U. S. A. Each camp has its own project and naturally its own problems. Some of the camps are situated in beautiful surroundings, others in desert plains, or in the midst of barren mountains. Most of the camps are amidst stately trees: firs, pines, spruces, larches, poplar, birches, and with plenty of underbrush and graceful deer to make their rapid escape at the approach of supposed danger. And one even sees them very tame, cautiously coming to the backdoor of the kitchen to get the scraps. The barracks are set beside a hurried mountain stream, backed up by majestic mountains. I found that the morale of the men depended not on these outer circumstances, that their strength and weakness lay in the inner condition of their being and in their relation to God and His place for them. The leadership I found most noble and courageous, including the government men.

The men in these camps are learning that there is much to learn and much to unlearn. They are finding out that they have led sheltered lives and that now they are finding themselves thrust out as it were into a lonely desert and it means either making the best of it or starving the inner man. It will be either the making or the unmaking of them. They find they must put to the test what they thought they believed. They can no more lean upon the faith of their fathers or mothers, but must make it a faith all of their own. Some of them feel they have already learned to walk the second mile, and they do not know that they are sometimes writhing and squirming even under the first mile. And, how many of us have learned that lesson, to offer gladly to do again as much as we are forced to do. It is indeed a high standard to attain.

At one of the camps I arrived at the busiest season of the year—the canning and drying of vegetables and fruit. To see how a tiny lady with the help of her kitchen staff had managed to can 2,193 qts. of beans, 1,030 qts. of berries, 2,400 of cherries, 1,000 of pears, 200 of relish and pickles, 300 of kraut and then several hundred lbs. of corn dried for her charge of over 150 men and to share with some of the other camps. This indeed aroused my admiration. In shifts they had been canning day and night for weeks, besides getting three meals ready each day for the hungry lot of hard working men.

The camp director took me out to see one of the projects, the construction of a huge dam, which is to make arable 50,000 acres of soil. To make this possible they must clear 10,200 acres of timber to be used for a reservoir. The dam is to be 350 feet wide at its base, ninty feet high from the river bottom and is to be two and three-fourth mile long. This dam was started five years ago and is expected to be finished another five years.

CHURCHES WITH 100 PERCENT PLAN

The following churches had adopted the 100 Percent Subscription Plan for our church papers by November 19. Undoubtedly, more churches will consider this plan at their annual church meetings, which will be held soon. The churches which have adopted this plan are:

Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon
Mennonite Bible Mission, Chicago, Illinois
First Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska
Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebraska
First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas
Goessel Mennonite Church, Goessel, Kansas
Tabor Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas
Lorraine Avenue Mennonite Church, Wichita, Kansas
Menno Mennonite Church, Lind, Washington
Medford Mennonite Church, Medford, Oklahoma
West Zion Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas
Woodland Mennonite Church, Warroad, Minnesota
Walton Mennonite Church, Walton, Kansas
Inman Mennonite Church, Inman, Kansas
First Mennonite Church, Hillsboro, Kansas
First Mennonite Church, Shafter, California
Bethel College Menn. Church, North Newton, Kansas
Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas

About sixty-five men were working at the dam, and the rest of the contingent is working in the timber. When I arrived at the dam, I was overwhelmed and awed. It seemed such a big thing. Something like a frog came into my throat. I said to myself: "These men are trying to represent the best our churches have to offer the world, the message of Christ, of peace, of goodwill, self-giving, of love, surrender and toleration. In deeds they are trying to give the message, our Saviour in a peculiar way, entrusted to our churches. And they are representing also me and you. What a responsibility for us! Are we worthy of it! I asked, "Are we backing them up with our constant prayers? They are human and there are times of discouragement, times when patience and faith seem at a low ebb. Will there be lack of victory in their lives because we at the homefront are failing them in our daily prayers; because our churches even in these troublous times fail to arrange for weekly prayer meetings to uphold those who so nobly try to represent them at the front, (here we must include also the relief workers, home and foreign missionaries, those in the internment camps and those on the very outskirts as struggling little groups isolated—not to forget the infant churches abroad and at home. China, India, and the Indian churches; it ought to include them all, for they are at the spiritual battle front. Nor must we forget those who are in this world's conflict.)

These men get up at 6:30 a.m. in order to be ready for work at 7:30 and they work until 5:30. This day after day, tucked away in forests which at times remind one of a jungle, or they are way off in a desert as it were. One camp I found was at an altitude of from 8000-9000 feet above sea level. Some of these men are doing a job, for which a laborer under other situations would get up to $25.00 a day, and I told myself: "We as peace churches through these men are doing this free of charge for our government, thus saving millions of dollars for our government and Country. We can be justly proud of this opportunity for building constructively rather than being destructive.

While I was at one of the camps in the forest region, the men came home from work as hungry as men can get after a day of hard labor in the open air. They were eagerly looking forward to the evening's rest, but right after supper there was a call: "The forest timber is on fire." And so it was—We had seen for about an hour, lightening flashes come down straight into the woods, and we were a bit anxious that the dry timber might be set afire. A terrible crash near by had kindled the dry timber just a half a mile away from the camp, and the wind was blowing from that direction. "Alle Mann auf Deck" was naturally the call. Leaping, roaring flames—merciless in a short half hour—had covered one-fourth of a mile, either direction. The caterpillars and tractors worked feverishly and ceaselessly trying to check the flames within a certain area by dragging out of reach the dry timber thus forming a fireline all around the fire. Men were dragging the heavy one-fourth mile long hose to do their part to check the angry flames. Other men were racing back and forth with the water tanks to keep up the water supply—getting it from the river a half a mile away. Other men shovelled dirt into the flames. It all looked so utterly hopeless in the face of these towering devouring, angry flames: two water hoses, two water wagons, little shovels, it looked like little ants over against these flames. The air was heavy with suffocating smoke; fire sparks were carried high up over the camp location. In spite of it all, the fire was under control by 9:30 p.m. The tired kitchen force prepared a late meal for the tired fire fighters, and the kitchen force had been at it too.

Thirty-five men had to remain at the fire to watch it and to check it still more, and by midnight they could return and ten more men had to keep watch. Another meal was prepared by the kitchen force at midnight; they did it voluntarily and joyfully. Some of these men had worked after work hours to cut up some cord wood, which they hoped to sell for a

BROTHERLY LOVE

How sweet, how heav'nly is the sight,
When those who love the Lord
In one another's peace delight,
And so fulfill His word!

O may we feel each brother's sigh,
And with him bear a part;
May sorrows flow from eye to eye,
And joy from heart to heart.

Free us from envy, scorn and pride,
Our wishes fix above;
May each his brother's failings hide,
And show a brother's love.

Let love, in one delightful stream;
Through ev'ry bosom flow;
And union sweet, and dear esteem
In every action glow.

Love is the golden chain that binds
The happy souls above;
And he's an heir of heav'n that finds
His bosom glow with love.

ittle pocket money; unfortunately some of this cord wood was burned for some of the men. Too bad!

The men were most courageous, fighting the fire with great energy. They even had a sense of humor. I stood near the fire and watched it. The moke was pretty dense and black and they remarked hat this smoke would give me pretty black hair. I was indeed sorry that at Camp Downey in Idaho I had to lose all that "pretty" blackness in a shampoo I had there. Mrs. Hess will remember.

At all the camps I was entertained most royally. These men know exactly what a guest needs, even better than many a house-wife. And I always got a good rest at every camp in between speaking engagements. And always was offered the chance of a good cleanup, good meals, and once a lunch was packed for me to take on the bus with me, and 'boy" was that good! ! It was a well balanced lunch; they hadn't asked me nor the dietician what I wanted. There was fruit, a tomato, good sandwich with a real filling thick and tasty, with a good chunk of cheese, and another thing, a good chunk of meat in between. I shared one with an army officer's wife who sat beside me, and she said: "My, but isn't this a swell sandwich? I never tasted such a good one before." And there were a few cookies, of nothing too much nor too little.

And these men know how to make up a bed, with two sheets to sleep between, and they give one a complete washroom outfit, with bath and face towel each and a wash cloth, and a piece of soap, and they find a desk for you to write your necessary correspondence on, curtains for windows you can close, and windows that you can open, and a room all your own, and you know it is your own for the time being. It is seldom that one finds such complete arrangements in a private home as one travels. So often some of these comforts are forgotten for a weary traveller. Furthermore, without a question or hesitancy on their part they will offer and provide transportation both ways. They never leave it for the mission board to pay or settle. It is a most cordial bunch of men, kind, considerate and thoughtful, these Leaders of Tomorrow. We praise the Lord for them.

P. S. I must not forget to mention the hospital units. I had the privilege to visit only one, but what was said about the above, I can wholeheartedly say for this unit that I visited. My heart goes out in appreciation to all of these camps, those in Canada as well as in U. S.—A hearty thank you for your cordial receptions and entertainment!

Very sincerely yours,
Aganetha Fast

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By J. Winfield Fretz

THE HOLY EARTH

The title of this article is also the title of a small 117-page book that was written almost thirty years ago by L. H. Bailey, the well-known writer and philosopher of rural life. The Christian Rural Life Fellowship at 156 Fifth Ave., New York, New York, recently secured permission to reprint this fine little book. It can be secured for twenty-five cents and it is certainly worth four times its cost price.

Bailey's main theme in this book is that the man who takes good care of the earth be he farmer, miner, or lumberman, is indeed God's husbandman. His frequent reference to Scripture makes this book all the more interesting and authoritative. On this point he shows how early in human life the Lord God took the man and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it. But says Bailey, for two hundred years man has been destroying the earth, wasting its resources, marring its beauty, robbing it of much of its riches, and denying it any reward in terms of a return. The timber men, the miners, and often greedy farmers have destroyed God's earth. They have not dressed it and kept it.

The Ultimate Purpose of Land

The author does not advocate that everyone become a farmer but he wants more people to have contact with the land and appreciation for it. And those who are on the land should use it for the purpose for which God has given it. In answer to the argument that land can be most economically administered on large scale units, Bailey says: "The economic results are not the most important results to be secured, although at present they are the most stressed. The Ultimate Good In The Use Of The Land Is The Development Of The People. The morals of land management is more important than the economics of land management." A statement with which many of us would heartily agree is that "if it were possible for every person to own a tree and to care for it, the good results would be beyond estimation."

Other Topics

The chapters are brief so that one can read most of them in from three to five minutes. Farmers will find much food for thought during the afternoon's labors if they will read a chapter while pausing for a few moments after the noon meal. Ministers will find good sermon material in the book. Not everything will be acceptable to every reader, but on the whole the reading material is inspiring. Topics such as the following will stimulate the imagination: "The Neighbor's Access to the Earth," "The Honest Day's Work," "The Spiritual Contact With Nature," "The Daily Fare," "The Keeping of the Beautiful Earth," "A Forest Background for a Reformatory."

Not by Might, Nor by Power But by My Spirit

It was about nine o'clock one morning when Jojowah told his father that he was going to become a Christian. Upon hearing that, the father became very angry and began to talk to Jojowah in a very mean and rough tone of voice. Upon seeing that he could not scare the Spirit of God out of Jojowah in that way, he called the rest of the family and also the other members of his caste. Then, all together, they proceeded to persecute Jojowah. Thus, in a vain effort to get Jojowah to recant, they tied him with chains, rolled him in the dust, kicked and beat him and cursed him in the roughest possible way.

It was indeed difficult for Jojowah to bear it all. Here he had just announced his intention of becoming a Christian, and immediately, even before being baptised, he was called upon to suffer, not only ostracism from his family, but their actual curses and blows too. But Jojowah did not let this deprive him of his newly found Lord and Saviour. When the persecution got beyond his human ability to endure it he called upon the Lord saying, "Oh, God, if Thou art the real and true God, as I now believe Thou art, then reveal Thyself to me in this hour of trial." Thus prayed Jojowah and within one short half hour the chains were removed, the beating and kicking stopped and Jojowah's relatives were sitting around him in silence—paying respect, as it were, to God in spite of themselves.

The next day our camp moved on to another location. Now the people thought that the Christian people's God had also left their village and that therefore they would now be able to get Jojowah to recant. So again they tied him with chains, beat him, kicked him and cursed him. But it was all to no avail for Jojowah stood firm. So, being unable to accomplish their purpose, they took their clubs and at night fall they drove Jojowah out of the village.

Thus Jojowah was alone, except for the sweet and all-sufficient companionship of his newly found Lord and Saviour. So, with a bruised and battered body, but with a song in his heart he set out in search of our camp. At sunrise the next morning he found the place. As he approached the camp he called to the campers with a happy word of greeting in which his joy was clearly evident.

After a few days Jojowah was baptized. At that time he asked that his name be Christianized so he is now no longer Jojowah. Everybody calls him "Joel" and he is very glad for his new name for it means so much to him. Also at the time of his baptism he gave the clearest and most enthusiastic witness to his faith in Christ that I have ever heard.

Baptism, however, did not end his trials. The day after his baptism, Joel's parents and family came to camp where Joel was now staying. They now tried different tactics. Instead of manhandling and curseing him, they tried persuasion. They sat down around Joel and while his mother wept, for hours his father pled with him, offering to bear all expenses of the ceremony and feast by which he might be taken back into caste. But even this could not separate Joel from the love of God.

Joel told me later that this last was the hardest to bear, for he loves his parents and relatives. But now, even though he is not allowed to come into his own village or home, Joel is happy in his new faith and in the fellowship of the Christian community. Every time I see him, I can not help but notice the glow of joy and enthusiasm which radiates from his face. In fact it is so much so that, looking at Joel, I receive new joy, courage, and enthusiasm to carry on the work of spreading the gospel among these people with even greater zeal and consecration.

"ARE YOU CHRIST?"

Thus a government official addressed one of our Christian brethren.

The brother noticed at once it was a "wit," so, being equal to the occasion he asked the official, "I notice you sit in an automobile, have you an automobile?"

"Why no," the official said, "I only use this, that's all."

Our brother said, "That is just the way it is with Christ and me. Christ only uses me, but I am not Christ; and it gives me a lot of joy—joy for time and eternity, to be used by Christ. Won't you permit Christ to use you too?"

The official saw the point and caught the lesson of the little parable and became very serious and said, "you say right."

What started as an exchange of "wits" turned out to be a real sermon. Felix, the official of old was terrified when Paul told him the simple truth. Our testimonies do not reach officialdom as they should. Oh Lord, give us courage to testify before officials.

REVIEW OF EVENTS TO DATE

Jesus went about doing good, Acts 10:38. But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd, Matt. 10:36.

Our Foreign Mission Board is doing a very effective work among the heathen in Oklahoma, Arizona, China and India. But we are reminded by the writer of the Revelation to be watchful, and to strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die.

We of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference consider it our duty to have the gospel preached among those who are scattered far and wide.

The suffering of our people in Russia induced many in the United States and in Canada to acts of charity and love, and many gifts were sent to our people in Russia in the years 1919 until 1926, and finally it was possible to help 21,000 people out of Russia into Canada where they may live according to the dictates of their conscience. The Canadian Government allowed these people into Canada under a promise that they would be settled on land and that they would not become public charges. In the beginning of the movement our immigrants were settled in the provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, later on also in Alberta and Ontario and finally also in British Columbia. By hard work and thrift most of these people were soon in the position to make their own living. But here also the word of our Saviour was true: that Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. And it became the duty of those who had to do with the movement, not only to care for the physical wellbeing of these people, but also for their spiritual needs.

At the Conference at Freeman, South Dakota, in the year 1923, the conference saw the need of the people and they were willing to support some of the incoming ministers, so that they could do spiritual work among their own brethren, because it was thought they could better minister to these people and they were willing to support some of experiences. After the movement had started, there were many coming in every year until the total of 21,000 had been reached. They were settled in the before-mentioned provinces in more than 300 larger and smaller groups. Many of these groups were without a minister. So it can be seen that it became an urgent need that ministers be supported for itinerary work who were to bring to the new settlers the old Gospel that is preached in many lands where there are followers of Jesus.

The poverty of the people made it necessary that many of the girls had to look for employment in the larger cities, and girls' homes began to be felt as a necessity in the larger cities. First the home in Winnipeg was established, later on the one in Saskatoon, and then also in Vancouver. From these places the girls seeking employment found support and advice in their difficulties, and, of course, these homes were intended to be in part a substitute for their homes which they could not great blessing for the girls in the cities as a protection against the many temptations of city life. Parents could be more at rest about the welfare of their daughters in the cities. In the home in Winnipeg there were about 200 girls in the beginning, in Saskatoon about 150 and in Vancouver about 75. In late years the economic conditions having improved, there are not so many girls employed in the homes of the larger cities.

Our immigrants are to a great extent people with a good education and it has not taken very long for the young people to learn to speak the English language fluently and perfectly, and our young people among the immigrants were considered a very paying mission field for some of the newer sects who were trying to find proselytes. Many of the people were inclined to listen to the presentation of a new gospel. It is generally known that America is a prolific field for sects preaching a different Gospel from the old time religion, and when some of these high-pressure people come along, it is hard for young people especially to remain faithful to the creed of their forefathers. It is easy to understand that in order to keep our young people, we must offer them something in order to prevent them from following the enticing invitations to creeds that are strange to us.

Especially, the Mennonite Brethren have established a number of Bible schools and many of our young people were attending these Bible schools. The General Conference churches in Canada have been somewhat slow in following the lead of the M. B. people. However, we also have at least ten Bible schools in which our young people are taught sound Bible doctrine.

That there is a great deal of spiritual life among our people, is evidenced particularly by the fact that about 125 churches have been erected in the course of the last twenty years. In some cases help was given to some extent by our Home Mission Board, but the majority of the churches were built out of their own means by the settlers.

Very effective work is being done among the young people and I may say that of late, especially, two young brethren have been very active in the work among the young people. I think it will do no harm if I mention their names, Jacob C. Schmidt and Henry W. Friesen. It is very seldom that we find men among the younger and also the older people who are so zealous and so unselfish as are these young brethren.

Last summer we had the privilege of having Brother J. J. Esau from Bluffton, Ohio, deliver very impressive sermons to young and old. We were also favored by the visits of the brethren P. A. Penner, J. M. Regier, and Walter Dyck, and they have expressed themselves with great satisfaction about the work that is being done among the young people.

We now have fifteen itinerant ministers and twelve more workers in different congregations receiving full or partial support for the work they are doing. The work of these brethren has proved to be a great blessing to our people in the country, in the towns, and in the cities, and if for any reason whatever the work of these brethren would have to cease, it would be painfully noticed in all the communities.

I would not, however, like to create the impression that all the home mission work in Canada is being done by the Home Mission Board of the General Conference. Our Canadian Conference also has a Committee for home missions, whose work is also very essential. This Committee preferably supports poor ministers in different settlements and groups, and the two home mission committees are working together very harmoniously. The home mission field is so extensive that we feel that we should have still more workers in the harvest field.

We now have our harvest thanksgiving festivals, in many cases combined with special meetings to create interest for missions, and from far and near people attend these meetings in order to give thanks to the giver of all perfect gifts. We sometimes are astonished about the willingness of the people to make sacrifices for schools and for missions.

In closing I would say with the Apostle Paul, Phil. 3:12: "Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect: but I follow after, if that I may apprehend that for which also I am apprehended for Christ Jesus."

RETREAT HELD NEAR SWIFT CURRENT, SASKATCHEWAN

In July a fine group of young people gathered at "Gowan's Grove," south of Swift Current, for the first retreat in the southern part of Saskatchewan. Already before the tent was erected Rev. and Mrs. Daniel Toavs, Wolf Point, Montana, arrived to be present at the retreat and the "Children's Camp" and to lead in the meetings.

The first evening was a very busy one, but at 8:00 p. m. the first devotional service was held. The superintendent of the retreat, Is. A. Derksen, spoke words of welcome, and then Brother Toavs addressed the group. Each one was urged to get acquainted with the other retreaters and grow in the love and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

From 9:30-10:00 was the time for the evening devotions; after this the beds were prepared for the night. Sleep is not very evident when such a number of young people get together, and some woke early in the morning. (It must be the same in Saskatchewan or Ohio or Pennsylvania.)

Morning devotions were conducted with appointed leaders. The meals were served under trees. This was a long-to-be-remembered event for everyone. Mrs. Gerhard Dyck, Herbert, Saskatchewan, was head cook and she saw to it that the young people had ample food. Brother W. B. Rempel was the one to get the supplies from the city.

Shortly after breakfast, on July 23, the other speakers and leaders arrived: Rev. J. J. Esau, Bluffton, Ohio, Rev. J. G. Rempel, Rosthern, Saskatchewan and Isaac Epp, Waldheim, Saskatchewan.

After a song service led by Rev. Isaac Epp, Rev. Toavs spoke on "Things That Abide," I Peter 1:1-15.

This was followed by a German service with Rev. J. G. Rempel as leader. He spoke on "Mennonite Beginnings in Switzerland." In story form the history was told, and everyone was spell bound as the persecution and sufferings of our forefathers were related. The forenoon came to a close with Rev. Esau delivering a message on "Search the Scripture," John 5:39.

A rest period followed the noon meal. This was followed by a period of recreation. Some played ball while others went swimming. The afternoon meeting was under the direction of the Brethren Epp and Thiessen from Herbert, and Rev. Esau.

The first meeting in the evening was especially for such who teach in Sunday School. Rev. Rempel followed this meeting with a message on: "How To Tell Bible Stories." This was followed by open discussion.

The second day was patterned much as the first one had been. Rev. Toavs lead in a Bible study, and Rev. Rempel continued in his Mennonite history studies, using as his subject, "Menno Simons." Rev. Esau closed the forenoon with an evangelistic message.

After the rest and recreation period, Rev. Toavs brought another Bible study, and this time Rev. Rempel told the story of the hymn: "So Nimm Denn Meine Hande" (Take Thou My Hand, O Father. No. 561 Hymnary.) The brethren Toavs and Esau both spoke at the evening meeting.

Sunday Great Day

Sunday was the great day. This formed the close of the retreat and the beginning of the "Children's Camp." Rev. Rempel preached in German and Rev. Esau in English. The choirs from Herbert and Swift Current were present to aid in the worship by rendering special selections.

In the afternoon was a sangerfest. Choirs and groups of singers came from many communities and villages to participate, and a retreat chorus also rendered several numbers. Rev. Rempel told the story of the hymn: "Harre Meine Seele" (Wait on God,) and Rev. Toavs spoke on the "Importance of Music in the Christian Life."

The closing meeting in the evening was under the direction of the brethren Toavs and Esau. Great joy was expressed because several souls found peace in the Lord Jesus Christ. The attendance was between fifty-five to sixty. On Sunday fully 450 were present. We praise God for all blessings.

A TEACHER PRAYS

They look to me, they look to me today
To teach Thy truth. Be Thou my Teacher, Lord
Lest I should make a false step from the way
Marked out within Thy sacred holy word.
Strike from my own heart any evil there
That could become a noxious weed to blight
The good growth of a field, and be my fare
O bread and wine, and Lord, be Thou my light.
They look to me. 'Tis strange it should be so.
I am humble, Lord, before this sacred task.
Go with me now, dear Father, as I go
To impart Thy message. Only this I ask:
To glorify Thee through the words I say.
Be Thou the teacher in me, Lord, today.

The Fourth Beatitude

By Erland Waltner

"Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled." Matt. 5:6.

This Beatitude differs from all the others in that while others speak of what a man is, this one speaks of what he desires. Our desires, our aspirations, our goals in life are of greatest importance in determining our happiness.

Some people seem to hunger and thirst for wealth. Others desire popularity and still others crave pleasure, but Jesus does not call these blessed. True happiness is reserved for those who hunger and thirst after righteousness.

What does it mean to hunger and thirst after righteousness? G. Campbell Morgan says, "It is Divine discontent with everything unlike God." In other words, it is a passionate desire to be good. True goodness is godliness. In this Beatitude Jesus is referring to those whose deepest longing is to see godliness in their own lives and in the lives of those about them.

Whence is this righteousness to come? Certainly it is not self-righteousness. This righteousness come from the righteous King of the Kingdom, the Lord Jesus Christ. It is realized only by those who "poor in spirit" "mourn" for their sins and are "meek" in their obedience to the Lord.

These are the truly happy ones. "They shall be filled." Weymouth translates this, "They shall be completely satisfied." The man who hungers for wealth never has enough. The one who desires popularity always wants more. The one who craves pleasure finds his demands growing. Only he who desires righteousness can be completely satisfied through Jesus Christ for he shall be like Him.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Delmar Wedel, Berkeley, California

DECEMBER 1—"I saw the Lord, sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up; and his train filled the temple." Isaiah 6:1.

Devotion can be a dangerous habit. One of the common methods of avoiding our duties is to withdraw into an atmosphere of "reverence and godly devotion." The beauty of the worship experiences of Isaiah is that it came as a result of his critical facing of his world about him. He was spiritually sensitive to the unrighteousness of Israel and he was not going to shut his eyes from their unrighteousness. The times were out of joint and he recognized his obligation to set them right. After he had exhausted his own resources he then went to the temple to worship, and out of his experience comes one of the most moving religious experiences of all times.

DECEMBER 2—God cares for all nations.

This is not specifically stated by Amos, but it is implied in outstanding passages in the Book of Amos. Amos says that God will not continue to favor Israel at the expense of other nations. In the last analysis his dealings with all peoples are equal. His justice and love are given to all. There are no favored peoples or nations. Those that have greater resources have greater responsibility to use them for the good of all. We in America have a great deal to learn from Amos.

DECEMBER 3—God speaks to us through true worship and gives us strength to face our responsibilities. In a day of economic confusion and political collapse, God disturbed Isaiah, who had lived in luxury, to consecrate himself to responsibility. When Amos, the herdsman of Tekoa beheld injustice, in which men on ivory couches, bought the poor for a pair of shoes, God disturbed him to cry out, "Let justice run down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream." May God disturb us today, both to listen and to act, in His name.

DECEMBER 4—"And Moses returned unto Jehovah, and said, Lord, wherefore hast thou dealt ill with this people? Why is it that thou hast sent me?" Exodus 5:22.

Moses and Aaron had received their first setback in their attempt to gain freedom for the Israelites from their Egyptian ruler. It was the first setback that Moses had encountered and tradition tells us that he met it with prayer putting his trouble squarely before God. He is in effect telling God that he failed to make good! Here we see the boldness and freedom which characterizes Moses' prayers. Honesty before God is the basis for true worship. It is healthy for our spirit. It is healing.

DECEMBER 5—"In the year that King Uzziah died . . ." Isaiah 6:1.

The best Hebrew-Christian insights, thoughts, rise out of periods of crisis. Isaiah lived during one of Israel's crisis. Israel was located in an international corridor with Egypt to the West and several major powers to the east. These nations shuttled back and forth across Palestine in their attempt to control each other. During one of these crises, King Uzziah of Israel died. The King, the symbol of the stability of the state died. It was then that Isaiah saw the Lord. Men don't really see God, or learn to pray out of the depth of their soul until they meet their zero hour. The trouble with us is that we don't see God until "King Uzziah dies."

DECEMBER 6—"And the foundations of the thresholds shook at the voice of him that cried. . . ." Isaiah 6:4.

Some people attempt to seek security through human institutions, and organizations such as the nation, or power. No human institution can stand before the judgement of God, they all shake. The crisis of history demands that we see that no nation is sovereign unto itself—it is only a relative loyalty. Those who believe that victory through military might will mean security are going to be disappointed. There is only one sufficient loyalty and security, God.

DECEMBER 7—"Hear ye the word which Jehovah speaketh unto you, O house of Israel." Jeremiah 10:1.

Jeremiah knew the chief object of the universe. He had the right perspective of life. He always begins with God, then Israel or himself. His living was not "self-centered," but "God centered." One of the major enemies of abundant living is self-centeredness. When God is no longer the center, then we become the center. This centering on ourselves works badly. Dr. E. S. Jones, in a chapel address, expressed this truth in these words: "Those who center upon themselves and have their own way, don't like their way; they do as they like, and don't like what they do; they express themselves, and then find the self that is expressed souring on their hands." May God help us adjust to the true center of life.

DECEMBER 8—"Praise ye Jehovah. . . ." Psalms 148.

The true meaning of life is not discovered until we learn what it means to glorify God. The Hebrew folk knew—they learned to thank God for their very existence. Psychologically when we give praise to God, we have forgotten ourselves. We see the total meaning of the universe God—giving meaning to our present living. "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it." Concentrate on yourself and that self will

Raise $278.46 through Projects

(The following is an interesting explanation of how young people of the Mennonite Church at Kitchener, Ontario, raised $278.46 and a description of how this offering was dedicated on Missionary Sunday as observed by that church. Andrew Shelly is pastor of this church. Are there groups in the United States which have done something similar? —Editor)

The dedicatory service for the proceeds of the Stirling Crusader projects was held in the afternoon. More than sixty children and young people participated in the five projects for relief and missions. The organization was very simple. The chairman of our mission committee acted as general captain. Each project was captained by one of our older young people. The following were the projects with the results:

1. Mite Project. This consisted of giving part of allowances or earnings. Twenty-four were in the group, and the proceeds amounted to $24.96.
2. Odd Job's Project. Minding babies, mowing lawns, working part time, etc. were some of the projects. Six were in this division with $32.65 as the total.
3. Poultry Project. Seventy-five chickens were involved. Five boys raised these chickens with $61.03 as the result.
4. Livestock Project. Five raised pigs. The amount realized was $68.00.
5. Garden Project. Twenty-one had various types of gardens, bringing in a total of $91.82.

The grand total was $278.46. This, plus the afternoon offering, was divided equally betwen relief work through our Non-Resistant Relief Organization, and our Central Province India Mission work.

The Dedication Service

At 2:45 the children and young people entered the church auditorium by groups. The dedication ceremony itself was opened by a statement of purpose by one of the captains—to share materials gifts with those who have not, and spiritual gifts through Jesus. One of the girls now presented a recitation, composed by the captain, "We Serve By Sharing."

This was followed by a vocal duet, "To the Regions Beyond," sung by two sisters. The chairman now called each captain to the altar. The captain then explained the nature of the project and read the names, each child standing as the name was read. The captains all came to the altar after this was completed. Two thirteen-year-old brothers, twins, then brought a large 8½ ft. by 1½ ft. banner to the front. The following inscription was on it:

STIRLING CRUSADERS
WE SERVE BY SHARING

The pastor took his place on the other side of the communion table. All Crusaders then rose and sang the theme song: "We Are Stirling Crusaders," sung to the chorus tune of "We Are A Missionary Band." The grand captain then presented the offering to the pastor, who after a few remarks gave the dedicatory prayer.

The eyes and faces of the beaming crusaders indicated the thrill they were experiencing in this sharing project. Needless to say an expansion of the idea is contemplated for next year.

Jesus the Teacher

During the time of His ministry Jesus was widely known as a rabbi. He is regarded as the master teacher—an example for all teachers. His teaching was great because of His magnetic personality which drew men to Him.

Jesus used original methods in teaching. It was part of life to Him. He never gave formal instructions but rather used conversations to teach. There are no records of His ever having written anything. He spoke casually and informally and took advantage of any opportunity that lent itself to bringing out a truth.

His teachings were always adapted to His hearers. Lessons were drawn from their familiar environment. Incidents, situations, or questions brought out some of His greatest truths as illustrated by the woman at the well and Nicodemis' visit to Him. Christ was always conscientious of the needs of people about Him and would single them out for individual help.

The teachings of Jesus were dynamic because of His use of figurative forms of speech; paradox, parable, simile, metaphor, and hyperbale. He drew comparison between objects from nature and daily life and things of spiritual value. Because He used such familiar illustrations as a hen that gathers her chicks under her wings, the lily of the field, or the grain of mustard seed, His words remained with His listeners.

A sense of humor must have prompted Him when He used the hyperbale of the mate and the beam.

Jesus' method of teaching was authoritative and original. The people said He did not teach as the Scribes who could only quote others. Because Jesus Himself is the source of life He could speak of Himself, of God, of all things, with authority.

He never forced anyone to believe because of His respect for the personality of each individual. His own magnificent personality drew men to Him but never through compulsion. Hearers felt at ease in His presence, because they could sense His love and sympathy for them individually.

Many questions were asked of Jesus. His answers led them to think the answers to their questions themselves. He never gave dogmatic answers, but by putting the people in contact with a new spirit, He led them to nobler living.

The greatest appeal of Jesus as a teacher is that He taught what He lived and lived what He taught. His words were the truth because He Himself is the truth.

The Mennonites in the Netherlands

By Cornelius Krahn

I. "Gemeentedagbeweging"

During my study at the lower Rhine in Germany I was only a few miles from the Dutch border. For some reason Holland, or the Netherlands, had always been of great interest to me. In my imagination it was a country of dikes and canals, Holstein cows grazing on green pastures near windmills which keep the water out of the country. A country of tulips and wooden shoes, of fishermen and farmers. It was a country with numerous old cities and towns with narrow streets and canals, cleanliness pervading everywhere. And above all it was the country of Menno Simons and my own ancestors.

Thus it was not surprising that I decided to learn to know this country, not by hear-say only, but by seeing it and meeting its people. The medium through which this was to be accomplished was the monthly paper "Brieven" published by the "Gemeentedagbeweging" (which is a movement to revive spiritual life among the Mennonite Churches of Holland). I subscribed to this paper to learn to read the Dutch language and to get acquainted with the spirit of this movement.

Soon after that I read the announcement of the annual meeting of the "Gemeentadag" and "Jongerendag" which were to be held in Elspeet, the former being a meeting for church members who felt the need of spiritual fellowship and the latter a youth camp. I decided to attend these meetings, and since distances are so small I traveled there by bicycle like many others who attended.

The camp, named, "Doopsgazind Broederchapshuis" (Mennonite House of Brotherhood), of the "Gemeentedagbeweging" is located on a beautiful heather a short distance east of the Zuiderzee near the village of Elspeet. This movement has several similar camps. It was here that I first learned to know The Netherlands, its people, the Mennonites of Holland, and their "Gemeentedagweging." The aim of this movement, as I was told, was to create more interest in Christ and a Bible centered congregational life based on the fundamental Mennonite principles. The "Gemeentedag" has many branches in addition to the above mentioned youth camp, which include Bible study, home and foreign mission work, study of the principles of non-resistance, and others. It is generally admitted by the Mennonites of Holland, even by those who do not fully endorse it, that this movement with its branches has done, and is doing, invaluable work for the up-building of spiritual life and of advancing the Kingdom of God. This movement had its beginning in 1917. The Quakers in England and in The Netherlands were responsible for its origination. It was Rev. T. O. Hylkema, now one of the four ministers of the Mennonite Church of Amsterdam, who among others helped to organize the movement. The present chairman is Rev. Fritz Kuiper, pastor of the Mennonite Church in Alkmaar.

In order to understand the meaning and value of this movement, as well as the Mennonite spiritual life of the Netherlands in general, we have to consider the background and historical development of the latter. This can most easily be done by relating some impressions I had while I was studying in Amsterdam and visiting churches all over the country.

II. Amsterdam, the Citadel of Dutch Mennonitism

There would be no Netherlands if there was not a Holland (which is one of the seven provinces that comprise The Netherlands): there would be no Holland if there was not an Amsterdam. Amsterdam has become for me the symbol of The Netherlands. It combines the most old-fashioned medieval buildings, streets, canals, and bridges with sections of the city as modernly built and equipped as any in the world.

The membership of the Mennonite Church of this city is approximately 7,000, that is, about one-tenth of all the Mennonites of the Netherlands. (1) Numerically speaking, Amsterdam ranks first in the entire Mennonite world. This church has also the largest and most complete collection of documents and books pertaining to Mennonite history. My original curiosity to find out more about the country of my ancestors brought me to this place to make a more thorough study at the above mentioned library and at the Mennonite Theological Seminary located in Amsterdam.

(1) A study of this urban Mennonite Church would shed interesting light on our current discussions of urban and rural Mennonitism in this country.

By delving into the history of the Mennonite church of the sixteenth century, I found that none of the churches of the Reformation had shown so much zeal, sincerity, and consistency in their attempt to establish a church after the pattern of the Apostolic church "without spot or wrinkle" as did the church of our forefathers. To have faith in Christ and to follow Him was their chief concern. Whoever failed in one or both of them was excommunicated from the brotherhood. (He was "banned.") After that he was "shunned" (avoided) until he would repent and show fruits of repentance. Attempts to enforce this rigid and strict discipline without a great leader who would authoritatively interpret the will of God as revealed in the Scriptures was the cause of the numerous splits among the Mennonites in the Netherlands. There were the Waterlanders, Frisians, the Flemish, and the Germans. These names indicate the province or country of their origin. They were further subdivided into old and young, conservative and progressive, hard and soft, etc. Besides these there were groups too numerous to mention which were named after their leaders. The mere existence of these many groups indicates that their relationship was not always friendly, not to speak of brotherly. The Swiss and South German Mennonites who were not so strict admonished their Dutch brethren: "Do you not see that you are building the Tower of Babel. God has punished you so that you no longer understand each other. All Church discipline should be subordinate to brotherly love." Thus were the conditions among the Mennonites of The Netherlands during the end of the sixteenth and beginning of the seventeenth centuries.

The seventeenth century was the Golden Age of the Netherlands. It was one of the leading countries of the world. The East and West Indies Companies, as well as large fishing fleets, were accumulating great wealth for the country. Holland became a cultural center. In all this, the Mennonites, the majority of which were not farmers as in this country, gradually began to take part. The more progressive groups gave up their original nonconformity and isolation. They opened their doors to the world of public life, commerce, and culture. Vendel, the "Shakespeare" of Holland, is listed among the deacons of the Mennonite Church of Amsterdam. The great painter Rembrandt felt at home among the liberal Mennonites. During the eighteenth century the progressive wing of the Mennonites took an active part in the cultural, commercial, and governmental activities of its country. They preferred the name "Doopsgezind" (which literally means "baptism minded" but came to mean broad-minded or tolerant) to "Mennist" (the meaning of which came to be narrow-minded, conservative). At the end of this century we find the majority of the Mennonites in an extremely opposite to that of the sixteenth century. When the Russian Czar Peter learned the art of ship building in Zaandam he heard a sermon in a Mennonite Church on the topic "Speak Well, Do Well, Think Well." This was the gospel of enlightenment of that age in which many of the Mennonites in Holland shared. The great interest in establishing a pure Christian Church changed into indifference toward the church. In the course of one century, that is, from 1700 to 1809 the church membership sank from 160,000 to 27,000.

In the beginning of the ninteenth century new life came into the Mennonite churches. By this time all the branches had united. The "Algemeene Doopsgezinde Societeit" (General Mennonite Conference), of which all churches are members, was founded in 1811. The purpose of this organization was to counteract a further decay and decrease of the congregations. It supplied them with trained ministers and gave financial support to the smaller churches. The A.D.S. now sponsored and supported the Mennonite Theological Seminary at Amsterdam which had been founded by the Mennonite Church of that place (1735). The A.D.S. also publishes the weekly "Zondagsbode" and a series of booklets to build up the church life. The "Doopsgezinde Bijdragen" which was edited by one of the professors of the Theological Seminary and published for a period of more than fifty years is an excellent example of scholarly Mennonite research. It is worthy of note that some of the professors of the Seminary have become nationally and internationally known. In this connection it may also be mentioned that the Mennonites of Holland have done scientific research on their own history for about two hundred years. No doubt, we, as pioneers in this field, can profit from the fruits of their labor.

All Mennonite Churches in Holland, 130 in number, are served by ministers from their own Seminary. The candidates of the ministry are placed through the sponsorship of the A.D.S. The theological training is a four-year course with junior college or its equivalent as a pre-requisite. Women are not only admitted to the seminary but quite a number are in full charge as ministers of congregations.

III. Mennonite World Conference, 1936

The third Mennonite World Conference was held in The Netherlands in 1936. The first World Conference had met in Switzerland in 1925 in commemoration of the four hundredth anniversary of the existence of the Mennonite Church. The second was held in Danzig in 1930. The conference in Holland in 1936 was especially designated to commemorate Menno Simons' renunciation of the Catholic Church. This conference met at three places: Amsterdam, Elspeet, and Witmarsum. All those who were privileged to attend these meetings must have been impressed by two facts, first, the great past we share, and second, the great tasks which we confront. The simple and yet venerable Mennonite Church (Singelkerk) in the heart of Old Amsterdam was the place in which we heard about our heritage from different representatives from various countries. The place and atmosphere were most suitable. This discourse on our heritage reached its climax after we had crossed the Zuiderzee and arrived at Witmarsum, the place of Menno Simons' birth and conversion. It was here that he had given up his Catholic parish in 1536 in order to become the "shepherd of the scattered sheep" of his time. So important was his leadership that most of the churches, even today, bear his name. Thousands of people from many countries met here in the little village and around the Menno Simons' monument near the village.

The tasks which lie before us as a Christian Church were discussed at the "Broederschapshuis" at Elspeet between the meetings in Amsterdam and Witmarsum. The following problems and implications confronting us were discussed: the essence of the church, the relationship of the church to society, state, etc. It cannot be expected that complete agreement was reached on all problems discussed. As at the previous world conferences the representatives and attendants agreed heartily to continue in the relief work. From World War I to World War II this relief work consisted mainly aiding the unfortunate brethren from Russia to establish a home. The Mennonites of Holland have always been exemplary in expressing their brotherly love in this way. As early as the beginning of the eighteenth century when persecuted Swiss Mennonites came to Holland they helped them across the ocean to settle in Pennsylvania. Ever since they have lived up to this tradition.

Preparation for Commnnion

"In the observance of the communion in the early Mennonite churches of Switzerland not all church members in regular standing were invited to take part, although all such had the right to do so if they chose. The invitation to take part in the communion service was extended to such only as were resolved to leave and give up, if need be, everything—earthly possessions, and even life itself—for the sake of Christ and the evangelical truth. This does not mean that the church members were expected to seek worthiness in themselves, but it indicates that a willingness to forsake all for Christ was expected of all members of the Church."

—John Horsch

"Duty makes us to do things well, but love makes us do them beautifully."

Versammlungshaus-Meetinghouse -Church

By Cornelius Krahn

"How has this change in terminology come about?" was the question of the editor in a recent issue of The Mennonite. Herewith he made a very interesting and far-reaching observation. While in Holland the writer frequently heard surprise at the indiscriminate use of the word "church" by the Mennonites of America. For the Mennonites of Holland the word "church" is too closely associated with "state church." Even today they never refer to their congregations with "kerk" (church) but always with "gemeente" (Gemeinde, Congregation). However, they refer to their church building as "kerk." Originally they spoke of a "vermaning" (place of spiritual admonishing) and the minister was referred to as the "vermanver." At present he has accepted the same honorary title as his colleagues of the other Dutch churches have always held, which is "Dominee" (from the Latin "dominus"). Thus the Mennonites of Holland, even though they have adjusted themselves to the other churches of their country, are still opposed to the use of the term "church."

Why did and do the Mennonites object to the term "church?" The term "church" (Kirche-kerk) is derived from the Greek "kyriakon," which means "the Lord's" and may refer to the congregation of believers or the gathering place of the congregation. There could be no objection to this. When our forefathers separated themselves from the then existing churches which they did not consider the true body of Christ nor the proper place of worship, they rejected the official terminology of the church with its elaborate system of superstition so that they might worship God in spirit and in truth. In a congregation where the principle of the priesthood of all believers was applied there was hardly room for distinction between "layman" and minister to say nothing of titles like "Dominee," "Pastor," and "The Reverend." So great was the fear of losing the simple and true way of worshiping God that many congregations refused to erect special buildings for worship. Our Amish brethren are the only Mennonites who still observe this custom. When the Swiss-German Mennonites settled in Pennsylvania they referred to the church as "Versammlungshaus." Changing from the German to the English they adopted the term "meetinghouse" which is common among them even today.

The "Versammlungshaus" or the meetinghouse is, therefore, one of the symbols of our heritage. If it is built according to our tradition it expresses our simple way of Christian living and worship of God. It is to be regretted how little these facts are considered when our meetinghouses are built. For example we find on some of our church buildings flat towers which remind us more of minature fortifications of castles of the Middle Ages than of the simple non-resistant way of life of our forefathers. This is, of course, largely due to our eagerness to adjust ourselves to "what others do" regardless of whether or not it is in contradiction to some of our fundamental principles. On the other hand we may ask ourselves whether a change in terminology, style of architecture, etc. is not the result of a change of attitude of principle which has preceded it.

Leave It with Him

Yes, leave it with Him,
The lilies all do, and they grow—
They grow in the rain, and they grow in the dew—
Yes, they grow:
They grow in the darkness, all hid in the night—
They grow in the sunshine, revealed by the light—
Still they grow.

Yes, leave it with Him,
'Tis more dear to His heart, you will know,
Than the lilies that bloom,
Or the flowers that start
'Neath the snow:
Whatever you need, if you seek it in prayer,
You can leave it with Him—for you are His care.
You, you know.

Bird Lesson

He sang upon my window-sill at eventide,
A tender, cheerful little song;
Could he have known the burden of my heart
And tried to make me strong?

I mused awhile, and hummed the sweet refrain.
And all at once I realized the load,
The heavy load had lifted. And the sun,
The setting sun was streaming down the road.

'Tis like that . . . life . . . with all its cares and fears,
Its multitude of burdens great and small;
How oft a song would cheer the saddened heart
And scatter sunshine where the shadows fall.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

Colfax, Washington

We have recently had a wonderful season of meetings with Dr. Langenwalter. His explanation of the first six chapters of Acts has given us a fuller recognition of the beauty of Christian living. In spite of the transportation problems a goodly number availed themselves of the opportunity of "studying to show ourselves approved unto God, workmen that need not be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth."

The regular Thanksgiving services will be held this year, though no community dinner seems advisable. As projects, The Women's Missionary Society is going to support foreign missions by sending the offering for India's famine relief. Home missions will be given funds for Dr. Schmidt's hospital in Paraguay.

Though some weeks have passed since our visit with the Isaac's, India missionaries, we feel very fortunate that we are privileged to have a deeper insight into the workers' field and can feel a closer tie with those who so well carry on our work across the seas.

Bethel College was very well described last week when Willis Rich visited and showed pictures. Surely, our prayers and gifts will pay profitable dividends if "Bethel" is the beneficiary. —Corr.

JOHANNESTAL MENNONITE CHURCH

Hillsboro, Kansas

On November fourteen the annual fall communion was held. Three sisters were received into the church membership by letter.

The only visiting minister our church had during the last few months was Brother John F. Schmidt now Pueblo, Colorado, who at that time was visiting relatives here.

In addition to contributing our quota to the support of the C.P.S. Camps our church takes up quarterly offerings for our own eight boys in different C.P.S. camps. The last offering amounted to $80.00.

Since our Sunday school passed a ruling a year ago, that after a teacher has taught the same class for three successive years, he is not eligible for re-election in that class, there have been a good many changes in the teaching staff this year. Our Sunday school now has sixteen classes. As in former years, together with our neighboring church Brudertal, a class for taechers is held on Thursday evening, led by the two pastors. The Sunday school lesson is discussed.

The Christian Endeavor and the mission society are also carrying on their work regularly. The last Christian Endeavor program was an inspiring one given by the juniors. Our prayer is that they grow up to be Christian young men and women working for the Kingdom of God.

The annual mission sale of the church shall be held Friday night December 3. At that time the juniors will also bring the proceeds from the quarters which they received in spring.

Our church contributed 525 quarts of fruit and vegetables for the C. P. S. canning project. This with about 3500 quarts from other Hillsboro churches was hauled to the Colorado Springs Camp on November 8.—Corr.

STIRLING AVENUE MENNONITE CHURCH

Kitchener, Ontario

November 14 was Missionary Sunday! And what a glorious day it was! Drs. Harvey and Ella Bauman spoke at five services. At the ten o'clock worship service Dr. Harvey Bauman told us of some of the aspects of the medical work in India. His direct way of speaking was very much appreciated. Then, at the Sunday School session, Dr. Ella Bauman addressed the entire school, displaying various items illustrating the life of the people of India.

In the afternoon, both missionaries spoke at the Stirling Crusaders' Service. Then, in the evening Dr. Harvey Bauman spoke in the Waterloo Church of which Rev. J. H. Janzen is pastor. Dr. Ella Bauman addressed our congregation. She had many snap shots illustrating the mission work in India. Fortunately we were able to secure a projector to show of these on the screen.

In our Kitchener-Waterloo area we have what is known as the Fireside Hour. It is a young people's fellowship. Each Sunday evening from 9:10 to 10:10 a service of fellowship and inspiration is held in one of the churches. The service was held in our church on this Sunday. By 9 o'clock the auditorium was packed—choir seats, amen corner, six extra benches, and extra seats brought in. Fifteen minutes later the chairs in the Junior Department room downstairs were also filled. After the usual song service and special musical numbers, Dr. Harvey R. Bauman presented a direct, frank, straight-from-the-shoulder talk on "Victorious Christian Living." He spelled out the word "victory" as follows. V-vision, I-initiative, C-Christ centered, t-truthfulness or honesty, O-obedience, R-righteousness, and Y-YOU.

VICTORY OVER WORRY

"Let us give up our work, our thought, our plans, ourselves, our lives, our loved ones, our influence, our all, right into His hand, and then, when we have given all over to Him, there will be nothing left for us to be troubled about, or to make trouble about."—J. Hudson Taylor.

Daily Devotional Messages

go to pieces, not only spiritually, but physically as well.

DECEMBER 9—"Thus saith Jehovah: For three transgressions of Judah, yea, for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof. . . ." Amos 2:6.

In the preceding verses Amos is reviewing before the Israelites the histories of their neighbors—how each nation had bowed under the rolling thunder of judgment. What an indictment is entered against them: war time barbarities, broken covenants, unquenchable hatreds. Suddenly the prophet turns upon the people before him. Amos tells Israel their punishment will be ten times worse. These people have the genius of criticizing themselves. They ask the question regarding themselves first. Our tendency is to focus our attention upon the sins of other individuals or nations. May God give us the spirit of Amos, to look first upon ourselves. To be sure we ourselves are not guilty of the sins which we decry in others.

DECEMBER 10—"I hate, I despise your feasts, and I will take no delight in your solemn assemblies." Amos 5:21 ff.

People were at least outwardly religious. The shrines were visited by great numbers. Sacrifices were offered freely. But there was this disquieting characteristic of their worship. For all its enthusiasm, it had no influence upon their behavior. They did not relate the service of God with living justly and righteously. The very feasts held beside the altars were furnished at the expense of the poor. May God give us the spiritual sensativity needed to relate our religion with our daily living where justice and love are so often lacking.

AN OBSERVATION

"A sincere minded group of folk, sensing the weakening power of the Church, traced the cause to the imperfections in our program of religious education. Now we have had two decades of emphasis of newer and improved methods of educating children, youth, and adults in the Christian way of life. Today we have the smallest average attendance in our church Sunday schools for years."

Puerto Rico Bound

Additional C.P.S. men appointed for the Mennonite sub-unit at La Plata are N. Paul Stucky and Irvin J. Warkentin. Stucky is to serve as laboratory technician with the ability to make some of his own equipment, and Warkentin will be mechanic-carpenter-plumber.

Notes on Puerto Rico

The following items have been taken from the October Monthly Report of the Director of the Martin G. Brumbaugh Reconstruction Unit:

"On October 6, Mrs. Preheim joined the La Plata sub-unit after a stay at Castaner where she and Dr. Preheim lived during their first weeks in Puerto Rico. Dr. Preheim joined her on October 22. The construction work at La Plata is proceeding, but like much tropical activity, slowly. PRRA is contributing the construction work and materials. The problem for Dr. Preheim is to keep patients from coming until he can adequately care for them. It could be said that this has created a condition of 'growing pains.' The community work there is developing nicely and it is obvious that the C.P.S. personnel has sold itself to the people. The community center is being widely used, and a well-supervised program is underway.

"The entire personnel at La Plata spends an hour for five days a week taking Spanish instruction from one of the local high school teachers at the school.

"A hurricane scare was a new experience for all of the Brumbaugh Unit when early on the morning of October 14, the warning was given over the radio that a huricane was approaching Puerto Rico from southwest of the Island.... All business houses closed and people made for their houses. Homes were being boarded up and the small huts anchored down. Valuables and sick people were carried to places of safety.... The storm struck by mid afternoon. Heavy rains of from six to twelve inches fell over the Island and all of the sub-units were without electricity.... The west end of the Island suffered considerable damage and heavy rains washed out bridges and created landslides over the whole island. It was said generally that it was the worst wind storm since the 1932 hurricane."

Shipments to Latin America

Eleven cases of materials left the Akron Office for Paraguay and Puerto Rico recently. Nine cases were sent to Paraguay for Dr. and Mrs. Schmidt and Dr. and Mrs. Klassen, containing two light-plant generators and motors, dental instruments, drugs and medicines, and personal effects. The two cases to Puerto Rico contained medicines and drugs with some personal items for Dr. and Mrs. Preheim.

UNRRA and OFRRO

The recent creation of UNRRA (United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration), by President Roosevelt and representatives from forty-three allied or associated nations, has received considerable publicity across the country. The former national organization, OFRRO (Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations), with ex-Gov. Lehman as director, has been absorbed and superceded by UNRRA. It now seems certain that foreign relief will not only be administered by national government but by international government.

It is not altogether certain where private relief agencies will fit into the picture. O. O. Miller and C. L. Graber contacted ex-Gov. Lehman and his organization when he was director of OFRRO, and he expressed the view that the need would be so extensive that there would be ample opportunity for private agencies. Mr. Lehman has also been appointed director general of UNRRA and it is hoped that private agencies will receive the same consideration. It seems clear however, that no private agency will be permitted to do work without clearing with the director general of UNRR.

C.P.S. CAMPS

Statement of Policy

To have on record a statement of M.C.C. position and policies in administering C.P.S., the Executive Committee has had a "Mennonite Civilian Public Service Statement of Policy" prepared for circulation. The folder is planned to clarify the Mennonite position especially to drafted men considering C.P.S. Agencies. It contains sections on Relation to Government in C.P.S., Relation to other C.P.S. Administrative Agencies, M.C.C. Policies in the Administration of C.P.S. Camps and Projects and The Meaning and Significance of C.P.S.

C.P.S. Survey of Interest

An attempt has been made by the Akron Office to determine the interest of C.P.S. men in Mennonite camps relative to their desire to enter forms of detached service, to transfer to other camps, or to continue in the same camp. A summary of the survey is given below. The table indicates the various alternatives with the number of men interested in each.

State Ag. Experiment Stations	212
Dairy Herd Testing	72
Coast and Geodetic Survey	10
Mount Weather	8
Medical and Nutritional Experiments	8

Canning Project

Latest reports indicate that upwards of 160,000 quarts of food have been canned for M.C.C. C.P.S. Camps by Mennonite constituencies. C.P.S. men at Akron Headquarters find variety in their work by helping to load trailer trucks and box cars with canned goods.

It is "lovingly dedicated to the children of the Emmanuel Mennonite Sunday School, Doland, South Dakota. Anyone desiring a copy or copies may order directly from Mrs. Friesen.

—Harry E. Martins, former camp director at Colorado Springs, and recently appointed by the M.C.C. as regional director of the Rocky Mountain area, visited camp from November 12 to 14. We feel that the M.C.C. met a real need in placing these regional directors in the field who will be able to spend several days in each camp about every two months. This should enable the Akron office to be better informed in problems of camp administration and to make more satisfactory placements of men on detached service.

Mr. Martins was in charge of morning devotions and brought us a much appreciated message in the Sunday morning worship service, in which his text was Luke 10:42, "Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her."

Mr. Martins made it a point to speak to all who desired his counsel and visited the dorms for that purpose. We were indeed happy to have him with us and will be looking forward to his future visits. —From Camp paper of Hill City, C.P.S. Camp.

Post Card From Sam Goering

(The following are excerpts from a postcard that Sam Goering sent to his wife when he was visiting with the Orlando Waltners in Champa, India. Since then Brother Goering has gone to Chunkking, China. Very likely he is now busy with the beginning of relief work.)

" . . . so far I have not received any letters from home . . . I am enjoying my stay with Orlando and Vernell very much . . . Mail has been very slow but improved a lot recently. So an airmail letter which Mrs. Moyer got today came through in a little over three weeks. Robert Charles is a very nice boy with light hair and blue eyes. He is just as active as can be . . . Waltners are kept busy with work at the Leper asylum. The other missionaries at Champa are Mr. and Mrs. Ratzlaff and Miss Pauls. The P. W. Penners lived at Champa but work away from here. Just now they are at Mauhaudi holding evangelistic meetings. Mrs. Penner writes that they have decorated for my coming this Wednesday.

"Yesterday afternoon I went to Janjgir by train from Champa to attend a program at the Funk Memorial Girls' School which I enjoyed very much. In the evening they served curry and rice. I was the only man there and the lady teachers got a lot of fun out of my awkwardness. They all ate with their fingers except Miss Nickel and Mrs. Moyer and, of course, myself—we had spoons. This morning I spoke in church there. All the schools—boys, girls, and Bible school—were all there. The pastor of the Janjgir Church took me into the homes of some of the members which gave me a good insight into the way the people live. You will remember the church was just being built when we were here in 1926. I came back to Champa on the afternoon train . . . We are just ready to leave for Mauhaudi, and from there I and Orlando go to Basna where we will be for Sunday. That is where Dr. Dester, the Thiessens, and Duerksens are stationed. We have a relief committee meeting on the 13th and 14th (October) here at Champa. Committee here has sent a carload of rice to Calcutta where there is real need."

Watch next week's Mennonite for an announcement regarding subscription rates for 1944.

Rural Churches Eroded

Erosion of the soil results in erosion of the church, and rural pastors have a practical interest in soil conservation, a U. S. Department of Agriculture study indicates.

T. S. Buie of the Soil Conservation Service, Regional Conservator with headquarters at Spartanburg, South Carolina has reported a survey of 222 rural churches of the Upper South Carolina Methodist Conference. These 222 churches were classified into three groups according to soil conditions surrounding each church: moderate erosion, moderate to severe erosion, or very severe erosion with much of the land unsuited for cultivation. These groups included 47, 89, and 86 churches, respectively. Membership in churches in the least deroded areas averaged 160, with 132 and 105 in the areas where erosion was more and most severe. There was only slight difference in the average attendance reported by pastors. The widest differences appeared in the average of total contributions to the churches. There were $1,135 annually in the least eroded areas, and $762 and $533 where erosion was progressively more severe. Pastors' salaries averaged $$433 in the first group, $300 in the second, and $241 in the third.

This study, says Buie, reveals "the ultimate effect of a chain of circumstances set in motion by rainfall running unchecked from cultivated fields fields—soil depletion, reduced yields, lower income, and less support for the rural churches."

AN INVITATION

Dear fathers and mothers of our juniors: You are invited to pick up the new Mennonite Junior Quarterly that your boy or girl may be using and to turn in in it to the section called, "My Duty This Week." I wonder whether you won't agree that the suggestions given there are so definite, so practical, and so inspiring that they are also excellent for use by adults Furthermore, the illustrative stories in it may help you in preparation of your lesson in what we now call our Mennonite Senior-Adult Quarterly. Why not write in and tell us how you like our Sunday School quarterlies?—rw.

Some is Bound to Bear Fruit

Sometimes the objection is raised that it does not pay to send one of our church papers into every home in the church because some people simply will not read it. Is this true reasoning?

We make many and large investments along spiritual lines without expecting a return from the whole of them. A minister works hard on a sermon and gives it effectively. Undoubtedly, however, there will be some in the congregation from whom it will roll off like water from a duck's back. Tracts are often distributed by the hundreds and the thousands. Perhaps, only a few hearts will be gripped by them, but that is considered worthwhile. Missionaries may labor years without making a convert, but we would not want them to give up. It costs a tremendous amount of money to bring an evangelistic message over the radio, yet thousands and perhaps millions will dial away from it. If the Gideons expected a 100 percent return in the way of converts from their distribution of Bible, they might as well stop their work. We like to place a Bible in every home, although we may have no great amount of assurance that it will be read.

For the same reason as suggested above we ought to put one of our church papers into every home of a church. Some may not read it for quite a while but then may become interested in it through some article and continue to read more and more of it. True, a very few may never take to reading it ,but is it not better to offer them wholesome Christian literature rather than to leave that undone and them exposed solely to the literature of this world? Some seed is bound to fall on stony ground, but we can never tell what is stony ground.

Let us not be careless about our own relatives and our own fellow church members who may easily drift away from the Mennonite Church and its teachings if not interested, inspired, and instructed by such means as personal visits, pastoral care, and our church papers. Certainly, in God's sight it pays to put a church paper into every home of a church.—rw.

Change in Name

The Sunday School quarterly that we formerly called the Christian Sunday Quarterly is now entitled, Mennonite Senior-Adult Quarterly. We feel that the new name is a more accurate and fitting description of the use that is made of it. Otherwise the quarterly is just the same as it used to be. Practically all the churches in our conference use this quarterly. By the time this appears in print all the quarterlies for the first quarter of 1944 should be on their way to the churches of our conference.—rw.

In Spirit and in Truth

One of the church bulletins that came to me recently showed one solitary man sitting and praying in a very magnificent edifice for Christian worship. Somehow that picture seemed symbolical of the many beautiful edifices throughout our land and the handful that gathers to worship in them—for a handful it is when compared with the membership roll of the church. We have beautiful temples of worship, but Oh, where are the worshipers? Is the modern Christian in danger of overemphasizing worship in supremely beautiful surroundings at the expenses of worshiping in the beauty of holiness? What bonds of brotherhood there might be in some churches if they had used the money spent for a stately building for the purpose of more adequate medical care of its members, or for helping the needy to find proper vocational adjustments, or for many of the other pressing needs that involve money.

Better to worship in a simple building where there is strong love for God and man and where spirit and truth abound, than to worship in the most magnificent temple where the essentials of true worship may be largely missing. This is no plea for slouchiness or ugliness in meetinghouses. It is a plea that we place the emphasis upon worshiping the Father in spirit and in truth, as is befitting in the Kingdom for which we pray.—rw.

HOW CHEITRAM BECAME A CHRISTIAN

By Augusta Schmidt

One day before breakfast, we were asked to come very quickly to a very ill woman. The home was less than a quarter of a mile distant and we went at once, but the woman died a few minutes after we arrived. There was a young boy about fourteen years old and another one about five years old; the father was not there. We were told that he did not live in this house with this low caste wife, but with the much higher caste wife of the goldsmith caste. Of course the father, wife and children were out of caste because of such an inter-caste marriarge.

What should these two poor orphan children do now? The father was willing to support them, but his other wife never touched these low caste children. She threw their food to them and wasted no kind looks nor words on these children. The children were sad and lonesome. The youngest child was soon covered with itchy sores, because a five-year-old boy did not now how to wash his clothes nor how to bathe properly. The children ran around in the village without restraint, learning bad things and little or nothing worthwhile.

The older boy, Cheitram, kept thinking life was not worth living this way, but he remembered that love and kindness had been shown to him in the mission school at Korba. It was several years since he had attended and finished the fourth grade. The boy asked to be baptized, but he had not had any special instruction as to what it meant to become a Christian besides what he had learned in school. We also were not sure whether his motives were right or whether he only wanted a way out of his difficulty and a way to earn a living. Cheitram was considered an applicant for instruction, however. Soon he went to Bilaspur and when he returned his tuft of hair, which all Hindus wear, was cut off. He attended church and slept with the Christians.

Cheitram again asked for baptism. He was asked to go and tell his father. The father was very angry when he saw the tuft of hair cut, and heard of the boy's intention. He told his son that he did not want to see his face anymore. The boy wore silver bracelets, that the father had made for him as he was a silver and goldsmith by caste and trade. Now the father took these all away, and the boy returned with nothing but the clothes he wore. His face looked sad, yet determined.

The disinherited son received instruction and was baptized after several weeks. Later he married a Christian girl, and begged that his little brother might also be taken into the Christian community. We advised that Cheitram talk it over with his wife and with his father and if both were willing to take his little brother into his own home. This little boy and his older brother who tried to play the role of a father, had many things to learn. Some of the old habits causing difficulty were lying, stealing, and anger, but steadily and gradually, the older brother grew in Christian grace. The father later became friendly to his son again when Cheitram was kind to him and tried to win him to Christ. He even invited the whole family for a meal and said "God calls me also to become a Christian," but there was his wife and caste relations which kept the father back. However, his son Cheitram says he knows the difference between a Christian home and community and a non-Christian one, between a life with Christ and one without Him.

OUR MISSION WORK IN WINNIPEG, MANITOBA

By J. J. Friesen

Winnipeg, the chief city of central Canada, lies not very far distant from some large Mennonite settlements which were begun about seventy years ago in the valley of the Red River. The Mennonites have remained for the most part an agricultural people, but during the course of the years a considerable number have moved to the city. War conditions have also helped to accelerate this movement. Besides those who have taken up permanent residence in the city there are many who are more or less transients and stay here only for a limited time. Among the latter are students in the university, normal school, and hospitals, as well as working girls who labor in the factories and homes. It is the aim of our mission church to keep in spiritual contact with all of these people. The work has its difficulties, but it is abundantly worthwhile since we cannot afford to lose these people who may be of great help to us in the future.

For the last five years Rev. Benjamin Ewert has been in charge of the mission work in Winnipeg. Since August 1, we have taken up the work and have occupied ourselves with visiting the people and getting the work organized for the coming year. On Sundays at 10 a.m. we have Sunday School in English, with a class in German for adults. At 11 a.m. we have a worship service which is partly in German and partly in English. The evening service is in English. After the evening service we have a special

Bible class for the young people, which is also in English. At present we have organized a choir which meets for practice every Friday evening. The young people have also been organized into a group which gives a program every other Sunday evening. The Ladies Aid meets every three weeks and a Friendly Girls Club meets once a month. Our young people's work was begun with a special rally at which time we had Missionary Wm. Unruh of Moundridge, Kansas, with us.

Our meetings at present are held in an old church building, which although it is quite centrally located is difficult to keep warm. In order to improve the heating we have installed a furnace and are thinking of making other changes which would make the building more usable for our services. This involves expenses which some interested individuals might wish to share with us. At present we are also introducing the new English Mennonite Hymnary into our church services. This should be a great help in improving our regular worship services.

We would ask the other Mennonite groups to remember us in their prayers since we are very conscious of our dependence upon God in the work here.

What Did Menno Simons Teach?

Part I

Menno Simons, as we saw in an earlier article, was no philosopher, and paid very little attention to the theological controversies of his day. He was satisfied with a simple Biblical basis for his religious faith. Neither did he show much concern in finding the answers to the minute details of religious practice and the unanswerable and controversial questions hidden away in the books of the prophecies and Revelations, which per chance are above the ken of finite minds anyway, and at best have but slight relation to the plan of salvation,—such questions as the correct form of baptism, whether immersion or pouring, and if the former, whether once or three times, and whether forward or backward; the exact date for the second coming of the Lord; whether the Pope or Hitler is the Anti-Christ; the predestinarian question of eternal security; whether Saturday or Sunday is the correct Sabbath day; and similar useless and unwholesome questions which are creeping into the Mennonite church today in certain circles as a test of orthodoxy in place of the old traditional tests of simple faith and right living, to the great confusion of the brethren and serious threat to the unity of the church. Menno mentions none of these questions. He was not interested in solving cross-word puzzles.

On the fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith, the doctrine of God, man, sin, redemption, Christ's divinity, His atonement and plan of salvation and other essential bases of the Christian faith, Menno agreed with the other Reformation leaders. On certain other questions which he thought were of prime importance he differed. It is only his distinctive teachings to which attention is called in the following extracts from his own works.

Authority of the Scriptures

"This holy Christian church has only one doctrine—the pure, unmixed and unadulterated Word of God, the Gospel of grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. All teachings and decrees that do not accord with the doctrine of Christ, be they the opinions of doctors, decrees of popes, ecumenical councils, or anything else, are but commandments of men."

The New Birth

"The new birth consist verily not in water nor in words, but it is the heavenly, quickening power of God and through the preaching of the Divine Word, if we accept the same by faith, touches, pierces, renews and changes our hearts, so that we are converted from unbelief to faith, from unrighteousness to righteousness, from evil to good, from carnality to spirituality, from the earthly to the heavenly, from the evil nature of Adam to the good nature of Jesus Christ."

The Church

"Christ's church consists of the chosen of God, His saints and beloved, who have washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb, who are born of God and led by Christ's spirit, who are in Christ and Christ in them, who hear and believe His word, live in their weakness according to His commandments and in patience and meekness follow in His footsteps, who hate evil and love the good, earnestly desiring to apprehend Christ as they are apprehended of Him. For all who are in Christ are new Creatures, flesh of His flesh, bone of His bone, and members of His body."

Baptism

"We are not regenerated because we have been baptized, but we are baptized because we have been regenerated by faith and the Word of God. Regeneration is not the result of baptism, but baptism is the result of regeneration. This can indeed not be controverted by any man, or disproven by the Scriptures."

The Lord's Supper

"The Lord's Supper is a holy sacramental sign, instituted of the Lord Himself with bread and wine, and enjoined upon His own in remembrance of Him, taught and administered also according to the institution of the Lord, by the apostles among the brethren. It is first of all to show forth the Lord's death, as Paul says, to remind us that He has offered up to us His holy body and shed His percious blood for the remission of our sins."

The Social Message

"All who are born of God are partakers of the Spirit of the Lord and are called into one body of love, according to the Scriptures, are ready by such love to serve their neighbors, not only with money and goods, but also according to the example of their Lord and Head Jesus Christ, in an evangelical manner, with life and blood."

"They exercise charity and love as they have ability; they suffer no one to be a beggar among them; they distribute to the necessity of the saints, receive the miserable, take the stranger into their houses, console the afflicted, assist the needy, clothe the naked, feed the hungry, do not turn their face away from the poor, and do not despise their own suffering members—their one flesh."

WISDOM, Prov. 9:8-12

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of Wisdom."

Wisdom is considered high intelligence, quickness of discernment, sound judgment, knowledge gained by study and observing, caution and carefulness. We may have all this and yet not be wise.

For the fear of the Lord is the beginning of Wisdom and the knowledge of the holy is understanding.

A fool in scripture is never a mentally deficient person, but rather one that is haughty and self-sufficient. One who orders his life as if there were no God.

The rich man we read of in Luke 12:16-20 was not mentally deficient, but he was a Fool because he supposed that his soul could live on the things in his granaries, therefore giving no thought to his eternal welfare of wellbeing.

"The fool not the wise man says in his heart there is no God." Ps. 14:1.

A wise man will always be a Christian because the perfection of wisdom is to know where lies peace of mind and soul and how to get this peace which passeth all understanding which Christianity teaches.

Landor says wisdom consisteth not in knowing many things, nor even in knowing them thoroughly but in choosing and in following what brings the most to our lasting happiness and true glory.

Are we as parents and teachers learning of God? Are we learning how to turn the knowledge we have into wisdom? For the good of our soul?

Have you the right appreciation of wisdom? Knowledge isn't wisdom; a man may know a great deal and yet utterly lack in wisdom. To be, is greater than to know. Knowledge is a matter of books; wisdom comes from God.

In one of our state penitentiaries a few years ago —so a report stated—there were within its walls 235 college graduates. The character of the prisoners from an intellectual standpoint was high. The keeper said we have men here who are capable of any position in the world; there is no task or project they could not carry through to success.

You may ask what was lacking, what was wrong —they substituted knowledge for wisdom which resulted in living and seeking gain in material things and thereby forgetting God.

Seeking satisfaction, peace, and happiness outside of God . . . and finding it not.

Matt. 6:33 "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," riches do not bring happiness; education does not bring happiness; a great position in life does not bring happiness.

Happiness comes not in the abundance of things we posses, but in the spirit in which we possess them, lasting satisfaction and peace and rest for our souls MUST come from God.

Dan Crawford says that while in Africa he told of our great country, its wonderful wealth and civilization. But a listener with a few words spoiled the beautiful picture that he had drawn of our beloved country. He says I will never forget it. He said, To be better off is not to be better.

Unless we fear God and apply our hearts unto wisdom, the wealth, the freedom, the peace, the protection. freedom of speech and press we gave in this great beloved land of ours will avail us nothing.

Ecclesiastes 12:1 "Remember now thy Creator . . ." and verse 13 "Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole Duty of man.

In the sight of God we are fools, though rich, educated, living in ease, and plenty—rich in this world's goods yet not rich towards God. What we think we posses—we must leave—to someone else as we pass on. Riches, honor, fame wealth, power in high positions are of and in this world. But the soul that trusts in God shall be satisfied eternally.

Matt. 5:6, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." —Satisfied.

Are you, dear soul, satisfied? Does the world really satisfy your soul? Jesus invites you to come and drink at the fountain that never runs dry. Praise God for living water and heavenly manna. They that come and partake shall never hunger or thirst . . . Yes, Jesus satisfies the soul. He is the same yesterday, today, and forever . . .

A College Education for Mennonite Farmers

By Adolph L. Waltner

Forty years ago or so, the agricultural colleges in this part of the country were sarcastically referred to as "cow colleges" and the agricultural students as "cow hands" and often in decidedly more derogatory names and treated in a similar manner.

Even twenty-five years ago, agriculture and students of it had not received the respect that other branches of learning such as, music, science, engineering, etc., had received. This not only on the part of the student body but also by the general public. In those days a young man with a college education who decided to remain on the farm was considered a failure and the time and money which he spent in acquiring such an education checked off as a total loss.

We have gone a long way from that point of view. Today it is generally considered a privilege for any person to attend and graduate from college. Those who do not approve at least tolerate the idea. In colleges, too, the status of the agricultural departments and its students is radically changed. Today agriculture is on par with any branch of learning.

But even in face of such a change, a person is justified to ask himself "What may I expect to get out of a college education?" One of my earliest recollections along this line is the annual visit of the County Superintendent to the country school and his figures on the blackboard showing the increased earning power of the high-school graduate over the country-school graduate, the college-trained over the high school trained. Yes, there is an economic advantage in favor of the college trained. The diversified demands upon the present day farmer certainly are such that this facter merits consideration.

There are contributions of a college training to an individual which are far more important than his earning power. One of the first of these lasting influences is that it stimulates and directs thinking. Thinking like other attributes of a human being needs development and directing. Training in any college will stimulate thinking. The differences of the various colleges is then in the degree of such stimulation and the trend in which thinking is directed. Christian thinking people naturally expect that the development and the direction of one's thinking should be patterned after Christ's way of life. As Mennonites, we believe in a Christian approach to everything. That means that we believe that life is a serious matter, that Christ has a definite place in it, and that only through His way of life can we we get the best out of living. These are factors that should determine where we get our training.

As a natural result of such thinking one comes to the second of the lasting influences f a college education, a broader outook on life. It is on this point that people most frequently clash with college trained Christians. Here there exists a gap not easily spanned.

Lower Picture:—Professor A. C. Schultz teaching the Word of God to a Bible class at Bluffton College.

This short prayer, "Bless me and my wife, Son John and his wife us four and no more." represents an exaggerated example of those people who have not recognized this broader outlook on life. To them, they and theirs are the nucleus around which life centers. This also represents the starting point for each of us. As we reach out into life, into the realm beyond our immediate self, we become aware of other things. Self grows smaller by proportion as we become more and more acquainted with the greatness of God's universe. With that knowledge we become aware of our responsibilities. The nucleus of our thinking shifts. We are no more the center of life but rather a part of life. This is the beginning of a broader outlook on life.

There is a certain satisfaction, particularily to young people, in doing a given task well. Life is a series of tasks. If a college training will add cheer, understanding, and efficiency in doing life's tasks, and I believe it does, I would give that as another reason in favor of a college education.

In conclusion, on the basis that a college education will stimulate and direct my thinking along Christian lines in such a manner that I will be able to get a clearer conception as to what my relation is to God and my definite place in His universe, that it will enable me to do my task in life more cheerfully and more efficiently and with better understanding I advocate a college education as an asset, not only for Mennonite farmers but for all people.—Freeman, South Dakota

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By J. Winfield Fretz

THE BROKEN CUP

This is the title of a small book written by Jesse H. Ziegler of Bethany Biblical Seminary in Chicago. It is the result of a careful and complete study made of the changes in custom, attitude, and ways of life that have taken place in a rural community of Church of the Brethren people in Maryland. The substance of this book is beautifully summed up in the appropriate story, told in the first paragraph, of an Indian chief who explained what had happened to his tribe in this way: "In the beginning God gave to every people a cup, a cup of clay, and from this cup they drank their life. They all dipped in the water but their cups were different. Our cup has broken now. It has passed away." This Indian chief was speaking of the breaking up of his people's ancient patterns of life and Ziegler too is speaking of the way old Brethren customs have broken up and he goes on to suggest specific reasons why these changes have come about.

Method of Study

To study the changes in this particular community the Brethren male population was divided into three groups according to generations, those from 13 to 24 years of age; those from 38 to 49 years of age and those from 63 to 74 years of age, in other words, sons, fathers, and grandfathers. All of these individuals were asked the same questions and the answers compared. It would have been valuable to include the girls and women on the same basis, but Ziegler does not include them in his study. The information was secured chiefly through personal interviews and observation of local activities.

Of Interest to Mennonites

Every Mennonite reading this book will be amazed at the similarity of customs, attitudes, and beliefs held by the Brethren and the Mennonites. It must be only prejudice and willful ignorance that has kept this similarity of culture, custom, and ideals so completely concealed from each other through the years. Points on which changes are studied include attitudes of three generations on such matters as: alcoholic beverages, baptism, wearing of the beard, Bible reading, wearing of the cape for women, church government and attendance, courts, conformity in dress, cosmetics, college education, communion, dancing, debts, divorce, doctrinal preaching, family worship, farming, feet-washing, gambling, the government, home ownership, homes for the aged and orphans, insurance, taking of interest, jury duty, the kiss of charity, labor unions, lodges, the love feast, musical instruments, military service and non-resistance, prayer veil or head-covering, profanity, forms of punishment, the radio, recreation, a salaried ministry, smoking, swearing, Sunday papers and atttiude toward "worldly" churches.

The Results

The net result of the study reveals significant changes on the part of the younger generation toward greater conformity to the "world." Yet there are evidences that modern youth is not "going to the dogs" just because changes have taken place. For instance, a greater percentage of young people belong to church than of the older generation; also a greater percentage of the younger generation go to church because they like to go rather than because they are made to go. In economic and ethical matters too the attitude of the modern generation is hopeful. In this brief review we are unable to do justice to this significant book. It is worth careful study and it will cause much productive thinking and may become a pattern for similar studies of other rural communities.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Delmar Wedel, Berkeley, California

DECEMBER 11—Jermiah 1:8, "Be not afraid because of them; for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith Jehovah."

Such was the promise with which Jeremiah began his ministry, and he has left us a record of how it was fulfilled. Jeremiah felt himself destined to point out injustices of his fellow-countrymen. Both his accusations and his threats roused the anger of people who had a high idea of themselves and of their future. His was a warfare that never ceased. And in all its course we behold this naturally timid, shrinking man standing like a wall against the onslaughts of all foes. What was the secret of such strength? He himself told us. Jeremiah was sustained by his life with God.

DECEMBER 12—Jeremiah 1:9, "Then Jehovah put forth his hand, and touched my mouth; and Jehovah said unto me, Behold, I have put my words in thy mouth."

The story of Jeremiah's call depicts the intimate, personal relationship between him and God. Every sensitive person receives his call from God. And not until a man experiences this call does he really begin to live abundantly. The man who wanders through life without a sense of purpose, without a sense of life having any meaning, is really to be pitied. Our Christian faith may be a powerful creative force within the lives of all. If we are sensitive to its message we will find purpose and meaning for abundant living.

DECEMBER 13—Isaiah 8:17, "And I will wait for Jehovah, that hideth his face from the house of Jacob, and I will look for him."

One of the priceless ideas which Christianity received from the Jews was the idea of God working among men—God working in and among nations. The Hebrew people believed that God would cause their nation to prosper. It was a terrible tragedy for them, therefore to find their nation threatened by invasion. Isaiah reflects this attitude. He says God is hiding his face from the house of Jacob. At times during mental or physical suffering we too, may find the meaningfulness of life taken from us. The waiting to see the meaningfulness of it all is difficult. At such times, like Isaiah, the righteous man lives with an attitude of faithfulness, trusting, steadily and quietly as did Isaiah, until such time when he could once again "see his face."

DECEMBER 14—Jeremiah 5:24, "Therefore as the tongue of fire devoureth the stubble . . . so their root shall be as rottenness, and their blossom shall go up as dust; because they have rejected the law of Jehovah of hosts, and despised the word of the Holy One of Israel."

Jeremiah tells us there is a moral government in the universe. That man can't do as he likes and get by with it. Jeremiah viewed his times and saw the people so wise for destruction, so unwise for goodness. Man has undone the work of creation. "I look to the earth, behold chaos." As did Israel of Jeremiah's day, we have broken the yoke of brotherhood. Nations can't play lose with justice and righteousness. The end is doom.

Meditation on Psalms

DECEMBER 15—For people who need renewed faith for living, the Psalms are without equal. The Psalms are the precipitate of Israels' experience throughout her history. We don't read them very long without saying to ourselves, "They speak to me and my need." This is so because they deal with the whole range of human emotions. Many of the Psalms come out of the experience of a grief stricken people, who when life about them collapsed, sought for something to which they could devote themselves. They sought for a new center of life. Because they speak to a universal need, Christian relief workers going abroad will find them valuable for the rehabilitation of the human spirit.

DECEMBER 16—Psalms 51 v. lff., "Have mercy upon me, Oh God, according to thy loving kindness: According to the multitude of thy tender mercies, blot out my transgressions."

Yesterday we observed that in the Psalms we find the whole range of human emotions. For the next few days let us examine a few of the Psalms and notice how they speak to our varied needs. In Psalms 51, we have the authentic cry for penitence, forgiveness. Here is a picture of a broken man who has fallen. Here is the voice of a man who strikes a chord of response in our hearts, for he expresses the cry for penitence that is upon our lips.

DECEMBER 17—Psalms 46 v. lff., "God is our refuge and strength a very present help in trouble."

This Psalm is the earnest response of one in trouble. This Psalm because of its universal mood communicated itself to Luther when he was passing through troubled days. It communicated itself to Pastor Niemuller on the Sunday before he was to be taken to prison. His church was filled. The Gestapo was there beside his pulpit. He knew he might be seized any moment; Niemuller rose and announced the hymn for the morning, which was taken from Psalm 46, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

Putting Ideals Into Action

This summer word came to the editor that the young people of the Pacific District were sponsoring a drive to put our church papers into more of our homes. It was inspiring to think that some people were doing more than just paying lip service to doing things for Christ's Kingdom. So we tried to find out how the young people of the Pacific District came to adopt this project. Alice Lehman of Aberdeen, Idaho, and Chairman of the Young People's Committee of the Pacific District, has given us the answer. She also tells us how the active young people in the Aberdeen Church went about getting more subscriptions for The Mennonite and the Bundesbote. I'll let Miss Lehman tell you about it as she told me about it in a letter. She wrote:

"Since this drive was sponsored by our Young People's Committee of the Pacific District and since Ihappen to be chairman of this committee, I shall just briefly tell you about it. I have been reading The Mennonite for several years now, and it has always been a real blessing to me, as well as a very informational paper concerning many of our own people. You know, we here in Aberdeen are really quite isolated from our General Conference churches, and I find that this paper has been an excellent means of becoming acquainted with many of our leaders.

"Therefore, it seemed a real opportunity to me to try to get our committee to sponsor a drive of this sort in order that many of our young people in this district might experience the same blessings which those of us who take The Mennonite have received. All of the Y. P. Committee members heartily favored a subscription drive of this sort.

"So posters were made for each young people's society, advertising this drive. One person was chosen from each C. E. society to be responsible to get as many subscriptions as possible in their own church. These young people were privileged to choose their own particular method to conduct the drive.

"In our case here in Aberdeen, Delmar Wedel was chosen to be responsible. So he chose several young people to help him. Each person was given a list of names of those who did not already subscribe to our church paper, and each person was to see the people whose names they were given. Personally I think that this was a very fine idea. It worked out very well. I am enclosing a snap shot of our young people who sold subscriptions . . . I certainly am very happy for the fine response we had from all of the churches in our district on this project."

Thus did the young people of the Pacific District and of this one church in particular go about carrying out this project. The Aberdeen young people send in a good number of new subscriptions, and other

Descriptions of Africa

By Robert Kreider

(On October 11 the M.C.C. office at Akron received a collection of letters from Robert Kreider, who is on his way back to the United States. Robert writes so interestingly that we decided to share parts of his letters with the readers of this paper. They are descriptions of his trip to Africa and of his stay there. Because of a law passed by congress, the relief unit of which he was a part has been recalled to the United States.)

Capetown, S. Africa, August 5, 1943.... We delighted in crossing the equator into the Southern Hemisphere. At night we gazed at the new and strange southern constellations; the Southern Cross, the Milky Way (somehow more beautiful in this hemisphere), Magellan's Black Cloud, etc. By day we saw the albatross, schools of porpoise....

We have been continuing to devour book after book. Life at sea is a paradise for the book lover.... This study of China and the Orient is thoroughly absorbing. Six months ago my knowledge of China and the Far East was limited and elementary. It has improved a bit since... enough to impress me with the conviction that we have much to learn at the feet of the Orient. I wonder why in college we so lightly skimmed over and neglected the history and culture of the East. We have been wrapped up in the study of Western culture and ignored much of the wisdom of the East. If this world is "one world," we can ill afford to remain ignorant of the Orient....

About South Africa—Everywhere are to be seen examples of the Dutch style of architecture; thick brick walls, plastered and whitewashed; thatched or tiled roofs; shuttered windows. The homes are set in the midst of flower gardens and shaded by oak trees. About the gardens are low whitewashed stone walls. From a little peak we could see the Atlantic to the West and the Indian Ocean to the East.... South Africa is a land of rare beauty. Here there is a blending of mountains, sea, white beaches, plains, fertile valleys, streams, forests, gardens, flowers everywhere.... We are now in the midst of a two month winter period, chilly and damp.

At Muizenberg... We boarded a train at Muizenberg where Mr. Bateman had arranged for free accommodations for us. Here we received a terrific amount of attention. The South Africans are enamored with American ways, American gadgets, music, films and Americans. I wonder whether there is not real harm in a people being so enthusiastic about things American—especially these shallower aspects of our culture. Following this period of idealization may come a period of disillusionment.... Tuesday we hiked along the beach, climbed a mountain. In the evening we were guests of Mrs. Thompson, a Bostonian. We have been having pleasant chats with the R.A.F. boys who are more reserved than a bunch of Americans would be.

At Durban, South Africa, August 13, 1943—This week our castle of hopes tottered and came tumbling down upon us. Late Monday P.M. I was visiting at Federal Hotel with Delvin, Dick Yoder and Mr. Stoltzfus. I returned to our room to find our entire group seated in the room, all looking more grave than is their custom. A bit later Rupe and Solly extended their hands and congratulated me. "Why are you congratulating me?" I asked. You and Clanning are going on to India." I asked what they meant. Then came the staggering news—the first scrap of information we had received from America since June....

Wednesday morning came jolt number two. Webb called up to inform us that at the P.O. box there was mail for all of us. We were all eager for our first letters from home. While each was pouring over his letters Bill let out a shout and a groan, "Hey, listen to this." He read to us a note from Bob Ziegler of the B.S.C. reporting the events of early July—common knowledge to all of you by now. We agreed with this new information it would be more wise for Bill and I to wait for further instructions from Philadelphia.

This has been a jarring blow to us. But even more of a blow it must be to those at home who have worked for months on this project, who have invested thousands of dollars in the program. Now all for naught. Again and again we have thought of the men in camp—men who have been living and hoping and praying that the day might come when they could go forth to do relief work. The promise of foreign service has given many deep meaning for their camp period.

We are all busy at work at Durban's largest civilian hospital, the Addington. Herb, Bill and I are doing clerical work. I am in the registrar's office. Ralph works in the surgical appliance shop. Lea is on night duty. Rupert, John and Solly are serving as orderlies on the wards at night. Special permission was granted us by the Department of Immigration to work in the hospital. The work is good for us. It helps to defray our living expenses and has an educational angle. My work is filing, recording data on forms, typing, etc. Part of my time is devoted to the effort of dispelling the queer notions which our office force has about America. Today one lass asked me about those major subjects: jitterbugging, gum-chewing, Dorothy Lamour, Coca Colas. She adores America. I shudder to think to what aspects of our culture she is attached.

Our two day railway journey from Cape to Durban was wonderful. We were impressed with the wonderful expanse of the country. At Worchester, the capital of the wine-growing section, we talked with the Afrikaans (South African Dutch) folk, visited a Dutch Reformed trade school, ate good Afrikaans meals. Many Afrikaans names are the same as our low German Mennonite names—Janzen, Klassen, etc.

Bent Backs

Bogata, Columbia, October 29, 1943. Walking home from the Pharmacy the other evening, I was accosted by a very small, ragged boy. As I looked at him, I imagined that he could hardly be more than six years old. He looked up at me and in a pleading voice begged for an alm. At first I paid no attention to him for there are many such little beggers in Latin America. I continued walking down the street; he continued walking by my side—pleading. I looked at him, and saw something which could but touch the heart. The little boy was carrying on his back his infant sister. He was hardly old enough to walk around himself, let alone carry with him a baby. I wondered what the circumstances were that should coerce so small a child to begin life by carrying so heavy a burden. Was he a product of a singular misfortune? No, for I recalled how many scores, yes I suppose hundreds, of others I have already seen on our trip carrying similarly heavy burdens. Sometimes the people carry 100-150 pounds on their backs as far as thirty miles for the price of a few cents. Little children walking on the roadside seemed to be minature replicas of their parents. They too carried proportionately heavy loads. Was there no carefree childhood for them? The little boy in the accompanying photograph was carrying this heavy load on a country road—far from any city, or market. A few days ago I saw a little old woman (most of the native women seem very short—and old old) carrying a very large basket on her back. The basket was much larger than a bushel basket and was filled to the overflowing with bananas. She was carrying this on her back by the means of a supporting strap around her forehead. The load was so heavy that it appeared as if it would break her neck. In order to lighten the strain, she put both of her hands in support behind her head. I could but feel sorry for her as well as for the countless others like her.

A Burden-bearer

As I observed these burden bearing people, I wondered whether the burden on their backs was not but symbolical of an even heavier burden on their souls, the burden of sin and sorrow. Then I remembered that it was that men might be released from this burden that Jesus died. It is that the release might become a reality that missionaries are sent. There is enough power and strength in our Lord to set Latin America free. Latin America can be freed if enough Christians will do their part.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

Because He First Loved Us

The Christian's Service In the Kingdom

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: "Come hither, ye children," No. 413, "O come, all ye faithful, "No. 80. 2. Reading of scripture passages II Cor. 8:9; 5:20-6:10. 3. Singing of Christmas carols. 4. Offering for foreign missions.

II. Leader's Introduction:

The story of the coming of the Christ into our world wtih the songs of the angels proclaiming "Glory" and "Peace" and "Goodwill" never grows old. The message "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son" has lost none of its winsomeness. Human hearts still long for peace and for forgiveness of sins. The need for a Saviour is as great as ever.

To those who have experienced His love in their hearts, the challenge is to bring the message of His love to others. "Let us love Him, because He first loved us." "The love of Christ contraineth us." To them it is a God-given task to serve in His Kingdom. They desire to witness by their life. They want to be stewards of their talents, their time, and their means.

III. Topics for Short Talks:

Based on booklet Life and Service in the Kingdom of God by P. C. Hiebert.

1. The Christian's Stewardship of Life and Time.
2. The Christian's Stewardship of Money (Find scripture passages pertaining to it.)
3. Opportunities for Service in and through the Home Church.
4. Opportunities for Special or Full-time Service.
5. Opportunities for an Effective Witness by Life.
6. The Need for Value of Wholehearted Loyalty to Christ and the Church.

IV. For Discussion:

1. Should a Christian set apart a definite part of his income for church work and missionary and benevolent purpose? If so, what part? 2. How may we be stewards of our time? 3. What service can we render to Christ and for the coming of His Kingdom by our everyday life?

V. Facts for Study:

Peter, Paul, Timothy, Augustine, Martin Luther, Menno Simons, John Wesley, Wilfred Grenfell—Christians of widely different periods of time and of very different temperament and personality—they have all realized that their allegiance to Christ called them to service in His Kingdom.

There are those who have ten talents, those who have five, and some have only one—but none of us is without any—and our love to Christ and "the least of these" will lead us to make use of them. It may be in our home church and community that we are called to serve, it may be in reconstruction work in Europe or in mission work, it may be as teachers in the public school, but whatever place it may be the test of our service will be faithfulness.

A Gift for Christ

One Christmas, a few years ago, a little girl wished to give the Lord Jesus a gift, and asked her mother how it should be done. Her mother said, "Choose the gift, and then come with me." The little girl chose her very best doll, and went with her mother through the crowded streets. At last they entered a miserable alley, where a poor consumptive child lay sleeping. They placed the doll on her bed and departed. "But, Mother, I wanted to give it to Jesus," said the girl. The mother opened her Bible, and pointed to Matt. 25:40, and read, "Inasmuch, as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

VII. Food for Thought:

My Master

I had walked life's path with an easy tread,
Had followed where comfort and pleasure led,
And then it chanced, in a quiet place,
I met my Master face to face.

My thought is now for the souls of men;
I have lost my life to find it again,
E'er since alone in a quiet place,
My Master and I stood face to face.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

ALWAYS DOING OUR PART—Matt. 24:42-51.

In Eph. 6:7 we read "With good will doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men." In this topic we are going to consider Bible examples of some who did their part faithfully and nobly. As we study these, we will be reminded of many things which we ourselves can and should do. Every Junior boy and girl should keep their eyes open to see the opportunity to do something for others.

Dorcas

God's word teaches us we should help the poor and the needy, that we should care for the widows and the fatherless. Dorcas, who lived in Joppa many years ago, did her part in helping the poor. She was a women of good deeds. One day she was taken sick and died. The disciples sent word to Peter. When he arrived at Dorcas' home, all the widows stood by him weeping, and showing the coats and garments which Dorcas had made, while she was with them. Peter saw that Dorcas was greatly needed by the poor people, and he prayed and took Dorcas by the hand and lifted her up and presented her alive to the many who were gathered.

The Little Lad Who Fed the Hungry

God wants us to do our part in feeding the hungry. We need to give bread to those who are physically hungry.

When Jesus was in a desert place near the Sea of Galilee; the multitude followed him, and in the evening the disciples told Jesus to give the people to eat, but they had not money to buy enough food for such a crowd. It was here, Jesus blessed the lunch of five loaves and two fishes, and gave them all to eat, which were five thousand.

Miriam

The children of Israel were in the land of Egypt, serving as slaves for King Pharoah. They were greatly afflicted, and under heavy bondage. God sent them a deliverer, Moses, who was to lead them out of the land of bondage. When Moses was a tiny baby his life was in great danger and he had to be hidden. When his mother could hide him no longer, she placed him in an ark, down among the flags by the river's edge. Miriam, Moses's sister, stood afar off to watch and see what would happen. When Pharoah's daughter received Moses, Miriam suggesting getting a nurse for the baby, of course, got his own mother. Perhaps you too can perform your duty as cheerfully and willingly as Miriam did.

The Question Bee

1. Is there any danger that we do more than our part? 2. What is our part in prayer? 3. What is our part in giving? 4. How much should we give according to Scripture? 5. Should we seek only the exalted places in work?

"The Mennonite" in Every Home

"The Mennonite in every home." That is the slogan of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church. A number of our churches have responded and carried on an intensive campaign to place a subscription in every church family. At the last session of the General Conference a resolution was adopted which authorizes the Publication Board to offer the Mennonite for one dollar a year per subscription, provided every family of the church became a subscriber to a conference paper. Due to present conditions the Publication Board finds it necessary to raise the individual subscription from $1.50 to $1.75 beginning with January 1, 1944. But the church which places the Mennonite into every home will get the paper for one dollar, provided the order is placed before the first of the year.

Every good Mennonite family will want to keep in touch with the various activities of the General Conference. The Mennonite serves as a medium and tells her members what the churches are doing at home and abroad. Our interest in the church and our loyalty to the church depends largely on what we know about its work and spiritual growth. Might it not thus prove to be of great value to our church to place the Mennonite into every home of the church we love? Will you not respond favorably and help the church to bring the Mennonite into every Menonite family? —Bulletin, First Mennonite Church, Geary, Okla.

Northern District Ministers' Conference, November 16 to 18

This was the third annual ministers' conference held at Mountain Lake, Minnesota. The day sessions were held in the three churches of Mountain Lake, and each church served one fellowship meal which added greatly to the blessings of the conference. In the evenings preaching services were held in the various churches of the community. These were a real blessing as it gave us an opportunity to get acquainted with the five new ministers who have within the past year come to work in churches of this district. They are all young men but true to the Word of God and full of enthusiasm for the Lord. There were twenty-one ministers present at the conference and quite a number for various reasons could not attend.

The main theme of the conference was "Christ's Ambassadors," II Cor. 5:11 to 6:10. Subtopics were as follows: "The Ambassadors Appointment," "The Ambassador's Communication with God," "The Ambassador's Message," "The Ambassador's Sources of Information," "The Ambassador's Conduct," an "The Ambassador's Report." All these topics were well given and proved to be heart-searching in that they brought before us our obligations and responsibilities both to the church and to our Lord and Master. There was also an open forum in which various questions and problems were discussed. We parted encouraged and inspired to press on in the great work for the Master, and the Lord willing meet for another conference next year at Freeman, South Dakota the week before thanksgiving. Rev. J. J. Regier of Freeman has been asked to be the new chairman.

Jacob H. Janzen Writes

Freeman, South Dakota
November 24, 1943

Dear Mennonite:

The strong east winds of this season of the year have blown me clear through the hills, over the waters and the plains of the prairies to this place. And now the wind has subsided and given ground to a quiet, although a little cold, stillness in which I have the privilege to gather with the good people here around the Word of God every evening until Sunday, November 28. Tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day, and there will be two services in the Salem Zion Church, known as the North Church here.

I am having a wonderful time, am enjoying good health and fine Christian fellowship. The American people are friendly, and it is easy to warm to them.

The weather has been ideal so far, and the services well attended. It is encouraging to see that there still is hunger and thirst for the Word of God, the Word of Life, and for true Christian fellowship or else why should these churches here—having wonderfully educated, devoted, Christian ministers here—call one from the ends of the earth to minister to them during a whole week? It cannot be just idle curiosity; it must be the desire to see again and again that it is the one Jesus Christ, the same yesterday and today, and for evermore, who is the mainstay of mankind. All over the earth, and the only Redeemer, in whom all the nations are blessed.

It is encouraging to see again and again that distances cannot part us as long as we are in Christ Jesus, our Lord.

I see the time coming when envy, jealousy, and obstinacy will be done away with, and even they will not be able anymore to separate us into seventeen or twenty branches of Mennonitism and kill brotherly love and kind cooperation in the building of the Kingdom of God.

Yours truly,
Jacob H. Janzen, Waterloo, Ontario

—Rev. W. F. Unruh, pastor of the West Zion Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas, recently visited some C.P.S. camps. The West Zion church in their thankofferings gave $478.60 for foreign missions and $331.00 for relief.

THE EIGHTH BEATITUDE

By Erland Waltner

"Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven" Matt. 5: 10.

To the world this last Beatitude seems as paradoxical as the first, "Blessed are the poor in spirit." The world would say "Blessed are the popular," but would never say, "Blessed are the persecuted." Persecution is not naturally associated with the thought of happiness.

Jesus indicates that in a certain sense persecution is to be preferred before popularity. He warns against popularity as he says, "Woe unto you, when all men shall speak well of you." (Luke 6:26) When a Christian becomes too popular with the world there is likely to be something wrong with his Christianity. As Christ was misunderstood and hated by the world, so a true follower of His may also expect to be misunderstood.

We note, however, that this Beatitude is not for all who are persecuted. There are some who suffer because of their own folly and their own sin. Peter says, "Let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evildoer, or as a busybody in other men's matters." Those who experience the consequences of their own sins find no comfort in this Beatitude.

Only those who are persecuted for righteousness' sake are the blessed. They may rejoice because they have become partakers of Christ's sufferings. Persecution for doing that which is Christ-like is a confirmation of being identified with Christ. They may rejoice also for "great is their reward in heaven." Happy is he who knows that one day he will exchange his cross for a Crown.

PEACE AT EVENING

By Amanda Friesen

When day is done and tasks complete
We take a calm survey;
Accomplishments seem etched with gold
While failures fade away.

The crimson tints in western sky,
The yellow sunbeam's ray,
Give silent promise that the dawn
Will bring a cloudless day.

The shades of twighligt softly call
The souls of men to prayer,
And they who answer truly find
A benediction there.

THE WORLD AND CHRISTIANITY IN CONTRAST

The world says, not thy will but mine be done.

Christianity says, not my will but thine be done.

The world says, be good and be saved.

Christianity says, believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved.

The World says, me first.

Christianity says, seek ye first the kingdom of God.

The world says, glorify thyself.

Christianity says, glorify God.

The world says, eat and be merry.

Christianity says, it is written, that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every Word of God.

The world says, live for self.

Christianity says, Live for Christ.

The world says, evil for evil.

Christianity says, good for evil.

The world says, crush your enemy and starve him.

Christianity says, if thine enemy hunger feed him.

The world says, for me to live is pleasure.

Christianity says, for to me to live is Christ.

The world says, hide your sins.

Christianity says, confess your sins.

The world says, follow the crowd.

Christianity says, follow Christ.

The world says, choose the broad way,

Christianity says, choose the narrow way.

The world says, it's by might and power.

Christianity says, not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts.

The world's outlook is dark.

The Christian's uplook is bright with a living hope of His soon return.

—Let's do it right! Before me lie two envelopes. Both contained material for the editor of this paper. Both failed to come to him directly, because both were wrongly addressed. One read: Rev. Both addresses should have real: The Mennonite, North Newton, Kansas. All articles, etc., for use in this paper should be sent to the address just mentioned. However, all subscriptions and payments for the paper should be sent to the Mennonite Publication Office, 722 Main Street, Newton, Kansas.

—Henry A. Toews, Missionary from the Belgian Congo, was the speaker for the Thanksgiving services of the First Menonite Church of Newton.

—The Workers' Exchange is the beautifully and vigorously edited paper of the Pacific District Conference. A minister's wife, Mrs. Edmund Miller of Lind, Washington, is the editor.

—Brother J. H. Langenwalter, Minister-at-Large of the Pacific District, with Mrs. Langenwalter, has already visited the Portland, Dallas, Menno, Colfax, Newport, and Aberdeen churches—and undoubtedly several more by this time. He stays several days in each place, meeting with church boards, Y.P. groups, counseling, and teaching Bible courses.

—Rev. Albert Schultz conducted special services for the Immanuel Mennonite Church, Los Angeles, this fall.

—The Menno Church, Lind, Washington, some time ago sent a truckload of provisions to C.P.S. Camp No. 60. The load included 15 hogs, 2 tons of rye feed, 65 lbs. of lard, 6 chickens, and some cash gifts. The church also purchased 700 lbs. of honey for the boys who have a hard time getting sweets. The ladies of the church sent a quantity of dish towels, dish cloths, and hot pads to the C.P.S. Camp at Belton, Montana, since the kitchen force there expressed a need for these.

—Oklahoma Bible Academy: The Bible students of O.B.A. not only believe in home missions, but are busy obeying Christ's command "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel." Mark 16:15. Each afternoon the sixteen students leave the campus in three cars and give forth the gospel to approximately 125 children in eight rural district schools. The 30-minute program consists of a Bible lesson, chorus singing, and scripture memorization. Methods such as object lessons, scripture graph, and maps are used to present the series of 12 lessons about the children of Israel entitled "Egypt to Canaan".

—Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Isaac from India were with us today. Mr. Isaac's text was Matthew 16:13-19. His theme was taken from the eighteenth verse, "I will build my church." He put special emphasis on the word I. We are Christ's tools, and also the stones in the building, but He does the building. He has also built the church in India. As far back as the first century, A.D. there has been a group of native Christians in India. Mr. Isaac gave many illustrations to show how that group has grown. Our General Conference has been a tool for Christ in India, and not only in India, but in China and among the North American Indians. Now it is making plans for a mission in Africa and in South America. Christ wants to use us. We can pray for the missions and missionaries, and also help the General Conference financially.—Ralph Claassen, in Oak Leaves from Home, paper published by the Second Mennonite Church, Paso Robles, California.

—Burrton Mennonite Church, Burrton, Kansas: Rev. Walter H. Dyck from Beatrice, Nebraska, was our special speaker on Thanksgiving Day. On November 28 we observed the Lord's Supper, with Rev. J. F. Epp from Henderson, Nebraska, as guest Elder for the occasion. That afternoon Rev. A. A. Epp, pastor of the Burrton Church, was ordained as Elder. The brethren Clyde Dirks from Hutchinson, Kansas, and J. F. Epp were the guest speakers. Brother J. F. Epp also brought the evening message.

Seeking the Saviour

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

As we approach the anniversary of the birth of Jesus, there comes within our hearts an indescribable yearning for a closer fellowship with God. Upon entering this Christmas season, a fuller realization dawns on us of the true significance of that day nearly 2000 years ago when our Christ lay in a manger. "For unto you is born this day . . . a Saviour." This day God was made flesh and dwelt among men and with his coming, a new day was ushered in for mortal man.

"Where is he that is born King of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him."

The wise men from the east also sought our Christ-child. Where did they look for him? Their inquiries led them to the court of King Herod for they knew not where to find Jesus. Searching the high places of Jerusalem in vain, the wise men turned again to God's guiding star and found the child among the lowly, wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a humble manger.

There are wise men today seeking the answers to life and God. They question, they seek, they hope. They are looking for our Christ of love, "the only begotten of the Father," though many of them cannot see him as the one for whom they look. Where will they find him? In places glorified by man they are looking—among might, wealth, greed, power. They follow the highways of war, bloodshed, selfishness, compromise and hate. Can Herod help them?

Then gazing upward, the wise men behold God's star shining clear with the light of hope, and following that star which leads them along the lowly road, they soon find the Christ, the hope of the world! Is it possible that Christ is here? Marvel not, for Jesus the Christ is love. His way is peace, kindness, gentleness, long-suffering and mercy. His salvation is simple and easily understood by simple folk—yet unlimited in its appeal to learned men. Can we say with Simeon of old, "For mine eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all people?"

On this eve of the year 1943 the world is seeking the answers to life's complex problems in places which are glorified by man. In Herod's hall of war and bloodshed the nations of the world are clamoring

For Christmas Day

I want no gifts
From earths so bounteous store.
O God, my heart asks Thee for far, far more:

For quietness
Like once on Bethlehem's plain
That through the stillness there may ring again,
The glory to Thy name;

For light to shine
Upon my lowly way
That by the guidance of the heavenly ray
I might find Thee this day.
And, having found,

Then let me kneel and take
In simple faith the fullness of thy grace
And let my heart awake,
In blessed holy praise
It's anthems raise.
O let me worship till the soul grows bright
With splendor of Thy Light!

Grant me these gifts, I pray.

and shouting today. Could they but see the shining star of God and hear the message given by that wise prophet Isaiah:

"The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined . . . For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace." —Irvin Richert

Three Gifts and Their Significance

By Pauline Krehbiel Raid

The Wise Men, many years ago, brought three gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh to the King. We believe that the three gifts of the Wise Men are symbolic of the gifts which we can make to our King. We each have three kinds of things in our lives which we can offer to the King. We read that the Wise Men opened their treasures; so we want to open our treasures. You may ask, "What are my treasures?" You yourself, and all you possess!

First, let us consider the gold. Gold was an acceptable gift for the subjects to bring to the King because of its purity and value. We need to feel the responsibility of bringing our gold to our King. He has given us this gold to use; nevertheless, a portion belongs to Him. If people could realize how greatly gold is needed for His work they would soon open their treasures and pour it forth, I am sure. Those who have all they need for a comfortable life often cannot realize the awful, desperate want of people on the other side of the sea. But how can they believe in whom they have not heard? We can do our part in sending missionaries and helping those who preach and minister. Gold stands for much beside money. Think of all the golden things in life; our health, our work, friends, and loved ones, the joys, the brightness, the glory of success, all beauty, all gaiety, all golden mirth and laughter. Let us consecrate these golden things and bring them as offerings to our King.

The second gift was frankincense. Frankincense is an emblem of Christian worship. It is not enough to bring gold to the King; we must give the frankincense of true worship. By that we mean the constant worship of an adoring heart. Unless, our daily life from Monday to Saturday is a life of worship, there will not be much reality in our public worship on Sunday. True worship carries with it the thought of sincerity, love, faith, and reverent devotion. And then, frankincense stands for all that appertains to the spirit part of you—your ideals, your noblest loves, your finest aspirations. Open your treasures then, and bring these to your King.

The third gift the Wise Men brought was the gift of myrrh. Myrrh stands for death. Some may be called upon definitely to face death, for the King's sake. But all who have lived unto Him in life can glorify Him in death. We can all at last bring to Him this gift—a gift which, in the bringing, will indeed bring us into His very presence. But, meanwhile, your present offering of myrrh is the death of self, the daily crucifying of the self-life. "He that shall find his life must lose it."

But myrrh in the Bible stands for other things beside death. It stands for love—love of the sweetest, tenderest kind. It stands for sorrow; not bitterness of woe, but sorrow accepted as the Father's will, and therefore touched with reverent joy.

Myrrh also, is an emblem of service. While Jesus was here on earth He went about doing good. He fed the hungry, healed the sick, taught the ignorant, and forgave the sinful. And then before He left for Heaven He left in our hands the work which He had begun. He taught us that we are our brother's keeper. He told us the story of the Good Samaritan and ended by saying, "Go therefore and do likewise." He said. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me." He expects us to build hospitals, to care for the helpless, comfort those who mourn, forgive those who wrong us, and teach those who need our guidance and help. As we do these things in His name, we are in a true sense bringing our gift of myrrh to our King.—Fortuna, Missouri

TRAINING WORKERS IN THE BIBLE SCHOOL

(By Martha Burkhalter, Janjgir, C.P., India, June 14, 1943.)

Dear Friends:—

Last year I was planning to come home on furlough and had passage reserved. But when I had my boxes packed and was ready to leave, I received word that the ship was full. I would have been glad to come home and see all my friends and loved ones again after seven years of absence. But I was glad to stay in India another year since my health was good and I knew that it would be difficult for those on furlough to come back at this time. So I unpacked my boxes and went to work again and thanked God for the privilege.

My work as principal and teacher in the Janjgir Bible Training School and my contact with consecrated young men and women seeking training, has filled another year with much joy and gladness. These men and women come from five different Missions over a radius of 200 miles. Some of them have little education. But they come with a keen eagerness to learn the Word of God, which we teach from Genesis to Revelation. They also learn how to present the Good News so that it may be most effective to all listeners, from children to aged men and women, from non-Christians to iltle groups of village Christians scattered about in hundreds of far-away villages. They learn about the spread of Christianity from the time of the Apostles to modern Missions. One man said, “Aside from the Bible I have never read a book so fascinatingly interesting as Church History. I will go and tell my aged mother about the testimony of the brave martyrs who suffered death for the sake of Christ. She has never heard these things.”

After three years of intensive class room training and supervised practical work as village evangelists, Bible women, Sunday-School teachers, C. E. leaders, Bands of Witness leaders, and a lot of training in singing, they receive diplomas or certificates.

I have in my office letters from various missionaries who have employed these young men and women. They all express their appreciation for the splendid training that these workers received while at Janjgir. I also have many interesting letters from former students who are now in the front lines of the battle with the hosts of darkness.

Here are a few quotations from some of these letters. One former student writes: “My responsibilities are heavy. I have five little churches to look after. Daily I use my bicycle.” Another one writes, ‘I have just returned from a small province closed to Christianity. I sold many Gospel portions and gave out tracts. The people were eager for them. The State police came and tore most of them up and took all the rest along to show them to the hostile ruler. They warned me not to come back. But I am going again! My Brahmin relatives are there. I must win them to Christ!” Another one writes: “We have already baptized 27 since New Year. Many others are ready. We are going to organize three new churches.” Still another one writes: “My clothes and boxes were all burned up on the way to a native State. It was a great loss. Can you help me?”

During vacation one of the Bible School teachers took part in a book-selling campaign at a large Hindu Mela where 20,000 came daily to worship their idols.

During one week the group of workers sold over 800 Gospel portions and religious tracts. Pray for our young Christian “soldiers” on all fronts.

I do not know when I will come home. Travelling is uncertain. Perhaps I will come this year, perhaps next. I wish to thank all my friends and loved ones who have sent letters and greeting cards. These are now doubly appreciated when mails are so uncertain. We are always glad to hear from friends and home. Proverbs 25:25.

“The Chariot of the Most High” at Janjgir

It was over the noon time quiet hour when the roar of the engines caused all who were resting to arouse themselves. For right over our buildings, over the Anna Funk Memorial School and Boarding, over the mission bungalows and church circled and recircled a giant war plane. In a few minutes time it had landed on the large plain which begins half mile south of the Janjgir Mission Station.

The day was a blazing and scorching hot Friday early June. I hurriedly got on my clothes, mounted my bicycle, and rode down to see who they were, and what was the trouble. Was the plane Allied or Axis? If Allied, might the airmen by chance be from the U.S.A. or from where?

Arriving there a mob of half a thousand had already gathered. They came streaming out of the villages on all sides. I pushed my way through to the airmen who seemed bewildered. The R.A.F. sign was soon recognized, and I knew that they were not Japanese. They had started from a west coast airport early morning, and had lost their way to an important air center, and running out of Octane gas had made a forced landing. The pilot and captain of the crew was from London. The observer was from Midlands, England. The third was an Australian air sergeant.

When we all went out to the plane the next morning after landing, with villagers from far and near, an old man stepped up to my wife and said, “Just think how very fortunate we are to live to see the day when the Chariot of the Most High comes into our very midst.”

Until a relief plane came three days later, we took them into our home. It was the week-end,—which made us feel more relaxed and able to entertain visitors, and the Sunday services enabled the visitors to see the Christian community at worship. They came physically upset, for unless one has learned how to live in this scorching hot season of India, he is very likely to be sick. Living in tropical India is an art. Then too, they were naturally disgruntled at having lost their way by hundreds of miles. Perhaps discipline faced them at the other end. With carping and profanity they came into our home. Before they left, however, after three days, something had happened. The fires of love, and reverence, and renewed faith in God and man seemed to be burning brightly. For my wife and myself it was one of the richest experiences in entertaining visitors that we have had in a decade. How we wish that some of you would swoop down out of the skies some day, and thus take us by surprise over the week-end.

Just what was it that changed their spirits within only three days time? Just what did they do here? What did they see? What did they hear?

Well, for one thing, they came into our home. Now we make no special claim to being clever, or saintly, or godly. We are nothing more than sinners saved by grace. And when that heaven-born grace leaves us, our common clay asserts itself so disgustingly.

But when the first evening meal came, of course, we bowed for audible thanksgiving in prayer. And thus we did for every meal. That might have been new to these men, getting out of the barracks. And then as we passed the after dinner hours and came to the close of the day, what was more natural than to invite them to join us in our custom of closing the day with Bible reading and prayer, and committing the day and the night to God our Father? What they thought we did not know. And when we began the second day by gathering at the breakfast table, of course, as is our custom we read out of a devotional book. And it seemed to me that as I closed my morning prayer with the usual "Amen," I could hear two amens from the men, one from the pilot, and one from the observer. Perhaps some of these things reminded them of childhood experiences, and perhaps memories came flooding back over the forgotten years.

Sunday morning came. The bell for church worship rang early on this hot June morning. God was reminding the community that this was His Holy Day. I graciously told those men that they were heartily invited, but that they would not understand one word, and whether they went or stayed home was up to them. I did not tell them that it was the first Sunday of the month, and that on the first Sunday we always lift our monthly offering for the poor. I did tell them that I was not taking this service, but that two or three of us took turns, and that this Sunday it was the turn of the Indian pastor.

We got to the door of the church auditorium, and halted. I heard one in subdued tones whisper comment. He seemed immediately impressed how all the sisters sat on one side, with the head and shoulders beautifully veiled with the saries. I invited them to go along up front with me, for I like to set a good example, and I get so much more out of any meeting by sitting well to the front. But they insisted in sliding into the very last seat on the men's side. "That will be very easy to slip out of" thought my wife to herself, "when they get bored with the services."

We went through the usual services. The Indian pastor was in charge. Both sides of the auditorium were well filled, all except the wings. The opening invocation, the Creed, the Scripture, prayers, hymns, and message all were in the Hindi language. Those three men in khaki shorts, with shirts bulging because of lost buttons, one of them a heavy cigarette smoker, far away from home, headed for the Burma Front sat through to the very end. Something happened to them, what we do not know. My wife remarked that God met them that day. They seemed to experience His gracious prsence. It was the first time they had ever seen a congregation of "natives" at worship. After the services were over, two went out with the rest of the congregation. The third seemed fixed to his seat, as though loath to go. Later, as the Church treasurer and I went over the accounts and offerings, preparatory for the Quarterly Meetings, he reported that they had put into the Poor Fund Offering a sum equal to three times what the entire congregation with the missionaries had given.

We are unable to go to see our son Ted in the mountains this war year, so it has been our custom during this hot season to invite into our home every Sunday evening all the young people for an evening of English gospel hymns. And so of course the airmen had to be present for this,—unless they would deliberately turn their backs on this informal gathering. The evening is concluded by a short devotional reading and prayer.

The young people of the community streamed into our rooms and filled them, and the evening passed quickly. The Australian air sergeant had asked that we sing "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Beneath the Cross of Jesus," while the observer had suggested "Guide Me O, Thou Great Jehovah." Perhaps it was these gospel songs sung in English which again stirred memories of their homeland, or of other days and places.

I need not tell of our other experiences—the trip to see rural India and Janjgir village during which they had a chance to see popular, degraded, immoral Hinduism; or the tabletalk opened by them permitting us to tell how men were being transformed by the power of Jesus Christ, and of the work of Christ through Christian Missions, or of the evening spent around Chinese checker board, or other features.

Something happened to them. When they left, they were changed men. The carping spirit had disappeared; profanity had ceased, and a surging love seemed to pervade our fellowship. On Monday the relief crew with fresh supplies came on, took charge. Ah, that new pilot was a wonder. He made a most beautiful take-off, and then as a farewell, most gracefully swung that Fighter through the air, circling around back right over the multitudes assembled to see the take-off.

Somehow or other, as they sailed away into the setting sun, preparatory to going further East, it seemed as though Jesus their pilot had met them here in Janjgir. For us, the glow of that fellowship still abides.

Padmani's Cross

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thiessen

After seven years of waiting, Padmani finally had her own baby. My, how she loved it! But her joy was not unmingled, for the child was blind. All who watched Padmani could see that she was bravely hoping for the time when an operation would restore the eyesight, at least partially. All the while, her affection and courage were admirable.

But the baby was not permitted to be with her even one year. It was a great shock to all of us to hear that this precious baby had died after a very short illness. Padmani was so overcome with grief that she wailed and wept beyond control.

I went over to her home and sat with her, trying to calm and quiet her, After a long time she composed herself somewhat. I tried to give her a glimpse of the beautiful heavenly home where we are all going. Her darling had just gone before her and was now with God, happy and content. As she listened her eyes began to shine with hope again.

Only a Layman

A little more than 25 years ago a boy from the Painkah caste—this caste does mostly weaving—in the village Chappora was born into a poor home. Later this child Kariya entered our village mission school at Beltikri. Kariya drank in other teachings besides the daily Scripture lessons. While the majority of his classmates apparently received the lessons quite indifferently, Kariya soon felt a peculiar craving within when Christ's words were imparted. He finished the fourth class and left, because that was the highest stage in the mission school. Kariya grew up in the parental home, helped in the field work, herded the cattle. Occasionally the truths taught stirred him, then he felt a mysterious craving.

The parents married him early. This marriage was blessed with a wide-awake son. Only 2½ years ago Kariya broke to his wife and parents the news that Christ was knocking at his heart's door, and he had fully decided to become a Christian. The parents heralded that decision quickly. With their neighbors they became furiously enraged. They told Kariya in the event his desire would materialize, the home had to be barred for him and furthermore he be declared dead by them. In face of the angry mob Kariya and his wife were baptized. Alas, shortly after, his wife was discovered to have contracted leprosy, and her fate was to be severed from the home ties and to be admitted into our Leper Home at Champa. Of course, both were in distress. She became an inmate in the Leper Home now, never to caress her healthy child anymore. The father driven from his parental home and had none of his own—poor and destitute. What next? In spite of this testing his faith never shrunk. On the verandah of the Beltikri school, and also a corner inside offered to him and son a meagre shelter. The school room was used for services on Sunday. Kariya said, "For me to live in there is improper, it threatens to desecrate the place. I must remain on the verandah only!"

Kariya's faith grew. He saw his relatives groping in darkness. He began to point out to them the way of salvation. Not long that his parents-in-law heeded his call. This success aroused him to greater activity, that by now night and day he follows up souls. It is astonishing where no one knows about, Kariya trails some one. One time he was gone several days, suddenly he entered our camp with six persons. All campers with awe beheld this unattractive procession and pondered what this meant, Kariya unhesitatingly pled his cause thus, "With these I have been quietly working for weeks. They declared themselves ready for baptism. The Spirit urged them. Here they are. Will you please examine, and baptize them not later than tomorrow morning. They are farmers and want to return to thresh their grain!" A bunch of people, poverty-stricken, dressed in rags mostly, outwardly were unattractive. The examination found them eligible for baptism. In a comparatively short time through him entered into the flock more than a score of souls; furthermore are found scattered among the villages many inquirers. The contact with him opens immediately telling how souls are seeking salvation.

A few weeks ago when we entered the Beltikri flock, Kariya spared no time greeting us, but said, "I am busy getting these eight candidates ready for baptism that must happen now during the noon hour!" It was so. After the ceremony Kariya found time to visit. In his enthusiasm named different villages where the Lord was awakening souls. One day during the heat I took him on the auto eight miles to a new outstation. When arriving, he turned to me and asked, "How many hours are you planning to stay here?" I replied only four hours. He then said, "I have no time to eat or rest, several miles away reside some inquirers, I must go to see them. Will you baptize them, if I bring them?" Of course, I will do so!" I replied. He rushed away under the burning sun, returning shortly before my departure, depressed, because only one of the candidates had been at home, the others were gone to the jungle to fell trees. He was bathed in perspiration, troubled with hunger, said, "Papaji, I will get them later, let us continue to pray for them!"

There are dozens of other instances to relate. Let these suffice to show what zeal abides within this simple saint. Kariya will never relate his experiences in soul winning that his hands are not clasped over his head in reverence to God, and standing on one foot. He will never present what is on his mind sitting or lying. He stands; if something is on his head, that either is flung on the ground, or kept under the arms, the latter seldom, because the arms are uplifted. Every time he relates, the listener is filled with a new thrill.

Kariya is filled with that "Must" John 10:16. He goes like Andrew after his brother. He is at it "In time" and "Out of time." He burns in his "Zeal" for the Master. Readers, please put his name on the prayer list, lift Kariya up before God. He is so-to-say without a home, his wife must be kept in the Leper Home with very faint hope to ever be cured. "Oh, God, hold Kariya in the hollow of Thy hand!"

"AND I WAS SO THIRSTY"

"But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you and ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem, Judaea, and in Samaria and unto the uttermost part of the earth." (Acts 1:8).

May I typify these places as follows:

"Jerusalem"—the home, the home church, the home community.

"Judaea"—our God entrusted responsibilities in our own denomination, towards our own people of our own race in our own state and country.

"Samaria"—the foreigner in our midst, our neighbor, regardless of what nationality he or she is, Norwegian, Swedish, Chinese, Negro, Japanese, Indian, Mexican, or tramp.

"Uttermost"—foreign lands,—that includes the whole world, and leaves no boundary.

— — — — — —

"Samaria"—"The Jews," the believers in God, "had no dealings with the Samaritans". But, "CHRIST must needs go through Samaria."

The above mentioned nationalities, are all found in our midst. And God led them across our path. He placed him in our immediate surroundings, be that as an individual, as a family, or in a Relocation camp—internment or migratory camp or as a worker in our home, or on our farm. God meant you and me to be a witness unto him or her, and we will be that if God's Spirit is the power in our lives.

In Canada I noticed that in practically every town and village there was a lone Chinese or two. Lonesome, homesick,—O yes, there were churches, but none cared for him or his soul or for his loneliness. To them he was only a chink, to young people, children and adults, church people and all, it was all alike.

Then in New York City I met several Chinese. Two of these asked inquiringly upon my questions: "Do you know Jesus, or do you love Him?"—"Who is Jesus?"

At Twin Falls, Idaho, I visited a migratory camp. About fifty Jamaican Negro Christians had been brought up from Jamaica by the government to work in the onion, beet, and potato fields. We were deeply impressed by the intelligent noble faces of these men. Spotlessly neat and clean from their heads to their feet. One could see that they had taken special pains to launder their clothes and have them meticulously pressed and ironed. They wore mostly work clothes.

Sunday services had recently been arranged by a returned missionary from Japan, who in the forenoon did religious service work in the very large Japanese Relocation Camp and then spent her afternoons in this camp. At the opening service they had a singsong. We found them well acquainted with our church hymns. They sang them in good English and in parts. We could see a splendid mission training babckground. And how appreciative they were of the privilege given them to get to-gether for a singsong, and a message. Upon request they were always ready to give a favorite song to sing. After the singing of a message followed. At this particular service I had been asked to give a message. After the services they stepped up to me and thanked me so gratefully for the message. And they told me, "We have been here all summer and nobody came to give us spiritual food, and one said with tears in his voice: "And we were so thirsty!" Another said in such troubled tones! "In Jamaica all shops are closed on Sunday and everybody goes to church, and here church people work on Sunday." And another, "and we were so surprised to find that they did not even care to go to church, and when we went we were not welcome in their churches." They looked so puzzled, and perplexed, so wounded and disappointed. You could see and feel how hurt they were. I told them if I had lived near them, I would have come to hold Bible classes for them. And they said, "Why didn't you come?" "We would have been so glad." I asked one, "Don't you work on Sundays, when they want you to?" He shook his head energetically and said with emphasis, almost bitter: "If they offer me a hundred dollars I would not work on Sunday." I thought of some of our own church people, who have a way of making their living, but in order to get rich quick, take on jobs now during these war days, which require work on Sunday. What would these Christians think of this lack of love and loyalty towards Christ and His teachings. "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul."

Yes, these dear young Christians were amazed and deeply grieved at what they saw in a so-called Christian country, and what they saw among church people. I never was so cut in my heart as I was that day, and up till now that ache in my heart is there. Oh, the pathos of it all!

And how shocked they must be to see people going about so exposed. They, after they became Christian, clean up, dress, properly and neatly. Will they have to come and teach us some day?

I have been thirsty and hungry and ye gave me no drink and no bread; let this not be said of us.

Glimpses in Our Hospital Work

On the chest of one of the patients I noticed quite a large open sore. I asked him, "How did that happen?" "Well, Memsahib," he answered, "it was this way. I have a pain in my chest and so we called one of the village native doctors. He laid a charm over my chest, and applied a potion of spices, then he put a cocoanut shell (which is considered holy) over the area, and left it a while. After some time, saying some more charms, he took it off. After that, this sore developed." "And," I asked, "Did you get some relief for the pain in your chest?" "Not a bit," was his immediate reply. "You got no relief and beside that, you now have this sore on your chest. After this, when you get sick, you come to us immediately where we can give you treatment that will help. Your village doctors cannot give you treatment like we can here," I replied, trying to do a little teaching. "Yes, you are right," he responded. But the superstitions connected with sickness are deeply ingrained into every villager, and to combat that superstition is one of our problems.

Kalyan's life had not been free from sin. Although a nominal Christian, he had fallen so much that he was expelled from church membership. The Christians would no longer fellowship with him. But God spoke to Kalyan. His field of rice was harvested and ready for threshing. He had a good crop. And then, due to some unknown cause, the rice burned one night. All of it was destroyed. But Kalyan did not recognize God's voice, or else did not want to listen to it. A few months later, Kalyan was hauling straw for us. One night he fell off of one of the high wagon loads of straw with the result that he suffered a broken leg. Kalyan spent 5 weeks in the hospital. He had time to think. He listened to God. Then one Sunday in June he was received back into church membership, having confessed his sins with tears and a broken heart. As a thank offering to God for having cured him and as a sign of a changed attitude he gave not only some money, but also sold a heifer calf at auction, the money going into a special church fund.

Touring

The time for the touring season is almost over and results in the number of baptisms can be tabulated. But such results probably tell only a part of the story. About three miles distant from Jagdishpur, a bit off the main road, lies a small village with its "outcaste" section somewhat separated from the village proper. This year twenty-three people have taken baptism there and they seem to be very eager to learn more. Was this the first time they had really had a chance to hear? Was it because of superior work done by this year's evangelists that so many were ready to come out? We investigated a little.

Twenty-three years ago the first evangelistic camp was set up there by Rev. P. J. Wiens. That was about four years after that first exploration trip by Rev. Steiner when he came into Phuljhar State. In the years that followed and up to the present date, there have been at least twelve more camps there when workers stopped for a longer or shorter time to present the claims of Christ. They told us that the second camp had been set up by P. A. Penner Sahib. The Wenger Sahib and the Moyer Sahibs had both been there. Mr. Thiessen remembers visiting that village in the early days when he toured in this area. In a list of believers and their villages we find two Christian families listed in Jiradabhri as early as 1923. But the older man, Shatrughan, had received his baptism at Jhagrindhi the year Dr. Kliewer and Mr. Habegger visited India. The son, Bansi, had been baptized later in another village. Still later we find the younger man and also the children of the first man listed as church members in Jagdishpur and no further names recorded in Jiradabhri.

In 1939 efficient workers spent a whole month there. No one was ready for baptism. The next year the camp was in a village about a mile distant and workers came regularly to give instruction here too. Still no one was ready. Although the people of this village had made no request for teaching this year, yet the evangelist in this area thought they should have one more chance. And this year they were ready.

Part of the evangelistic work is the selling and distribution of literature. We use two languages in this area—Hindi and Oriya. The record for last year is 21 Bibles, 26 Testaments, 663 gospel portions and 1,313 tracts and booklets. Song pamphlets sold number over 200. Many of the tracts are in couplet or verse form to which the reader makes up a melody as he goes along. We haven't learned that trick yet.

Immediately after school closes there is to be a mela (sort of a district convention) and teacher's institute combined. Our district Christians are always very eager for this time of "get-to-gether." Three outside speakers are to give the special messages. We trust that these gatherings will be a time of real spiritual empowering. After this the district workers are to spend a month in Bible Study here at the station. That is always a time of blessing.

The Lord willing, we hope to spend a few weeks with the children in September. The winter vacation time is also a very busy time in the work. It passes so quickly and it is with regret that we see the appointed day in March arrive when children and trunks must be sent away again. When you knew us we made a nice stair step. But you should see how we line up now. We are glad our children can go to a good school here instead of being sent away to America when they are little.

With Christian greetings,

LETTER FROM EVA PAULS

Champa, C. P., India
September 1, 1943

Dear Friends:

Christmas greetings with Luke 1:68, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for He hath visited and redeemed His people." As the Christmas season is drawing near again, we rejoice in Him who loved us and came into the world to redeem us. May this season have great blessings in store for you all. As I most likely will not be home for Christmas I am sending you my best wishes and greetings through this letter.

This year I have spent most of my time at the Leper Home and Hospital. At present we have 545 inmates in the home. We have been able to admit a number of new patients recently. Admission day always brings with it a very hard and difficult task. Of the 70 who come, at least 60 have to be disappointed and told "not today." Some of them have waited for years. But it is a very happy day when we are able to dismiss some who appear to be free from leprosy. This year so far 4 have been able to leave the home whose disease is not active at the present time. Even though I am very happy when they can leave the home, yet this year I feel it very much as it took one of my most dependable nurses out of the hospital. To replace nurses is not always so easy. But this young man (in India we have also man-nurses) and another boy were indeed very happy and thankful to leave and be able to go on with their education. They are both attending our Boys' Middle School in Jagdeeshpor this year.

At present we have 14 leper nurses or helpers in the hospital, seven men and seven women. The average number of in-patients is from 25-30 patients, that is in the hospital. We have one doctor, three compounders, and one former leper boy who has charge of the giving of all injections. One of the compounders has gone to south India for 9 months for special training in laboratory work.

For a long time we have felt the need of an observation ward for the leper home. Am very happy to say that the building is nearing its completion. It is a nice looking building and will have room for 15 girls who will be under special observation for some time after they appear to be free from leprosy. Bsides a bedroom, dining room, and kitchen there will also be a room for a matron and a class room. We hope to be able to dedicate this building in the near future.

In closing I want to thank all of you for faithfully supporting us and the work here in your prayers and with gifts. We are thankful that we are still able to carry on the work undisturbed.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Delmar Wedel, Berkeley, California

DECEMBER 20—Psalms 104 v. 1ff., "Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great; Thou art clothed with honor and majesty."

A few of the Psalms are nature Psalms. Among the greatest of these is the Psalm we are thinking together upon today. The Hebrews knew that the meaning of life is not discovered until man discovers what it means to glorify God. In Psalm 104, the Psalmist discovers something of the greatness and majesty of God in terms of God's activity in the realm of nature. We earthly creatures are prone to become so "earth bound" believing ourselves to be selfsufficient. May we with the Psalmist surrender a little more of ourselves and discover what it means to glorify God.

DECEMBER 21—Psalm 130:3. "If thou Jehovah, shouldest mark iniquities, O Lord, who could stand?"

This Psalm is the authentic cry of an individual from the depth of his soul. The Psalmist takes sin seriously. To know yourself is the beginning of sound wisdom. The Christian analysis of human nature is that man must see himself before God, and in that perspective discover his true being—a being whose thoughts, and activities contain imperfection. There is hope, and with the Psalmist we lift our hearts in thanksgiving, "for with Jehovah there is loving kindness and with him is plenteous redemption."

DECEMBER 22—Luke 9:23 "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily, and follow me."

When Churchill stepped into the leadership of the British Empire he did not promise luxury or ease. Rather he demanded the spending of blood, sweat, and tears. When Hitler organized his youth, he offered no crowns, or laurels, but demanded obedience and sincere sacrifice. People follow such leaders because deep within human nature there is the need for all of our being to be dedicated to a central loyalty. The fulfillment of man's nature seems to demand it. We Christians are persuaded that Christ's Kingdom is our central loyalty. "Whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it."

DECEMBER 23

As Christian folk in a world at war, we can hear above the din of a battle, the voice of God calling out for creative hearts to carry out the ministry of reconciliation. He speaks to all to keep an open mind for that truth that sets men free. To study books, magazines, pamphlets dealing with peace, Jesus' life, asking yourself what would he do if he were at the peace table. What would he do about the American treatment of Negroes, or American-born Japanese. He speaks to us to pray for a Christian peace for peoples all the world over. May God give us increased sensitivity and insight into the needs of the world, and for His will in our lives.

DECEMBER 24—Acts 2:14-36. "The Son of God hath power."

Power is a popular word in the world today. Power of nations, classes and groups. Does Christianity have power, or is it as its skeptics have so frequently accused it, weak and powerless. They point to Christ and believe they have evidence that it is a religion of the weak, for was he not meek, humble, pacifistic? We would ask these skeptics to examine the course of history. What has happened to the so-called powerful nations of Egypt, Assyria, Babylon, Persia, Rome? Without exception their splendor has turned to dust. Towering above the wrecks of time the power of God endures. The weapons of the spirit are indeed powerful.

DECEMBER 25—Matthew 1:18, "Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise . . ."

"You have an advantage," said Dr. Hu Shih, the father of the Renaissance Movement in China, "in that all the ideas in Christianity have become embodied in a person." The Christmas spirit must become flesh in all of us, if we would have others attracted to our Christian faith. We must become a miniature Christmas. The Christmas spirit is the Christian spirit extended throughout the entire year. We must embody this Christmas spirit in our activities and thoughts toward our enemies, our neighbors, everyone.

DECEMBER 26—From Brother Lawrence

He discoursed with me very frequently, and with great openess of heart, concerning his manner of going to God . . . That we ought not to be weary of doing little things for the love of God, who regards not the greatness of the work, but the love with which it is performed. That we should not wonder if, in the beginning, we often failed in our endeavors, but that at last we should gain a habit, which will naturally produce its acts in us, without our care, and to our exceeding great delight.

DECEMBER 27—Isaiah 30:20-21. "Though the Lord give you the bread of adversity and the water of affliction, yet shall not your teacher be hidden any more; but your eyes shall behold your teacher and your ears shall hear a voice behind you, saying: This is the way, walk ye in it . . . "

How may we in a day such as ours gain the calm assurance and the sense of direction of which the text speaks? This will be our concern in the meditation for today and tomorrow. There are many things to say regarding our problem, for one thing, so long as we live on the surface of life, looking at the issues of life out of the corner of our eye, assuming no responsibility, we will never be sure of ourselves, or of anything else.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

The woman was miserably poor, unkempt and often discouraged. Her husband was no provider for the family. She had to contrive all sorts of schemes to earn enough to feed her brood of children. Already in October she begged the matron in the Boarding to keep part of her earnings from wheat grinding safely locked in a tin trunk. "If I take them home there will be nothing new for the Christmas festival," she explained. A few weeks before Christmas she purchased some cloth and sewed a few simple little things for her children and then—to the amazement of the matron and the missionary—she took the major part of the hard-earned savings, went to the women's meeting and bought a new, hand-sewn shirt for her worthless husband. No new sarie for herself, not even a bright blouse, but her face shone with forgiveness and joy. She had provided for her entire family and Christmas would be real.—Helen E. Nickel

Aid Young People to Get on Farms

At the recent National Conference of the Church of the Brethren at McPherson, Kansas, steps were taken to establish a $50,000 revolving fund to be used in helping Brethren young men to establish themselves on farms. We are greatly indebted to Dr. Leland S. Brubaker, Secretary of the General Mission Board of the Church of the Brethren for the following statement: "There has been an increased amount of interest in our church toward helping our rural churches. Many folks have been anxious that we should make it possible for Brethren young men to get on farms. Because of the laws governing our permanent funds, we have been prohibited in many instances from helping where we should have liked to and so we have now taken as an experiment a specified amount of money and have designated it for this particular use.

"Our plan is somewhat as follows. If there is a good young farmer lad in a Brethren community who is interested in securing a farm of his own and who has been approved by his local church we plan to assist him, using the following method. We will buy outright a farm in the community, which has been also approved by his church and then sell it to him on a contract basis, asking only ten per cent of the total value of the farm as down payment. The rest of the contract we shall carry on a twenty o thirty-year long-time basis at a rate of interest whic will be at least one per cent lower than any othe available money.

"When the boy has paid off sufficient amount o his contract to us, we shall then transfer the deed t him and take a first mortgage. We are going to tr out this experiment and see how it works. That i the reason we have asked for the $50,000 to be se aside by our Conference for this purpose. I shoul like to say in closing that it has received already very fine commendation of many of our church leaders. We believe it is a very fine, forward-looking step for the strength and the rehabilitation of our rural parishes." From Agricultural Missions Notes

AMERICAN C. O.'S

In the November issue of the Survey Graphic there appears an article by William H. Chamberlin, famous author, traveler, and news correspondent, who has recently returned from a tour of Civilian Public Service camps in the United States and Canada.

In this fair and impartial appraisal of the C.P.S. camps, the writer seeks to measure honestly the importance of the experiment.

After a thorough description of the C.P.S. program and purposes, he comes to the conclusion that the government, for the best interests of society in general, and out of regard for the scruples of the conscientious objectors, should direct their work into channels of greater public usefulness. He believes with the conscientious objectors themselves that they should be permitted to do foreign relief work.

Though we have made marked progress in dealing with the inevitable war-dissenting minority since the last war, Mr. Chamberlin feels that there is "still room for a larger exercise of fairness and imagination before the ideal, credited to a British aviator, can be reached, "After all, the right to be a conscientious objector is one of the rights for which we are fighting."

—Mrs. Edmund Miller in Workers' Exchange

They Also Serve

(By Rev. Francis W. Thompson, 93 Colonial Avenue, Howard, Rhode Island. This article appeared in a local newspaper, Cranston Herald)

If you want to see vital democracy at work, visit the State Institutions at Howard, Rhode Island.

Less than a year ago a critical situation had developed there, due to the manpower shortage. The health of thousands of patients and workers was at stake. Then in January the United States Government allowed 25 young men who were doing "work of national importance" in Civilian Public Service Camps for Conscientious Objectors to war, to be stationed at Howard.

It was like a gift from heaven to have such manpower provided, yet nurses and doctors were outspoken in their criticism of the plan. Allow "slackers" and "draft dodgers" to work there while their brothers, husbands, and loved ones were off fighting? Never! But that was before they understood what C. O.'s really were.

It was not long before the most outspoken critics were frankly praising the young men who had stepped into the breach. Twelve hours a day, six days a week they carry on, 50 strong now, doing the difficult and menial jobs about such an institution as Howard. Their pay has been raised from $2.50—not per day, nor week, but month—to $10.00 a month.

These young men, along with some 7,500 others in our nation, have landed feet first in the middle of the Sermon on the Mount.

They are serving their nation in the only constructive way they feel is consistent with their Christian understanding. During the last war their fathers were beaten, locked in solitary, given "water cures" and other forms of modern torture because there was no provision for Conscientious Objection to war. This time these objections have been given constructive outreach.

C.O.'s have dropped from planes to fight forest fires; some are working in war torn lands in hospitals and on farms. Some are serving as "guinea pigs" for dangerous medical experimentation.

Yes, they also serve MY country, doing work which the army terms of national importance. They serve this state by relieving one of the most critical manpower shortages we ever had. They serve these broken peoples whose conditions are tragically needful. They serve their conscience by losing their popularity and place in society in order to make their testimony to our God.

With the Apostle of Old, they "must serve God rather than man," but who can say in this case that by serving God they are not also serving man.

They are not asking for exemption, but only for an opportunity to work in the only way they believe will serve a true Christian democracy.

Young People's Rally at Janjgir, India

By S. T. Moyer

With the help of willing neighbors, we have just closed a young people's rally of exceptional power. Since (1) the Bible School brings here many young men and women, some married, some unmarried—and (2) the A. C. Funk Primary and Middle School brings here many girls and young women teachers—and (3) our own local Christian community has many young men and women, both those who stay here in service the year around, and those who leave us to return only for vacations—this concourse of young people is both a challenge and a field for "problems." What a field for Satan to sow nettles! But what a wonderful seed bed to plant the dynamic of fullest dedication to the greatest purpose of Christ our Lord!

June is the big month as far as young people is concerned. The rally therefore was started the last Friday afternoon of June. There was a social that night, messages, and group meetings the next two days, closing with a final dedicatory meeting on Sunday night. A number of Champa's finest young people came over and shared in this fellowship. Between seventy-five and one hundred young people attended these meetings.

Rev. H. Ratzlaff from Champa led a group on "Service." The Indian pastor, Rev. N. Paters, of Disciples in Christ Church, Bilaspur, was the special speaker. Mrs. Moyer and the writer each took groups on "Boy-Girl Relationships." Mrs. M. R. Burkhalter directed the singing.

Something indeed happened. The following of what God has done is what came to my notice. Perhaps three or four times as much occurred which has been recorded in the Courts of Heaven above.

(a) Yesterday, Tuesday, a young man stepped into my office and gave me four rupees. I had advanced him this money six months ago to purchase some cheap fowls in the back country. I had completely forgotten about this. But God would not permit him to forget. Through these meetings God spoke to his conscience.

(b) Monday morning a mother, one of our finest Bible Women, Elizabeth Bai of Champa, came to my wife. Her heart was overflowing with joy and depth of feeling. For years her beloved daughter, who meant everything to her, who has been her most intimate pal, resisted her mother's suggestion to give herself to Christ in service. But when the challenge came Sunday night, God again renewed His call to her. She arose to her feet. It was more than mere formality. It was an all-out life decision and commitment. In that dedicatory act Christ her Lord met her. His love and power surged through her life. She hastened home to tell her mother. In the morning, the mother came aglow with joy, and with tears of gladness shared her happiness with Miss Burkhalter and Mrs. Moyer. The daughter's first step was to enroll in the Bible School—with no promise of any support except what her mother could give from her scant surplus. The joy of the Lord made her willing to sacrifice everything.

(c) Sunday afternoon, after Mrs. Moyer's final class, one of the girls came to her and thanked her from the bottom of her soul for the help she had gotten in that class.

(d) During the sermon on Sunday morning, on the part of fathers and mothers many were deeply stirred and quietly stirred. Many of our homes are not what they ought to be. One especially has suffered serious inroads of earthly lust and greed. Result: children have NOT turned out well. That mother especially was stirred during that message so that tears came streaming down her checks—an older woman, whose husband's hair has turned gray during the past year over his wayward children. Of earthly wealth they have more than any other Christian family in the community. But they have missed heavenly treasures. The Lord spoke to many that morning.

The more indifferent younger set of men purposely absented themselves from the Sunday night meeting. They were afraid to face issues. This fact showed me where the battle had not been won. "There remaineth much land yet to be possessed."

Even So, Come Quickly

The Prince of Peace came down to earth
With God's good will to men,
And all the hosts of heaven sang,
And loud their hallelujahs rang
O'er sleeping Bethlehem;
But men heard not the songs of love
For tumults of earth's strife;
High on a hill they hewed a tree,
Carried their King to Calvary,
And slew the Lord of Life.

The Prince of Peace looks down on earth
Sick with the strife of sin,
And watches men wage warfare blind,
The while He yearns to help them find
The Peace He died to win.
War rages on in savage hate
With spectred horrors grim;
Distracted earth is sore distressed
And prays for peace and cries for rest,
But will have none of Him.

The Prince of Peace shall come to earth
And earth shall own His sway;
Not thorns but glory on His brow
Earth's every knee to Him shall bow
In that triumphal day.
His righteous rule shall know no end,
Wars shall forever cease;
But not till comes her Saviour King
Love's banner o'er His world to fling,
Shall rebel earth have peace.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE AND ITS MEANING

Based on booklet Life and Service in the Kingdom of God by P. C. Hiebert

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Loving shepherd of thy sheep," No. 429, "O happy day," No. 465. 2. Reading of John 3:1-21, prayer, and the leader's remarks. 3. Consecration Service—Large lighted candle, each one present files by it to light a small candle while all join in singing, "Take my life and let it be." 4. Offering for White Gift Christmas.

II. Leader's Introduction:

People sometimes remark about the similarity of mannerisms of a beloved teacher and his students. The likeness is also often seen in their ways of thinking. Between them there develops a feeling of comradeship and companionship, of mutual understanding. They know each other, and are certain that they can depend on each other. They like to share their thoughts and experiences together, but when they do not have the privilege of talking things over they still feel confident of each other. Those who follow Christ, who take Him as their Lord and Master, also develop a likeness to him. It is their prayer and desire, "More like the Master I would ever be." Through prayer, Bible reading, association with other children of God, through being still and listening to the voice of God, trying to live according to His will, they come to know Christ better and their life gains in meaning and value.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. "Beginning the Christian Life."
2. "Essentials for Christian Growth."
3. "Worship, its Meaning and Value."
4. "The Place of Prayer in the Christian's Life."
5. "A Victorious Christian Life."
6. "The Place and Use of the Bible."

IV. For Discussion:

1. What are your reasons for going to church and Sunday School? 2. What does prayer do for us? 3. Why should we read the Bible?

V. Facts for Study:

We expect a child to grow. Life means growth and development. We also expect a Christian to grow. Spiritual life will also manifest itself in growth and development. Love will be the motive of life, joy will savor it, peace will temper it, longsuffering will prove it, kindness will brighten it, faithfulness will stabilize it, meekness will crown it, self control will be its strength. It is never a monotonous dreary life but a life that abounds in opportunities of living for Christ and "the least of these."

VI. Food for Thought:

"I am the way." John 14:6.

"Can you show me the way to the 'Land of Content,'
Where the struggle with self is done?
Where the disappointments and vain regrets
Are gone with the evening sun?

Where pride and anger play no part,
Where only Truth can live?
Where wrongs are forgotten and blotted out,
And the best in us can live?"

* * * * * *

"I do not wish to see my sins more plain,
But this: to know Thy life, without a stain.

I would not see the vileness of my heart,
But this would know: how pure and true Thou art.

I would forget my paltry life, so small,
And know Thy greatness, Thou, my All in All.

O! teach me not how deep my spirit's night,
But flood me with Thy beams, Thou Perfect Light!"

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

AN EVENING OF CHRISTMAS CAROLS, Isa. 9:2-7.

Let your Scripture reading be taken from the following:

"Silent Night"—Luke 2:8-14; "O Little Town of Bethlehem"—Matthew 2:1-6; "Joy to the World"—Luke 2:10-11; "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear"—Luke 2:15-20.

Caroling at Christmas, began more than seven hundred years ago. The idea originated in the soul of St. Francis. In his day, religion was at a very low ebb. There was much unbelief, and very little preaching that was understood. He thought the common people would gladly know more of the Saviour. Christmas was approaching, and St. Francis studied much about this. Was religion only for the monastery? The idea of singing the story of Jesus' birth in the common tongue was original with St. Francis. Soon bright, homely little songs were composed and set to tunes and during the Christmas of 1224 St. Francis and his disciples set forth to the little Italian village of Grecia and presented in the little church the story in song. Later it was sung in church, home, highway, and byway. Centuries later, carols crossed the continent of England, first in parish halls and much later in the churches and streets.

Wouldn't you enjoy going "caroling!" Make up a group of your Junior C.E., select a good leader, and carol through the streets, stopping at the doors of the sick and aged, in hospitals, prisons, and everywhere singing the adoration of the new born King.

"Away In a Manger"

The author of this song was Martin Luther. It is also called the Cradle Song. It is believed Luther wrote this song for his little son Hans for a Christmas eve gathering in 1530. The first verse presents to us the little baby Jesus, in a manger. The second stanza is a beautiful prayer.

"Hark! the Herald Angels Sing"

This was written by Charles Wesley in 1739. It was set to music from Mendelssohn's cantata God is Light. No Christmas would be complete without this song in our carolling.

"O Little Town of Bethlehem"

This was written by Philips Brooks, after he had visited the little town of Bethlehem, the birthplace of Jesus. In his letters written at Christmas time, while he was visiting the Holy Land, he says, "It was a strange feeling to ride down through Nazareth, and think how Jesus must have been about these streets just like other children. Before he left Bethlehem that night, he attended a midnight Christmas service in the church of the Nativity. Three years later, when he wanted a Christmas song for the children of his Sunday School, what he had felt and what he had seen that night of his visit to Bethlehem found expression in this world famed hymn.

"Silent Night, Holy Night"

High up in the Austrian Alps, we find the birthplace of this song. Far up in these mountains, at Oberndorf, Austria, lived a devout young priest Joseph Mohr, and his friend the village schoolmaster and church organist, Franz Gruber, who together gave us this wonderful hymn. The two men had often talked of the fact that the perfect Christmas song had not yet been found. Meditating on this thought Joseph sat in his church study on Christmas eve when these words found expression that night in the song which we know as "Silent Night, Holy Night." The next morning, Christmas Day, Mohr hurried to his friend's house with the manuscript of this precious song. Gruber read it intently and exclaimed with uncontrolled enthusiasm, "Friend Mohr, you have found it—the right song—God be praised."

CHRISTMAS, 1943

By Leah Kauffman

The inns of the world are filled tonight
With hatred, and greed, and sin;
There's no room in their ample halls
For the Christ to enter in.

And the song of the angels is muted and stilled
'Mid the thund'ring din of strife.
The star of the East shines faintly and dim
Through the smoke of the conflict rife.

And worldly-wise men come from countries afar
And bow to the god of War.
They kneel at his feet in subjection complete
And blindly their gold outpour.

But still in the hearts of the humble and meek
There's room for Christ to come in;
And the song of the angels still echoes on
In lives delivered from sin.

And the Star of the East still twinkles tonight
And points with brightening ray
To the Prince of Peace who in splendor bright
Shall bring in the reign of day.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By J. Winfield Fretz

THE NEW RURAL MISSIONARY

One of the things the Christian Church needs is a new strategy for rural mission work, or perhaps not a new one but an old strategy revived. Rural communities have been suffering religiously in two ways. In the first place they have suffered neglect. Churches have sent large numbers of workers and large sums of money to carry on mission work in foreign countries and to cities while thousands of rural communities and millions of rural people have been completely neglected in the preaching of the gospel. A second way in which rural communities have suffered religiously is from professional evangelists and mission workers. Such people have all too often been strong with their jaw but weak with their hands. They have preached to the people but not worked with them; they have either lived off the people or were supported by agencies outside. In either case they were not closely identified with the people or deeply rooted in the communities where they served.

What is Needed

What is needed in rural areas is a new outlook on the task of effectively spreading the gospel. We don't need new church buildings or professional preachers so much as we need spirit-filled lay-workers who will demonstrate the practical implications of the Gospel of Christ as well as the doctrinal teaching. We need hundreds of devoted young couples who have a concern for the cause of Christ who will be willing to move into areas of need and establish themselves there for life. In this way they will identify themselves wholeheartedly and unreservedly with the people whom they are going to serve. They will earn their own living, or most of it, in the same way the local people do. They will meet in each other's homes regularly to work together, to talk together, to have Bible study and worship with one another in small groups.

The Significance

This is a real challenge. It is asking the mission worker to work with his people during the week and thus demonstrate the meaning of the gospel he preaches on Sunday. It is merely a way of bringing preaching and practice into line with each other. It is preventing a divorce between them or at least asking the preacher to make practical his Sunday messages. The result would be fewer nominal converts but more truly reborn Christians. The rural missionary will remember that Christ was a carpenter and Paul a tent maker and he will seek to follow in their foot steps.

"If you want to put the world right, start with yourself."

Our Peace Committee Reports

It has been some time since our committee has sent out information relative to our C.P.S. status and what is happening in the whole general field in which we are trying to present our witness for a way of peace in a world which is at war. This period of quiet has been due to the secretary's move to a new pastorate in a rural community which practically curtailed all his time for secretarial work.

As usual the Quota Control Sheet enclosed with this letter speaks for itself better than any explanation in the letter can give. You will see that our Conference has done a great piece of work during this past year in the support of the C.P.S. program. From December 1, 1942, to October 1, 1943, we had given over $97,000 for C.P.S. The year ended November 30, 1943. The report then will no doubt show well over $100,000 of giving to the Civilian Public Service Program. But if we had all given just a little more we would more fully have met our quota. It means that during this time of emergency that we have to go just a "little further" in order to make our witness for Christ count most effectively. May it be possible that in the next few weeks we may put forth a little effort and reduce the large balance (About $43,000 was due on November 1.) that is still due from the General Conference. At least may we do what we can.

The number of men from the General Conference still stands at about 500. Orie Miller, the Executive Secretary of the M.C.C. writes: "We have submitted 241 names to Selective Service for transfer to state hospitals during November, an additional hundred will be sent in during the coming month. We estimate that winter strength in M.C.C. camps will be reduced to between sixteen and seventeen hundred men or about half of the total. As nearly as we can

A Christmas Prayer

Oh Lord, there sit apart in lonely places,
On this the gladdest night of all the year,
Some stricken ones with sad and weary faces
To whom the thought of Christmas brings no cheer,
For these, O Father, our petition hear,
And send the pitying Christ-child very near.

Lord, some sit by lonely hearthstones, sobbing,
Who feel this night all earthly love denied,
Who hear but dirges in the loud bells throbbing
For loved ones lost who blessed last Christmas tide;
For those, O Father, our petitions hear.
And send the loving Christ-Child very near.

—Basna Newsette, Author unknown

estimate the total C.P.S. cost from January 1, 1944, we would say that taking account of this reduction in the camp load plus the cost of more liberal dental and medical allowances, plus the contemplated cash allowances to equalize what many men are now getting from congregations or conferences, will leave the monthly C.P.S. cost at around $50,000 per month. The fifty-cent-per month per membership quota should therefore be ample for C.P.S. needs for as far ahead as we can estimate . . . "

The M.C.C. also feels that the present war is now apparently drawing towards a close, which puts us on the threshold of unparalled challenge to be of service in meeting the needs and suffering following in its wake. Great relief opportunities will be opening up to us. Our various commissioners are now located in the several world areas of particular concern to our M.C.C. constituencies. Including the work in Puerto Rico, M.C.C. now has twenty-five workers on foreign soil, with another seven going out in the coming three months with negotiations in process for still others. The time is here then, for all our congregations to be conscious of a great opportunity and be challenged to liberal giving. (December 2, 1943)

Bethel Mennonite Church

Fortuna, Missouri

From Sunday, October 31 to November 7, our church had the privilege of listening to the editor of The Mennonite, Brother Reynold Weinbrenner. The meetings were well attended, and the interest was good. May his ministry draw us nearer to our Lord in devotion and service.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gerber aged one month and four days, passed away November 17, a victim of whooping cough. She was named Eileen Elizabeth and is survived by her parents, one brother and two sisters. The family bears this loss in Christian resignation, and their many friends bear with them in their affliction.

Rev. and Mrs. Leonard Metzker of the Noble Mennonite Church were here during the Thanksgiving season to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Aeschbacher. Brother Metzker brought us an advent message on Sunday, November 28.

Three of our C.P.S. boys were home during the latter part of November. Tilman Lehman and Earl Loganbill of Hill City, South Dakota, and Calvin Hilty of Cave Junction, Oregon.

We wish the editor and all the readers much grace and the spirit of prayer for these days and the New Year.

THE WIND

I feel the wind upon my face,
I watch it toss the leaves and chase
The thistles down the path.

I cannot see the wind, and yet
My paper dolls are quite upset,
I know the wind is here.

So Mother says I cannot see
The Lord, who watches over me,
But He is always near.

Our Girls' Home in Winnipeg

Thursday. There are some preparations to be made for the evening. The rooms are to be cleaned thoroughly. The benches are to brought in for the girls to come in the afternoon. Some flowers are to be put on the table.

And the girls are coming—singly or in groups. Some come very late. They have to shop either for themselves or for the people at home. What a lot of things there are to be bought from the great departmental store the "T. Eaton Co." And all these goods are heaped up in the attic of the Girls' Home.

At 5:30 is a great coffee party. Miss Helen Epp, the Lady Superintendent of the Institute, provides the coffee. The girls bring the cookies and cakes from the homes where they are working.

At 6 o'clock we have an hour of Bible study. Out of the Scripture the Master speaks to us—our dear Saviour the Lord Jesus Christ. We try to hear His voice and to follow His instructions. Then we have some readings from the great treasure of our literature. We begin with a prayer and close with a prayer. The songs we are singing are gospel hymns and also more and more hymns from our new hymnbook; now they are gospel hymns too, but in a more solemn fashion. And how beautifully the girls sing!

Some of the girls have classes in night school. The others stay in the Home. They occupy themselves with sewing, reading, letter writing, playing a harmless game like "Chinese Checkers," or others chatting, laughing, singing . . .

Among our present girls are eleven who have no other home. They are orphans. All the girls appreciate it greatly that through the efforts of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference of the Mennonite Churches of North America they have a fine Girls' Home in Winnipeg where they can spend their free time in company of each other.

At 10 o'clock every one of the girls returns to the home where she is working. Only a few remain in the Home. They work by day and have their room right in the "Girls' Home."

Brotherhood Adopts Important Resolutions

Below are given some important resolutions adopted by the Brotherhood of the Eastern District Conference at its twenty-sixth convention held at Souderton, Pennsylvania, October 23, 1943.

That we would strongly urge that in each congregation, or combination of congregations, that strenuous effects be put forth to establish a local chapter for the blessing that it will bring to the members of such a Brotherhood and for the service that may be rendered in Christ's name and His cause.

That we urge our members to get a large delegation together to attend the General Conference sessions to be held at Newton, Kansas, next year.

That we encourage our congregations to support wholeheartedly the C.P.S. programs, and especially recognize our obligation toward those who are heads of families and who have to face the draft problem and the support of their families at the same time.

That we commend to our churches the need of instruction in the whole Bible as the Word of God, as the supreme guide for all the Christian's life; physical, mental, and spiritual, emphasizing the whole of its teachings and doctrines, and remembering that the church is the body of Christ and that the unity of the Spirit that makes us one with all the true Christians in other groups by whatever name they be known.

That in our preaching and teaching careful attention be given to these phases of doctrine that are distinctive to our church, such as the simple life, the sacredness of the family, with daily prayer and Bible Study, and Scriptural non-resistance, and as an aid to accomplish the above we recommend the study of the books Mennonites and Their Heritage.

CHRIST IS BORN

Starlit, quiet, Christmas morn
Angels proclaiming: "Christ is born"
To shepherds on Bethlehem's plains so still,
"Peace on earth, to men good will."
Good will toward men, spells peace on earth.
O God, our Father, forgive this dearth
Among Thy children of our age,
Where wars and hatred furious rage;
May we at last see Him, who loved
Both friend and foe at highest cost.
He gave His life for you and me
That from all sin we be made free.
Therefore, O Master, would we pray
Help us to follow Thee all way;
Then shall all glory due we bring
To Thee Creator, Saviour, King!

Missionary Browns Arrive in U. S.

Great was the happiness of people in the homeland and of those on the exchange liner the Gripsholm when it glided past the Statue of Liberty, headed for its Jersey City pier. On it were 1,500 Americans and Canadians, who had spent nearly two years in Japanese internment camps in Japan, China, and the Philippines.

Included among the crowd were Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Brown, Mennonite missionaries to China for many years. The Browns are well-known by the churches of our conference. They arrived in Newton, Kansas, on December 9. They have two children there; Jessie, who is taking nurses training at the Bethel Hospital, and Roland, who is attending Bethel College. The Browns visited in New York with their daughter Linda, who is Mrs. John Warkentin.

—Dr. R. C. Kauffman, Professor of Psychology and Sociology at Bethel College, plans to visit the following C.P.S. camps on the dates given: Three Rivers, Cal., Dec. 19, 20; North Fork, Cal., Dec. 21, 22; Camino, Cal., Dec. 23, 24, 25; Provo, Utah, Dec. 27; Downey, Idaho, Dec. 28, 29; Missoula, Montana, Dec. 31 and Jan. 1; Belton, Montana, Jan. 2, 3; and Hill City, S. D., Jan. 5, 6. Brother Kauffman plans to speak on subjects connected with his teaching field.

—J. Winfield Fretz spoke to the First Mennonite Church of Wadsworth, Ohio, on the morning of December 12. He told of the plans that the M.C.C. has for the period after the war. Brother Fretz is on the staff of the M.C.C. He is gathering information that is to help the M.C.C. plan for the re-absorption of Mennonite men that were drafted. In the evening the young people of the Wadsworth Church had a special Christmas party. Winfield Fretz spoke on "Christmas Among the Foreign Language Groups of Chicago." This talk was based on his experience in a Presbyterian city-mission in Chicago. Church of Christ young people were guests at this meeting.

—Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa: In addition to its work of quilting the Women's Mission Society recently packed 118 pounds of used clothing and 43 children's garments—the children's clothing having been made by the society—for the M.C.C. office at Akron, Pa.

—A recent bulletin of the Menno Mennonite Church, Lind, Washington, carries the suggestion that families learn new songs at home so that they can be sung in church. Proposed new songs are then listed for the families to practice. The bulletin also suggests the scripture portion that the pastor will use for his sermon and then invites the members to meditate upon that portion during the week.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Several Bluffton College professors, including Dr. L. L. Ramseyer, and I. W. Bauman, attended the second annual Rural Life conference at North Manchester College, December 3 and 4. Professor Bauman served as one of the discussion leaders on the program. This conference was sponsored by the three historic peace churches, Brethren, Friends, and Mennonite.

The faculty of Bluffton College is engaged in an institutional study to determine how the college can better meet the needs of its constituency and students. Four committees have been appointed to study the needs and wants of the church, the alumni and former students, the local community, and the curriculum and internal problems of the college. A closer cooperation with its constituency and more effective service is the aim of this study.

Annual Bible lectures on the Bluffton campus, with Dr. Rufus Bowman of Bethany Biblical Seminary in Chicago as speaker this year, and the Ministerial conference held in conjunction with the lectures, were well attended, and proved beneficial.

Student religious organizations on the campus are active and doing good work among the students. Local ministers have been called in to lead the college church services. The Christian emphasis on marriage and family life is being made in the bi-annual marriage course sponsored by the Student Christian association.

BETHEL COLLEGE

The Academy students and faculty were entertained in the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Krehbiel, Friday evening, October 19.

Dr. Abraham Warkentin, who has been in the Bethel Hospital for several months, has returned to his home. He is now able to walk across a room without assistance.

Menno Kliewer has been busy plowing gardens on the campus. In addition to maintaining individual gardens, the faculty are again renting a large community garden for next season.

Rev. Lester Hostetler attended a meeting in Wichita, November 11, sponsored by the Peace Commission of the Federal Council of Churches.

Professor Walter Hohmann is leading the Community Chorus each Monday evening in its rehearsals for the presentation of "The Messiah" at Christmas time.

Miss Mary E. Grimmette, National Instructor in Narcotic Education, spent the week on the Bethel College campus, lecturing to student groups on the subject of how to teach the effects of narcotics upon the human body. Miss Grimmette is spending several weeks in the Kansas colleges under the supervision of the Kansas State Board of Education.

The Student Christian Movement has made plans to sponsor a Christmas party for the children's home in Newton.

Harry Martens, former faculty member and now Rocky Mountain Director of the Mennonite C.P.S. camps, addressed a student discussion group Saturday evening, December 4.

Dr. C. E. Krehbiel is teaching a course in The Mennonite Church and Its Polity, and Dr. P. A. Penner is teaching a course in Missions. The addition of these two men to the Bible Department for part time teaching makes possible a wide offering of courses this year.

"Must Christians Fight"

A Book Review

When they ask, "Can Christians fight?" we hesitate, but answer, "They certainly can." When they ask, "Do Christians fight?" we blush and say, "Yes, too often they do." When they ask, "Will Christians fight?" we admit, "Most so-called Christians will under certain conditions." But when asked, "Must Christians fight?" we answer, "No," as confidently as we reply to the question, "Is it necessary for a Christian to sin?" The Bible is clear enough in this matter. It is altogether probable that Christians sin, but when once an individual has yielded himself to Christ it is henceforth unnecessary. Therefore, if fighting is sin, then it is unnecessary. In reliance upon the power of God, Christians are to make progress toward Christlikeness.

Too often, either by our ignorance of the Word of God or our lack of courage, we are unable to refute arguments for participation in carnal conflict on Scriptural grounds. For this reason an educational committee of the Mennonite Central Committee recently published a much needed "Scriptural Inquiry," under the above named title, whereby we "venture humbly to defend" and in doing so briefly set forth the Scriptural grounds on which nonresistant believers have based their teaching on this subject."

Three outstanding thoughts remained with me as I read this sixty-eight page booklet recently. Firstly, it is a scriptural inquiry. Secondly, it is a study of the Scriptural Christ. And, thirdly, it is a Scriptural inquiry, seeking to answer questions of the world by the Word.

1. This excellent treatise is a Scriptural inquiry. We make no apologies for it. The author aims to "grasp the teaching of the Scriptures as a whole in relation to Christ." We are not anxious to know how one particular Scripture verse or passage may be interpreted apart from the whole of the Bible. We must interpret each in the light of all. The Old and New Testaments are both important, but Jesus Christ stands, between, higher than, and at the center of both. Therefore, "This we purpose to do by turning the light of the simple Scripture teaching on this question and illuminating the darkened counsel that is being offered."

2. It is a study of the Scriptural Christ and not some man-made conception of Him. Its purpose is to see Him as He is, as well as what He believed and taught. If the Scriptures present Him as one leading armies of the world into mortal combat, then we wish to follow Him in this matter. If, on the other hand, we can not visualize Him on the battlefield wielding arms, we must follow Him as the Prince of Peace. The point in question is not, "Will we follow Christ?" but "What kind of Christ will we follow?" Many Scripture references are given throughout this study which will be valuable in settling these questions for us. The author writes that his aim is "to exalt Jesus Christ and His authority for determining the Christian's faith and life."

3. It is also an inquiry. We ask the questions; the Bible answers them. Or the world asks questions, and the Bible answers them for us. Questions may be darts that strike at the root of the teachings of the Bible. It is a most interesting and practical way of approaching this study. This booklet contains fifty-six such darts, each related to what we believe and how to practice it, and followed by a Scriptural answer. Over forty separate publications have been used as basis for this digest.

In the introduction written by Harold S. Bender, attention is called to the need for a publication of this kind. "Articles, pamphlets, and even books have been published by 'fundamentalist' authors which attempt to prove on Scriptural grounds that it is not only right for the Christian to take part in war, but that he must do so if he is to fulfill his Christian duty." These writers, "using their authority and prestige as experienced and revered teachers of the Word, have attempted to prove that the Bible does not forbid warfare." They even "condemn those who teach Biblical nonresistance as false teachers and enemies of the Word of God." He points out that at times they are "harsher and more intolerant toward the nonresistant position then writers and preachers of liberal or modernist persuasion."

He then states that "since there are several hundred thousand nonresistant Christians in America who hold themselves to be thoroughly sound, devout, and orthodox Bible-believing and obeying followers of Christ, many of whom are grieved, and some of whom are confused, by the attacks made on Biblical nonresistance by persons whom they have hitherto highly regarded, it seemed good and right that a clear Scriptural exposition of the nonresistant position should be made available, in which point by point the most common arguments of the opposition would be met."

This booklet also contains a statement entitled, "Dwight L. Moody and War," and "A Short Bibliography on Nonresistance" listing twenty-one separate recommended publications.

We heartily recommend this digest as a handbook to be used in families and study groups in home churches. It is especially valuable to those students in Bible institutes, seminaries or universities who are far from the influence and teaching of the home church as well as for the many scattered families throughout our land.

Those in other districts should be able to get copies through their district peace committees. The price is: Single copy, 20 cents; ten or more copies, 15 cents.

A "HAPPY" NEW YEAR?

The greeting "Happy" New Year may seem out of place to some who hear it in this season. Thinking of the deaths and forced seperations from loved ones that 1944 may hold in store, it hardly seems like a "happy" year. Yet it can be a "happy" year for the Christian. It can be such in spite of any circumstances that may arise.

For the Christian's contentment and peace is not primarily dependent upon outward circumstances. His joy rests upon inner conditions. Because of this truth Paul and Silas could sing in prison during the dark hours of mid-night. Through the grace of God, through Jesus Christ who overcame the evil of this world, Christians of today can sing during the dark hours of midnight when they come. All things can work together for our good if we only love God rightly and are sufficiently concerned about his great purpose.

A "Happy" New Year? Yes, for the Christian who has learned how to win triumph from trouble.

Happy Parents

The joyful news has come from India that a daughter, Mary Ann, has been born to Harold and Ruth Ratzlaff, missionaries at Champa. The cable read, "Mary Ann Ratzlaff born Saturday. All well." The Saturday referred to may have been December 4. This is the first child born to the Ratzlaffs who are serving their first term on the India field.

MISS KUYF REPORTS

626 W. Allegheny Avenue,
Philadelphia, Pa.
December 14, 1943

Dear Friends,

This furlough time has been full of many things and has left little time to write, so once again, after skipping a year, I fall back on this means of meeting my friends.

January to June found me travelling to our churches. This took me as far west as Colorado, south to Oklahoma, and north to Minnesota and South Dakota. It brought a new appreciation of our own country, and a new awareness of the values in our Mennonite inheritance. There is always the recurring question, "What have we done to deserve all this?" Much larger looms that which meant so much in China, the sense of kinship in Christ.

To all of you who hospitably took me in and showed your interest in the work in China so plainly, may I again say "Thank you." It is a real joy to renew old friendships and make new ones, realizing again the fellowship we have as co-workers with Him.

Summer brought the pleasure of teaching missions in our own daily vacation Bible school in Philadelphia. Next came the high privilege of sharing in the Kansas Young People's Retreat, which was succeeded by the first retreat of the Oklahoma young people. Following this was a mission course for Congregational-Christian church leaders at Merom, Indiana. Our family, except Theresa, spent some good days here with our former pastor and his wife, Carl and Martha Landes.

Late September found me in New York for a term at Biblical Seminary, and here I am thrilled at the riches that are continually being revealed from the Book. One of our professors frequently says "A minister should know the Bible better than any other book." That should hold true for the rest of us too. We realize that the strength of many of our Chinese Christians lies in their familiarity with the Word and the Christ who shines through its pages.

December first brought the Gripsholm and Mr. and Mrs. Brown. We rejoice that they did not have to suffer extreme hardship. Prices in our field in China are terribly high, and even some formerly well-off families have gone elsewhere to look for food. We are happy that our Chinese friends continue to stand true to their faith, and are working at making Christ known. "Gripsholmers" bring the news that our missionaries on the Philippines, at Baguio, are safe and well, and that Miss Goertz and Miss Regier are at the Assembly Centre in Weihsien, Shantung province, in North China. We cannot communicate easily with any of them, but Chinese and American alike need our prayers.

In a study of Matthew we found the prophecy recalled in the first chapter, that Jesus shall be called Immanuel, God with us. In the last chapter, it is still God with us, for Jesus says, "Lo, I am with you always." In a world as full of misery and grief as ours, this is the thought that carries my Christmas greetings, that we may each be very conscious of the indwelling Christ, through whom we become free from bitterness and despair. May His purposes be worked out through us during 1944 and always,

Sincerely,
Wilhelmina Kuyf

A CHRISTMAS GREETING FROM INDIA

By Brother and Sister P. W. Penner

Our dear Friends,

To reach you all this channel is used before the old year breaks away, because Christmas is here in spite of war, rationing of necessities, and shortage of help.

"Across the miles, 'A Merry Christmas and a Happy and blessed New Year'
Over the memory way,
Someone is thinking about you and wishing you joy today!"

our prayer is thus expressed:

"Father,, we pray today that we may see the King, see Him in ways as never crossed our hearts before. May those who meet together under the healing ministry of Thy Church the world over know today our love and prayer for them. Our combined and worldwide task bends over the revelation of Thy Love to those who need it most. Help us to render Thy gifts to the waiting and hungry, both physically and spiritually."

Luke 2:14-20.

Yours in the Master's happy service,
P. W. and Mathilde Penner,
Champa, C. P., India

Together with the above greeting, brother Penner also sends a request for intercessory prayer for the conference of the missionaries held in October. But this request came too late for that conference. But it is not too late to pray for the working out of the resolutions passed, so that all may be done according to the will of the Lord.

Then there is further need for special prayer for the trip of the three missionaries, namely Brother and Sister Isaac and Sister Alida Schrag. Their first stretch is to bring them by train to Florida, and the second by air to South America, where they may have to wait a while for a ship.

Let us also not forget to thank the Lord for the safe return of Brother and Sister H. J. Brown from China, and for sufficient recovery of Brother W. C. Voth to continue his trip in South America on December 16. Thank the Lord for all such answers to prayer.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH

73rd and S. Laflin Street
Chicago, Illinois

Report Jan. 1 to Aug. 1, 1943

The activities of our church have been very much the same as in former times. The war has continued to effect our Church attendance and also the general interest in the work. The demands of the business world in long hours of work in defense plants, etc., does not seem to be conducive to church attendance.

At the present time we are making a change in Superintendent of Sunday school, since Harold Mitchell, who has been serving in that position, is leaving for army camp. Brother George Phelps,, a man of middle age, has consented to be superintendent for the time being. Brother Phelps has been engaged in Christian work for several years and is very capable. He is making his home here for the present and is very willing to serve in any way that he can, not only in Sunday school but also in the church work .

Church attendance has been, perhaps, somewhat lower on the average than last year, and during the summer days we had the usual summer slump with many people away on vacation and others afraid of the heat. That seems to be characteristic of city churches.

Special programs in this period include a missionary meeting with Dr. Penner showing his pictures of India. Baptismal service was held on Palm Sunday in which five boys were baptized and received into the church. On Palm Sunday afternoon we held a special communion service for the Mennonite students in the city. Conflicting programs and activities in the schools made it impossible for many to come; however about thirty came to the service and remained for the fellowship luncheon after the service. This meeting was held in a fine spirit of cooperation and friendliness and served as a means of bringing the Mennonites here closer together.

In the evening the young people presented an Easter pageant entitled "The Challenge of the Cross." It was one of the best plays put on by our young people and was very impressive.

On Easter Day there was a record attendance at both Sunday school and church service.

For the Children's Day program, Mr. and Mrs. Westerhoff presented the gospel story in pictures. "Scripture Visualized" was the title of two reels of moving pictures shown on this occasion.

A daily vacation Bible school was held during the first two weeks after public school was closed. The enrollment was sixty. The school was closed with a special program and a picnic for the children.

PEACE SECTION NOTES

C.O.'s in Prison

The Department of Justice has estimated the number of conscientious objectors who violated the Selective Training and Service Act and were sentenced under this law to be 2,446, as of October 15, 1943. At least three-fourths of this number were Jehovah's Witnesses who refused to report for induction or refused to report to C.P.S.

Turnover in the Armed Forces

"About 70,000 men are being discharged each month from the armed forces and about 280,000 a month are being inducted. January will be slightly higher, with a total of about 300,000. It is possible that 300,000 to 350,000 men a month will be inducted from February to July." (Note from National Service Board)

First Direct News from Interned Missionary

The first direct news from our missionaries in the Philippines has come by way of a letter written by Rev. Marvin Dirks. This leter was submitted for publication by Rev. A. J. Dirks of Halstead and father of Marvin Dirks, and we are happy to share it with the many friends throughout our denomination who have been anxious to hear from the missionaries concerned. Here is the letter:

Camp Holmes Internment Camp, Baguio, Philippines. Date Aug. 22, 1943.

Dear Home-folks:

Greetings from your children and grandchildren, at Camp Holmes, near Baguio. May the Good Lord who has kept us thus far grant you peace and rest in Him. We have often felt His special blessing abiding over us, no doubt, in answer to your prayers. The Wuthrichs, and Janzens, as well as ourselves are all quite well. We appreciate this opportunity of writing to you.

Marvin Jr. and his dad live in one of the large barracks for men, with some one hundred seventy other men and boys. The girls and mother live in what is known as the nursery or baby-house. We are provided with sufficient food for our maintenance, and are able to perform quite hard work without injury to ourselves. We can now get our rations from the main kitchen and then may eat together outside in family groups.

Now a word about each of the children. "Anna Rae" will be one year old September 1. She has brown curly hair, brown eyes, weighs 21 lbs. and gets only mother's milk. So you can guess that her mother is also in good condition. Compared to Carole she is slow but pretty. Carole is the best, neatest, politest, tiny girl you can imagine, always sparkling and happy when well. She had over four hundred words in her vocabulary at two years. Still has light blue eyes, long lashes and light blonde wavy hair. Marvin Jr. is a combination of Uncle Paul and Marvin Sr. He lives and acts like the men with whom he lives. During vacation from school he spends his time with his dad on the wood detail in forest and hills. We are tanned dark brown from going practically stripped under the tropical sun. Marvin Jr. has finished primary and enters first grade in September. Has very good teachers.

Frieda is very busy trying to keep us all patched up, and supplying us with the minimum necessities. Her health and spiritual poise is good. With two babies to care for, she is an inspiration to all. She weighs 119 lbs. Marvin Sr. has given thousands of hair cuts, washed clothes, milk a goat for Carole's milk supply, in addition to rolling logs. He teaches H. S. music, and has charge of the Union Church Choir (Camp Chorus.) We give concerts and sing for services. Extra,—I have just finished clipping and shaving my six months growth of beard, a beauty. We wish you could see this camp of over five hundred people for a day or so. Miners, missionaries, business people, and retired old-timers; people of all nationalities. We eat, sleep, study, and argue with each other. It is a kind of education we are undergoing.

We try to be patient, but nevertheless long for homelife and privacy. We hope only to keep our health, and be able to continue in the service of The Christ. We used to hope to be repatriated, but now hope more for peace to come to all men. Hope to receive news from you. Received one letter, from Herb Millers, written last year. May this find you all well and happy. May I say, in fairness to our hosts, that judging by the past we hope to be well treated in the future, so you must not worry about us. We have learned to be content and busy.

God bless you and keep you all. With love, Marvin J. Dirks and family.

C.P.S. Camp at Lapine Will Close

Selective Service has selected C.P.S. No. 60, Lapine, Oregon, as the second camp to be operated by the government. Beginning January 1, Lapine will be set up similar to the camp at Mancos, Colorado, and will receive CO's who prefer government to church agency administration. Campers at Lapine at the present time will be transferred to other MCC camps. MCC considered Lapine a desirable camp as the plant was up to date, a valuable and constructive project was provided and morale seemed to be high among the campers. Selective Service evidently desired Lapine because of its expansion possiblities.

C.P.S. Men of Great Service in Mental Hospitals

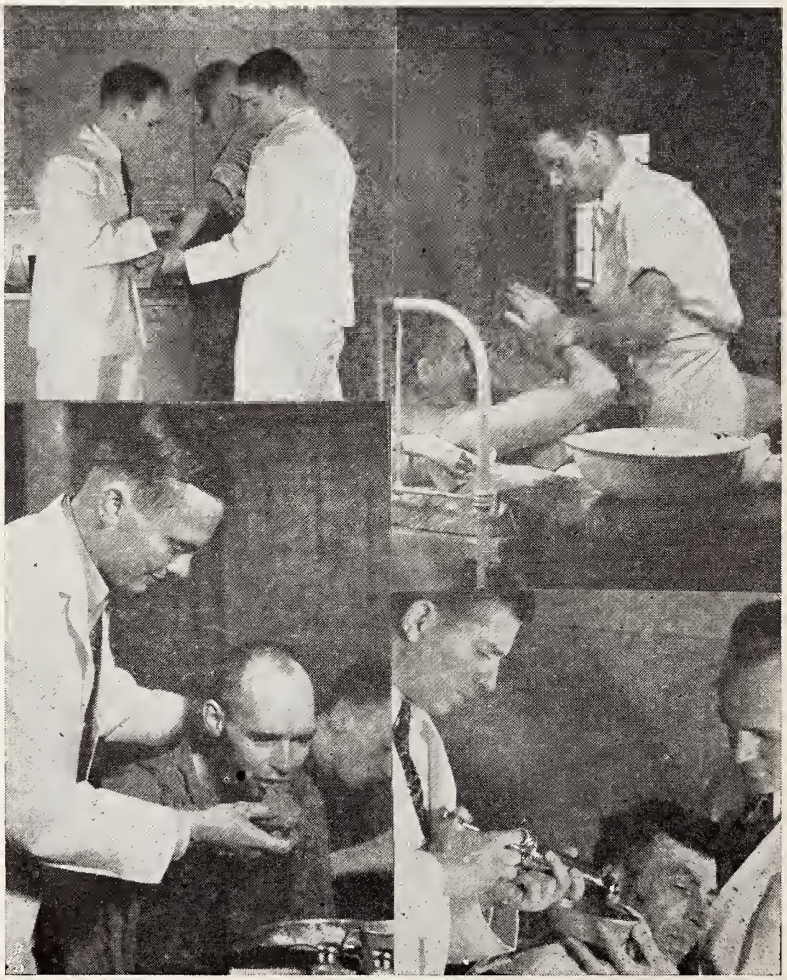
Mental Hospital Work Is Not Trivial

A Quaker friend wrot eto Lowell Wright, of the Marion, Va., hospital unit:

"Don't think that what thee is doing is trivial. It may mean life to someone, and thee may never know it. A friend of ours, after months at John Hopkins, was finally taken to a state mental hospital as hopeless. He recovered and this spring went to manage a 1,200-acre farm. When I saw hi mat his daughter's wedding a few weeks ag ohe told me that his recovery had been possible only because the C. O. boys pulled him out—they were human beings who understood. His daughter, when it seemed that he would have to be taken to a mental hospital, said she could not have permitted it if it had not been for the C. O. boys there—and she and her husband are 100 per cent warriors!"

C. P. S. Contributes to Progress of Mental Health

There is an opportunity for servcie in mental hospitals that is almost unparalleled. Patients there are in great need of sympathetic human care—and have only rarely received it. Even in normal time, mental hospitals were the neglected link in our system of social institutions. Attendants have been underpaid and have often been people not suited to this kind of work. Funds and facilities for proper treatment have not been forthcoming from legislatures, and standards have been forced tragicall ylow. The excellent methods of treatment developed by psychiatrists have been of no avail without the co-operation of trained attendants to put them into practice.



A ward attendant in a mental hospital is continually dealing with people and therefore has a great opportunity to help them. Here C.P.S. men are seen bathing patients, giving injections, using an ear syringe and encouraging a patient to eat.

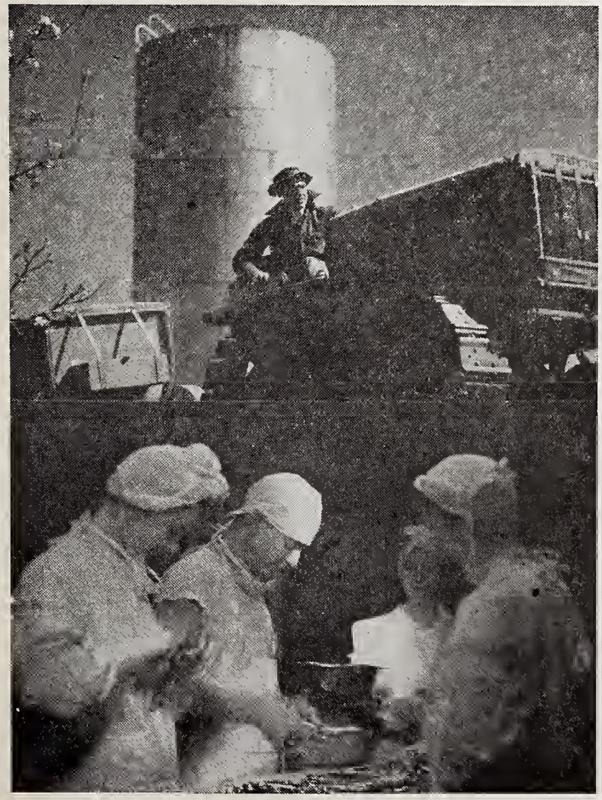
In addition to work with patients in the wards, C.P.S. men do ground maintenance and farm work, serving as foremen and general workers. This picture shows a C.P.S. man working on a hospital poultry farm.

The coming of war has made this problem many times more serious. Prices have risen while appropriations have not, and most of the attendants have gone into better paying defense and military jobs. Staffs have been curtailed and many therapeiutical treatments are being discontinued. This means that man ypatients will be merely kept in custody for the "duration" when with proper treatment they might be cured and sent home.

The situation has been especially bad on the women's wards, for women even more than men have deemed this type of work undesirable. Thus many young pacifist women are volunteering for this important work, and hospitals have been glad to employ the wives of C. P. S. men who were willing to render this important service.

Certainly the national importance of this work cannot be questioned. Nor can its results in the field of service to one's fellow man. It provides an opportunity for men to give practical demonstration to the peaceful way of life and to put daily into practice what they believe about non-violence. However hospital authorities may disagree with our position on war they are fully agreed that our philosophy towards our fellow men is completely compatible with the proper treatment of mental patients.

In fact, it is possible that C. P. S. might make one of its most important contributions to mankind at this very point. Many authorities (including Mrs. Roosevelt) have said that C. P. S. men through their religious motivation and interest in their work are improving standards of treatment for mental patients. Many former employees viewed their job without humanity—as just a way to earn a living—and were willing to abuse and mistreat the patients needlessly. The influence of C. P. S. men has keenly affected standards of treatment and care, and hospitals will certainly not let these standards fall when, after the war, most of the C. P. S. men return to their former professions.



Picture upper half: producing food for patients on the hospital farm. Lower half: working in surgical ward.

Though most of these men will leave hospital service, they will constitute a segment of the population who understands and works for the betterment of one of the social problems about which many people are not well informed. An enlightened public conscience will take mental patients off the roster of "forgotten men" in overcrowded hospitals, and in the new era modern equipment, recently-developed methods for treating disorders, and genuine regard for the welfare of the patients by the people who work in the hospitals will become an over-all pattern, ,made possible by public sentiment and the appropriation of sufficient money to take care of all the needs of the patients. When the war is over, C. P. S. men who know the situation will make a contribution.

DAILY DEVOTIONAL MESSAGES

By Rev. Howard Raid, Fortuna, Missouri

JANUARY 1—"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." John 1:1

The Word was Jesus, and John is proving to the Jews of his day and to all the world since then that Jesus is the true Son of God. Matthew says that Jesus came telling things that had been kept secret from the foundations of the earth. Jesus and His Message are the same, both are perfect truth. Man's understanding of them has changed, but Jesus and His Message have not changed. They are eternal.

JANUARY 2—"Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God?" I John 5:5

Today it seems that all the world is seeking the path of victory over the rest of the world. We are all wanting and wishing for "a lasting peace," but all thinking Christians know within their hearts that the only "lasting peace" will come when we believe that Jesus is the Son of God, and believe it sincerely enough to follow completely His Way. We must give Him first place in our hearts.

JANUARY 3—"And they went into Capernaum; and straightway on the Sabbath day He entered into the synagogue, and taught." Mark 1:21

Jesus realized the good that was to be found in the Jewish House of Worship and He wished to make use of it. He knew that the people gathered here were in some measure concerned with religious things and should be more interested in what He had to say than others might be. Also, Jesus wanted the people to realize that what He had to say was but the fulfillment of what they had been trying to accomplish by obeying the Jewish laws.

JANUARY 4—"They entered into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John." Mark 1:29

Jesus served God in the home. Among the commonplace things of life He took time to do good. He did not need a big crowd before which to perform, for His work was not for self but for others. In doing well the tasks of the home, we serve the Master. Here too, is our best chance to further the Kingdom, for we can, by word and action, carry His message to those whom we contact closely in our homes.

JANUARY 5—"And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, He went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed." Mark 1:35

Jesus realized that there are great reservoirs of power to be tapped through prayer. He also, realized that to pray effectively, He had to practice prayer. If we would be able to interpret the great classical music we must practice many hours before we can begin to feel and express what the composer had in mind. Likewise, if we would interpret the Master we can do it only after much practice in prayer.

JANUARY 6—"And He preached in their synagogues throughout all Gallilee, and cast out devils." Mark 1:39

The ministry of preaching can take on two main trends, one which seeks to save souls that are lost and the other, which seeks to show a way of life that will keep people from being lost, and will give them a constructive way to live. While it is true that we do need to seek the lost souls, in our Mennonite communities there is more need to take the nominally good people that we have and lead them into the highest and noblest Christ-like living possible. This means that economic, social, educational, political, as well as religious life will be Christ-like.

JANUARY 7—"And straightway there gathered together . . . and He preached the Word unto them." Mark 2:2

Certainly today we need to attract many to the preaching of the "Word." We need to reach out and touch those outside the church. Evangelism, if it is to be most effective in our day and with our educated people, must rid itself of the sensational and of the debatable side issues and must concern itself with a simple straightforward presentation of Christ and His life. If the evangelist will be concerned not only with how many he can get to join the church but how many he can get to live Christ-like lives daily, then all the churches of the land will open their doors.

JANUARY 8—"And as He passed by, He saw Levi the son of Alphaeus sitting at the receipt of custom, and He said unto him, 'Follow Me'." Mark 2:14

Christians are the only voice that God has. How often do we encourage someone to follow the Master, not only as a Christian but also as a full time servant? Industry is always on the look out for the exceptional student to put to work in its factories. Do we spend much time looking for the exceptional student to use in the work of the Kingdom? In other words, do we aid the call to Kingdom work that others may receive?

F. J. Isaac, Relief Director

What About Our C. E. Programs in 1944

This year we offer a series that is rather different in some ways from what has been presented as a guide within the last years. You will note the emphases placed on thinking through the problems facing youth in Christian living. A series of four evenings is to be given to it. The work of our missions is to be studied this year, especially our work in India. Another year the work in China and among the American Indians should follow. Then there is opportunity to make a study of other phases of our conference work as is indicated by several subjects. One evening a year given to each of these large fields of work will help to challenge devotion and promote interest in it. Finally there is another series, the one of "Growing in Grace." Christian life is not static; it is a continuous "pressing onward."

We will give some references where material for the programes can be found and would suggest at this time that the C. E's obtain, if they do not yet have it, a copy of Twenty-five Years With Christ in India, also of the series of booklets, Our Youth For Christ, published by the Herald Press, Scottdale, Pa. All of these can be gotten through our Mennonite Publication Office at Newton, Kansas.

One often wonders how many of our C. E's are using any or all of the program material that The Mennonite offers. If you use it, or have any comments or suggestions to offer, write to the editor of the Mennonite, or to Mrs. Gerhard Friesen, 700 East Broadway, Newton, Kansas. If each C. E. president would send a card within the next two weeks stating whether or not you use these program suggestions it would indicate if there is some uniformity about our C. E. programs in our churches.

HOW DO I KNOW I AM SAVED

The beautiful hymn "And I shall see Him face to face, and tell the story, saved by grace" looks forward to the time when we shall see at the end of our journey. The age old plea, "Nothing in my hand I bring, simply to the cross I cling" finds us by faith taking the salvation offered to us freely.

One day when Paul and Silas were prisoners they were asked by their jailor who was in desperate straits: "What must I do to be saved?" and he received the simple, straightforward answer: "Believe on the Lord Jesus and thou shalt be saved." During his life here on earth Jesus has not only said, but has brought the message by his life and by his death that he came to seek and to save man who had gone astray.

He says that whoever comes to Him He will in no wise cast out; He invites the weary and heavy laden to come to Him and find rest for their souls. Matt. 11:28, 29. He gave His life a ransom for many and says that "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him shall have eternal life. John 3:16.

How canwe be sure we are saved?—

The story of the prodigal son tells us that the boy who had gone away and lived in worldly pleasures came back to his father. That boy knew he was no longer pursuing the ways of wrong living—he was definitely turning his back on them and giving his heart's desire expression by going to the father. He also humbly and gratefully accepted what the father offered him; love and restored sonship. If we apply this to our life in its relation to God we have one way of knowing if we are saved.

One time when the mother and brother of Jesus came to see him, he said, "Whoever shall do the will of my Father who is in heaven, he is my brother, and sister, and mother." Luke 12:50. Another word from Jesus says, "Ye are my friends, if ye do the things which I command you." Jn. 15:14. Therefore those who do his bidding, who love God with all their heart, the neighbors as themselves, who do good to those who hate them, who try to be faithful stewards belong to Him, and can be sure of their salvation.

Another time Jesus says: "Every good tree bringeth forth good fruit," and Paul tells us in Gal. 5:22, 23 "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control." Where you find these traits of character, Christ lives and rules, and they are evidence of the salvation which has made of man a new creature in Christ Jesus.

Another test whereby we may know that we are saved is when we share Christ's concern for the eternal and temporal welfare of others. "I send you," "Give ye them to eat," "Go ye into all the world"—All these words indicate that we are to share Christ's compassion and his love for men. "If any man come after me, let him deny himself" Matt. 16:24. Christ brought sight to the blind, healing to the sick, comfort to the sorrowing, gave bread to the hungry—and his followers walk in his footsteps.

Topics for Short Talks:

1. How do we obtain forgiveness of our sins? Jn. 15.
2. What does it mean to have faith? Gal. 3:24-26; Jn. 5:9-14.
3. What do we learn from the talk of Jesus with Nicodemus? Jn. 3:1-15.
4. What do we learn from the talk of Jesus with the Samaritan woman? Jn. 4:1-38.
5. What is the responsibility of one who is saved? Col. 1:21-23; Jn. 15:6, 7; Jn. 8:31, 32; Rom. 8:1-3; Heb. 3:12-14.

For Discussion:

1. What tests confirm our assurance of salvation? See I Jn. 1:7; I Jn. 2:3, 4; I Jn. 2:24, 25; I Jn. 2:28, 29; I Jn. 3:14; I Jn. 3:21; I Jn. 3:24; 4:13.

THE FLIGHT OVER THE ANDES

Dr. G. S. Klassen

The trip by plane between Santiago, Chile, and Cordoba, Argentina, took us over the top of the beautiful Andes Mountains. The view of these mountains from Santiago is very unusual. The city being at the foot of the mountains, and the mountains so very high, one looks almost straight up and sees them covered with huge masses of snow.

As per routine before departure, at one sound of the gong, the crew, pilot, co-pilot, radio-operator and steward, march to the plane. At the sound of the two gong the passengers start walking to the ship or plane. Everything is done so very orderly. We always found the crew to be fine, friendly fellows and they were replaced at various points. As soon as we are seated an electric sign in front of the cabin flashes the words "fasten safety belts."

The ship is taxied to the other end of the field. Each of the two motors of 1000 H. P. is tested separately. At the sound of a bell the steward checks to see that all safety belts are on. Next the two motors are opened wide and we are off. The takeoffs and landings seem as graceful as though the plane were a bird.

We immediately start climbing for higher altitude. By the time we were at the mountains we had reached an altitude of 16,000 feet. On cloudy days they must go still higher. On this sunshiny day the snow was dazzling white. Winding this way and that, flying between the peaks which were over half covered with snow, it looked as though one could reach out the window and grab a handful. That close they seemed.

Ordinary flying is rather smooth traveling, much more so than on a train. While flying we had many meals, some passengers would read, some write, some sleep, and some visit with their neighbors. But not so while flying over the Andes. The steward was a busy man, taking care of the "seasick" and indicating the points of interest. Soon he said that here to our right is Mt. Aconcagua, 23,098 feet high, the highest mountain in the Western Hemisphere. After banking and turning among the tall peaks for about ten or fifteen minutes more we heard him say, while he was walking along the aisle with a finger pointing to the window, "The Christ of the Andes! The Christ of the Andes! The Christ of the Andes!" We look! To the right and a little below we see the high statue. (At this writing I cannot recall the exact height.) Everything was so beautiful and thrilling. I had a feeling that I wanted to stay there longer. The plane pitched and bucked. We were really supposed to remain strapped in our seats, but everything was so exciting and interesting that we went to the windows from one side of the plane to the other to see all we could. Because of the rough air in the mountains we always had to hold on, as we went about in the plane, to keep from falling down.

Fortunately Mrs. Klassen and I did not get sick. However, because of high altitude, every few minutes we resorted to "artificial air" oxygen which was supplied at each seat through a rubber hose which one placed in one's mouth and pressed a button. A few whiffs of this oxygen would make breathing easier and clear our heads.

As I am sitting here in my hotel room (City Hotel) in Buenos Aires, Argentine, and thinking about this trip, the words of that steward are still ringing in my ears. The Christ of the Andes! The Christ of the Andes! Only a metal statue, but symbolic of a real Christ of the Andes.

I am thankful that the real Christ of the Andes is also the Christ of Kansas. The Christ of the Andes is also the Christ of thousands of young men in the service everywhere. The Christ of the Andes is also the Christ of Panama, Chile, Argentina—every country in which we have been. And I am sure that the real Christ of the Andes is also the Christ of the Chaco toward which we are going.

Robert Kreider Back Home

Robert Kreider is again safe at home with the M.C.C. family at Akron. He sailed from New York in June of this year as a member of the China Unit but was asked to return home when the unit was disbanded. He had already reached Durban, South Africa, and engaged in hospital service there until October 13. Among his stops on the way home were Rio de Janeiro, Dutch Guiana and Trinidad. He arrived at New Orleans December 12, and at Akron, December 18. All the members of the China Unit have arrived in this country except one who is expected to arrive in the next few weeks. Robert will again be employed in the Akron Office.

MENNONITES and RURAL LIFE

By J. Winfield Fretz

MIXED MARRIAGES AMONG MENNONITES

The evidences pointing to city influences creeping into country districts is nowhere more forcibly illustrated than in the case of the increasingly large number of mixed marriages found in Mennonite rural communities. This used to be largely an urban characteristic but it is no longer confined to the cities.

A Concrete Example

In a fruitful conversation with the minister of one of our oldest General Conference Mennonite churches recently I was amazed at the situation in his church on this matter. Out of a congregation of about 250 members with about eighty families he told me only twenty-two were families where both husband and wife were Mennonites. This means that approximately 75 per cent of the marriages in this church are mixed-marriages. In another case that has come to my attention out of a Mennonite family of eight children, seven of whom are married only one married a Mennonite, two married Lutherans, one a Reformed, one a Baptist, one a Jehovah's Witness, and another a Methodist. In only one of this family's mixed marriages has it resulted in a gain for the Mennonite Church. Unfortunately, in the other cases, it has not resulted in a gain for any of the other churches. It has rather resulted in a divided family with church loyalties pulling into two opposite directions or of a dilution of all church loyalties to the point of indifference or only mild interest in religion.

Practical Results

The minister, above referred to, pointed out with what practical problems he was faced when a Lutheran mother wanted her child baptized or when his members with a non-Mennonite training utterly repudiated the doctrine of non-resistance. It becomes a choice between surrendering doctrines fundamental to the Christian Church as held by the Mennonites or disciplining members to the point of exclusion. In a mixed-marriage husband and wife may be ever so sincere in their Christian beliefs but the end result is, nevertheless, a tension on the family in two opposite directions. Most ministers and many members are unwilling to exercise any discipline on this point and hence compromise or completely surrender the doctrines. Roman Catholics, Lutherans, and Old Mennonites have adhered to strict principles on the matter of mixed-marriages, but the General Conference has left down the bars by permitting members to join the church who are openly opposed to Mennonite principles, and ministers even perform marriages to couples with different religious confessions, training, and beliefs. Continuation of the policy of mild indifference to mixed-marriages can only result in the eventual watering down of the Mennonite Church to the common level of secularized Protestantism. It is one certain way of diluting and eventually destroying the unique insights and distinctive testimony of the Mennonite Church.

Byways of Mennonite History

By C. Henry Smith

What Did Menno Simons Teach?

False Brethren (The Munsterites)

(The Munsterites were a fanatical wing of the Anabaptists, who, being misled by certain false teachers who advocated the early end of the world and the establishment of the kingdom of the elect at Munster in northwestern Germany, gathered together in the above city awaiting the early coming of the Lord, but being besieged by the local ruler of the country, were finally all put to death after suffering severe hardships and indulging in all sorts of fanatical religious and social practices. After the downfall of the Munster kingdom, however, the chiliastic ideas of their leaders were still retained by many of the Anabaptists in Menno's community, and Menno himself began a vigorous campaign to keep both these ideas as well as such Anabaptists as still advocated them out of his own church.)

"There is nothing under heaven which I abhor more than the wicked cause of the false and corrupt sects. In as much as I daily see before my eyes the terrible perils which existed even from the beginning, that so many an innocent soul has been misled and is now misled through the false prophesies, smooth words, seeming sanctity, lying signs, threatenings and false promises of the antichrists and false prophets who ever sought their own honor, fame and gain under a semblance of God's word, as was the case with the pope of Rome and Jan van Leyden at Munster and others, as may yet be abundantly witnessed, therefore I deem it very necessary and profitable to earnestly warn and admonish with a sincere heart all my beloved readers in the Lord, that they should not accept my doctrine as the Gospel of Jesus Christ so long as they have not thoroughly proved it with the spirit and the word of the Lord, that they may not set their hearts upon me nor upon any teacher or writer, but upon Jesus Christ."

Government

"In temporal things we teach and exhort that the emperor, king, lord, and princes, yes, all in authority, are to be sincerely obeyed in all their laws and regulations as far as they are not contrary to God's word."

War

"The regenerated do not go to war nor fight. They are the children of peace who have beaten their swords into plough-shares and their spears into pruning hooks and know no war. They give to Caesar the things that are Caesars and to God the things that are Gods. Their sword is the sword of the Spirit which they wield with a good conscience through the Holy Ghost."

The Swearing of Oaths

"We are aware that the authorities advance the opinion that it is right to swear when ever oath is made to the truth. This we simply answer with the word of the Lord. To swear to the truth was permitted to the Jews under the law, but to the Christian it is forbidden in the Gospel."

Discipline

"It is evident that a congregation or church can not continue in the salutary doctrine and in a blameless and pious life without the proper practice of discipline. Even as a city without a wall and gates, or a field without an enclosure or fence, or a house without walls and doors, so is also a church without the true apostolic exclusion or ban. For it would be open to all deceiving spirits, all godless scorners and haughty despisers, all idolatrous and insolent transgressors, yes to all lewd debauchers and adulterers, as is the case with all the great sects of the world, which style themselves, although improperly, churches of Christ. In my opinion it is a leading characteristic, and honor and a means of prosperity for a true church to teach with Christian discretion the true apostolic exclusion and to observe it carefully with vigilant love according to the teaching of the holy divine Scriptures."

(It is a fair question whether the Menonite church of today might not profitably pay some attention to Menno's teaching on church discipline. Undoubtedly the present growing disregard for some of the most fundamental doctrines and principles of Mennonitism within no church itself is due largely to the fact that neither the young people of Mennonite ancestry, nor the additions to the church from other denominations, ignorant of what the Mennonites stand for, are sufficiently informed regarding these specific ideals and principles at the time of their admission to membership.'

CORRESPONDENCE

EBEN-EZER HOME

605 Bannatyne Ave., Winnipeg

November 22, 1943

I wish to notify all ladies and friends of our Girls' Home that on October 30 we moved from 412 Bannatyne to 605 Bannatyne. The Mission Committee bought this house for which we are very grateful.

The moving was much work, but it was a warm day so everything went well. A few girls volunteered to help so that all the furniture was in its place by night. We wanted the rooms to be ready when the girls came the first time. We like the house very much and feel at home in it already.

Thursday, November 11, we had a little celebration at which Reverend Toews of Rosthern was present. We had visitors from Grunthal and the city. Also Reverend and Mrs. Ewert were present. Reverend Ewert is our minister wh obrings us the Word of God when Rev. Enns is not present. Our girls who live in the city and Kildonan also were present.

We had a very blessed evening which we will not forget. The house shall be a Home to the girls where they willingly attend the Bible hours and pass their free time.

BETHEL COLLEGE MENNONITE CHURCH

North Newton, Kansas

"Thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins." "For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God; being justified freely (gratuitously) by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus." Matthew 1:21 and Romans 3:23f.

That God has made full provision for the forgiveness of all sins of everyone of the most respectable and highly cultured as well as of the vilest sinner, this is the essence of the gospel. How much reason for rejoicing during this and every other season.

Our church has carried on its work in its customary way, and the end of the year will probably show a substantial growth as far as numbers are concerned. But may we never be satisfied with this alone, lest it become true also of us what the Lord Jesus says to another church: "Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked."

In late summer and fall our pastor was away twice, first visiting the C.P.S. camps on the Pacific coast, later going on a vacation. During his absence the pulpit was filled by the brethren C. E. Krehbiel, Abr. Warkentin, R. C. Kauffman, H. A. Fast, and E. G. Kaufman.

There are three C. E. societies in our church, the juniors, the intermediates, and the seniors. These hold their meetings in the homes of various members of the church. This arrangement seems to be conducive to better attendance.

At a recent business meeting the congregation adopted the one hundred per cent subscription plan for our church periodicals. This puts one of these papers into each home, and seems a wise investment of church funds.

Two of our members are at present away on important study missions. Brother S. J. Goering has been sent by the Mennonite Central Committee, together with Brother J. D. Graber to help establish relief projects in India and especially in Free China. Brother W. C. Voth left later under the auspices of our Foreign Mission Board to make a study, together with Brother Gerald Stucky, of the possibilities of mission work in Central and South America, and then to make recommendations. While both of these projects have been duly reported in our church papers, these brethren need the constant prayers of God's people, and therefore are mentioned again here. The safe arrival of the brethren in China and the recovery from critical illness of Brother Voth are matters for praise unto God.

There has been and now is considerable sickness in the community. I wonder whether we pray for our suffering members and their families as faithfully as we should. Some of those on the sick list, who are more widely known, are Dr. R. S. Haury, Rev. and Mrs. P. J. Wiens, and Mrs. G. A. Linscheid. Mrs. Henry Dick has been sick for several years. Mrs. Jacob Lingenfelder after an illness of several years, has gone to be with the Lord. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved.

The young men and older boys have nearly all been called into the service of the country. This, of course, we have in common with all other churches. There are already some permanently vacant chairs with the attending heartaches, and the number is likely to increase. May we help hasten the day of peace by heeding the Lord's call, believing His promise and fulfilling the condition as stated in IIChronicles 7:14, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves,, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

SARON MENNONITE CHURCH

Orienta, Oklahoma

At this time we feel especially grateful to our Heavenly Father for the moisture he has sent us after the long spell of dry weather. But more than that, we thank Him and praise Him for the spiritual blessings we have received during the past year.

The past six months have found everyone busy, but especially our pastor, Rev. H. P. Fast. Besides getting settled in their home, he has carried on very capably, the services in our church, attending and serving at retreats,, conventions and conferences, holding evangelistic meetings at various places, and serving other calls, not to forget the house visitations—remembering especially the sick.

We have had several visitors in our midst during the year with messages from THE WORD. One of these was Rev. Esau, who has become a dear friend to the people of our church.

Of great interest to our congregation are the series of messages on the "Second Coming of Christ" which our pastor is bringing us for our Sunday morning worship.

On December 19 baptismal services were held in our church.

In the afternoon Holy Communion was observed.

Ernest Bennett Reports

At an informal gathering of the MCC family, Ernest Bennett reported on his three-months visit to England. His travel on the high seas was without serious interruption but was exciting several times. In wartime England he especially noticed the barrage balloons, blackouts and searchlights at night, extensive destruction in cities like Bristol, Birmingham, and London, parks and lawns plowed for food production, and a tremendous effort on the part of the people to live normal lives.

Reporting on the living conditions of the British people, he pointed out how the bombing of big cities has produced extreme poverty and low living standards for a large number of people. There has been a revival of interest in spiritual things only to a limited extent and church life is neglected. Our relief workers are doing a good work in providing for aged and convalescent war victims. Brother Bennett also thought that there is special need for an evangelical peace witness in England.

Reports on India Famine

Several lengthy letters reporting on famine conditions in the Bengal area have been received at MCC Headquarters from J. D. Graber and Sam Goering, and also from P. W. Penner, Secretary-Treasurer of the Mennonite Relief Committee of India. Excerpts from these letters are given below:

"We are now in Calcutta and have been making investigations for some days. We find distress very acute. Thousands of distressed people have naturally streamed into Calcutta expecting to find food here. Government and numerous agencies are at work with kitchens in an attempt to feed the multitudes, but in spite of this effort an acute need continues. One can see in the streets bodies of those who have died of gradual undernourishment and starvation. Yet we have practically decided that we can do a more necessary as well as a more permanent work by undertaking a more concentrated and longer term program in a village where the people can be built up physically and rehabilitated in their own home villages. These investigations are still in progress and definite decisions as to location and exact scope have not been made." (J. R. Graber)

"In the neighborhood (of Calcutta) detail records are not published but judging from intimations daily between 500 and 1,000 must die away, yes, starve to death. These sufferings were thus far more or less restricted to that province (Bengal), but people could not bear the suffering any longer there and have flocked to areas lying more than 400 miles away. They would enter the railway coaches without tickets and the officials could not cope with the situation. When a train stops at a station sometimes more than 200 simply hang on the doors or lie on the floors of the wagons. I was recently in Calcutta on money business in behalf of relief work. In all the thirty-five years since coming to India, scenes on that order have not been seen here. . . . In the central station at Howrad, where one hardly ever sees a beggar, large hosts awaited the incoming passengers. On the streets in the city every corner had a number of haggard personalities lying, sitting about individually, mothers and families of children on the hard cement, walking in rags and looking anxiously for something to eat." (P. W. Penner)

Picture of Bengal Famine

"Never in this age has a country echoed a deeper cry of the human heart and recorded human emotion as we see them today. 'I'm hungry',—this only voice vibrates in the air during the daylight or the dark hours of the night; there is everywhere this shrill cry that rings and rolls on and on.

"One can see only dark somber faces—so swollen that eyes could hardly be seen. Round the street corners, near the drains, close to the dust-bins are seen men searching for food while some are lapping up refuse like dogs. Scenes of abandoned children in the last stage of emaciation—of men lying by the wayside through sheer exhaustion are but frequent. Some fantastic people are crawling out on the streets dressed in worn-out tattered clothes. Yes, only rags dangling around their loins. A portion of the families are staying at home, or lying on the street corner only to starve and feed their babies with water instead of milk. What is most horrifying, children are sold in open markets! This is no over-dramatization. This is not merely a figure of speech—THIS IS FACT! A mother disposed of her child for a single meal of rice, another for $2.50, another for $5.00. Or the children are quietly put on the verandas of missionaries, etc., to be taken care of. Others throw them in the gutters for the dogs and jackals to take care of.

"The daily scenes that are being witnessed in the streets of Calcutta and all over Bengal break everybody's heart. Hungry emaciated women in rags snatching food from their children being almost insane, bereaved mothers mourning the loss of little ones, abandoned children wandering with sunken eyes and all the ribs sticking out, ... boy fighting with a dog for a crumb in the dust-bin, wife killing husband driven crazy by hunger—never was it dreamed that it would fall to the lot of the present to see such ghastly sights."

—The church council of theFirst Mennonite Church, Reedley, California, has adopted the policy of reporting "to the congregation a resume of its activities in a bulletin on a Sunday following its meeting in order to keep the congregation informed on its plans and programs and purposes."

—Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman visited the C.P.S. camps at Colorado Springs and Fort Collins and the Denver unit during the Christmas season. He spent Christmas Day at Fort Collins, where his son is a camper.

—The Oklahoma Bible Academy plans to offer a Two-Week Special Bible Course from January 16 to 30.

—The Need in Mental Hospitals: Philadelphia state hospital, for instance had about 1,000 employees in 1941. By October, 1942, only 200 were left. At that time there were 6,000 patients, though the hospital was planned for only 3,500.—Bulletin, Deep Run Mennonite Church.

—The Bethel Mennonite Church, Wolf Point, Montana, enjoyed a real spiritual feast on the annual harvest and mission festival held November 14. Rev. Walter J. Feely, a radio worker form Billings, Montana, was the guest speaker. The offering for the day was $1,036.66. This was divided between home and foreign mission work.—Albert Ewert, Pastor.

—The Bethel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, passed a resolution during its annual business meeting to the effect, "That during worship services the church balcony is to remain closed as long as there is ample room in the main auditorium of the church." Maybe other churches with balconies can profit from this resolution. In another bulletin from the Bethel Church we find this statement from the pastor, Erland Waltner: "Some Impressions Received from the Visit to the C.P.S. groups at Lincoln, Nebraska, and Denison, Iowa: 1. The public attitude toward the C.P.S. boys is much better than it was a year ago. Through their contacts with the public the boys have won admiration and respect. 2. The men are under increasing tension because of the prolongation of the war. They need our spiritual intercession that they may not lose their vision."

—Bulletin, East Swamp Mennonite Church, Quakertown, Pa., Harold D. Burkholder, pastor, visited between December 20 and 24 the C.P.S. camp at Grottoes, Virginia, the Staunton State Hospital Unit, Camp Luray, and the Petuxant Research Refuge, Bowie, Maryland.

this year listed all nominees for church offices on the bulletin board. Thus the members could thought- —The Menno Mennonite Church, Lind, Washington, fully consider their choices before casting their vote at the annual meeting. Perhaps, churches should devote more prayer and meditation to their elections. They too can become too "secularized."

—First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho: Dr. J. H. Langenwalter spent the week from November 27 to December 4 here, giving seven most interesting and helpful discourses on the first six chapters of the book of Acts.

—Gnadenberg Mennonite Church, Whitewater, Kansas, Since this church was organized in Russia it has been served by three Elders, namely: Rev. David Ziebrandt, 1817-1851; Rev. John Schroeder, 1852-1899; and Rev. G. N. Harms, 1901-1941. During the years 1897 to 1901 Rev. David Toews performed the duties of an Elder. For a number of years Rev. J. J. Voth of Bethel College has very ably served us as pastor every other Sunday and performed the duties of an Elder. On alternate Sundays we have been served by ministerial students from Bethel College. At present Rev. John Graber, a student from Pretty Prairie, is serving us.—Corr.
